The Whole Works
Of the Reverend Mr. John Flavel, Late Minister of the Gospel at Dartmouth in Devon.

In Eight Volumes.

To which is added,
An Alphabetical Table of the principal Matters contained in the Whole.

The Eighth Edition.

VOL. VIII.

Paisley:
Printed by A. Weir and A. M'Lean.
And sold at the Shop of A. Weir, near the Cross.

MDCCLXX.
CONTENTS

An Exposition of the Assembly's Shorter Catechism.

Quest. 23. Of Christ's offices, page 1
Quest. 24. Of Christ's prophetical office, 2
Quest. 25. Of Christ's priesthood, 4
Quest. 26. Of Christ's kingly office, 5
Quest. 27. Of Christ's humiliation, 7
Quest. 28. Of Christ's exaltation, 8
Quest. 29. Of the application of Christ, 11
Quest. 30. Of our union with Christ, 13
Quest. 31. Of effectual calling, 14
Quest. 32. Of the concomitants of vocation, 16
Quest. 33. Of justification, 18
Quest. 34. Of adoption, 20
Quest. 35. Of sanctification, 21
Quest. 36. Of assurance, the fruit of justification, 23
Quest. 37. Of perfection at death, 31
Quest. 38. Of Christ's acknowledging believers, 36
Quest. 39. Of man's duty to God, 41
Quest. 40, 41. Of the moral law, 44
Quest. 42. Of love to God and man, 46
Quest. 43, 44. Of the preface to the ten commandments, 48
Quest. 45, 46, 47, 48. Of the first commandment, 50
Quest. 49, 50, 51, 52. Of the second commandment, 53
Quest. 53, 54, 55, 56. Of the third commandment, 56
Quest. 57, 58, 59, 60, 61, 62. Of the fourth commandment, 60
Quest. 63, 64, 65, 66. Of the fifth commandment, 65
Quest. 67, 68, 69. Of the sixth commandment, 70
Quest. 70, 71, 72. Of the seventh commandment, 73
Quest. 73, 74, 75. Of the eighth commandment, 75
Quest. 76, 77, 78. Of the ninth commandment, 78
Quest. 79, 80, 81. Of the tenth commandment, 81
Quest. 82. Of keeping the law, 84
Quest. 83. Of the inequality of sin, 87
Quest. 84. Of the demerit of sin, 89
CONTENTS

Quest. 85. Of what God requires of us, 91
Quest. 86. Of saving faith, 94
Quest. 87. Of saving repentance, 98
Quest. 88. Of Christ's ordinances, 100
Quest. 89. Of the word read and heard, 102
Quest. 90. Of the manner of hearing, 105
Quest. 91. Of sacraments, as means of salvation, 109
Quest. 92. Of the nature of sacraments, 111
Quest. 93. Of the number of sacraments, 114
Quest. 94. Of baptism, 115
Quest. 95. Of the subjects of baptism, 117
Quest. 96. Of the Lord's supper, 120
Quest. 97. Of the duties of communicants, 124
Quest. 98. Of prayer, 127
Quest. 99. Of direction in prayer, 130
Quest. 100. Of the preface to the Lord's prayer, 132
Quest. 101. Of sanctifying God's name, 134
Quest. 102. Of God's kingdom, 137
Quest. 103. Concerning the doing of God's will, 139
Quest. 104. Concerning our daily bread, 143
Quest. 105. Concerning forgiveness of sins, 147
Quest. 106. Of God's leading us into temptation, 152
Quest. 107. Of the conclusion, 154

A REPLY to Mr. Philip Cary's solemn Call.

A friendly preface to the author, 158
Prolegomena, 163

Sacramental Meditations upon divers select places of Scripture.

To the Reader, 229

MEDITATION I.
Ps. lxxxix. 7. God is greatly to be feared in the assembly of his saints, and to be had in reverence of all that are about him, 232

MEDITATION II.
Jer. xii. 2. Thou art near in their mouth, and far from their reins, 240
CONTENTS

MEDITATION III.
Rom. vii. 21. I find then a law, that when I would do good, evil is present with me,

MEDITATION IV.
Eph. i. 13. In whom also, after that ye believed, ye were sealed with the holy Spirit of promise,

MEDITATION V.
John i. 29. Behold the Lamb of God, which taketh away the sins of the world, MEDITATION VI.

Rom. viii. 32. He that spared not his own Son, but delivered him up for us all; how shall he not with him also freely give us all things,

MEDITATION VII.
Mark ix. 24. And straightway the father of the child cried out, and said with tears, Lord, I believe, help thou mine unbelief,

MEDITATION VIII.
Psal. lx. 8. I delight to do thy will, O my God; yea, thy law is within my heart,

MEDITATION IX.
Zech. xii. part of ver. 10. And they shall look upon me, whom they have pierced; and they shall mourn for him, as one mourneth for his only son; and shall be in bitterness for him, as one that is in bitterness for his first-born,

MEDITATION X.
John vi. 55. For my flesh is meat indeed, and my blood is drink indeed,

MEDITATION XI.
Cant. viii. 6. Set me as a seal upon thy heart, as a seal upon thine arm: for love is strong as death; jealousy is cruel as the grave: the coals thereof are coals of fire,

MEDITATION XII.
Eph. iii. 19.—And to know the love of Christ, which passeth knowledge,

A familiar Conference between a Minister and a doubting Christian, concerning the Sacrament of the Lord's supper,

A HYMN upon Romans v. 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11.
CONTENTS

The REASONABLENESS of PERSONAL REFORMATION.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Pag.</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>The Epistle to the Reader,</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

CHAP. I.
The introduction and state of the case; | 337 |

CHAP. II.
Producing one dictate, or rule of right reason, respecting morality, allowed by mankind; and passing current through the world, without one negative voice, except only from those men, whose reasons are utterly captivated by their lusts. | 348 |

CHAP. III.
Wherein the true censure and judgment of right reason and conscience, are given upon profane swearing, and blaspheming the name of God: As also their replies to several pleas offered in defence or excuse thereof; | 355 |

CHAP. IV.
Wherein reason and conscience are again consulted about the practice of drunkenness; and their righteous and impartial censure given upon that case. | 373 |

CHAP. V.
Containing the result and issue of the third consultation with reason, upon the case of uncleanness; and the true report of every man's reason, with respect thereto. | 384 |

CHAP. VI.
Wherein reason and conscience are once more consulted, about that bitter and implacable enmity found in thousands this day, against all serious piety, and the strict professors thereof, who differ from them in some external modes, and rites of worship; and their determinations, upon that case, impartially reported. | 393 |

The Second Part: Evincing the Possibility and Necessity of Conversion.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Sect.</th>
<th>Pag.</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Sect. I. Conviction supposed, and grace admired,</td>
<td>405</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sect. II. Conversion of the vilest sinner possible,</td>
<td>408</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sect. III. The conversion of profane ones highly probable,</td>
<td>410</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sect. IV. Conversion frequently and fatally mistaken,</td>
<td>412</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sect. V. Of the nature of true conversion,</td>
<td>414</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
CONTENTS

Sect. VI. Of the hazards attending conversion, 415
Sect. VII. Of the absolute necessity of a thorough change, ibid.
Sect. VIII. Every man might do more than he doth towards his own conversion, 417
Sect. IX. Temptations and discouragements in the way of conversion, 418
Sect. X. Motives and considerations persuading to conversion, 419

A Coronation SERMON, preached at Dartmouth.

Cant. iii. 11. Go forth, ye daughters of Zion, and behold king Solomon, with the crown wherewith his mother crowned him in the day of his espousals, and in the day of the gladness of his heart, 424

The CHARACTER of a true Evangelical Pastor.

Matth. xxv. 45, 46, 47. Who then is a faithful and wise servant, whom his Lord hath made ruler over his household, to give them meat in due season? Blessed is that servant, whom his Lord, when he cometh, shall find so doing. Verily, I say unto you, that he shall make him ruler over all his goods, 445

A DOUBLE SCHEME of Sins and Duties, 471
AN EXPOSITION OF THE ASSEMBLY'S SHORTER CATECHISM.

Of Christ's Offices.

Quest. 23. WHAT offices doth Christ execute as our Redeemer?

A. Christ, as our Redeemer, doth execute the office of a prophet, of a priest, and of a king, both in his estate of humiliation and exaltation.

Q. 1. What are the states and conditions of our Redeemer?

A. Christ's states are twofold; namely, his state of humiliation, and his state of exaltation; Phil. ii. 8, 9. And being found in fashion as a man, he humbled himself, and became obedient unto death, even the death of the cross: Wherefore God also hath highly exalted him, and given him a name above every name.

Q. 2. How many offices belong to Christ in these states?

A. Christ hath a threefold office; namely, of a prophet, of a priest, and of a king.

Q. 3. Why doth Christ take all these three offices?

A. Because they are all necessary for our salvation, and we have the benefit of them all; 1 Cor. i. 30. Who of God is made unto us wisdom, and righteousness, and sanctification, and redemption.

Q. 4. Can no man take Christ in one office, and not in another?

A. No; whoever will have the benefit of any one, must receive him in all; Acts v. 31. Him hath God exalted with his right hand to be a Prince, and a Saviour, for to give repentance unto Israel, and forgiveness of sins.

Q. 5. What respect have the offices of Christ to the promises?

A. The promises flow out of them as out of their fountain;
An Exposition of the Assembly's Catechism.

2 Cor. i. 20. For all the promises of God in him, are ye, and in him, amen.

Q. 6. What promises flow out of the prophetical office?
A. All promises of illumination, guidance, and direction, flow out of Christ's prophetical office.

Q. 7. What promises flow out of the priestly office?
A. All the promises of pardon and peace flow out of it.

Q. 8. What promises flow out of the kingly office?
A. All the promises of defence, protection, and deliverances.

Q. 9. What is the first instruction?
A. Hence we learn the completeness of Christ for all the wants of his people; Col. ii. 10. And ye are complete in him.

Q. 10. What is the second instruction?
A. Hence we learn the folly and misery of all those hypocrites that close partially with Christ.

Q. 11. What is the third instruction?
A. Hence we learn the singular dignity of the Lord Jesus: None ever having had all those offices but Christ.

Q. 12. What is the last instruction?
A. That faith is a considerate act; and requires much deliberation.

Of Christ's Prophetic Office.

Quest. 24. HOW doth Christ execute the office of a prophet?
A. Christ executeth the office of a prophet, in revealing to us by his word and Spirit, the will of God for our salvation.

Q. 1. What doth Christ's prophetical office imply?
A. It implies man's natural blindness and ignorance; 1 Cor. ii. 14. But the natural man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God, for they are foolishness unto him; neither can he know them, because they are spiritually discerned.

Q. 2. What else doth it imply?
A. That Christ is the original and fountain of all that light which guides us to salvation; 2 Cor. iv. 6, 7. For God that commanded the light to shine out of darkness, hath shined in our hearts, to give the light of the knowledge of the glory of God in the face of Jesus Christ.

Q. 3. How doth Christ teach men the will of God?
A. He doth it by external revelation of it; Acts iii. 22. For Moses truly said to the fathers, A prophet shall the Lord your God raise up unto you of your brethren, like unto me, him shall ye hear in all things, whatsoever he shall say unto you. And by internal illumination; Luke xxiv. 45. Then
An Exposition of the Assembly's Catechism.

What need then of man's ministry?

A. Very much; for Christ hath instituted ministers as instruments, by whom he will teach us; Eph. iv. 11, 12. And he gave some apostles, and some prophets, and some evangelists, and some pastors, and teachers, for the perfecting of the saints, for the work of the ministry, for the edifying of the body of Christ. Acts xxvi. 18. To open their eyes, and to turn them from darkness to light, and from the power of Satan unto God, that they may receive forgiveness of sins.

Q. 5. Can no man savingly know the will of God without the teachings of Christ?

A. No; though common knowledge may be obtained in a natural way, yet not saving; Matth. xi. 25. At that time Jesus answered, and said, I thank thee, O Father, Lord of heaven and earth, because thou hast hid these things from the wise and prudent, and hast revealed them unto babes.

Q. 6. How appears it that Christ is appointed to this office?

A. We have the written word for it; Acts iii. 22. For Moses truly said unto the fathers, A prophet shall the Lord your God raise up unto you of your brethren, like unto me; him shall ye hear in all things, whatsoever he shall say unto you.

Q. 7. What is the first instruction from hence?

A. None need be discouraged at their natural weakness, if Christ be their teacher; Matth. xi. 25. At that time Jesus answered, and said, I thank thee, O Father, Lord of heaven and earth, because thou hast hid these things from the wise and prudent, and hast revealed them unto babes. Psalm xix. 7. The testimonies of the Lord are sure, making wise the simple.

Q. 8. What is the second instruction?

A. That it is a dreadful judgment to be spiritually blinded under the gospel; 2 Cor. iv. 3, 4. But if our gospel be hid, it is hid to them that are lost; in whom the god of this world hath blinded the minds of them which believe not, lest the light of the glorious gospel of Christ, who is the image of God, should shine unto them.

Q. 9. What is the third instruction?

A. That prayer is the best expedient to obtain saving knowledge; James i. 5. If any of you lack wisdom, let him ask of God, that giveth to all men liberally, and upbraideth not; and it shall be given him.

A 2
Of Christ's Priesthood.

Quest 25. How doth Christ execute the office of a priest?

A. Christ executeth the office of a priest, in his once offering up of himself a sacrifice to satisfy divine justice, and reconcile us to God, and in making continual intercession for us.

Q. 1. What is the priesthood of Christ in general?

A. It is his expiation of our sins by the sacrifice of himself, and obtaining God's favour for us; Col. i. 20. And (having made peace through the blood of his crosses) by him to reconcile all things unto himself; by him, I say, whether they be things in earth, or things in heaven.

Q. 2. What are the parts of Christ's priestly office?

A. It hath two parts. First, Oblation, or offering of himself; Heb. ix. 14. How much more shall the blood of Christ, who through the eternal Spirit offered himself without spot to God, purge your consciences from dead works, to serve the living God? Secondly, Intercession for us; Heb. vii. 25. Wherefore he is able also to save them to the uttermost, that come unto God by him, seeing he ever liveth to make intercession for them.

Q. 3. What is the end of Christ's oblation?

A. The end of it, as to God, was to satisfy his incensed justice; Rom. iii. 25. Whom God hath set forth to be a propitiation, through faith in his blood, to declare his righteousness for the remission of sins that are past, through the forbearance of God. And as to men, to put away their sins; Heb. ix. 26. For then must he often have suffered since the foundation of the world; but now once in the end of the world, hath he appeared to put away sin by the sacrifice of himself.

Q. 4. What is the first difference between Christ and other priests?

A. Other priests offered the blood of beasts; Christ his own blood; Heb. ix. 12. Neither by the blood of goats and calves, but by his own blood, he entered once into the holy place, having obtained eternal redemption for us.

Q. 5. What is the second difference?

A. They offered many sacrifices; Christ perfected all by one offering, Heb. x. 14. For by one offering he hath perfected for ever them that are sanctified.
An Exposition of the Assembly's Catechism.

Q. 6. What was the sacrifice Christ offered to God?
A. His body; Heb. x. 10. By the which we are sanctified, through the offering of the body of Jesus Christ once for all. And his soul; Isa. iii. 10. When thou shalt make his soul an offering for sin.

Q. 7. Whence is the efficacy of this sacrifice?
A. From the divine Person to whom that soul and body was united; Acts xv. 28. Feed the church of God, which he hath purchased with his own blood.

Q. 8. What is the first inference from hence?
A. That believers are discharged by Christ from all their sins and debts; Acts xiii. 39. And by him, all that believe are justified from all things.

Q. 9. What is the second inference?
A. That it is a fearful thing to fall into the hands of an absolute God; Luke xxiii. 31. For if they do these things in a green tree, what shall be done in the dry?

Q. 10. What is the third inference?
A. That it is impossible for man to satisfy God for his own sins; Psal. cxxx. 3. If thou, Lord, shouldst mark iniquities, O Lord, who shall stand?

Q. 11. What is the last inference?
A. That the Christian religion only settles the conscience in peace; Heb. ix. 14. How much more shall the blood of Christ, who through the eternal Spirit offered himself without spot to God, purge your consciences from dead works to serve the living God?

Of Christ's Kingly Office.

Quest. 26. HOW doth Christ execute the office of a king?
A. Christ executeth the office of a king, in subduing us to himself, in ruling and defending us, and in restraining and conquering all his and our enemies.

Q. 1. How manifold is Christ's kingdom?
A. Twofold. First, Internal, in mens souls; Luke xvii. 21. Behold, the kingdom of God is within you. Secondly, External, over all the world; Eph. i. 22. And hath put all things under his feet, and gave him to be Head over all things to the church.

Q. 2. What is the end of Christ's providential kingdom?
A. The good and salvation of the church; John xvi. 2. As thou hast given him power over all flesh, that he should give eternal life to as many as thou hast given him.
An Exposition of the Assembly's Catechism.

Q. 3. Wherein doth he exercise his kingly power?

A. In restraining his, and his people's enemies; Psalm lxxvi. 10. Surely the wrath of man shall praise thee; the remainder of wrath shalt thou restrain.

Q. 4. How else is it exercised?

A. In protecting his church amidst all enemies; Exod. iii. 3. And Moses said, I will now turn aside, and see this great sight, why the bush is not burnt.

Q. 5. What instruments doth Christ use?

A. Angels are ministering spirits to him; Heb. i. 14. Are they not all ministering spirits, sent forth to minister for them who shall be heirs of salvation? And men, yea the worst of men; Rev. xii. 16. And the earth helped the woman, and the earth opened her mouth, and swallowed up the flood which the dragon cast out of his mouth.

Q. 6. In what manner doth Christ rule the world?

A. By supreme power; Rev. xix. 16. He hath on his vesture, and on his thigh a name written, King of kings, and Lord of lords. And perfect wisdom; Eph. i. 11. In whom also we have obtained an inheritance, being predestinated according to the purpose of him who worketh all things after the counsel of his own will.

Q. 7. What learn we from hence?

A. That the Church is saved amidst all dangers; Jer. xxx. 11. For I am with thee, faith the Lord, to save thee; though I make a full end of all nations, whither I have scattered thee, yet will I not make a full end of thee.

Q. 8. What is the second instruction?

A. That the godly may safely trust to Christ's care; 2 Chron. xvi. 9. For the eyes of the Lord run to and fro throughout the whole earth, to shew himself strong in the behalf of them whose heart is perfect towards him.

Q. 9. What is the third instruction?

A. That all plots against the church shall surely be defeated; Isa. liv. 17. No weapon that is formed against thee shall prosper.

Q. 10. What is the fourth instruction?

A. It gives the saints full satisfaction in all conditions; Rom. viii. 28. And we know that all things work together for good, to them that love God, to them who are the called according to his purpose.

Q. 11. What is the last inference?

A. We should not stand in a slavish fear of men; Isa. li.
An Exposition of the Assembly's Catechism.

12. I, even I am he that comforteth you; who art thou, that thou shouldest be afraid of a man that shall die, and of the son of man, which shall be made as grass.

Of Christ's Humiliation.

Quest. 27. Wherein did Christ's humiliation consist?

A. Christ's humiliation consisted in his being born, and that in a low condition, made under the law, undergoing the miseries of this life, the wrath of God, and the cursed death of the cross; in being buried, and continuing under the power of death for a time.

Q. 1. What doth Christ's humbling of himself import?

A. His voluntariness in the deepest point of self-denial; Psal. xl. 7. Then said I, Lo, I come; in the volume of the book it is written of me.

Q. 2. What was the first act of Christ's humiliation?

A. His taking man's nature on him, with all its sinless infirmities; Rom. viii. 3. God sending his own Son in the likeness of sinful flesh, and for sin condemned sin in the flesh.

Q. 3. What is the second part of his humiliation?

A. That mean, life he lived in this world, which obscured his divine glory; Mark vi. 3. Is not this the carpenter, the son of Mary?

Q. 4. What was the first thing in Christ's life that humbled him?

A. The poverty of it; Mat. vii. 20. And Jesus saith unto him, The foxes have holes, and the birds of the air have nests; but the Son of man hath not where to lay his head.

Q. 5. What was the second thing in his life that humbled him?

A. The temptations of Satan, to which he was subject; Mat. iv. 1. Then was Jesus led up of the Spirit into the wilderness, to be tempted of the devil, and that for our sakes. Heb. ii. 17. Wherefore in all things it behoved him to be made like unto his brethren. ver. 18. For in that he himself hath suffered, being tempted, he is able to succour them that are tempted.

Q. 6. What was the third thing in Christ's life that humbled him?

A. His subjection to the law; Gal. i. 4. But when the fulness of the time was come, God sent forth his Son, made of a woman, made under the law.

Q. 7. What was the fourth thing in Christ's life that humbled him?

A. The revilings and contradictions of sinners; Heb. xii.
An Exposition of the Assembly's Catechism.

3. For consider him that endured such contradiction of sinners against himself.

Q. 8. Wherein was Christ humbled in his death?
A. His death was painful and ignominious; Gal. iii. 13. Christ hath redeemed us from the curse of the law, being made a curse for us: For it is written, cursed is every one that hangeth on a tree. Made a curse for us, and deserted in it; Matth. xxvii. 46. And about the ninth hour, Jesus cried with a loud voice, saying, Eli, Eli, lama sabacthani; that is to say, My God, My God, why hast thou forfaken me?

Q. 9. What is the first inference from hence?
A. That lowliness and humility becomes Christ's followers; Matth. xi. 29. Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me, for I am meek and lowly in heart.

Q. 10. What is the second inference?
A. That Christ's love to sinners is astonishingly great; 2 Cor. viii. 9. For ye know the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, that though he was rich, yet for our sakes he became poor, that ye through his poverty might be made rich.

Q. 11. What is the third inference?
A. Christians should be ready to suffer for Christ; 1 Peter iv. 1. Forasmuch as Christ hath suffered for us in the flesh, arm yourselves likewise with the same mind: for he that hath suffered in the flesh, hath ceased from sin.

Q. 12. What is the last inference?
A. That humiliation is the true way to exaltation; Matth. xxiii. 12. And whosoever shall exalt himself, shall be abased; and he that shall humble himself, shall be exalted.

Of Christ's exaltation.

Q. 28. WHEREIN consists Christ's exaltation?
A. Christ's exaltation consists in his rising again from the dead on the third day; in ascending up into heaven, in sitting at the right hand of God the Father, and in coming to judge the world at the last day.

Q. 1. What is the first step of Christ's exaltation?
A. His resurrection from the dead.

Q. 2. How doth his resurrection appear?
A. By the scripture prophecies accomplished in him; 1 Cor. xv. 4. And that he was buried, and that he rose again the third day, according to the scriptures.

Q. 3. Why did Christ rise again?
A. To establish our faith, and abolish our sins; 1 Cor. xv. 17. And if Christ be not risen, your faith is vain; ye are yet in your sins.
Q. 4. What other end was there of Christ's resurrection?
A. To declare his divine power; Rom. i. 4. And declared to be the Son of God with power, according to the Spirit of holiness, by the resurrection from the dead. And to evidence the fulness of his satisfaction; John xvi. 10. Of righteousness, because I go to my Father, and ye see me no more.

Q. 5. Did Christ rise in the same body he laid down?
A. It was substantially the same; John xx. 27. Then faith he to Thomas, Reach hither thy finger, and behold my hands; and reach hither thy hand, and thrust it into my side, and be not faithless, but believing.

Q. 6. What doth Christ's resurrection teach us?
A. The certainty of our resurrection after death; 1 Cor. xv. 20. But now is Christ risen from the dead, and become the first fruits of them that slept.

Q. 7. What was the second step of Christ's exaltation?
A. His ascension after forty days into heaven; Acts i. 2, 3. Until the day in which he was taken up, after that he through the holy Ghost, had given commandment unto the apostles, whom he had chosen: To whom also he shewed himself alive after his passion, by many infallible proofs, being seen of them forty days, and speaking of the things pertaining to the kingdom of God.

Q. 8. Why did Christ stay so long on earth?
A. To assure the truth of his resurrection, and to settle the due government of his church, Acts i. 2, 3.

Q. 9. For what end did he ascend?
A. To take possession of his glory; John xvii. 5. And now, O Father, glorify thou me with thine own self, with the glory which I had with thee before the world was. And that as our fore-runner, Heb. vi. 20. Whither the Fore-runner is for us entered, even Jesus, &c.

Q. 10. In what manner did Christ ascend?
A. Triumphanty, and magnificently; Psalm xlvii. 5. God is gone up with a shout, the Lord with the sound of a trumpet.

Q. 11. What doth his ascension teach us?
A. Heavenly-mindedness; Col. iii. 1, 2. If ye then be risen with Christ, seek those things which are above, where Christ sitteth at the right hand of God; set your affections on things above, and not on things on the earth. And an encouragement in our Christian race; Heb. xii. 1, 2. Wherefore, seeing we also are compassed about with so great a cloud of witnesses, let us lay aside every weight, and the sin which doth so en-
An Exposition of the Assembly's Catechism.

Singly beset us, and let us run with patience the race that is set before us, looking unto Jesus the author and finisher of our faith; who for the joy that was set before him, endured the cross, despising the shame, and is set down at the right hand of the throne of God.

The second Part of the 28th Question, of Christ's Exaltation.

Quest. 1. What was the third degree of Christ's exaltation?

A. His sitting at God's right hand in heaven; Heb. i. 3. When he had by himself purged our sins, sat down on the right hand of the majesty on high.

Q 2. What doth God's right hand signify?

A. A state of honour; Heb. i. 13. But to which of the angels said he at any time, Sit on my right hand until I make thine enemies thy footstool? And power; Matth. xxvi. 64. Hereafter shall ye see the Son of man sitting on the right hand of power.

Q 3. What is implied in Christ's sitting there?

A. That his work on earth is finished; Heb. x. 12. But this man after he had offered one sacrifice for sin, sat down on the right hand of God.

Q 4. What else doth it signify?

A. Christ's power over all enemies; Psalm cx. 2. The Lord shall send the rod of thy strength out of Zion: Rule thou in the midst of thine enemies.

Q 5. What learn we from Christ's sitting there?

A. The high honour believers are advanced to by Christ; Eph. ii. 6. And hath raised us up together, and made us sit together in heavenly places in Christ Jesus.

Q 6. What is the last step of Christ's exaltation?

A. His coming to judgment; Acts x. 42. And he commanded us to preach unto the people, and to testify that it is he which was ordained of God to be the Judge of quick and dead.

Q 7. Is it certain there shall be a judgment-day?

A. Yes; the scripture affirset it; 2 Cor. v. 10. For we must all appear before the judgment-seat of Christ. And every man's conscience witnesseth to it; Rom. ii. 16. In the day when God shall judge the secrets of men by Jesus Christ, according to my gospel.

Q 8. What is the first property of Christ's judgment?

A. It will be awful and solemn; 1 Thes. iv. 16. For the Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the arch-angel, and with the trump of God; and the dead in Christ shall rise first.

Q 9. What is the second property of it?
An Exposition of the Assembly's Catechism.

A. It will be exact and critical; Rom. ii. 16. In the day when God shall judge the secrets of men by Jesus Christ, according to my gospel. Matth. xii. 36. But I say unto you, That every idle word that men shall speak, they shall give account thereof in the day of judgment.

Q. 10. What is the third property of it?
A. It will be an universal judgment; Rev. xx. 12. And I saw the dead, small and great, stand before God, and the books were opened,

Q. 11. How is this a part of Christ's exaltation?
A. He now acts in the fulness of his kingly power; Matth. xxv. 34. Then shall the king say unto them on his right hand, Come ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world. And this shall roll away the reproach of his enemies; Rev. i. 7. Behold, he cometh with clouds; and every eye shall see him, and they also which pierced him.

Q. 12. What learn we from Christ's being judge?
A. That believers shall not be cast in judgment; Rom. viii. 1. There is therefore now no condemnation to them that are in Christ Jesus.

Q. 13. What learn we from hence?
A. The deplorable state of Christless persons; Luke xix. 27. But those mine enemies that would not that I should reign over them, bring hither, and slay them before me.

Q. 14. What else learn we from Christ's judgment?
A. To give all diligence to be found of him in peace; 2 Pet. iii. 14. Wherefore, beloved, seeing that ye look for such things, be diligent, that ye may be found of him in peace.

Of the Application of Christ.

Quest. 29. How are we made partakers of the redemption purchased by Christ?
A. We are made partakers of the redemption purchased by Christ, by the effectual application of it to us by his holy Spirit.

Q. 1. What did our redemption cost Christ?
A. It cost him his own blood to obtain it; Heb. ix. 12. Neither by the blood of goats and calves, but by his own blood, he entered in once into the holy place, having obtained eternal redemption for us.

Q. 2. Can none have the benefit of it, except it be applied to them?
A. No, if Christ be not applied, we cannot be saved; John
An Exposition of the Assembly's Catechism.

1. 12. But as many as received him, to them gave he power to become the sons of God, even to them that believe on his name.

Q. 3. Whose work or office is it to apply Christ to us?
A. It is the office and work of God's Spirit; Titus iii. 4, 5. But after that the kindness and love of God our Saviour towards man appeared, not by works of righteousness which we have done, but according to his mercy he saved us, by the washing of regeneration, and renewing of the holy Ghost.

Q. 4. What means doth the Spirit use in applying Christ?
A. The external means he makes use of, is the ministry of the gospel; 1 Cor. iii. 5. Who then is Paul, and who is Apollos, but ministers by whom ye believed?

Q. 5. Is this sufficient of itself?
A. No, the blessing and power of the Spirit must accompany it, or Christ cannot be applied; 1 Thess. i. 5, 6. For our gospel came not unto you in word only, but also in power, and in the holy Ghost, and in much assurance, as ye know what manner of men we were among you for your sake. And ye became followers of us, and of the Lord, having received the word in much affliction, with joy of the holy Ghost.

Q. 6. To whom doth the Spirit apply Christ?
A. To those that were given him of the Father before the world was; Acts xiii. 48. And as many as were ordained to eternal life believed. John xiv. 17. Even the Spirit of truth, whom the world cannot receive, because it seeth him not, neither knoweth him; but ye know him, for he dwelleth with you, and shall be in you.

Q. 7. Is the application of Christ to a soul finished at once?
A. Thou the first act of faith unites the soul to Christ, yet it is a continued act; 1 Pet. ii. 4. To whom coming, as unto a living stone.

Q. 8. What learn you from hence?
A. What a destitute thing the soul is that is out of Christ; Rev. iii. 18. Because thou sayest I am rich, and increased with goods, and have need of nothing; and knowest not that thou art wretched, and miserable, and poor, and blind, and naked.

Q. 9. What else doth it teach us?
A. The riches and dignity of believers. Christ, and all his purchases are theirs; 1 Cor. iii. 22, 23. Whether Paul, or Apollos, or Cephas, or the world, or life, or death, or things present, or things to come; all are yours, and ye are Christ's, and Christ is God's.
An Exposition of the Assembly's Catechism.

Q. 10. What else doth it teach us?
A. The righteousness of God in the destruction of all unbelievers; John v. 40. Mark xvi. 16. He that believeth, and is baptized, shall be faved; but he that believeth not, shall be damned.

Of our Union with Christ.

Q. 30. How doth the Spirit apply to us the redemption purchased by Christ.
A. By working faith in us, and thereby uniting us to Christ in our effectual calling.

Q. 1. Can none have saving benefit by Christ, but such as are united to him?
A. No, for as Adam's sin could not hurt us, except we had been in him; so Christ's redemption cannot profit us, except we are in him; 1 Cor. i. 30. But of him are ye in Christ Jesus, who of God is made unto us wisdom, and righteousness, and sanctification, and redemption.

Q. 2. What are the bonds of this union?
A. The Spirit on God's part; 1 John iii. 24. And he that keepeth his commandments, dwelleth in him, and he in him; and hereby we know that he abideth in us, by the Spirit which he hath given us. And faith on our part; Eph. iii. 17. That Christ may dwell in your hearts by faith.

Q. 3. What is the first property of this union?
A. It is an intimate union; Eph. v. 30. For we are members of his body, of his flesh, and of his bones.

Q. 4. What is the second property?
A. It is an union never to be dissolved; Rom. viii. 35, 38. Who shall separate us from the love of Christ? Shall tribulation, or distress, or persecution, or famine, or nakedness, or peril, or sword? For I am persuaded, that neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor powers, nor things present, nor things to come, nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature, shall be able to separate us from the love of God which is in Christ Jesus our Lord.

Q. 5. What is the third property of this union?
A. It makes Christ, and all that he hath purchased, become ours; 1 Cor. iii. 22, 23. All are yours, and ye are Christ's; and Christ is God's.

Q. 6. What is the fourth property of this union?
A. It is the foundation and root of all our spiritual and acceptable obedience; John xv. 4. Abide in me, and I in you. As the branch cannot bear fruit of itself, except it abide in the vine; no more can ye, except ye abide in me.
Q. 7. What is the first inference from hence?
A. That saving grace in the saints is immortal, being secured to them in and by Christ; Col. iii. 3. Your life is hid with Christ in God.

Q. 8. What is the second inference?
A. That the relation between Christ and believers is very near and intimate; Eph. v. 30. For we are members of his body, of his flesh, and of his bones.

Q. 9. What is the third inference?
A. That believers need not be afraid to go down to the grave; Rom. viii. 38, 39. For I am persuaded, that neither death nor life, nor any other creature shall be able to separate us from the love of God, which is in Christ Jesus our Lord. And this union holds after death; Matth. xxii. 31, 32. But as touching the resurrection of the dead, have ye not read that which was spoken unto you by God, saying, I am the God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob? God is not the God of the dead, but the God of the living.

Q. 10. What is the fourth inference?
A. That in wronging and persecuting the saints, men wrong and persecute Christ himself; Acts ix. 4. And he fell to the earth, and heard a voice saying unto him, Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me?

Q. 11. What is the fifth inference?
A. That in relieving and refreshing the saints, we relieve and refresh Christ himself; Matth. xxv. 35, 36. For I was an hungered, and ye gave me meat; and I was thirsty, and ye gave me drink; I was a stranger, and ye took me in; naked, and ye clothed me; I was sick, and ye visited me; I was in prison, and ye came unto me. Vers. 40. Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me.

Q. 12. What is the last inference?
A. That there is a sympathy in Christ, under all the pressures and grievances of his people; Heb. iv. 15. We have not an high priest which cannot be touched with the feeling of our infirmities, but was in all points tempted like as we are, yet without sin.

Of Effectual Calling.

Quest. 31. What is effectual calling?
A. Effectual calling is the work of God's Spirit, whereby convincing us of our sin and misery, enlightening our minds in the knowledge of Christ, and renewing our
An Exposition of the Assembly's Catechism.

Q. 1. What makes the difference between effectual and ineffectual calling?

A. Ineffectual calling is, when men have nothing but the external sound of the gospel; Math. xx. 16. For many be called, but few chosen. Effectual is, when the Spirit works in conjunction with the word; John vi. 45. It is written in the prophets, And they shall be all taught of God; every man therefore that hath heard, and hath learned of the Father, cometh unto me.

Q. 2. What is the first act of the Spirit in effectual calling?

A. Conviction of sin; John xvi. 8. And when he is come, he will reprove the world of sin.

Q. 3. Do the called of God hear any voice from heaven?

A. Ordinarily it is a call without sound, yet as effectual as an audible voice from heaven.

Q. 4. What is the second act of the Spirit in our effectual calling?

A. The illumination of the mind in the knowledge of Christ; Acts xxvi. 18. To open their eyes, and to turn them from darkness to light, and from the power of Satan unto God.

Q. 5. In what things doth it enlighten them?

A. In this; That Christ is their only remedy; Acts iv. 12. Neither is there salvation in any other; for there is none other name under heaven given among men, whereby we must be saved. And their all-sufficient remedy; Heb. vii. 25. Wherefore he is able also to save them to the uttermost that come unto God by him.

Q. 6. What is the third act?

A. His renewing of the sinner's will, and making it flexible; Psalm cx. 3. Thy people shall be willing in the day of thy power. Ezek. xxxvi. 26. A new heart also will I give you, and a new spirit will I put within you, and I will take away the stony heart out of your flesh, and I will give you an heart of flesh.

Q. 7. Can no man come to Christ till thus be enabled?

A. No; it is not in the power of man's nature or will, till thus renewed and enabled; Eph. i. 19, 20. And what is the exceeding greatness of his power to us-ward, who believe, according to the working of his mighty power, which he wrought in Christ, when he raised him from the dead, and set him on his own right hand in the heavenly places. John vi. 44. No man can come to me except the Father, which hath sent me, draw him.
Q. 8. What sort of men are most ordinarily called?
A. The poor and mean ones in the world; 1 Cor. i. 26. For ye see your calling, brethren, how that not many wise men after the flesh, not many mighty, not many noble, are called; but God hath chosen the foolish things of the world to confound the wise; and God hath chosen the weak things of the world to confound the things which are mighty.

Q. 9. What is the first instruction from it?
A. Souls effectually called are never lost; Rom. xi. 29. For the gifts and calling of God are without repentance.

Q. 10. What is the second instruction?
A. All things co-operate to their good; Rom. viii. 28. For we know that all things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are called according to his purpose.

Q. 11. What is the third instruction?
A. It is dangerous to refuse God's call; Prov. i. 24. Because I have called, and ye have refused, I have stretched out my hand, and no man regarded.

Q. 12. What is the last instruction?
A. That Christians are obliged to walk suitably to their heavenly calling; 1 Thess. ii. 12. That ye would walk worthy of God, who hath called you unto his kingdom and glory.

Of the Concomitants of Vocation.

Quest. 32. What benefits do they that are effectually called partake of in this life?

A. They that are effectually called, do in this life partake of justification, adoption, and sanctification, and the several benefits which in this life do either accompany or flow from them.

Q. 1. Are all that be effectually called, justified?
A. Yes; God justifies all, and every soul that obeys and answers his call; Rom. viii. 30. Whom he called, them he also justified.

Q. 2. What other benefits have the called in this life?
A. They are all the adopted children of God; Eph. i. 5. Having predestinated us unto the adoption of children, by Jesus Christ, unto himself, according to the good pleasure of his will.

Q. 3. Are those all the benefits the called receive?
A. No; they are not only justified and adopted, but also sanctified; 1 Cor. i. 30. But of him are ye in Christ Jesus, who of God is made unto us wisdom, righteousness, and sanctification, and redemption.

Q. 4. Do these three blessings come singly to the called?
An Exposition of the Assembly's Catechism.

A. No; they are all accompanied with multitudes of other blessings flowing from them; Eph. i. 3. Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who hath blessed us with all spiritual blessings, in heavenly places in Christ.

Q. 5. What are the mercies flowing from justification?
   A. They are great and manifold; Rom. v. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5. Therefore being justified by faith, we have peace with God, through our Lord Jesus Christ, by whom also we have access by faith into this grace wherein we stand, and rejoice in hope of the glory of God.

Q. 6. What are the benefits flowing from adoption?
   A. Free access to God; Eph. iii. 12. In whom we have boldness and access with confidence by the faith of him. And a title to heaven; Rom. viii. 17. If children, then heirs.

Q. 7. What blessings accompany sanctification?
   A. Union with Christ; Heb. ii. 11. For both he that sanc-tifieth, and they who are sanctified, are all of one. And right to the inheritance; Acts xx. 32. And now, brethren, I commend you to God, and to the word of his grace, which is able to build you up, and to give you an inheritance among all them which are sanctified.

Q. 8. What is the first lesson from hence?
   A. That they are enemies to their own souls, who obey not the gospel call; 2 Thes. i. 8. In flaming fire, taking vengeance on them that know not God, and that obey not the gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ.

Q. 9. What is the second lesson from hence?
   A. That the estate of believers abounds with spiritual privileges; 1 Cor. iii. 22, 23. Whether Paul, or Apollos, or Cephas, or the world, or life, or death, or things present, or things to come, all are yours, and ye are Christ's, and Christ is God's.

Q. 10. What is the third lesson from hence?
   A. That all the believer's privileges are not in hope, but some in hand; 1 John iii. 11. Behold what manner of love the Father hath bestowed upon us, that we should be called the sons of God.

Q. 11. What is the fourth lesson from hence?
   A. The greatest sufferers for Christ have no reason to repent their call; Rom. viii. 18. For I reckon, that the sufferings of this present time are not worthy to be compared with the glory that shall be revealed in us.

Q. 12. What is the last lesson from hence?
   A. That we have infinite reason to bless God for the gospel, by which we are called; 2 Thess. ii. 14. Whereunto he called you by our gospel.
An Exposition of the Assembly's Catechism.

Of Justification.

Quest. 33. What is justification?
A. Justification is an act of God's free grace, wherein he pardoneth all our sins, and accepteth us as righteous in his sight, only for the righteousness of Christ imputed to us, and received by faith alone.

Q. 1. What are the parts of justification?
A. It consists of two parts. First, The pardon of sin; Acts xiii. 39. And by him all that believe are justified from all things, from which ye could not be justified by the law of Moses. Secondly, The acceptation of our persons as righteous; Rom. v. 1, 2, 3. Therefore being justified by faith, we have peace with God, through our Lord Jesus Christ, by whom also we have access by faith into this grace wherein we stand, and rejoice in hope of the glory of God.

Q. 2. Whose act is it to justify sinners?
A. It is the act of God alone; Rom. viii. 33. It is God that justifieth. Man's justifying of himself is nothing; Luke xvi. 15. And he said unto them, Ye are they which justify yourselves before men, but God knoweth your hearts; for that which is highly esteemed amongst men, is abomination in the sight of God. Nor other men's justifying of us; Rev. iii. 1. I know thy works, that thou hast a name to live, and art dead.

Q. 3. Is there any thing in man to merit his justification?
A. No; it is an act of free grace in God; Rom. iii. 24. Being justified freely by his grace, through the redemption which is in Jesus Christ.

Q. 4. If it be not for any inherent righteousness, how then?
A. It is for the righteousness of Christ imputed to us; Rom. iv. 6. Even as David also describeth the blessedness of the man unto whom God imputeth righteousness without works.

Q. 5. How is Christ's righteousness made ours?
A. By application of it to us by faith; Gal. ii. 16. Knowing that a man is not justified by the works of the law, but by the faith of Jesus Christ, even we have believed in Jesus Christ, that we might be justified by the faith of Christ, and not by the works of the law; for by the works of the law shall no flesh be justified.

Q. 6. Is it not partly by Christ's righteousness made ours, and partly our own?
An Exposition of the Assembly's Catechism.

A. No; by Christ's righteousness, without any mixture of ours; Rom. iii. 28. Therefore we conclude, that a man is justified by faith without the deeds of the law.

Q. 7. But doth not James say otherwise, James ii. 14. What doth it profit, my brethren, though a man say he hath faith and have not works; Can faith save him?

A. The two apostles contradict not one another; Paul speaks of justification before God; and James of justifying our faith before men.

Q. 8. Is no regard then to be had to good works?

A. Yes, very great; they that believe, must be careful to maintain good works; Tit. iii. 8. That they which have believed in God, might be careful to maintain good works. These things are good and profitable unto men.

Q. 9. Why can none be justified by works?

A. Because all are guilty before God; Rom. iii. 29. Is he the God of the Jews only? Is he not also of the Gentiles? Yes, of the Gentiles also. And the law curses all that are under guilt; Gal. iii. 10. Curfed is every one that continueth not in all things which are written in the book of the law to do them.

Q. 10. What is the first inference from hence?

A. The happy state of believers who are now at peace with God; Rom. v. 1. Therefore being justified by faith, we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ. And whom he justifieth he glorifieth. Rom. viii. 30. Whom he justified, them he also glorified.

Q. 11. What is the second inference from hence?

A. The excellency and necessity of faith; Rom. iii. 30. The circumcision is justifieth by faith, and the uncircumcision through faith.

Q. 12. What is the third inference?

A. That the greatness of sin is no bar to faith, since it is the righteousness of Christ that justifieth; 2 Cor. v. 21. For he hath made him to be sin for us, who knew no sin, that we may be made the righteousness of God in him.

Q. 13. What is the last inference?

A. That believers ought to be exceeding humble, and far from boasting. The law of faith excludes boasting; Rom. iii. 27. Where is boasting then? It is excluded: By what law? of works? nay, but by the law of faith.
An Exposition of the Assembly's Catechism.

Of Adoption.

Quest. 34.

What is adoption?

A. Adoption is an act of God's free grace, whereby we are received into the number, and have a right to all the privileges of the Sons of God.

Q. 1. How many sorts of Sons are there?

A. There is one by generation, and another by adoption; John i. 12, 13. But as many as received him, to them gave he power to become the sons of God, even to them that believe in his name; which were born, not of blood, nor of the will of the flesh, nor of the will of man, but of God.

Q. 2. What moves God to adopt any man?

A. Nothing but his free love; 1 John iii. 1. Behold what manner of love the Father hath bestowed on us, that we should be called the sons of God.

Q. 3. Is this privilege common to all men?

A. No; it is peculiar to them that receive him; John i. 12. But as many as received him, to them gave he power to become the sons of God.

Q. 4. What is the first property of adoption?

A. It is a costly relation; Gal. iv. 4. When the fulness of time was come, God sent forth his Son, made of a woman, made under the law, to redeem them that were under the law, that we might receive the adoption of sons.

Q. 5. What is the second property of adoption?

A. It is an high and honourable relation; 1 John iii. 1. Behold what manner of love the Father hath bestowed on us, that we should be called the sons of God.

Q. 6. What is the third property of adoption?

A. It is a free relation on God's part; Eph. i. 4, 5. According as he hath chosen us in him before the foundation of the world, that we should be holy and without blame before him in love. Having predestinated us unto the adoption of children, by Jesus Christ to himself, according to the good pleasure of his will. And it makes us free; John viii. 36. If the Son therefore shall make you free, ye shall be free indeed.

Q. 7. What is the fourth property of adoption?

A. It is a permanent relation; John viii. 35. The Son abideth in the house for ever.

Q. 8. What is the first privilege of the adopted?

A. They have an interest in God, as children in a father; 2 Cor. vi. 18. And I will be a Father unto you, and ye shall be my sons and daughters, faith the Lord Almighty.
An Exposition of the Assembly's Catechism

Q. 9. What is the second privilege?
A. Being God's sons, they are heirs of God, and joint heirs with Christ; Rom. viii. 17. And if children, then heirs, heirs of God, and joint heirs with Christ.

Q. 10. What is the third privilege?
A. Seasonable and sanctified afflictions; Heb. xii. 6. He scourgeth every son whom he receiveth.

Q. 11. What is the fourth privilege?
A. The attendance and ministry of angels; Heb. i. 14. Are they not all ministering spirits, sent forth to minister for them who shall be heirs of salvation?

Q. 12. What is the fifth privilege?
A. The assistance of the Spirit in prayer; Rom. viii. 15. For we have not received the Spirit of bondage again to fear, but ye have received the Spirit of adoption, whereby we cry, Abba, Father. And God's audience of their prayers; i John v. 14. And this is the confidence that we have in him, That if we ask any thing according to his will, he heareth us.

Q. 13. What use should we make of this?
A. It teacheth us to carry ourselves as children, to our heavenly Father. First, In our imitation of him; Eph. v. 1. Be ye therefore followers of God, as dear children. Secondly, In our submission to him; Heb. xii. 9. Furthermore, we have had fathers of our flesh, who corrected us, and we gave them reverence; shall we not much rather be in subjection to the Father of spirits, and live? Thirdly, In our dependance on him; Matth. v. 32. For your heavenly Father knoweth that you have need of all these things.

Of Sanctification.

Quest. 35. What is sanctification?
A. Sanctification is the work of God's free grace, whereby we are renewed in the whole man after the image of God, and are enabled more and more to die unto sin, and live unto righteousness.

Q. 1. What are the parts of sanctification?
A. Dying unto sin, and living unto God; Rom. vi. 11. Likewise reckon ye also yourselves to be dead indeed unto sin, but alive unto God, through Jesus Christ our Lord.

Q. 2. Who is the Author of sanctification?
A. God only; Jude ver. 1. To them that are sanctified by God the Father.

Q. 3. What is the instrument of it?
A. The word of God; John xvii. 17. sanctify them through thy truth; thy word is truth.

Q. 4. What part of man is sanctified?
A. Every part, both of soul and body; 1 Thes. v. 23. And the very God of peace sanctify you wholly; and I pray God your whole spirit, soul and body be preserved blameless unto the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ.

Q. 5. Is sanctification perfected at once?
A. No; but by degrees; 2 Pet. iii. 18. But grow in grace, and in the knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ.

Q. 6. When will it be made perfect?
A. When we come to heaven, and not before; 1 Cor. xiii. 10, 11. But when that which is perfect is come, then that which is in part shall be done away.

Q. 7. What are the signs of true sanctification?
A. When it runs into all parts of our conversation; 1 Pet. i. 15. But as he which hath called you is holy, so be ye holy in all manner of conversation. Secondly, And continues to the end; Rev. xxii. 11. Let him that is holy, be holy still.

Q. 8. What is the inseparable companion of sanctification?
A. Righteousness towards men; Luke i. 74, 75. That he would grant unto us, that we being delivered out of the hands of our enemies, might serve him without fear, in holiness, and and righteousness before him all the days of our life.

Q. 9. What is opposite to sanctification?
A. All filthiness of flesh and spirit; 2 Cor. vii. 1. Having therefore these promises, dearly beloved, let us cleanse ourselves from all filthiness of flesh and spirit.

Q. 10. What is the privilege of the sanctified?
A. They are all elected, and shall be glorified; 1 Pet. i. 2, 4. Elect according to the foreknowledge of God the Father, through sanctification of the Spirit—unto an inheritance incorruptible and undefiled, and that fadeth not away, reserved in heaven for you.

Q. 11. What is the case of them who live and die unsanctified?
A. They shall never see God; Heb. xii. 14. Follow peace with all men, and holiness; without which, no man shall see the Lord.

Q. 12. What difference is there, from pretended sanctification?
A. True sanctification purgeth the heart from the love of sin; Rom. vii. 15. For that which I do, I allow not. And the life from the dominion of sin; Rom. vi. 19. As ye have yielded your members servants to uncleanness, and to iniqui-
An Exposition of the Assembly's Catechism.

Q. 13. May great sinners be sanctified?
A. Yes; the Spirit of God can sanctify the vilest heart; 1 Cor. vi. 11. And such were some of you; but ye are washed, but ye are sanctified.

Of Assurance, the Fruit of Justification.

Q. 36. What are the benefits which in this life do either accompany, or flow from justification, adoption, and sanctification?
A. The benefits which in this life do either accompany, or flow from justification, adoption, and sanctification, are assurance of God's love, peace of conscience, joy in the Holy Ghost, increase of grace, and perseverance therein to the end.

Q. 1. Is assurance possible to be attained in this life?
A. Yes; for some have had it; Cant. vi. 3. I am my beloved's, and my beloved is mine. And all Christians are commanded to strive for it; 2 Pet. i. 10. Wherefore the rather, brethren, give diligence, to make your calling and election sure.

Q. 2. How many sorts of assurance are there?
A. There is an objective assurance; 2 Tim. ii. 19. Nevertheless, the foundation of God standeth sure, having this seal, The Lord knoweth them that are his. And a subjective or personal assurance; Gal. ii. 20. Who loved me, and gave himself for me.

Q. 3. Is personal assurance perfect in this life?
A. No; it admits of doubts and fears, which interrupts it, and it is not always at one height; 1 Cor. xiii. 10. When that which is perfect is come, then that which is in part shall be done away.

Q. 4. On what testimony is personal assurance built?
A. Upon the testimony of God's Spirit witnessing with ours; Rom. viii. 16. The Spirit itself beareth witness with our spirit, that we are the children of God.

Q. 5. Doth the Spirit make use of signs in us to assure us?
A. Yes; ordinarily he doth; 1 John iii. 14. We know that we are passed from death to life, because we love the brethren. And ver. 24. Hereby we know that he abideth in us, by the Spirit which he hath given us.

Q. 6. How is true assurance discerned from presumption?
A. True assurance humbles the soul; Gal. ii. 20. I am crucified with Christ: nevertheless I live; yet not I, but Christ liveth in me. And makes the soul afraid of sin; 2 Cor. vii.
Having therefore these promises, dearly beloved, let us cleanse ourselves from all filthiness of the flesh and spirit, perfecting holiness in the fear of God.

Q. 7. What is the usual season of assurance?

A. The time of greatest sufferings for Christ; 1 Pet. iv. 14. If ye be reproached for the name of Christ, happy are ye; for the Spirit of glory, and of God rests upon you.

Q. 8. Is personal assurance absolutely necessary to salvation?

A. No; a man may be saved, and in Christ, without it; Ha. 1. 10. Who is among you that feareth the Lord, that obeyeth the voice of his servant, that walketh in darkness, and hath no light? Let him trust in the name of the Lord, and stay upon his God.

Q. 9. What is the fruit of assurance?

A. Joy unspeakable amidst outward troubles; Rom. v. 11. And not only so, but we also joy in God, through our Lord Jesus Christ, by whom we have now received the atonement.

Q. 10. What sins usually eclipse our assurance?

A. Negligence in duty starves it; 2 Pet. i. 10. Give diligence to make your calling and election sure: For if ye do these things ye shall never fall. And sinning against light, slaps it; Psalm li. 8. Make me to hear joy and gladness; that the bones which thou hast broken may rejoice.

Q. 11. What is the first inference from this doctrine?

A. That no unregenerate person can have any assurance; for it is the fruit of justification, adoption, and sanctification.

Q. 12. What is the second inference?

A. That all the joys of heaven are not to come; but some communicated in this life; 1 Pet. i. 8. Whom having not seen ye love; in whom though now ye see him not, yet believing, ye rejoice with joy unspeakable, and full of glory.

Q. 13. What is the third inference?

A. That assured believers need to be circumspect persons; that they grieve not the Spirit; Eph. iv. 30. And grieve not the holy Spirit of God, whereby ye are sealed unto the day of redemption.

Of Peace of Conscience.

Quest. 1. What doth the word Peace signify in scripture?

A. In the language of the Old-Testament it signifies all temporal good; 1 Sam. xxv. 6. Peace be both to thee, and peace be in thine house, and peace be unto all that thou hast. And in the New-Testament all special good; as 2 Thess. iii. 16. Now the Lord of peace himself give you peace always.
Q. 2. What are the kinds of special peace?

A. There is a twofold peace; one without us, by reconciliation; Rom. v. 1. Therefore, being justified by faith, we have peace with God. And peace within us, by way of consolation; Col. iii. 15. And let the peace of God rule in your hearts.

Q. 3. What did our peace cost Christ?

A. It cost him bloody stripes and sufferings; Isa. liii. 5. The chastisement of our peace was upon him; and by his stripes we are healed.

Q. 4. Can none have true peace but such as are in him?

A. No; others may have false peace; Luke xi. 21. When a strong man armed keepeth his palace, his goods are in peace. But believers only have true peace; Rom. v. 1. Therefore, being justified by faith, we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ.

Q. 5. Have all believers peace in their consciences at all times?

A. No, they are always in a state of peace, but have not always the sense of peace; Isa. i. 10. Who is among you that heareth the Lord, and obeyeth the voice of his servant, that walketh in darkness, and hath no light? Let him trust in the name of the Lord, and stay upon his God.

Q. 6. What is that which hindereth the sense of peace in believers?

A. Their sins against the Lord, and grieving of his Spirit; Isa. lix. 2. But your iniquities have separated between you and your God; and your sins have hid his face from you, that he will not hear.

Q. 7. What maintains the state of peace when the sense of peace is lost?

A. Christ's continual and potent intercession with the Father for us; 1 John ii. 12. My little children, these things write I unto you, that ye sin not: And if any man sin, we have an Advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the righteous.

Q. 8. What is the best way to maintain our peace with God?

A. Strict walking by gospel rules; Gal. vi. 16. And as many as walk according to this rule, peace be on them.

Q. 9. Doth this peace come and go with outward peace?

A. No; we may enjoy this when no peace is to be had in the world; John xvi. 33. These things I have spoken unto you, that in me ye might have peace. In the world ye shall have tribulation; but be of good cheer, I have overcome the world.

Vol. VIII.
An Exposition of the Assembly's Catechism.

Q. 10. What is the first instruction from hence?
A. That the wicked are in a sad case at all times, but especially in evil times; Isa. livii. 20, 21. But the wicked are like the troubled sea when it cannot rest, whose waters call up mire and dirt. There is no peace, faith my God, to the wicked.

Q. 11. What is the second instruction from hence?
A. That the chief care of a Christian should be to keep his peace with God; Jer. xvii. 17. Be not a terror to me; thou art my hope in the day of evil.

Q. 12. What is the last instruction from hence?
A. Let the faints long to be in heaven, the state of full and perfect peace; Isa. lviii. 2. He shall enter into peace; they shall rest in their beds, each one walking in his uprightness.

Of Joy in the Holy Ghost.

Quest. 1. How many sorts of joy are there among men?
A. There is a sensitive joy; Acts xiv. 17. Nevertheless he left not himself without witness, in that he did good, and gave us rain from heaven and fruitful seasons, filling our hearts with food and gladness. A sinful joy; Prov. xv. 21. Folly is joy to him that is destitute of wisdom. And a spiritual joy; Rom. v. 11. And not only so, but we also joy in God through our Lord Jesus Christ.

Q. 2. Why is spiritual joy called joy in the holy Ghost?
A. Because the holy Ghost is the author of it; Gal. v. 22. But the fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, &c.

Q. 3. What is the first thing begets joy in the faints?
A. The first thing they joy in is, their justification before God; Isa. lixi. 10. I will greatly rejoice in the Lord; my soul shall be joyful in my God; for he hath cloathed me with the garments of salvation, he hath covered me with the robes of righteousness. Rom. v. 11. And not only so, but we also joy in God, through our Lord Jesus Christ, by whom we have now received the atonement.

Q. 4. What is the second thing that breeds this joy?
A. Hope of glory breeds joy in the faints; Rom. v. 2. And rejoice, in hope of the glory of God.

Q. 5. What is the instrument by which the Spirit conveys this joy?
A. Faith is the instrument of it; Phil. i. 25. And having this confidence, I know that I shall abide and continue with you all, for your furtherance and joy of faith.

Q. 6. What is the first property of this joy?
A. It is joy unspeakable; and full of glory; 1 Pet. i. 8.
Believing, ye rejoice with joy unspeakable, and full of glory.

Q. 7. What is the second property of it?
A. That it is not in the power of men to deprive the saints of it; John xvi. 22. And your joy no man taketh from you.

Q. 8. What is the third property of it?
A. It makes the soul free and cheerful in the ways of obedience; Psal. cxix. 32. I will run the ways of thy commandments, when thou shalt enlarge my heart.

Q. 9. What is most destructive to a Christian's joy?
A. Sin, especially sin against light; Psalm li. 8. Make me to hear joy and gladness, that the bones which thou hast broken may rejoice.

Q. 10. What should be the main care of a Christian in this world?
A. To maintain his joy in God to the last; Acts xx. 24. But none of these things move me; neither count I my life dear unto myself, so that I might finish my course with joy.

Q. 11. Have not hypocrites their joys as well as real Christians?
A. Yes; but the joy of the hypocrite is not grounded upon scripture-warrant, and will vanish away, and will come to nothing at last; John v. 35. He was a burning and a shining light; and ye were willing for a season to rejoice in his light.

Q. 12. What is the first inference from hence?
A. Let all that expect joy in the holy Ghost, see that they preserve purity of conscience and conversation; 2 Cor. i. 12. For our rejoicing is this, the testimony of our conscience, that in simplicity, and godly sincerity, not with fleshly wisdom, but by the grace of God, we have had our conversation in the world, and more abundantly to you-wards.

Q. 13. What is the last inference?
A. That religion is no melancholy thing, but the fountain of all joy and pleasure; Prov. iii. 17. Her ways are ways of pleasantness, and all her paths are peace.

Of the Increase of Grace.

Quest. 1. Doth all true grace increase and grow?
A. Yes, it doth, like the morning light; Prov. iv. 18. The path of the just is as the shining light, that shineth more and more unto the perfect day. And for that end, God hath appointed ministers and ordinances; Eph. iv. 11, 12. And he gave some, apostles; and some, prophets; and some, evangelists; and some, pastors and teachers; for the perfecting of the saints, for the work of the ministry, for the edifying of the body of Christ.

q. 2. Cannot false, or seeming, grace grow?

A. It may spring up, and seem to flourish, for a time, but comes not to perfection; Luke viii. 14. And that which fell among thorns, are they, which when they have heard, go forth, and are choked with the cares, and riches, and pleasures of this life, and bring no fruit to perfection.

q. 3. What is the first respect in which grace grows?

A. It grows by deeper rooting itself in the soul; Eph. iii. 17. That Christ may dwell in your hearts by faith; that ye being rooted and grounded in love, may be able, &c.

q. 4. What is the second respect or manner of its growth?

A. It grows in respect of its greater fitness and readiness for acts of obedience; Col. i. 11. Strengthened with all might, according to his glorious power, unto all patience, and long-suffering, with joyfulness.

q. 5. What is the third respect or manner of its growth?

A. It grows in respect of its abilities to fix the mind more steadily on spiritual things. Hence grown Christians are called spiritual men; Gal. vi. 1. Ye which are spiritual, restore such an one in the spirit of meekness.

q. 6. Why must all true grace grow?

A. Because there is a stature to which Christians are appointed; Eph. iv. 13. Till we all come in the unity of the faith, and of the knowledge of the Son of God, unto a perfect man, unto the measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ.

q. 7. What are the causes of a Christian's growth?

A. Union with Christ; John xv. 4. As the branch cannot bear fruit of itself, except it abide in the vine; no more can ye, except ye abide in me. And his blessings on the ordinances; Isa. lv. 10, 11. For as the rain cometh down, and the snow from heaven, and returneth not thither, but watereth the earth, and maketh it bring forth and bud, that it may give seed to theower, and bread to the eater; so shall my word be that goeth forth out of my mouth; it shall not return unto me void, but it shall accomplish that which I please, and it shall prosper in the thing whereto I sent it. And providences; Phil. i. 19. For I know that this shall turn to my salvation thro' your prayers, and the supply of the Spirit of Jesus Christ.

q. 8. May not true grace sometimes decay?

A. Yes, it may; Rev. ii. 4. Nevertheless, I have somewhat against thee, because thou hast left thy first love. But not utterly; 1 John iii. 9. Whosoever is born of God, doth not commit sin; for his seed remaineth in him.

Q. 9. What is the first inference from hence?
A. To bless God for gospel ordinances; Psalm xcii. 13, 14. Those that be planted in the house of the Lord, shall flourish in the courts of our God; they shall still bring forth fruit in old age; they shall be fat and flourishing.

Q. 10. What is the second inference?
A. Hence we see the miserable state of them, that grow worse and worse; Jude, ver. 12. These are spots in your feasts of charity, when they feast with you, feeding themselves without fear: Clouds they are without water, carried about of winds; Trees whose fruit withereth, without fruit, twice dead, plucked up by the root.

Q. 11. What is the third inference?
A. Christians should not be discouraged at their weakness in grace, for they have a merciful Christ; Isaiah xiii. 3. A bruised reed shall he not break; and the smoking flax shall he not quench; he shall bring forth judgment unto truth. And a sure promise; Job xvii. 9. The righteous also shall hold on his way; and he that hath clean hands, shall be stronger and stronger.

Q. 12. What is the last inference?
A. That all true Christians draw daily nearer and nearer to the heavenly and perfect state; 2 Cor. iv. 16. For which cause we faint not; but though our outward man perish, yet the inward man is renewed day by day; Rom. xiii. 11. For now is our salvation nearer than when we believed.

Of Perseverance.

Quest. 1. What is perseverance to the end?
A. It is the steady and constant continuance of Christians in the ways of duty and obedience, amidst all temptations and discouragements to the contrary; Col. i. 23. If ye continue in the faith, grounded and settled, and be not moved away from the hope of the gospel, which ye have heard, and which was preached to every creature which is under heaven, whereof I Paul am made a minister.

Q. 2. Do all that profess Christ, continue in him?
A. No; many that at first zealously profess him, afterwards fall away; John vi. 66. From that time many of his disciples went back, and walked no more with him.

Q. 3. Why do not all persevere?
A. Because all professors have not a good root and foundation; Matth. xiii. 20, 21. But he that received the seed into stony places, the same is he that heareth the word, and anon with joy receiveth it; yet hath he not root in himself, but dur-eth for a while; for when tribulation, or persecution ariseth because of the word, by and by he is offended.
An Exposition of the Assembly's Catechism.

Q. 4. What is the first ground of the saints perseverance?
A. God's electing love, in which they are given to Christ; John x. 29. My Father which gave them me, is greater than all; and none is able to pluck them out of my Father's hand.

Q. 5. What is the second ground of perseverance?
A. The immortal nature of sanctifying grace; John iv. 14. But whosoever drinketh of the water that I shall give him, shall never thirst: but the water that I shall give him, shall be in him a well of water springing up into everlasting life. 1 John iii. 9. For his seed remaineth in him.

Q. 6. What is the third ground of it?
A. The covenant of grace; Jer. xxxii. 40. And I will make an everlasting covenant with them, that I will not turn away from them to do them good; but I will put my fear in their hearts, that they shall not depart from me.

Q. 7. What is the fourth ground of it?
A. Christ's effectual intercession; Luke xxii. 32. But I have prayed for thee, that thy faith fail not.

Q. 8. Are there no decliningsof grace in the saints?
A. Yes, there are; Rev. ii. 4. Nevertheless I have somewhat against thee, because thou hast left thy first love. Yet grace cannot be totally or finally lost: For the seed of God remaineth in the sanctified; 1 John iii. 9. Whosoever is born of God, doth not commit sin; for his seed remaineth in him: And he cannot sin; because he is born of God.

Q. 9. Is there no hope of salvation for final apostates?
A. No, the gospel gives none; Heb. x. 38. But if any man draw back, my soul shall have no pleasure in him.

Q. 10. What is the first instruction from hence?
A. It warns all men to lay a good foundation, lest the buildings of hope be overturned when the storm comes; Matth. vii. 24, 25. Therefore, whosoever heareth these sayings of mine, and doth them, I will liken him unto a wise man, which built his house upon a rock: And the rain descended, and the floods came, and the winds blew, and beat upon that house; and it fell not, for it was founded upon a rock.

Q. 11. What is the second instruction?
A. That all men should look to themselves, lest they lose the things which they have wrought; 2 John verse 8. Look to yourselves, that we lose not these things which we have wrought, but that we receive a full reward. 1 Cor. x. 12. Wherefore let him that thinketh he standeth, take heed lest he fall.
An Exposition of the Assembly's Catechism.

Q. 12. What is the last instruction?
A. Let no true Christian be discouraged, how weak soever, for God is able to make him stand; Rom. xv. 4. Who art thou that judgest another man's servant? To his own master he standeth or falleth; yea, he shall be holden up, for God is able to make him stand.

Of Perfection at Death.

Quest. 37. What benefits do believers receive from Christ at their death?
A. The souls of believers are at their death made perfect in holiness, and do immediately pass into glory; and their bodies being still united to Christ, do rest in their graves till the resurrection.

Q. 1. What is the state of perfect holiness?
A. It consists in a perfect freedom from sin, or the least inclinations to sin; Eph. v. 27. That he might present it to himself a glorious church, not having spot or wrinkle, or any such thing; but that it should be holy and without blemish.

Q. 2. Wherein else doth perfection consist?
A. It consists in the attainment of the highest measures and degrees of holiness the creature is capable of; Eph. iv. 12, 13. For the perfecting of the saints,—Till we all come in the unity of the faith, and of the knowledge of the Son of God, unto a perfect man, unto the measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ.

Q. 3. Cannot this be attained whilst in the body?
A. No, for here all our graces are imperfect; 2 Cor. xiii. 12. For now we see through a glass darkly; but then face to face. And we live at a distance from God; 2 Cor. v. 6. Whilst we are at home in the body, we are absent from the Lord.

Q. 4. How is this attained at death?
A. At death the roots of sin are pulled up out of the believer's nature; Heb. xii. 23. And to the spirits of just men made perfect.

Q. 5. Why must the soul be made perfect at death?
A. Because the purity of the heavenly state admits no sin or imperfection; Rev. xxi. 27. And there shall in no wise enter into it any thing that defileth, neither whatsoever worketh abomination, or maketh a lie, but they which are written in the Lamb's book of life.
An Exposition of the Assembly's Catechism.

Q. 6. What is the first inference from hence?
A. That death should be lovely and desirable in the eyes of believers; Phil. i. 23. Having a desire to depart, and to be with Christ; which is far better.

Q. 7. What is the second inference?
A. That God hath provided singular relief for his people that now groan under their sins, and many imperfections; 1 Cor. xiii. 12. For now we see through a glass darkly; but then face to face: Now I know in part; but then shall I know, even as I am known.

Q. 8. What is the third inference?
A. That the heavenly state is infinitely above and beyond whatever we enjoy here; 1 Cor. ii. 9. But as it is written, ye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entred into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love him.

Q. 9. What is the fourth inference?
A. That believers are but at a small distance from the satisfaction of all their desires; Rom. xiii. 11. For now is our salvation nearer than when we believed.

Q. 10. What is the fifth inference?
A. That the saints should earnestly pursue that perfection, even in this imperfect state; Phil. iii. 13, 14. Brethren, I count not myself to have apprehended; but this one thing I do, forgetting those things which are behind, and reaching forth to those things which are before, I press towards the mark, for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus.

Q. 11. What is the sixth inference?
A. That death to the saints is better than life; Phil. i. 21. For to me to live is Christ, and to die is gain.

Q. 12. What is the last inference?
A. That faith is absolutely necessary to entitle us to this perfect state.

Of immediate Glorification.

Quest. 1. Do all that die in Christ immediately pass into glory?
A. Yes, they do; Luke xxiii. 43. To day shalt thou be with me in Paradise; Phil. i. 23. Having a desire to depart, and to be with Christ.

Q. 2. What is the first reason for their immediate glorification?
A. Because heaven is prepared and ready for them; Matth. xxv. 34. Come, ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world.
Q. 3. What is the second reason for it?
A. Because at death they are as ready for heaven as ever they shall be; John ix. 4. I must work the work of him that sent me, while it is day; the night cometh, when no man can work.

Q. 4. What is the third reason for it?
A. Because death else could not be gain, as it is, Phil. i. 21. For to me to live is Christ; and to die, is gain.

Q. 5. What is the fourth reason for it?
A. Because there is the same reason for all, as for any one: But some are immediately glorified; Luke xxiii. 43. To day shalt thou be with me in Paradise.

Q. 6. What is the fifth reason for it?
A. Because Christ longs for their coming to him, and they for his enjoyment; and these longings are in vain, if not satisfied; Rev. xxii. 17, 20. And the Spirit, and the bride say, Come. And let him that heareth, say, Come. And let him that is athirst, come: And whosoever will, let him take the water of life freely. He which testifieth these things, faith, Surely I come quickly. Amen, Even so come, Lord Jesus.

Q. 7. What is the first instruction from hence?
A. That the apparitions of departed saints ordinarily are but fables: They wander not; Rev. iii. 12. Him that overcometh, will I make a pillar in the temple of my God, and he shall go no more out.

Q. 8. What is the second inference?
A. That Purgatory is a groundless fable, and invention of men; and the scriptures alleged to countenance it, grossly abused; 1 Pet. iii. 19. By which also he went and preached unto the spirits in prison.

Q. 9. What is the third inference?
A. That heaven must needs be a marvellous surprize to believers, how long soever they have conversed with it here.

Q. 10. What is the fourth inference?
A. The consideration of this should provoke saints to work hard to finish all they have to do on earth; Eccles. ix. 10. Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might, for there is no work, nor device, nor knowledge, nor wisdom, in the grave, whither thou goest.

Q. 11. What is the fifth inference?
A. That there is no reason to grieve excessively for departed saints; 1 Thes. iv. 14. Even so them also which sleep in Jesus, will God bring with him.
An Exposition of the Assembly's Catechism.

Q. 12. What is the last inference?
A. That Christless ones are immediately in hell; Luke xvi. 22, 23. The rich man also died, and was buried; and in hell he lift up his eyes, being in torments.

Of Rest in the Grave.

Quest. 1. Why must believers come to the grave?
A. Because where sin has been, death by the law must follow; Rom. v. 12. Wherefore, as by one man sin entered into the world, and death by sin; and so death passed upon all men, for that all have sinned. Rom. viii. 10. And if Christ be in you, the body is dead because of sin; but the Spirit is life, because of righteousness.

Q. 2. What is the first privilege of their bodies there?
A. It is the privilege of their bodies to be there in union with Christ; 1 Thes. iv. 14. Them also which sleep in Jesus, will God bring with him.

Q. 3. What is their second privilege?
A. Their graves are places of rest; not prisons, but beds of rest; Isa. lvii. 2. He shall enter into peace; they shall rest in their beds, each one walking in his uprightness.

Q. 4. What is the first evil they rest from?
A. All the toils, and troubles; and afflictions, of this life; Rev. xiv. 13. They may rest from their labours; and their works do follow them.

Q. 5. What is the second evil they rest from?
A. They rest from all persecutions from men; Job iii. 17. There the wicked cease from troubling; and there the weary be at rest.

Q. 6. What is the third evil they rest from?
A. They rest from sin, never to feel temptation or inclination to sin; Heb. xii. 23. And to the spirits of just men made perfect.

Q. 7. How long shall the bodies rest in the grave?
A. Not for ever, but till the day of the resurrection; Job xix. 26. And though after my skin, worms destroy this body, yet in my flesh shall I see God.

Q. 8. What is the first inference from hence?
A. That union with Christ redounds to the singular advantage of the body, as well as the soul; Rom. viii. 11. But if the Spirit of him that raised up Jesus from the dead, dwell in you; he that raised up Christ from the dead, shall also quicken your mortal bodies, by his Spirit that dwelleth in you.

Q. 9. What is the second inference?
A. That death dissolves not the union betwixt Christ and the souls or bodies of his; Matth. xxii. 32. I am the God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob; God is not the God of the dead, but of the living.

Q. 10. What is the third inference?

A. That seeing our bodies are to have so long and so sweet rest in the grave, we should not spare them in God’s service now; 2 Pet. i. 13, 14. Yea, I think it meet, as long as I am in this tabernacle; to stir you up, by putting you in remembrance: Knowing that shortly I must put off this my tabernacle, even as our Lord Jesus Christ hath shewed me.

Q. 11. What is the fourth inference?

A. That Christians should neither too much fear their own, nor sorrow for others death; Rom. viii. 38, 39. For I am persuaded, that neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor powers,----nor any other creature, shall be able to separate us from the love of God, which is in Christ Jesus our Lord. 1 Thes. iv. 13. But I would not have you to be ignorant, brethren, concerning them which are asleep, that ye sorrow not, even as others which have no hope.

Of the Resurrection.

Quest. 1. Is the resurrection a credible doctrine?

A. Yes, it is; Acts xxvi. 8. Why should it be thought a thing incredible with you, that God should raise the dead?

Q. 2. Why then doth it seem incredible to man?

A. Because they err, not knowing the scriptures and the power of God; Mark xii. 24. Do ye not therefore err, because ye know not the scriptures, nor the power of God? The power of God assures us it may be so, and the word of God tells it must be so.

Q. 3. Is it sinful to doubt of the doctrine of the resurrection?

A. It is not only a sin to doubt it, but an hereby to deny it, it being a fundamental article; Heb. vi. 2. And of the resurrection of the dead. 1 Cor. xv. 13, 14. But if there be no resurrection of the dead, then is Christ not risen; and if Christ be not risen, then is our preaching vain, and your faith is also vain.

Q. 4. Who must rise again at the resurrection?

A. All men, good and bad, must rise again; Acts xxiv. 15. And have hope towards God, which they themselves also allow, that there shall be a resurrection of the dead, both of the just and the unjust. Rev. xx. 12, 13, 14. And I saw the dead, small and great, stand before God, &c.
An Exposition of the Assembly's Catechism.

Q. 5. What is the first difference between the resurrection of the just and unjust?
A. Saints rise by virtue of their union with Christ; Rom. viii. 11. But if the Spirit of him that raised up Jesus from the dead, dwell in you; he that raised up Christ from the dead, shall also quicken your mortal bodies, by his Spirit that dwelleth in you: But the wicked by his power.

Q. 6. What is the second difference?
A. The second and main difference will be in the contrary ends to which they rise; some to life, and some to condemnation; Dan. xii. 2. And many of them that sleep in the dust of the earth shall awake, some to everlasting life, and some to shame, and everlasting contempt.

Q. 7. What is the glory to which fainting bodies shall be raised?
A. In the likeness of Christ's glorious body; Phil. iii. 21. Who shall change our vile body, that it may be fashioned like to his glorious body.

Q. 8. What is the first inference from hence?
A. That every man should strive to the utmost to attain to the resurrection of the just; Phil. iii. 10, 11. That I may know him, and the power of his resurrection, and the fellowship of his sufferings, being made conformable unto his death, if by any means I might attain to the resurrection of the dead.

Q. 9. What is the second inference?
A. Comfort to them that now groan under manifold distempers, and deformities of body; they being made equal to angels; Mark xii. 25. For when they shall rise from the dead, they neither marry, nor are given in marriage, but are as the angels which are in heaven.

Q. 10. What is the third inference?
A. Get union with Christ by faith, as you expect a joyful resurrection; John xi. 25. Jesus said unto her, I am the resurrection, and the life; he that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live.

Q. 11. What is the fourth inference?
A. Saints should not fear death; Gen. xlvi. 3. Fear not to go down into Egypt.

Q. 12. What is the last inference?
A. Employ your bodies for good now.

Of Christ's acknowledging Believers.

Quest. 38. What benefit do believers receive from Christ at the resurrection?
A. At the resurrection believers being raised up in glory, shall be openly acknowledged, and acquitted in the day of judgment, and made perfectly blessed in the full enjoyment of God to all eternity.
An Exposition of the Assembly's Catechism.

Q. 1. What is it to be acknowledged by Christ?
A. It is Christ's owning of the special relation betwixt him and them; Mat. xxv. 34. Come, ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world.

Q. 2. Whom will Christ acknowledge for his?
A. Such as confess Christ now; Mat. x. 32. Whosoever therefore shall confess me before men, him will I confess also before my Father which is in heaven.

Q. 3. Before whom will Christ confess them?
A. Before his Father, angels and men; Rev. iii. 5. He that overcometh, the same shall be clothed in white raiment, and I will not blot out his name out of the book of life, but I will confess his name before my Father, and before his angels.

Q. 4. Who shall be denied by Christ in that day?
A. All that now deny Christ, shall be denied by him;
2 Tim. ii. 12. If we deny him, he also will deny us. Tit. i.
16. They profess that they know God; but in works they deny him, being abominable, and disobedient, and unto every good work reprobate.

Q. 5. Why will Christ openly acknowledge them?
A. To wipe off all aspersions and cenures that now are cast upon them; Isaiah lxvi. 5. Your brethren that hated you, that cast you out for my name's sake, said, Let the Lord be glorified; but he shall appear to your joy, and they shall be ashamed.

Q. 6. What will be the effect of Christ's acknowledgment?
A. It will put a full end to all doubts, fears, and jealousies of themselves; 1 Cor. iv. 3, 4. But with me it is a very small thing that I should be judged of you, or of man's judgment; yea, I judge not my ownefelf; for I know nothing by myself, yet am I not hereby justified; but he that judgeth me, is the Lord.

Q. 7. What other effect will it produce in them?
A. Joy unspeakable and transcendent: hence called time of refreshing; Acts iii. 19. When the time of refreshing shall come from the presence of the Lord.

Q. 8. Is this the only time Christ acknowledge them?
A. No; he acknowledgeth them by his Spirit's testimony now, but that is private in their bosoms; Rom. viii. 16. The Spirit itself beareth witness with our spirits, that we are the children of God.

Q. 9. What is the first inference from hence?
An Exposition of the Assembly's Catechism.

A. To warn all how they pass rash censures on Christ's servants; Psal. lxxiii. 15. If I say, I will speak this, behold I shall offend against the generation of thy children.

Q. 10. What is the second inference?

A. Let none be afraid or ashamed to confess the person, office, or any truth of Christ, for any loss or danger that may threaten them; Luke xii. 8, 9. Also I say unto you, Whosoever shall confess me before men, him shall the Son of man also confess before the angels of God. But he that denieth me before men, shall be denied before the angels of God.

Q. 11. What is the third inference?

A. Let Christians abound in good works. Every act of charity for Christ shall be acknowledged by him in the day of judgment; Matth xxv. 35. For I was an hungered, and ye gave me meat; I was thirsty, and ye gave me drink; I was a stranger, and ye took me in.

Q. 12. What is the last inference?

A. Let all Christians love and long for the day of Christ's appearing; 2 Tim. iv. 8. Henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous Judge, shall give me at that day, and not to me only, but unto them also that love his appearing.

Of Christ's acquitting Believers.

Quest. 1. What is it to be acquitted by Christ?

A. It is to be discharged and cleared from all the guilt of sin, and punishment due to it by the law, upon the account of Christ's righteousness imputed by God, and received by faith; Rom. v. 1. Therefore being justified by faith, we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ. Rom. viii. 1. There is therefore now no condemnation to them which are in Christ Jesus.

Q. 2. How many ways are believers acquitted?

A. They are acquitted now in the court of heaven; Rom. viii. 33. Who shall lay any thing to the charge of God's elect? It is God that justifieth. In the court of their own consciences; 1 John iii. 21. Beloved, if our hearts condemn us not, then have we confidence towards God. And in the day of judgment: both particular, Heb. ix. 27. As it is appointed unto men once to die, but after this the judgment. And general; Acts iii. 19. Repent ye therefore, and be converted, that your sins may be blotted out. Their sins are then blotted out.

Q. 3. How doth Christ's acquittance now differ from that at judgment?

A. They differ in respect of publicness; this is secret in the believer's bosom, and that open before men and angels; Rev. iii. 5. I will confess his name before my Father, and before his angels.

Q. 4. What is the second difference?
A. They differ in respect of subjective certainty and assurance. A believer may doubt of this, but not of that; 1 Cor. iv. 4, 5. For I know nothing of myself, yet am I not hereby justified; but he that judgeth me, is the Lord; therefore judge nothing before the time, until the Lord come.

Q. 5. What is the third difference betwixt them?
A. They differ in point of consolation: this always bears proportion to the certainty of it. Hence that day is called the time of refreshing; when Christ blots out their sins by sventncial justification; Acts iii. 19. Repent ye, therefore, and be converted, that your sins may be blotted out, when the times of refreshing shall come from the presence of the Lord.

Q. 6. Do believers then lie under condemnation till that day?
A. No; they are truly and fully justified now; John v. 24. He that heareth my word, and believeth on him that sent me, hath everlasting life, and shall not come into condemnation; but is passed from death unto life. But this sentence is not yet published by Christ's own mouth, as it shall be then.

Q. 7. On what account shall they be acquitted in that day?
A. On the very same account and score they are now, viz. For the imputed righteousness of Christ in the way of free grace; Eph. i. 7. In whom we have redemption through his blood, the forgiveness of sins, according to the riches of his grace.

Q. 8. Must the faints be summoned to Christ's bar in that day?
A. Yes; they must appear as well as others; 2 Cor. v. 10. For we must all appear before the judgment-seat of Christ. But not to the same end; John v. 29. And shall come forth; they that have done good, unto the resurrection of life; and they that have done evil, unto the resurrection of damnation.

Q. 9. What is the first inference hence?
A. How sure is a believer's justification, being so ratified privately and publicly in this world, and that to come.

Q. 10. What is the second inference?
A. Though the day of judgment be awfully solemn, it should not be dreadful to believers: they should look for, and hasten to the coming of the day of God; 2 Pet. iii. 12. Looking for, and hastening unto the coming of the day of God, &c.

Q. 11. What is the third inference?
A. That faith is a grace of absolute necessity, and unspeakable excellency; Rom. v. 1, 2. Therefore being justified by faith, we have peace with God, through our Lord Jesus Christ; by whom also we have access by faith into this grace wherein we stand.
An Exposition of the Assembly's Catechism

Q. 12. What is the last inference?
A. All unbelievers are in a miserable state now; John iii. 18. He that believeth not, is condemned already. And worse in the world to come; Matth. xxv. 41. Depart from me, ye cursed, into everlasting fire, prepared for the devil and his angels.

Of the full enjoyment of God.

Quest. 1. What doth perfect blessedness suppose and imply?
A. It supposeth the total freedom of believers from all the moral evil of sin; Eph. v. 27. That he might present you to himself a glorious church, not having spot nor wrinkle, nor any such thing, but that it should be holy, and without blemish. And from all the penal evils of suffering; Rev. xxi. 4. And God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes, and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow, nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain, for the former things are passed away.

Q. 2. What else is implied in perfect blessedness?
A. It implies the full and perfect enjoyment of God 1 Cor. xv. 28. And when all things shall be subdued unto him, then shall the Son also himself be subject unto him that put all things under him, that God may be all in all.

Q. 3. What is it for God to be all in all?
A. It implies three things in it. First, That all the saints shall be filled and satisfied from God alone. Secondly, That there shall be no need of other things out of which they were wont to fetch comfort. Thirdly, That all other things, as heaven, angels, saints, shall be loved and enjoyed in God.

Q. 4. In what respect shall they enjoy God in heaven?
A. They shall have the glorious and immediate presence of God with them; Rev. xxi. 3. God himself shall be with them, and be their God.

Q. 5. In what other respects shall they enjoy God?
A. They shall see him as he is; 1 John iii. 2. We shall be like him; for we shall see him as he is.

Q. 6. What will such a vision of God produce?
A. It will produce perfect conformity in them to God; 1 John iii. 2. When he shall appear, we shall be like him, for we shall see him as he is. And perfect joy will result from hence; Psalm xvi. 11. In thy presence is fulness of joy; at thy right hand there are pleasures for evermore.
Q. 7. Do not the saints enjoy God here?
A. Yes, they do; but not so as they shall enjoy him in heaven; 1 Cor. xiii. 12. Now we see through a glass darkly; but then face to face; now I know in part, but then shall I know even as also I am known.

Q. 8. What are the special differences between the saints' communion with God here, and that in heaven?
A. Their communion with God here is clogged with sin; Rom. vii. 21. I find then a law, that when I would do good, evil is present with me. Here it is not constant; Psalm xxii. 1. My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me? Nor is it satisfying; but in heaven it will be pure, constant, and satisfying.

Q. 9. How long shall they there enjoy God?
A. Not for days, years, ages, but for ever and ever; 1 Thess. iv. 17. And so shall we be ever with the Lord.

Q. 10. What is the first instruction from hence?
A. That the world is not the place of the saints' rest and satisfaction; Heb. iv. 9. There remaineth therefore a rest to the people of God. 2 Cor. v. 2, 6. For in this we groan earnestly, desiring to be clothed upon with our house, which is from heaven: therefore we are always confident, knowing that whilst we are at home in the body, we are absent from the Lord.

Q. 11. What is the second instruction from hence?
A. That death is a singular benefit to the saints; and though it be an enemy to nature, yet it is the medium to glory; 2 Cor. v. 4. For we that are in this tabernacle do groan, being burdened, not for that we would be unclothed, but clothed upon, that mortality might be swallowed up of life.

Q. 12. What is the third instruction hence?
A. The necessity of faith and regeneration in this world. None shall be raised up in glory, acknowledged, acquitted, and made perfectly blessed in the full enjoyment of God, but believers; Rom. viii. 30. Moreover whom he did predestinate, them he also called; and whom he called, them he also justified; and whom he justified, them he also glorified. Heb. xii. 14. Follow peace with all men, and holiness, without which no man shall see the Lord.

Of Man's Duty to God.

Quest. 39. What is the duty that God requireth of man?
A. The duty which God requireth of man, is obedience to his revealed will.

Vol. VIII.
Q. 1. Is obedience to God's will the duty of every man?

A. It is unquestionably the duty of every man to obey the will of God, so far as he hath made it known to him; Micah vi. 8. He shewed thee, O man, what is good: and what doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God.

Q. 2. On what account is man's obedience due to God?

A. It is due to him, First, as he is our Creator, in whom we live, and move, and have our being; Acts xvii. 27, 28. Secondly, As he is our Benefactor, from whom we receive all our mercies; Deut. xxviii. 47. Because thou servedst not thy God with joyfulness and with gladness of heart, for the abundance of all things therefore shalt thou serve thine enemies, which the Lord shall send against thee, in hunger, thirst, and in nakedness, and in want of all things. Thirdly, As he is our Lord, and law-giver; James iv. 12. There is one Law-giver, who is able to save and to destroy.

Q. 3. Is obedience due to none but God only?

A. Yes; subjects must obey their lawful magistrates; Rom. xiii. 1. Let every soul be subject to the higher powers, for there is no power but of God; The powers that be, are ordained of God. People their ministers; Heb. xiii. 17. Obey them that have the rule over you, and submit yourselves, for they watch for your souls, as they that must give an account. Children their parents; Eph. vi. 1. Children, obey your parents in the Lord, for this is right. But not as they are to obey God.

Q. 4. What is the difference betwixt our obedience to God's commands, and men's?

A. We are to obey God, chiefly and supremely, for his own sake, but creatures secondarily, and for God's sake; 1 Pet. ii. 13. Submit yourselves to every ordinance of men for the Lord's sake. And Eph. vi. 1. Children obey your parents [in the Lord] for this is right.

Q. 5. What must we do when the commands of God and men fall cross to one another?

A. In that case we must yield our obedience to God, and not to man, whatever we suffer for it; Acts iv. 19. Whether it be right in the sight of God, to hearken unto you more than unto God, judge ye.

Q. 6. Why must we obey God rather than man?

A. Because God is the supreme and sovereign Lord of our consciences; and no creature hath power to command our obedience but in, and from him; Is. xxxii. 22. For the Lord is our judge, the Lord is our law-giver, the Lord is our king; he will save us.
An Exposition of the Assembly's Catechism. 43

Q. 7. Have the people liberty to compare the laws of God and men, and judge how they agree, or differ?
A. Yes; their judgment of discretion is both commanded; 1 Cor. i. 10, 15. I speak as to wise men; judge ye what I say. And commended; Acts xvii. 11. These were more noble than those in Thessalonica, in that they received the word with all readiness of mind, and searched the scriptures daily, whether those things were so.

Q. 8. What is the only rule for our obedience to God?
A. The will of God revealed in the scriptures is our only rule of obedience; Isa. viii. 20. To the law and to the testimony; if they speak not according to this word, it is because there is no light in them.

Q. 9. But if a man have a voice, a vision, or a dream, seeming to hint the secret will of God, may he not obey it?
A. Yes; if it be consonant to the revealed will of God in the word, otherwise not; Deut. xxix. 29. The secret things belong unto the Lord our God; but those things which are revealed, belong unto us, and to our children for ever, that we may do all the words of this law.

Q. 10. What is the first instruction from hence?
A. That it is highly sinful and dangerous to disobey the known will of God in any thing; Rom. i. 18. For the wrath of God is revealed from heaven against all ungodliness and unrighteousness of men who hold the truth in unrighteousness.

Q. 11. What is the second instruction?
A. That is a blessed man, who conscientiously labours to obey the will of God, so far as he can discover it; John xiii. 17. If ye know these things, happy are ye if ye do them. Gal. vi. 16. And as many as walk according to this rule, peace be on them, and mercy.

Q. 12. What is the third inference?
A. It is highly sinful and dangerous to command others, or obey commands from others, which are not according to God's command; Hosea v. 11. Ephraim is oppressed, and broken in judgment, because he willingly walked after the commandment. Jer. vii. 31. And they have built the high places of Tophet, which is in the valley of the son of Hinnom, to burn
Of the Moral Law.

Quest. 40. What did God at first reveal to man for the rule of his obedience?

A. The rule which God at first revealed to man for his obedience, was the moral law.

Q. 41. Wherein is the moral law summarily comprehended?

A. The moral law is summarily comprehended in the ten commandments.

Q. 1. Is every man under the direction and obligation of a law?

A. Yes; man being a reasonable creature, is capable of, and fitted for government by law, which other creatures are not; and being an accountable creature to God, must needs be under a law; Rom. ii. 15. Which shew the works of the law written in their hearts; their consciences also bearing witness, and their thoughts the mean while accusing, or else excusing one another.

Q. 2. How could man be under a law before the law was given by Moses?

A. Before ever the law was given at Sinai, all the race of Adam had a law written in their hearts, viz. the light of reason, and dictates of natural conscience; Rom. ii. 14. For when the Gentiles, which have not the law, do by nature the things contained in the law, these having not the law, are a law unto themselves. And besides this, the church had the revealed will of God to direct them; 2 Pet. i. 19, 20. We have also a more sure word of prophecy, whereunto ye do well to take heed, as unto a light that shineth in a dark place, until the day dawn, and the day-star arise in your hearts. Knowing this first, that no prophecy of the scripture is of any private interpretation.

Q. 3. What is the meaning of the moral law?

A. It is not a law to direct and order our manners; but a law that binds universally and perpetually, as the ten commandments do those to whom they are promulged, and the light of nature doth all others; Rom. ii. 14. For when the Gentiles, which have not the law, do by nature the things contained in the law, these having not the law, are a law unto themselves. Luke xvi. 17. It is easier for heaven and earth to pass, than one tittle of the law to fail.
Q. 4. Why is it said to be summarily comprehended in the seven commandments?
A. Because much more is included in every command, than is expressed, as our Saviour shews in his exposition of it; Matth. xxii. 40. On these two commandments hang all the law and the prophets.

Q. 5. Doth the moral law bind Christians under the gospel?
A. Yes, it doth, as a rule to order their conversations by;
Jam. ii. 8, 9, 10. If ye fulfil the royal law according to the scripture, Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself: ye do well:
But if ye have respect to persons, ye commit sin, and are convinced of the law as transgressors; for whosoever shall keep the whole law, and yet offend in one point, is guilty of all.

Q. 6. Is the moral law the same thing with the covenant of works, and imposed for the same end?
A. God never designed the law to be the way of man's justification since the fall; Gal. iii. 21, 22. Is the law then against the promises of God? God forbid! for if there had been a law given which could have given life, verily righteousness would have been by the law; but the scripture hath concluded all under sin, that the promise by faith of Jesus Christ might be given to them that believe. But it was promulged to convince man of sin; Rom. vii. 7. What shall we say then? Is the law sin? God forbid! Nay, I had not known sin, but by the law; for I had not known lust, except the law had said, Thou shalt not covet. And bring them to Christ; Gal. iii.
24. Wherefore the law was our school-master, to bring us unto Christ, that we might be justified by faith.

Q. 7. What is the first inference from hence?
A. Hence we learn the abominable nature of Popery. The Pope being that lawless one, who will not be bound by the laws of God himself; 2 Thes. ii. 8. Then shall that wicked one be revealed whom the Lord shall consume with the Spirit of his mouth, and shall destroy with the brightness of his coming; but assumes power to dispense with God's laws to others.

Q. 8. What is the second inference hence?
A. That man dieth not as beasts die; which are under no moral law, and therefore capable of no sin; but must come to judgment after death; Eccles. iii. 21. Who knoweth the spirit of man that goeth upward, and the spirit of the beast, that goeth downward to the earth? Heb. ix. 27. And as it is appointed unto men once to die, so after this the judgment.

Q. 9. What is the third inference hence?
A. That though the actions of men naturally considered, are transient, yet their consequences and effects are permanent; an act is soon done, a word soon spoken, a thought soon thought; but when done, spoken or thought they are placed, to account; Gal. vi. 7, 8. Be not deceived, God is not mocked; for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap; for he that soweth to the flesh, shall of the flesh reap corruption; but he that soweth to the spirit, shall of the spirit reap everlasting.
An Exposition of the Assembly's Catechism.

Q. 10. What is the fourth inference from hence?
A. That God will proceed with men by different rules in the day of judgment, according to the different laws they lived under in this world; Rom. ii. 12. For as many as have sinned without law shall also perish without law; and as many as have sinned in the law, shall be judged by the law.

Q. 11. What is the fifth inference from hence?
A. That those who have sinned against the clearest light, and best helps, will, if they die impenitent, be judged to the greatest misery; Matth. xi. 23. And thou Capernaum, which art exalted unto heaven, shall be brought down to hell; for if the mighty works which have been done in thee, had been done in Sodom, it would have remained until this day. Heb. ii. 3. How shall we escape if we neglect so great salvation?

Q. 12. What is the sixth inference from hence?
A. That as we are to prize the moral law highly, as a rule of life; Psalm cxix. 105. Thy word is a lamp unto my feet, and a light unto my path: So are we to bless God for the gospel dispensation, by which only we can attain to justification and salvation; Heb. xii. 22. But ye are come to mount Sion, and unto the city of the living God, the heavenly Jerusalem, to an innumerable company of angels.

Of love to God and Man.

Quest. 42. What is the sum of the ten commandments?
A. The sum of the ten commandments is to love the Lord our God with all our hearts, with all our souls, with all our strength, and with all our mind; and our neighbour as our selves.

Q. 1. What is the sum of the ten commandments?
A. To love the Lord our God with a supreme love, and men with a sincere love, in and for him; Matth. xxii. 37, 38. Jesus said unto him, Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind. This is the first and great commandment: The second is like unto it; Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself.
Q. 2. What is the first thing contained in our supreme love to God?
A. It implies the loving of God purely and absolutely for himself. The excellencies that are in him; Cant. i. 3. Thy name is as ointment poured forth; therefore the virgins love thee. And the benefits we receive from him; Psalm cxvi. 1. I love the Lord, because he hath heard my voice and my supplication.

Q. 3. What is the second property of this supreme love?
A. Supreme love devotes the whole man to God and Christ: So that in life and death that man designs the glory of God as his main end; Rom. xiv. 7, 8. For none of us liveth to himself, and no man dieth to himself; for whether we live, we live unto the Lord, and whether we die, we die unto the Lord; whether we live therefore or die, we are the Lord's.

Q. 4. What is the third property of supreme love?
A. It causeth the soul to depreciate and slight all other things in comparison of God's glory, and an interest in Christ; Acts xx. 24. But none of these things move me, neither count I my life dear unto myself, so that I might finish my course with joy; Phil. iii. 8. I count all things but loss for the excellency of the knowledge of Christ Jesus my Lord.

Q. 5. What is the fourth property of supreme love?
A. It centereth the soul in God as its only rest; Psalm cxvi. 7. Return unto thy rest, O my soul. And cannot be satisfied till it come to the full enjoyment of him; 2 Thes. iii. 5. And the Lord direct your hearts into the love of God, and into the patient waiting for Christ.

Q. 6. Why must we love God with a supreme love?
A. Because such a love only suits the transcendent excellency of God; commands all we are and have for God; and is the only love that will continue to the end; Rom. viii. 35. Who shall separate us from the love of Christ?

Q. 7. What is it to love our neighbour as ourselves?
A. It is the exact observation and practice of the golden rule of Christ; Matth. vii. 12. Therefore all things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them; for this is the law and the prophets.

Q. 8. Are all men to be loved alike, and with the same degree of love?
A. No; tho' we must love all men with the love of benevolence, yet the saints only with the love of complacency; Psalm xvi. 3. But to the saints that are in the earth, and to the excellent in whom is all my delight. Psalm xv. 4. In whole eyes a vile person is contemned; but he honoureth them that fear the Lord. And to such we must especially do good; Gal. vi. 10. As we have therefore opportunity, let us do good unto all men, especially unto them who are of the household of faith.
An Exposition of the Assembly's Catechism.

Q. 9. What is the first instruction from hence?
A. Hence we learn the excellency of divine love. Moses expresseth the whole duty of man in ten commandments: Christ hangs the whole law upon these two, love to God and our neighbour; Mark xii. 30, 31. And thou shalt love the Lord thy God, with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind, and with all thy strength: This is the first commandment. And the second is like, namely this, Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself: There is none other commandment greater than these. And the apostle reduces these two into one; Gal. v. 14. For all the law is fulfilled in one word, even in this. Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself.

Q. 10. What is the second inference from hence?
A. It convinces the holiest of men how far short they come in their obedience to the rule of duty, and therein the law was our school-master to bring us to Christ, Gal. iii. 24.

Q. 11. What is the third inference from hence?
A. It discovers the excellency and perfection of the law of God; Psalm xix. 7. The law of the Lord is perfect, converting the soul: And that we are highly to honour and magnify it as a rule of duty, though we must utterly renounce it as the way of our justification.

Q. 12. What is the last inference from hence?
A. That there is nothing too dear for a Christian in this world, but he must give it up by self-denial, when it comes in competition with his supreme love to God; Luke xiv. 26. If any man come to me, and hate not his father, and mother, and wife, and children, and brethren, and sisters, yea, and his own life also, he cannot be my disciple; (i.e.) Love them less than me.

Of the Preface to the ten Commandments.

Quest. 43. What is the preface to the ten commandments?
A. The preface to the ten commandments is in these words, I am the Lord thy God, which have brought thee out of the land of Egypt, out of the house of bondage.

Q. 44. What doth the preface to the ten commandments teach us?
A. The preface to the ten commandments teacheth us, that...
Because God is the Lord, and our God, and Redeemer, therefore we are bound to keep all his commandments.

Q. 1. Why doth God use arguments and inducements to win men to the obedience of his laws?

A. Because he loves to work on man as a rational creature, according to the principles of his nature; Hosea xi. 4. I drew them with cords of a man, with bands of love: And because he delights in none but free and cheerful obedience; Psal. cx. 3. Thy people shall be willing in the day of thy power.

Q. 2. What is the first argument in this preface?

A. It is the sovereignty of the Law-giver, [I am the Lord,] which should awe the heart of every man to obedience; James iv. 12. There is one Law-giver, who is able to save, and to destroy.

Q. 3. What is the second argument to obedience?

A. Our propriety in God by covenant; [I am the Lord thy God;] this obligeth to obedience, and aggravateth disobedience; Psalm l. 7. Hear, O my people, and I will speak; O Israel, and I will testify against thee; I am God, even thy God. Hosea ix. 1. For thou hast gone a whoring from thy God.

Q. 4. What is the third argument unto obedience?

A. The benefits of redemption that they receive from God. Benefits persuade to duty; and the goodness of God leadeth thee to repentance, Rom. ii. 4.

Q. 5. How can deliverance out of Egypt, be an argument to them that never were in Egypt?

A. As that deliverance was a type of our deliverance, so it is an argument to us, and an argument from the less to the greater; for it obligeth us more than them; Luke i. 74, 75. That he would grant unto us, that we being delivered out of the hands of our enemies, might serve him without fear, in holiness and righteousness before him, all the days of our life.

Q. 6. What is that deliverance we have? and how doth it oblige us to obedience?

A. Our deliverance is not from Egypt, but from hell; Col. i. 13. Who hath delivered us from the power of darkness, and hath translated us into the kingdom of his dear Son. And our persons are bought by the Redeemer to glorify God; 1 Cor. vi. 19, 20. What, know ye not that your body is the temple of the Holy Ghost, which is in you? For ye are bought with a price: Therefore glorify God in your body, and in your spirit, which are God's.

Vol. VIII.
Q. 7. Is it not mercenary to serve God upon the account of benefits received, or to be received?

A. He that maketh religious duties mediums to attain carnal advantages only, is of a worse than mercenary spirit; Hosea vii. 14. And they have not cried unto me with their hearts, when they howled upon their beds: They assemble themselves for corn and wine, and they rebel against me. But to be quickened by mercy to duty is not mercenary, but evangelical; Hosea iii. 5. They shall fear the Lord, and his goodness.

Q. 8. What is the first inference from hence?

A. That great is the condescension of God to man, that he will use arguments to induce him to obedience, who might exact it only by his sovereignty, and justly damn us for our disobedience; 2 Cor. v. 20. Now then we are ambassadors for Christ, as though God did beseech you by us: We pray you in Christ's stead, be ye reconciled to God.

Q. 9. What is the second inference from hence?

A. That the more mercy any receive from God, the more obligations are laid on them to obey him; Psalm cxvi. 1, 2. I love the Lord, because he hath heard my voice, and my supplications: Because he hath inclined his ear unto me, therefore will I call upon him as long as I live.

Q. 10. What is the third inference from hence?

A. The more mercies and favours any man sins against, the greater is that man's sin, and the greater will be his punishment; Amos iii. 2. You only have I known of all the families of the earth; therefore I will punish you for all your iniquities.

Q. 11. What is the fourth inference from hence?

A. That God's expectations are greater, where his mercies and favours have been so; Isa. v. 4. What could have been done more to my vineyard, that I have not done in it? Wherefore when I looked that it should bring forth grapes, brought it forth wild grapes.

Q. 12. What is the last inference from hence?

A. That memorials of God's mercies are to be kept by us, to provoke us to constant and cheerful duties of obedience; Exod. xvii. 14. And the Lord said unto Moses, write this for a memorial in a book, and rehearse it in the ears of Joshua. Psalm ciii. 2, 3. Bless the Lord, o my soul, and forget not all his benefits.

Of the first Commandment.

Quest. 45. Which is the first commandment?

A. The first commandment is, Thou shalt have no other gods before me.
Q. 1. What is the first duty enjoined in the first commandment?

A. It is to know and acknowledge the existence or being of God, and consequently condemns all atheism, both in judgment and practice; Heb. xi. 6. For he that cometh to God, must believe that he is, and that he is a rewarder of them that diligently seek him. Psalm xiv. 1. The fool hath said in his heart, there is no God.

Q. 2. What is the second duty of the first commandment?

A. It requires all men to know and acknowledge the unity of God; Deut. vi. 4. Hear, O Israel, the Lord our God is one Lord. And condemns polytheism, or plurality of gods; 1 Cor. viii. 5, 6. For though there be that are called gods, whether in heaven or in earth (as there be gods many, and lords many); but to us there is but one God.

Q. 3. Whence sprang the opinion of more gods than one at first in the world?

A. It sprang from ignorance of God's omnipresence and omnipotence. Hence came their vain imaginations; Rom. i. 21. Because that when they knew God, they glorified him not as God, neither were thankful, but became vain in their imaginations, and their foolish heart was darkened. They thought the presence and power of God might reach one place, and not another; 1 Kings xx. 23. And the servants of the king of Syria said unto him, Their gods are gods of the hills, therefore they were stronger than we; But let us fight against them in the plain, and surely we shall be stronger than they.

Q. 4. What were the first creatures worshipped as gods?

A. Probably the heavenly bodies, sun, moon, and stars, because of their splendor and influences. These, as heralds, do proclaim God to the world; Psalm xix. 1, 2. The heavens declare the glory of God; and the firmament sheweth his handy-work: Day unto day uttereth speech, and night unto night sheweth knowledge. And these messengers of God were mistaken for God himself; Job xxxi. 26, 27, 28. If I beheld the sun when it shined, or the moon walking in brightness, and my heart hath been secretly enticed, or my mouth hath kissed my hand; this also were an iniquity for I should have denied the God that is above.

Q. 5. What doth these words [before me] import?

A. It notes God's perfect knowledge and abhorrence of all idolatry, or worshipping of another God, as what he cannot endure to behold; Jer. xliiv. 3, 4. Because of their wickedness which they have committed to provoke me to anger, in that they gointoburn incensetoserve othergods whom they knew not; neither they,you, nor your fathers. Howbeit, I sent unto you all my servants the prophets, rising early, and sending them, saying, Oh do no not this abominable thing that I hate.

Q. 6. Are none guilty of this sin but heathenish idolaters?

A. Yes; all that place their supreme love or trust in any creature, make that creature their God; and in scripture are called idolaters, Col. iii. 5. And covetousness, which is idolatry.
Phil. iii. 19. Whose end is destruction, whose god is their belly, and whose glory is in their shame, who mind earthly things.

Q. 7. How doth the idolatry forbidden in the first, differ from that forbidden in the second commandment?

A. The idolatry forbidden in the first commandment is a sin respecting the object of worship, when we set up any thing in the place of God, which by nature is not God; Gal. iv. 8.
Howbeit, then when ye knew not God, ye did service unto them which by nature are no gods. But that against the second commandment is, when we pretend to worship the true God, but do it by such means, and in such a manner as he hath not required, or hath forbidden; Exod. xx. 4. And he received, them at their hands, and fashioned it with a graving tool, after he had made it a molten calf; and they said, These be thy gods,
O Israel, which brought thee up out of the land of Egypt.

Q. 8. What isthe first inference from the first commandment?

A. That it is a special mercy to be brought forth in a land where the true God is known and worshipped; Psalm cxlvii. 20.
He hath not dealt so with any nation; and as for his judgments, they have not known them; praise ye the Lord.

Q. 9. What isthe second inference from the first commandment?

A. That it is a special mercy to be brought forth in a land where the true God is known and worshipped; Eph. ii. 12. That at that time ye were without Christ, being aliens from the commonwealth of Israel, and strangers from the covenants of promise, having no hope, and without God in the world.

Q. 10. What is the third inference from the first commandment?

A. That Christians must not comply with idolatrous and superstitious worship, when they are cast into idolatrous places, how great soever the danger be; Psalm xvi. 4. Their sorrow shall bemultiplied, that hasten after another god; their drink-offerings of blood will I not offer, nor take up their name into my lips.
Q. 11. What is the fourth inference from hence?

A. That the supreme love, fear, and trust of the soul, is God's peculiar right and due. Whosoever places them on any other besides God, is guilty of a very heinous and great sin against him; 1 John ii. 15. Love not the world, neither the things that are in the world: If any man love the world, the love of the Father is not in him. Compared with Job xxxi. 24.—28. If I have made gold my hope, or have laid to the fine gold, thou art my confidence; this also were an iniquity to be punished by the judge; for I should have denied the God that is above.

Q. 12. What is the fifth inference from hence?

A. That God's eye discovers the cloest idolatry in the world, whether it be in secret actions; Ezek. viii. 12. Hast thou seen what the ancients of the house of Israel do in the dark? Every man in the chambers of his imagery? for they say, the Lord seeth us not, the Lord hath forsaken the earth. Or inward affections; Col. iii. 5. Mortify therefore your members which are upon the earth, fornication, uncleanness, inordinate affections, evil concupiscence, and covetousness, which is idolatry.

Q. 13. What is the sixth inference from hence?

A. That an high and full condition in the world, is a dangerous condition, and lies most exposed to the danger of heart-idolatry; Prov. xxx. 9. Lest I be full, and deny thee, and say, who is the Lord? Mark x. 24. How hard is it for them that trust in riches to enter into the kingdom of heaven?

Q. 14. What is the last inference?

A. That in covenanting with God, and avouching him for our God, we must wholly renounce all others, and take God alone for our portion, and object of our love and dependance; Hosea iii. 3. Thou shalt not be for another man; so will I also be for thee. Luke xiv. 33. So likewise, whosoever he be of you that forsaiketh not all that he hath, he cannot be my disciple.

Of the second Commandment.

Quest. 49. W hich is the second commandment?

A. The second commandment is, [Thou shalt not make unto thee any graven image, or any likeness of any thing that is in heaven above, or that is in the earth beneath, or that is in the water under the earth; thou shalt not bow down thyself to them, nor serve them:] For I the Lord thy God am a jealous God, visiting the iniquities of the fathers upon the children, unto the third and fourth generation of them that hate me, and shewing mercy unto thousands of them that love me, and keep my commandments.
An Exposition of the Assembly's Catechism.

Quest. 50. What is required in the second commandment?
A. The second commandment requireth, the receiving, observing, and keeping pure and entire all such religious worship and ordinances, as God hath appointed in his word.

Quest. 51. What is forbidden in the second commandment?
A. The second commandment forbiddeth the worshipping of God by images, or any other way not appointed in his word.

Quest. 52. What are the reasons annexed to the second commandment?
A. The reasons annexed to the second commandment are, God's sovereignty over us, his propriety in us, and the zeal he hath to his own worship.

Q. 1. What is the sin especially forbidden in the second commandment?
A. The sin here forbidden, is the corruption of God's worship, by making any similitude of any person in the Godhead, and performing divine worship before it, or to it; Exod. xxxii. 8. They have turned aside quickly out of the way which I commanded them: They have made them a molten calf, and have worshipped it, and have sacrificed thereunto, and said, these be thy gods, O Israel, which have brought thee up out of the land of Egypt. Deut. iv. 15, 16. Take ye therefore good heed unto yourselves (for he saw no manner of similitude on the day that the Lord spake unto you in Horeb, out of the midst of the fire) lest ye corrupt yourselves and make you a graven image, the similitude of any figure, the likeness of male or female.

Q. 2. What is the second sin forbidden in this commandment?
A. The second sin against this commandment is will-worship, consisting in the addition of man's inventions to the worship of God, as a part thereof; Matth. xv. 9. But in vain they do worship me, teaching for doctrines the commandments of men. Col. ii. 20, 21, 22, 23. Wherefore if ye be dead with Christ from the rudiments of the world, why, as though living in the world, are ye subject to ordinances, (Touch not, taste not, handle not, which all are to perish with the using) after the commandments and doctrines of men? Which things have indeed a shew of wisdom in will-worship and humility, and neglecting of the body, not in any honour to the satisfying of the flesh.

Q. 3. But if those additions be for the more decent worship, ping of God, is it not allowed by 1 Cor. xiv. 40. Let all things be done decently, and in order?

A. No; that scripture commands that God's institutions be regularly and decently performed, but not that we invent ceremonies that are symbolical, to make them more decent than Christ left them.

Q. 4. Why is the second commandment left out in all the public offices of the popish church?

A. Because it expressly condemns their idolatrous images, kneeling at the sacrament, prayers to saints, and all their superstitious crosses, surplices, and chrism, as sinful.

Q. 5. Do they not clear themselves from idolatry, by telling us they only worship God before, or by them, but not the images themselves?

A. No, they do not; for the use of images in God's worship is expressly condemned in this commandment; and if this would excuse the papists, it had also excused the Israelites in worshipping the calf, Exod. xxxii. 4.—And they said, These be thy gods, O Israel, that brought thee up out of the land of Egypt.

Q. 6. What is the first reason annexed to the second commandment?

A. The first reason annexed is God's sovereignty, I the Lord; which shews that it belongs to God only to institute his own worship, and make it effectual; and therefore to do that in his worship which he never commanded, is sinful and dangerous; Jer. vii. 31. And they have built the high places of Tophet, which is in the valley of the son of Hinnom, to burn their sons and their daughters in the fire, which I commanded them not, neither came it into my heart.

Q. 7. What is the second reason annexed to the second commandment?

A. The second reason is God's propriety in us: He is our God, and we belong to him; and therefore to corrupt his worship, greatly aggravates our sins; Hosea ix. 1. Rejoice not, O Israel, for joy, as other people; for thou hast gone a whoring from thy God, &c.

Q. 8. What is the third reason annexed to the second commandment?

A. The jealousy of God over his worship and worshippers; so that this sin of corrupting his worship will dreadfully incense his wrath, as it did, Lev. x. 1, 2. And Nadab and Abihu, the sons of Aaron, took either of them his censer, and put fire thereon, and offered strange fire before the Lord, which he commanded them not. And there went out fire from the Lord, and devoured them, and they died before the Lord.

Q. 9. What is the first instruction from the second commandment?

A. That it is an heinous sin to neglect the worship of God, in that manner he hath appointed us to worship him, as in prayer; Jer. x. 25. Pour out thy fury upon the heathen that know thee not, and upon the families that call not on thy name. Hearing the word; Prov. xxviii. 9. He that turneth away his ear from hearing the law, even his prayer shall be abomination.

Q. 10. What is the second instruction from the second commandment?

A. That those who suffer for endeavouring to preserve the purity of God's ordinances, and nonconformity to the contrary injunctions of men, have a good warrant to bear them out in all such sufferings; Deut. iv. 2. Ye shall not add unto the word which I command you, neither shall you diminish ought from it, that ye may keep the commandments of the Lord your God, which I command you.

Q. 11. What is the third instruction from the second commandment?

A. That it is highly sinful and dangerous to innovate and prescribe by human authority such symbolical rites in the worship of God, as he never appointed or allowed in his word; Matth. xv. 9. But in vain do they worship me, teaching for doctrines the commandments of men.

Q. 12. What is the fourth instruction hence?

A. Hence we learn how much parents and children are obliged to worship God constantly, spiritually, and agreeably to his will revealed in his word; otherwise the jealousy of God will visit them both in the way of judgment: For as obedience entails a blessing, so disobedience entails a curse on posterity; Exod. xxxiv. 14. For thou shalt worship no other god; for the Lord whose name is Jealous, is a jealous God.

Of the third Commandment.

Quest. 53. Which is the third commandment?

A. The third commandment is, [Thou shalt not take the name of the Lord thy God in vain: for the Lord will not hold him guiltless, that taketh his name in vain.]

Quest. 54. What is required in the third commandment?

A. The third commandment requireth the holy and reverend use of God's names, titles, attributes, ordinances, words, and works.
Exposition of the Assembly's Catechism.

1. What is forbidden in the third commandment?
   A. The third commandment forbiddeth all profaning or abusing of any thing whereby God maketh himself known.

2. What is the reason annexed to the third commandment?
   A. The reason annexed to the third commandment is, that however the breakers of this commandment may escape punishment from men, yet the Lord our God will not suffer them to escape his righteous judgment.

3. How doth this commandment differ from the first and second?
   A. The first hath respect to the object of worship, forbidding us to worship any other but God. The second respects the means of worship, forbidding us to worship God by any other means than what he hath prescribed. But the third respects the manner of his worship, forbidding all careless, or profane use of his name, and commanding an holy reverence from us in all our solemn addresses to him, or ordinary mention of his name. Mal. i. 6. A son honoureth his father, and a servant his master: If then I be a father, where is mine honour? and if I be a master, where is my fear? faith the Lord of hosts unto you, O priests, that despisesth my name: And ye say, Wherein have we despised thy name?

4. What is the first thing especially required in the third commandment?
   A. It requires the most awful and reverential frame of our hearts in all our approaches to God; Ps. lxxxix. 7. God is greatly to be feared in the assembly of the saints; and to be had in reverence of all them that are about him. And in his worship; John iv. 24. God is a Spirit; and they that worship him, must worship him in spirit and in truth.

5. What is the second thing required in this commandment?
   A. It requires truth in our witness-bearing, as knowing God seeth our hearts, and is witness to all that we think, or speak; Zech. v. 4. I will bring it forth, faith the Lord of hosts, and it shall enter into the house of the thief, and into the house of him that sweareth falsely by my name, &c.

6. What is the third thing required in this commandment?
   A. That in all our appeals to God in secret, or doubtful matters, we be sure that the appeal be necessary, awful, and true; Jer. xvii. 16. As for me, I have not hastened from being a pastor to follow thee, neither have I desired the wholesome day, thou knowest: that which came out of my lips was right before thee. Psalm cxxxix. 23, 24. Search me, O God, and know my heart: try me, and know my thoughts. And see if there be any wicked way in me; and lead me in the way everlasting.

Q. 5. What doth this commandment especially forbid?

A. It forbids and condemns all profane oaths, as most injurious to the name of God, Matth. v. 34, 37. — Swear not at all, neither by heaven, for it is God's throne, &c. But let your communication be, Yea, yea; Nay, nay: for whatsoever is more than these, cometh of evil.

Q. 6. What is the danger of profane or false swearing?

A. Such are reckoned enemies to God, Psalm cxxxix. 20. Thine enemies take thy name in vain. The curse of God enters into such families. Zech. v. 4. I will bring it forth, saith the Lord of hosts, and it shall enter into the house of the thief, and into the house of him that swareth falsely by my name, &c. And the Lord will not hold them guiltless.

Q. 7. What else is forbidden in this commandment?

A. It forbids and condemns all heedless, wandering, and drowsy performance of God's worship; Isa. xxix. 13, 14. Wherefore the Lord said, Forasmuch as this people draw near me with their mouths, and with their lips do honour me, but have removed their heart far from me, and their fear towards me is taught by the precept of men: Therefore, behold I will proceed to do a marvellous work among this people, even a marvellous work, and a wonder; for the wisdom of their wise men shall perish, and the understanding of their prudent men shall be hid. And 2 Kings x. 31. But Jehu took no heed to walk in the law of the Lord God of Israel, with all his heart: for he departed not from the sins of Jeroboam, which made Israel to sin.

Q. 8. What other sin is forbidden in this command?

A. It forbids all light and irreverent use of the scriptures, especially in our jests, or by way of scoffing; Jer. xvii. 15. Behold, they say unto me, Where is the word of the Lord? Let it come now. Jer. vi. 10. — Behold, the word of the Lord is unto them a reproach: they have no delight in it.

Q. 9. By what argument doth God enforce the third commandment on men?

A. That the breakers of this commandment shall surely be punished by the Lord, either in this life, Deut. xxviii. 58, 59. If thou wilt not observe to do all the words of this law, that are written in this book, that thou mayest fear this glorious and fearful name, the Lord thy God: Then the Lord will make thy plagues wonderful, and the plagues of thy seed, even great plagues, and of long continuance, and sore sickness, and of long continuance: Or in that to come, Rom. ii. 5. But after thy hardness and impenitent heart, treaurest up unto thyself wrath against the day of wrath, and revelation of the righteous judgment of God: Except they repent and reform.

Q. 10. What is the first instruction from the third commandment?

A. That great and infinite is the patience of God in forbearing and provoking sinners so long as he doth; Rom. ix. 22. What if God, willing to shew his wrath, and to make his power known, endured with much long-suffering the vessels of wrath fitted to destruction?

Q. 11. What is the second instruction from hence?

A. That God is to be justified in the severest of his judgments, by which at any time he manifests his displeasure against the profaneness of the world; Hosea iv. 1, 2, 3. Hear the word of the Lord, ye children of Israel: For the Lord hath a controversy with the inhabitants of the land, because there is no truth, nor mercy, nor knowledge of God in the land. By swearing, and lying, and killing, and stealing, and committing adultery, they break out, and blood toucheth blood. Therefore shall the land mourn, and every one that dwelleth therein shall languish, with the beasts of the field, and with the fowls of heaven, yea, the fishes of the sea also shall be taken away.

Q. 12. What is the third instruction from hence?

A. That God takes special notice of, and greatly delighteth in them that fear and reverence his name; Isa. lxvi. 5. Hear the word of the Lord, ye that tremble at his word: Your brethren that hated you, that cast you out for my name’s sake, said, Let the Lord be glorified; but he shall appear to your joy, and they shall be ashamed. Mal. iii. 16.—And a book of remembrance was written before him, for them that feared the Lord, and that thought upon his name.

Q. 13. What is the last inference from hence?

A. That those parents have much to answer for, that by their examples teach, or by their negligence encourage their children to profane God’s name; Jer. v. 7. How shall I pardon thee for this? Thy children have forsaken me, and sworn by them that are no gods, &c.
Quest. 57. Which is the fourth commandment?

A. The fourth commandment is, [Remember the Sabbath-day, to keep it holy. Six days shalt thou labour and do all thy work; but the seventh day is the Sabbath of the Lord thy God; in it thou shalt not do any work, thou, nor thy son, nor thy daughter, thy man-servant, nor thy maid-servant, nor thy cattle, nor the stranger which is within thy gates. For in six days the Lord made heaven and earth, the sea, and all that in them is, and rested the seventh day, wherefore the Lord blessed the Sabbath-day, and hallowed it.]

Quest. 58. What is required in the fourth commandment?

A. The fourth commandment requireth the keeping holy to God, such set time as he hath appointed in his word, expressly one whole day in seven, to be an holy Sabbath unto the Lord.

Quest. 59. Which day of these seven hath God appointed to be the weekly Sabbath?

A. From the beginning of the world to the resurrection of Christ, God appointed the seventh day of the week to be the weekly Sabbath; and the first day of the week ever since, to continue to the end of the world, which is the Christian Sabbath.

Q. 1. What special marks of honour hath God set upon this fourth commandment?

A. God hath set four peculiar marks of honour on it.

1. It is the largest of all the commands.

2. It hath a solemn memento prefixed to it.

3. It is delivered both positively and negatively, which the rest are not. And,

4. It is enforced with more arguments to strengthen the command on us, than any other.

Q. 2. Why will God have a Sabbath on earth?

A. God will have a Sabbath on earth, to give us therein an emblem of that eternal Sabbath in heaven, wherein his people shall be serving him, and praising him without interruption, or mixture of any other business throughout eternity; Heb. iv. 9. There remaineth therefore a rest to the people of God.

Q. 3. For what other reasons will God have a Sabbath?

A. He will have a Sabbath for the honour of his name, Isa. lviii. 13. If thou turn away thy foot from the Sabbath, from doing thy pleasure on my holy day, and call the Sabbath a delight, the holy of the Lord, honourable, and shalt honour him, not doing thine own ways, nor finding thine own pleasure, nor speaking thine own words. For the good of mens souls; Mark ii. 27. And he said unto them, The Sabbath was made for man, and not man for the Sabbath. And in mercy to the bodies of men and beasts.

Q. 4. Is this commandment moral and perpetual, or ceremonial and temporary?
A. It is, and must needs be moral, and not ceremonial; because all the reasons that enforce it are perpetual, and the Sabbath continued when the ceremonial law ceased, and was vanished; Matth. xxiv. 20. But pray ye, that your flight be not in the winter, neither on the Sabbath-day.

Q. 5. What day of the seven is the Christian Sabbath?
A. The first day of the week is our Sabbath, since the resurrection of Christ. This is the day which was foretold to be our Sabbath; Psalm cxviii. 24. This is the day which the Lord made; we will rejoice and be glad in it. The Lord hath marked it for himself, by setting his own name on it; Rev. i. 10. I was in the Spirit on the Lord's day. And the apostles, and primitive church, constantly set it apart to religious uses and ends; Acts xx. 7. And upon the first day of the week, when the disciples came together to break bread, Paul preached unto them, &c. 1 Cor xvi. 2. Upon the first day of the week, let every one of you lay by him in store, as God hath prospered him, that there be no gatherings when I come.

Q. 6. When doth the Christian Sabbath begin?
A. It appears that this day is not to be reckoned from evening to evening, but from morning to morning; because the Christian Sabbath must begin when the Jewish Sabbath ended, but that ended towards the morning, Matth. xxviii. 1. In the end of the Sabbath, as it began to dawn towards the first day of the week, came Mary Magdalen, and the other Mary, to see the sepulchre.

Q. 7. What is the ground of changing the day?
A. The solemn commemoration of our redemption by the resurrection of Christ from the dead, is the ground of translating the Sabbath from the seventh to the first day of the week; Psalm cxviii. 24. This is the day which the Lord made; we will rejoice, and be glad in it. Mark xvi. 9. Now when Jesus was risen early the first day of the week, he appeared first to Mary Magdalen, out of whom he had cast seven devils.

Q. 8. Is it the whole day, or only some hours of the day, that are set apart for God?
A. Not a part, but the whole day is the Lord's; and it is as dangerous to halve it with God in point of time, as it was for Ananias and Sapphira to halve their dedicated goods, and bring...
An Exposition of the Assembly's Catechism.

in but a part. Remember that thou keep holy the Sabbath-day, is the command.

Q. 9. Is there any other day holy, besides this day?
A. No day but this is holy by institution of the Lord; yet days of humiliation and thanksgiving may be lawfully set apart by men on a call of providence; but popish holy days are not warrantable, nor to be observed; Gal. iv. 10. Ye observe days, and months, and times, and years.

Q. 10. But seeing every day should be a Sabbath to a Christian, what needs any other set time?
A. Though Christians must walk every day with God, yet every day cannot be a Sabbath, because God calls us to other duties on those days, but will have this to be a solemn and entire day to himself.

Q. 11. But if a man scruple the change of the Sabbath, may he not keep both days weekly?
A. No; for then, by doing more than God requires, he breaks a plain command, Six days shalt thou labour.

Q. 12. At what time should Christians be up, and at their duties, on the Lord's day?
A. As early in the morning as their strength will permit, to prepare by private for public duties; yet the public are not to be entrenched on by private duties; Acts x. 33.—Now therefore are we all here present before God, to hear all things that are commanded thee of God.

Of the Sabbath.

Quest. 60. HOW is the Sabbath to be sanctified?
A. The Sabbath is to be sanctified by an holy resting all that day, even from such worldly employments and recreations as are lawful on other days, and spending the whole time in the public and private exercises of God's worship, except so much as is to be taken up in the works of necessity and mercy.

Quest. 61. What are the sins forbidden in the fourth commandment?
A. The fourth commandment forbiddeth the omission or careless performance of the duties required, and the profaning the day by idleness, or doing that which is in itself sinful, or by unnecessary thoughts, words, or works, about our worldly employments or recreations.

Quest. 62. What are the reasons annexed to the fourth commandment?
A. The reasons annexed to the fourth commandment are, God's allowing us six days of the week for our own employment,
Q. 1. What is the rest which God requires on the Sabbath?
A. It is not a mere natural or civil, but an holy rest, resembling the rest in heaven, wherein the mind is most active and busy in the work of God, though the body be at rest, and the spirit not wearied with its work; Rev. iv. 8. And the four beasts had each of them six wings about him, and they were full of eyes within, and they rested not day and night, saying, Holy, holy, holy, Lord God almighty, which was, and is, and is to come.

Q. 2. May not any works of our civil calling be ordinarily done on that day?
A. No; it is sinful to put our hands ordinarily to our callings on that day, and God usually punishes it. Neh. xiii. 15, 16, 17, 18. In those days saw I in Judah some treading wine-presses on the Sabbath, and bringing up sheaves, and lading asses, as also wine-grapes, and figs, and all manner of burdens which they brought into Jerusalem on the Sabbath-day; and I testified against them in the day wherein they sold victuals. There dwelt men of Tyre also therein, which brought fish, and all manner of ware, and sold on the Sabbath, unto the children of Judah, and in Jerusalem. Then I contended with the nobles of Judah, and said unto them, What evil thing is this that ye do, and profane the Sabbath-day? Did not your fathers thus, and did not our God bring all this evil upon us, and upon this city? Yet ye bring more wrath upon Israel by profaning the Sabbath.

Q. 3. May we not refresh our bodies by recreations, or our minds by thoughts of earthly business, or discourses, on that day?
A. recreations of the body, which are lawful on other days, are sinful on this day; and all the recreations of the mind allowed on this day, are spiritual and heavenly; Isa. lviii. 13, 14. If thou turn away thy foot from the Sabbath, from doing thy pleasure on my holy day, and call the Sabbath a delight, the holy of the Lord, honourable, and shalt honour him, not doing thine own ways, nor finding thine own pleasure, nor speaking thine own words; then shalt thou delight thyself in the Lord, and I will cause thee to ride upon the high places of the earth, and feed thee with the heritage of Jacob thy father; for the mouth of the Lord hath spoken it.

Q. 4. What works may lawfully be done on that day?
A. Christ's example warrants works of necessity, and works of mercy, but no other; Matth. xii. 3, 4. But he said unto them, have ye not read what David did, when he was an hungred, and they that were with him. How he entered into the house of God, and did eat the shew-bread, which was not lawful for him to eat, neither for them which were with him, but only for the priests. And ver. 7. But if ye had known what this meaneth, I will have mercy, and not sacrifice, &c.
An Exposition of the Assembly's Catechism.

Q. 5. What are the holy duties of the Sabbath?

A. The public worship of God; in reading, and hearing the word preached. Isa. lxvi. 23. And it shall come to pass, that from one new moon to another, and from one Sabbath to another, shall all flesh come to worship before me, faith the Lord. Luke iv. 16.—And as his custom was, he went into the synagogue on the Sabbath-day, and stood up for to read. And prayer; Acts xvi. 13, 14. And on the Sabbath-day we went out of the city by a river side, where prayer was wont to be made, &c. And receiving the Sacrament; Acts xx. 7. And upon the first day of the week, when the disciples came together to break bread, Paul preached, &c.

Q. 6. Are private duties in our families required, as well as public, on the Sabbath?

A. Yes; it is not enough to sanctify the Sabbath in public ordinances, but God requires it to be sanctified in family, and private duties; Lev. xxiii. 3.—But the seventh day is the Sabbath of rest, and holy convocation; ye shall do no work therein: it is the Sabbath of the Lord in all your dwellings.

Q. 7. With what frame of Spirit are all Sabbath duties, both public and private, to be performed?

A. They are to be performed with spiritual delight; Isa. lviii. 13. If thou turn away thy foot from the Sabbath, from doing thy pleasure on my holy day, and call the Sabbath a delight, &c. And all grudging at, and weariness of spiritual exercises, is a sin forbidden; Mal. i. 13. Ye said also, behold what a weariness is it, and ye have grieved at it, faith the Lord of hosts, and ye brought that which was torn, and the lame, and the sick; thus ye brought an offering: should I accept this of your hand? faith the Lord. Amos viii. 5. When will the new moon be gone, that we may sell corn? and the Sabbath, that we may set forth wheat? &c.

Q. 8. What is the first reason annexed to this command?

A. The first reason is the sufficient, and large allowance of time God hath given us for our civil callings, and earthly business. Six days in the week is a large allowance.

Q. 9. What is the second reason annexed to this fourth command?

A. The second reason is God's sanctifying and separating this
An Exposition of the Assembly’s Catechism.

1. What is the third reason annexed to this command?
   A. The third reason is God’s own example, who rested the seventh day from all his works, and blessed this day, by virtue of which blessing we are encouraged to sanctify it.

2. Is it not enough to sanctify this day in our own persons?
   A. No; if God hath put any under our authority, their profaning the Sabbath will become our sin, though we be never so strict in the observance of it ourselves.

3. May we continue our civil employments to the last moment of our common time?
   A. Except necessity or mercy urge us, we ought to break off before, and allow some time to prepare for the Sabbath, Luke xxi. 54. And that day was the preparation, and the Sabbath drew on.

4. What is the first inference from hence?
   A. That we have all great cause to be humbled for our Sabbath transgressions, either in our unpreparedness for it, our want of delight and spirituality in it, or the due government of our families as God requires.

5. What is the second inference from hence?
   A. That Christians on the Sabbath-day have a fair occasion and help to realize to themselves the heavenly state, in which they are to live abstract from the world, and God is to be all in all to them.

Of the Fifth Commandment.

6. Which is the fifth commandment?
   A. The fifth commandment is, [Honour thy father and thy mother, that thy days may be long in the land which the Lord thy God giveth thee.]

7. What is required in the fifth commandment?
   A. The fifth commandment requireth the preserving the honour, and performing the duties belonging to every one in their several places and relations, as superiors, inferiors, or equals.

8. What is forbidden in the fifth commandment?
   A. The fifth commandment forbiddeth the neglecting of, or doing anything against the honour and duty which belongeth to every one in their several places and relations.

9. What is the reason annexed to the fifth commandment?
   A. The reason annexed to the fifth commandment is, a promise...
An Exposition of the Assembly's Catechism.

of long life and prosperity (as far as it shall serve for God's glory and their own good) to all such as keep this commandment.

Q. 1. What relatives are directly and more especially concerned in this fifth commandment?

A. All superiors and inferiors are concerned in it; espe- cially,
1. Political fathers, and their children; that is, kings and subjects; Mark xi. 10. Blessed be the kingdom of our father David, &c. (2.) Spiritual fathers, and their children; that is, ministers, and their people; 1 Cor. iv. 15. For though you have ten thousand instructors in Christ, yet have ye not many fathers, for in Christ Jesus I have begotten you through the gospel.
(3.) Natural parents, and their children; Eph. vi. 1. Children, obey your parents in the Lord. (4.) All civil superiors and inferiors, as husbands and wives, masters and servants; Eph. v.
22. Wives, submit yourselves unto your own husbands, as unto the Lord. And Eph. vi. 5. Servants, be obedient to them that are your masters according to the flesh, &c.

Q. 2. What is the duty of political fathers, or magistrates, to their political children, or subjects?

A. It is to rule and govern the people over whom God hath set them with wisdom; 2 Chron. i. 10. Give me now wisdom and knowledge, that I may go out and come in before this people. Justice; 2 Chron. xix. 5, 6, 7. And he set judges in the land, throughout all the fenced cities of Judah, city by city.
And he said to the judges, take heed what ye do; for ye judge not for man, but for the Lord, who is with you in the judgement. Wherefore now, let the fear of the Lord be upon you, take heed, and do it, &c. And piety; 2 Sam. xxiii. 3.—He that ruleth over men must be just, ruling in the fear of God.
Carefully providing for their souls in every place of their dominion; 2 Chron. xvii. 9. And they taught in Judah, and had the book of the law of the Lord with them, and went about throughout all the cities of Judah, and taught the people. And for their common outward peace and safety; 2 Chron. xvii. 12.
And Jehoshaphat waxed great exceedingly, and he built in Judah castles and cities of store.

Q. 3. What are the duties of subjects to their rulers?

A. It is to pray for them; 1 Tim. ii. 1, 2. I exhort therefore, that first of all supplications, prayers, intercessions, and giving of thanks, be made for all men: For kings, and for all that are in authority, &c. To honour them; 1 Pet. ii. 17.—Fear God, honour the king. To obey their just laws; Rom. xiii.
1. Let every soul be subject unto the higher powers, &c. And to pay them the tribute that is due to them; Rom. xiii. 7.
Q. 4. What are the duties of ministers to their people?

A. Their duty is, (1.) To feed their flock constantly with wholesome food; 2 Tim. iv. 2. Preach the word, be instant in season, and out of season; rebuke, reprove, exhort, with all long-suffering and doctrine. (2.) To be full of bowels of tender affection to them; 1 Thess. ii. 7, 8. But we were gentle among you, even as a nurse cherisheth her children: So being affectionately desirous of you, we were willing to have imparted unto you, not the gospel of God only, but also our own souls, because ye were dear unto us. (3.) To pray for them, Eph. i. 15, 16. Wherefore I also, after I heard of your faith in the Lord Jesus, and love unto all the saints, cease not to give thanks for you, making mention of you in my prayers. (4.) To watch over them; 1 Pet. v. 2. Feed the flock of God which is among you, taking the oversight thereof, not by constraint, but willingly, &c. And, (5.) To walk as an example of godliness before them; Tit. ii. 7. In all things shewing thyself a pattern of good works, &c. All which duties require their residence among them; 1 Pet. v. 2. Feed the flock of God which is among you, &c.

Q. 5. What are the people's duties towards their ministers?

A. Their duty is, (1.) To esteem and love them dearly for their work's sake; 1 Thess. v. 12, 13. And we beseech you, brethren, to know them which labour among you, and are over you in the Lord, and admonish you; and to esteem them very highly in love for their work's sake. (2.) To attend on the word preached by them, as the word of God; 1 Thess. ii. 13. For this cause also thank we God without ceasing, because when ye received the word of God, which ye heard of us, ye received it not as the word of men, but (as it is in truth) the word of God. (3.) To pray for them, and the success of their labours; Heb. xiii. 18. Pray for us, &c. (4.) Not to receive light and malicious reports against them; 1 Tim. v. 19. Against an elder receive not an accusation, but before two or three witnesses. (5.) To make a competent, and comfortable provision for them; Gal. vi. 6. Let him that is taught in the word, communicate unto him that teacheth, in all good things.

Q. 6. What are the duties of natural parents to their children?

A. It is their duty, (1.) To be tenderly, but not fondly affectionate to, and tender over them; Isa. xliv. 15. Can a woman forget her sucking child, that she should not have compassion?
An Exposition of the Assembly's Catechism.

Q. 7. What are the duties of children to parents?

A. Their duty is, (1.) To obey them only in the Lord; Eph. vi. 1. Children, obey your parents in the Lord. (2.) To reverence and honour them; Lev. xix. 3. Ye shall fear every man his mother and his father, &c. (3.) To submit to their reproofs and corrections; Heb. xii. 9. Furthermore, we have had fathers of our flesh, which corrected us, and we gave them reverence. (4.) To provide for them, if they be poor and needy, and we have ability; Gen. xlvii. 12. And Joseph nourished his father and his brethren, and all his father's household, with bread, according to their families.

Q. 8. What shall children do, when parents abuse their authority, by forbidding duty, or commanding sin?

A. In such cases children are to obey God, rather than their parents; Acts iv. 19. But Peter and John answered, and said unto them, whether it be right in the sight of God, to hearken unto you, more than unto God, judge ye. But yet to manage their refusals of obedience with all meekness and humility.

Q. 9. What is the first duty of husbands to their wives?

A. The first duty, on which all other duties depend, is cohabitation with them; 1 Pet. iii. 7. Likewise ye husbands, dwell with them, according to knowledge, &c. And nothing can make this duty void, but a lawful divorce for adultery;
An Exposition of the Assembly's Catechism.

Jin Exposition of the Assembly's Catechism.

Matth. v. 31, 32. — But I say unto you, That whosoever shall put away his wife, saving for the cause of fornication, causeth her to commit adultery, &c.

Q. 10. What is the husband’s second duty to his wife?

A. True and hearty love to soul and body; Eph. v. 25. Husbands, love your wives, even as Christ also loved the church, and gave himself for it. Evidencing itself in careful provision for them; 1 Cor. vii. 33. But he that is married, careth for the things of the world, how he may please his wife. But especially to their souls, in winning them to Christ; 1 Cor. vii. 16. — Or, how knowest thou, O man, whether thou shalt save thy wife? And building them up in Christ; 1 Pet. iii. 7. Likewise ye husbands, dwell with them according to knowledge, giving honour unto the wise, as unto the weaker vessel, and as being heirs together of the grace of life, that your prayers be not hindered.

Q. 11. What are the duties of wives to their husbands?

A. It is their duty, (1.) To be in subjection to their own husbands; Eph. v. 22, 23. Wives, submit yourselves unto your own husbands, as unto the Lord: For the husband is the head of the wife, even as Christ is the head of the church. (2.) To reverence them; Eph. v. 33. — And the wise see that the reverence her husband. (3.) To express their reverence in suitable words and actions; 1 Pet. iii. 6. Even as Sarah obeyed Abraham, calling him Lord, &c. (4.) To be faithful to them; Prov. xxxi. 12. She will do him good, and not evil, all the days of her life. (5.) To adorn their relation with meekness, and quietness of spirit; 1 Pet. iii. 4. But let it be the hidden man of the heart, in that which is not corruptible, even the ornament of a meek and quiet spirit, which is in the sight of God of great price.

Q. 12. What are the duties of servants to their masters?

A. It is their duty, (1.) To be faithful in all things committed to their charge; Tit. ii. 10. Not purloining, but shewing all good fidelity, &c. (2.) To honour them in all respectful words and carriages; 1 Tim. vi. 1. Let as many servants as are under the yoke, count their own masters worthy of all honour, &c. (5.) To bear patiently their rebukes; 1 Pet. ii. 18, 19. Servants, be subject to your masters with all fear; not only to the good and gentle, but also to the froward. For this is thankfulworthy, if a man for conscience toward God endure grief, suffering wrongfully.

Q. 13. What is the first duty of masters to their servants?

A. Their first duty is to rule over them with gentleness, and not with terror and rigour; Eph. vi. 9. And ye masters, do the same things unto them, forbearing threatening: Knowing that your Master also is in heaven, neither is there respect of persons with him.

Q. 14. What is the second duty of masters to their servants?
A. To pay them their wages fully, and without delay; Deut.
xxiv. 14, 15. Thou shalt not oppress an hired servant that is poor and needy, whether he be of thy brethren, or of thy strangers that are in thy land within thy gates. At his day thou shalt give him his hire, neither shalt thou the sun go down upon it, for he is poor, and setteth his heart upon it; lest he cry against thee unto the Lord, and it be sin unto thee. And to provide food for them convenient; Prov. xxvii. 27. And thou shalt have goats-milk enough for thy food, for the food of thy household, and for maintenance for thy maidens.

Q. 15. What is the third duty of masters to their servants?
A. The third and principal duty is, to engage them as much as in them lies, to the ways of God, and duties of religion, as Abraham did; Gen. xviii. 19. For I know him, that he will command his children, and his household after him, and they shall keep the way of the Lord, &c. And Joshua, Josh. xxiv, 15.—But as for me and my house, we will serve the Lord.

Of the sixth Commandment.

Quest. 67. Which is the sixth commandment?
A. The sixth commandment is, [Thou shalt not kill.]

Quest. 68. What is required in the sixth commandment?
A. The sixth commandment requireth all lawful endeavours to preserve our own life, and the life of others.

Quest. 69. What is forbidden in the sixth commandment?
A. The sixth commandment forbiddeth the taking away of our own life, or the life of our neighbour unjustly, or whatsoever tendeth thereunto.

Q. 1. What is the natural order of these commandments in the second table?
A. In these commands God begins with the nearest concern of man, which is life; Job ii. 4.—Skin for skin, yea, all that a man hath, will he give for his life. Next to that, his command guards his nearest relative, from whom the best outward comfort is to rise, his wife; Mark x. 8. And they twain shall be one flesh, &c. After that his good name, which is very precious to him; Eccl. vii. 1. A good name is better than precious ointment. And then his goods, which support his life;

Digitized by Google
1. For behold, the Lord, the Lord of hosts, doth take away from Jerusalem, and from Judah, the stay and the staff, the whole stay of bread, and the whole stay of water.

2. How far doth this commandment extend itself?

A. It prohibits all cruelty, and commands all help, care, and pity, so far as men’s hearts and hands can go, for the relief and preservation of others; Psalm cxix. 56.—But thy commandment is exceeding broad.

3. Doth this command respect only the outward action, or also the inward passion of the soul?

A. It respects and bridles the inward passion of the soul, as well as outward actions; as hatred, 1 John iii. 15. Whosoever hateth his brother, is a murderer, &c. And causeless anger; Matth. v. 22. But I say unto you, that whosoever is angry with his brother without a cause, shall be in danger of the judgment, &c.

4. Doth this command only respect the lives of others?

A. No; it primarily respects our own lives, and forbids us all things that tend to the shortening and ruin of them; Eph. v. 29. For no man ever yet hated his own flesh, but nouriseth and cherisheth it, even as the Lord doth the church.

5. How many ways may men sin against this command, with respect to their own lives?

A. A man sinneth against his own life, not only by destroying himself, as the jailor would have done; Acts xvi. 27. And the keeper of the prison awaking out of his sleep, and seeing the prison-doors open, he drew out his sword, and would have killed himself, supposing that the prisoners had been fled; but by refusing food or physic to preserve life, or macerating our bodies with excessive sorrows; 2 Cor. vii. 10.—But the sorrow of the world worketh death. Or envy at others felicity; Prov. xiv. 30.—But envy, the rottenness of the bones.

6. How are men guilty of murder with respect to others?

A. Murder, with respect to others, may be either with relation to their bodies; Numb. xxxv. 30. Whoso killeth any person, the murderer shall be put to death, &c. Or to their souls, which is the most heinous murder in the world; Ezek. iii. 18. When I say unto the wicked, Thou shalt surely die, and thou givest him not warning, nor speakest to warn the wicked from his wicked way to save his life: the same wicked man shall die in his iniquity; but his blood will I require at thine hand.

7. Is all destruction of another’s life murder in the account of God?
A. No; it is not, if the life of a person be taken away in the course of justice; Gen. ix. 6. Who so sheddeth man's blood, by man shall his blood be shed. Or, in a just and necessary war; Judges v. 23. Curse ye, Meroz, (hid the angel of the Lord) curse ye bitterly the inhabitants thereof; because they came not to the help of the Lord, to the help of the Lord against the mighty. Or by pure accident; Deut. xix. 5. As when a man goeth into the wood with his neighbour to hew wood, and his hand fetcheth a stroke with the axe to cut down the tree, and the head slippeth from the helve, and lighteth upon his neighbour that he die, he shall flee unto one of those cities, and live. Or in self-defence; Exod. xxii. 2. If a thief be found breaking up, and be smitten that he die, there shall no blood be shed for him.

Q. 8. Is there no other way of breaking this command?
A. Yes, there is: Innocents may be murdered under the forms and solemnities both of justice and religion. So Naboth was murdered by Jezebel; 1 Kings xxi. 12, 13. They proclaimed a fast, and set Naboth on high among the people. And there came in two men, children of Belial, and sat before him: And the men of Belial witnessed against him, even against Naboth, in the presence of the people, saying, Naboth did blaspheme God and the king. Then they carried him forth out of the city, and stoned him with stones that he died. And the martyrs by bloody Papists. And this strongly proves a day of judgment; Eccl. iii. 16, 17. And moreover, I saw under the sun the place of judgment, that wickedness was there, and the place of righteousness, that iniquity was there. I said in mine heart, God shall judge the righteous and the wicked: For there is a time there for every purpose, and for every work.

Q. 9. Are duels forbidden in this commandment?
A. Yes, they are; for whatever point of honour be touched, or whatever provocation be given, we are not to be our own avengers; Rom. xii. 19. Dearly beloved, avenge not yourselves, &c.

Q. 10. What is the first inference hence?
A. That we have great cause to bless God for his protecting law, and for human laws grounded upon his law for the protection of our lives; Rom. xiii. 4.—For he is the minister of God, a revenger to execute wrath upon him that doth evil.

Q. 11. What is the second inference hence?
A. That all that are guilty of this sin, have great cause to be humbled and afflicted: For it is a crying sin, Gen. iv. 10.—
The voice of thy brother’s blood crieth unto me from the ground. Yet not to despair of mercy upon true repentance. Manasseh shed innocent blood, and yet was pardoned, upon repentance; 2 Kings xxii. 16. Moreover, Manasseh shed innocent blood very much, till he had filled Jerusalem from one end to another, &c.

Q. 12. What is the third inference hence?
A. Let all men watch against pride, passion, malice, and revenge, the sin of the heart, from which this horrid sin proceeds; Matth. xv. 18, 19.—For out of the heart proceed evil thoughts, murders, &c.

Of the seventh Commandment.

Quest. 70. Which is the seventh commandment?
A. The seventh commandment is, "Thou shalt not commit adultery.

Quest. 71. What is required in the seventh commandment?
A. The seventh commandment requireth the preservation of our own and our neighbour’s chastity in heart, speech, and behaviour.

Quest. 72. What is forbidden in the seventh commandment?
A. The seventh commandment forbiddeth all unchaste thoughts, words, and actions.

Q. 1. What is the duty required in this commandment?
A. The first duty required in this commandment is, the preservation of our own chastity in heart, lips, and life; 1 Thess. iv. 3, 4. For this is the will of God, even your sanctification, that ye should abstain from fornication. That everyone of you should know how to possess his vessel in sanctification and honour. And Eph. iv. 29. Let no corrupt communication proceed out of your mouth, &c.

Q. 2. Why must we preserve our own chastity?
A. Because our bodies are, or ought to be, the temples of the holy Ghost; 1 Cor. vi. 15, 19. Know ye not, that your bodies are the members of Christ? Shall I then take the members of Christ, and make them the members of an harlot? God forbid. What, know ye not that your body is the temple of the holy Ghost, which is in you, which ye have of God, and ye are not your own? And it is the express charge of God that they be kept pure and clean; 1 Thess. iv. 3, 4. For this is the will of God, even your sanctification, that ye should abstain from fornication. That every one of you should know how to possess his vessel in sanctification and honour.

Vol. VIII.
Q. 3. What is the second reason?
A. The second reason is, because of the evil of it to ourselves: As, (1.) It injures the body; 1 Cor. vi. 18. He that committh fornication, sinneth against his own body. (2.) It levels us with the Heathen; Eph. iv. 17, 19. This I say therefore, and testify in the Lord, that ye henceforth walk not as other Gentiles walk,—who being past feeling, have given themselves over unto lasciviousness, to work all uncleanness with greediness. (3.) Dishesours names; Prov. vi. 32, 33. But whom committeth adultery with a woman,—a wound and dishonour shall he get, &c. (4.) Scatters our labours; Prov. v. 10. Left strangers be filled with thy wealth, and thy labours be in the house of strangers. (5.) Destroyeth the soul; Prov. vi. 32.—He that doth it, destroyeth his own soul.

Q. 4. What age is most incident to this sin?
A. The youthful age is most apt to be drawn into this sin; Prov. vii. 7. And behold among the simple ones, I discerned among the youths, a young man void of understanding. And 2 Tim. ii. 22. Flee also youthful lusts, &c.

Q. 5. How far doth this command extend itself?
A. It extends itself to the heart, mind, and fancy, as well as to the body, and external actions; Matth. v. 28. But I say unto you, that whosoever looketh on a woman, to lust after her, hath committed adultery with her already in his heart.

Q. 6. What are the usual inducements to this sin?
A. The usual inducements to this sin are, (1.) Idleness and fulness of the creatures; Ezek. xvi. 49, 50. Behold, this was the iniquity of thy sister Sodom; pride, fulness of bread, and abundance of idleness was in her, and in her daughters, &c. (2.) Wanton gestures; Isa. iii. 16. Moreover, the Lord faith, Because the daughters of Zion are haughty, and walk with stretched forth necks, and wanton eyes, walking, and mincing as they go, and making a tinkling with their feet. (3.) Filthy communication; Eph. v. 4. Neither filthiness, nor foolish talking, nor jeffing, which are not convenient, &c.

Q. 7. What is the first remedy against this sin?
A. The first remedy, and the most effectual, is, to get the Spirit of God within us, to sanctify and rule us; Gal. v. 16. Walk in the Spirit, and ye shall not fulfill the lusts of the flesh.

Q. 8. What is the second remedy?
A. The keeping of a strict watch over the heart; Prov. iv. 23. Keep thy heart with all diligence, &c. And over the external senses; Job xxxi. 1. I made a covenant with mine eyes; why then should I think upon a maid?
An Exposition of the Assembly's Catechism.

Q. 9. What is the third remedy against it?
A. Deep and serious consideration of the danger of this sin, and what God threatens against adulterers; Heb. xiii. 4. —Whoremongers and adulterers God will judge. 1 Cor. vi. 9, 10.—Be not deceived, neither fornicators, nor idolaters, nor adulterers, nor effeminate,—shall inherit the kingdom of God. And how he describes them, Prov. xxii. 14. The mouth of a strange woman is a deep pit; he that is abhorred of the Lord shall fall therein.

Q. 10. What is the fourth remedy against it?
A. Prayer; Psalm cxix. 37. Turn away mine eyes from beholding vanity, &c. And, to evidence our sincerity in prayer, we must study to shun all occasions of this sin; Psalm xviii. 23. I was also upright before him; and I kept myself from mine iniquity.

Q. 11. What is the first inference from hence?
A. What cause those have to bless God, that have been kept from this sin; though the best ought to be humbled for their heart-pollutions.

Q. 12. What is the second inference from hence?
A. Let it warn parents to do what in them lies to prevent the ruin of their children by this sin, (1.) By filling their heads and hands with lawful business. (2.) By serious admonitions and prayers for them. (3.) By keeping them from vain and tempting company. (4.) By disposing them seasonably in suitable marriage.

Q. 13. What is the third inference from hence?
A. Let those that are defiled with this sin repent, seriously of it, as David did; Psalm li. 8. Make me to hear joy and gladness, that the bones which thou hast broken may rejoice. And apply the blood of Christ by faith; for in so doing, it may be pardoned; 1 Cor. vi. 11. And such were some of you: but ye are washed, but ye are sanctified, but ye are justified in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ, and by the Spirit of our God.

Of the eighth Commandment.

Qnest. 73. Which is the eighth commandment?
A. The eighth commandment is, [Thou shalt not steal.]

Qnest. 74. What is required in the eighth commandment?
A. The eighth commandment requireth the lawful procuring
An Exposition of the Assembly's Catechism and furthering the wealth, and outward estate of ourselves and others.

Q. 75. What is forbidden in the eighth commandment?
A. The eighth commandment forbiddeth whatsoever doth, or may unjustly hinder our own, or our neighbour's wealth, or outward estate.

q. 1. What is presupposed in this commandment?
A. It presupposeth that God hath given every man a propriety in his estate, and that no man's goods are common to others, except by his consent in times and cases extraordinary; Acts ii. 44. And all that believed were together, and had all things common.

q. 2. What is required in this commandment?
A. It requires of every man diligence in a lawful calling, to get and preserve an estate for his own and others good; Prov. xiii. 11. He that gathereth by labour, shall increase. Eph. iv. 28.—But rather let him labour, working with his hands the thing which is good, that he may have to give to him that needeth.

q. 3. What else is required in this commandment?
A. It requires us not only to get and keep the things of the world in a lawful manner, but to distribute and communicate them to those that are in want, and not cast them into temptations of sin, or inevitable ruin; Isa. lviii. 10. And if thou draw out thy soul to the hungry, and satisfy the afflicted soul: Then shall thy light rise in obscurity, and thy darkness be as the noon-day; 1 John iii. 17. But whom hath this world's good, and leaveth his brother have need, and shutteth up his bowels of compassion from him, how dwelleth the love of God in him?

q. 4. What else is required in this commandment?
A. It requires in every man a public spirit to procure and promote the good and prosperity of others; 1 Cor. x. 24. Let no man seek his own, but every man another's wealth.

q. 5. What else is required in this command?
A. It requires restitution of all goods unjustly gotten, or taken from others; Lev. vi. 4. Then it shall be, because he hath sinned, and is guilty, that he shall restore that which he took violently away, or the thing which he hath deceitfully gotten, &c. And the restoring of pawns and pledges, when they are due; Ezek. xviii. 7. And hath not oppressed any, but hath restored to the debtor his pledge, &c. Or things lost, if we can discover the true owners.

q. 6. What is the first sin forbidden in this command?
An Exposition of the Assembly's Catechism.

q. 7. What is the second thing forbidden in this command?
A. It forbids all extortions and oppression of our neighbour, by going beyond them, or working on their necessities, or detaining their dues; Lev. xxv. 14. And if thou fall ought unto thy neighbour, or buyest ought of thy neighbour's hand, ye shall not oppress one another; Prov. xxiv. 28, 29. Be not a witness against thy neighbour without cause: And deceive not with thy lips. Say not, I will do so to him as he hath done to me: I will render to the man according to his work.

q. 8. What is the third thing forbidden in this command?
A. It forbids all unlawful weights and measures, which is no better than theft in God's account; Micah vi. 10, 11. Are there yet the treasures of wickedness in the house of the wicked, and the scant measure that is abominable? Shall I count them pure with the wicked balances, and with the bag of deceitful weights?

q. 9. What is the fourth sin forbidden in this command?
A. It forbids all family frauds by children; Prov. xxviii. 24. Whoso robbeth his father or his mother, and faith, it is no transgression, the same is the companion of a destroyer. Or servants; Tit. ii. 9, 10. Exhort servants to be obedient unto their own masters;—not purloining, but shewing all good fidelity, &c.

q. 10. What is the fifth thing forbidden in this command?
A. It forbids all tempting of, or encouraging others to defraud those who have any trust committed to them; Psalm I. 18. When thou sawest a thief, then thou consentedst with him. Prov. xxix. 24. Whoso is partner with a thief, hateth his own soul, &c.

q. 11. What is the sixth thing forbidden in this command?
A. It forbids the taking away of another's goods by open robbery by sea or land; Job v. 5.—And the robber swalloweth up their substance. Or clandestinely and privately; 1 Pet. iv. 15. But let none of you suffer as a murderer, or as a thief, &c.

q. 12. What is the danger of this sin?
A. It brings mens souls, bodies, and estates, under the curse of God; Zech. v. 3, 4. Then laid he unto me, This is the curse that goeth forth over the face of the whole earth: For every one that stealeth shall be cut off, as on this side, accord- ing to it:—I will bring it forth, faith the Lord of holts, and it shall enter into the house of the thief.
An Exposition of the Assembly's Catechism.

Q. 13. What is the first instruction hence?
A. Let all that are guilty of this sin repent, and restore, as they expect mercy from God; Eph. iv. 28. Let him that stole, steal no more, &c. Luke xix. 8. And Zacheus stood, and said unto the Lord, Behold, Lord, the half of my goods I give to the poor, and if I have taken away any thing from any man by false accusations, I restore him fourfold.

Q. 14. What is the last inference from hence?
A. To excite all, to whom God hath given a competency of the things of the world, that they bless God for keeping them from the temptations of this sin; Prov. xxx. 8, 9. Give me neither poverty nor riches, feed me with food convenient for me: Lest I be full, and deny thee, and say, who is the Lord? Or lest I be poor, and steal, and take the name of my God in vain.

Of the ninth Commandment.

Quest. 76. Which is the ninth commandment?
A. The ninth commandment is, [Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbour.]

Quest. 77. What is required in the ninth commandment?
A. The ninth commandment requireth the maintaining and promoting of truth between man and man, and of our own and our neighbour's good name, especially in witness-bearing.

Quest. 78. What is forbidden in the ninth commandment?
A. The ninth commandment forbiddeth whatsoever is prejudicial to truth, or injurious to our own or our neighbour's good name.

Q. 1. What is the general scope and aim of the ninth commandment?
A. The ninth command aims chiefly at the preservation and promoting of truth amongst men; Zech. viii. 16.—Speak ye every man the truth to his neighbour, &c. This being of indispensible necessity to the subsistence and welfare of human society; Eph. iv. 25. Wherefore putting away lying, speak every man truth with his neighbour, for we are members one of another.

Q. 2. What is the first thing required particularly in this command?
A. This command requires every man to take care of preserving his own good name, by ordering his conversation in universal integrity; 1 Pet. iii. 15, 16. But sanctify the Lord God in your hearts, and be ready always to give an answer to every man that asketh you a reason of the hope that is in you, with meekness and fear; having a good conscience; that whereas they speak evil of you, as of evil-doers, they may be ashamed that falsely accuse your good conversation in Christ.
An Exposition of the Assembly's Catechism.

Q. 3. What is the second thing required in this command?

A. It requires all due care to preserve the good name and honour of other men, as well as our own; for Christians are not to be of narrow and private spirits, which centre only in their own interests and concernment; Phil. ii. 4. Look not every man on his own things; but every man also on the things of others.

Q. 4. How are we to preserve the good names of others?

A. We are to preserve the good names of others by an inward esteem of all the good that is in them; Phil. ii. 3.—In lowliness of mind let each esteem others better than themselves. And manifesting our inward esteem of them by a wise and reasonable expression thereof for their encouragement in the ways of godliness; Rom. i. 8. First, I thank my God through Jesus Christ for you all, that your faith is spoken of throughout the whole world.

Q. 5. How else are we to defend other men's names?

A. By our readiness to receive with joy the reports of that good that is in them; 3 John 3. For I rejoiced greatly when the brethren came and testified of the truth that is in thee, even as thou walkest in the truth. And discountenancing all reproaches maliciously vented against them; Psalm xv. 3.—Nor taketh up a reproach against his neighbour.

Q. 6. But what if the report be evidently true?

A. In that case we are to grieve for their miscarriages, as the effect and fruit of our love to their souls; 2 Cor. ii. 4. For out of much affliction and anguish of heart, I wrote unto you with many tears, not that ye should be grieved, but that ye might know the love which I have more abundantly unto you. And to discharge our duties privately and faithfully, in order to their recovery; Matth. xviii. 15, 16, 17. Moreover, if thy brother shall trespass against thee, go and tell him his fault between thee and him alone, Winking at, and concealing in love, their lesser and common infirmities; 1 Pet. iv. 8. And above all things have fervent charity among yourselves: For charity shall cover the multitude of sins.

Q. 7. What is forbidden in the ninth commandment?

A. It forbids us to injure others, by raising or receiving lies, and false reports, which are highly injurious to their good names; Col. iii. 9. Lie not one to another, &c.

q. 8. What else is forbidden in the ninth commandment?

a. It especially forbids perjury, or false swearing, whereby not only the names, but estates and lives of the innocent are injured and ruined; Psalm xxxv. 11. False witnesses did arise up. They laid to my charge things that I knew not; Prov. xxix. 5. A false witness shall not be unpunished: And he that speaketh lies shall not escape. A sin which God will punish; Mal. iii. 5. And I will come near to you to judgment, and I will be a swift witness against the sorcerers, and against the adulterers, and against false swearers, &c.

q. 9. What else is forbidden in this commandment?

a. It forbids all whispering and backbiting of others secretly; 2 Cor. xii. 20.—Let there be debates, envyings, wraths, strifes, backbitings, whisperings, &c. And all tale-carrying from one to another, to our neighbour's injury; Lev. xx. 16. Thou shalt not go up and down as a tale-bearer among the people, &c. And 1 Tim. v. 13.—And not only idle, but tattlers also, and busy-bodies, speaking things which they ought not.

q. 10. What else doth the ninth commandment forbid?

a. It forbids all rash and unwarrantable judging of other men's hearts and final estates, which is usually accompanied with ignorance of our own; Matth. vii. 1, 3. Judge not, that ye be not judged. And why holdest thou the mote that is in thy brother's eye, but considerest not the beam that is in thine own eye?

q. 11. What else is forbidden in this commandment?

a. It forbids the eclipsing of the true worth and honour of others, by a proud exalting of ourselves; 1 Cor. xiii. 4, 5. Charity envieth not, charity vaunteth not itself, is not puffed up, &c. Or by-crying up one to the disparagement of another good man; 1 Cor. iii. 4, 5. For while one faith, I am of Paul, and another, I am of Apollos, are ye not carnal? &c.

q. 12. What is the first inference from hence?

a. That the best Christians have cause to be humbled for the sins of the tongue, whereby God is dishonoured, and others are injured; James iii. 2. If any man offend not in word, the same is a perfect man, and able also to bridle the whole body. And verse 5, 6. Even so the tongue is a little member, and boasteth great things: behold how great a matter a little fire kindleth. And the tongue is a fire, a world of iniquity: so is the tongue amongst our members, that it defileth the whole body, and setteth on fire the course of nature; and it is set on fire of hell.
Q. 13. What is the second inference from hence?
A. It is our great concernment to walk with that piety and justice towards God and men, as to cut off all just occasions of reproach from our names; 2 Cor. xi. 12. But what I do, that I will do, that I may cut off occasion from them which desire occasions, &c. 1 Tim. vi. 14. I will therefore that the younger women marry, bear children, guide the house, give none occasion to the adversary to speak reproachfully.

Q. 14. What is the third inference from this commandment?
A. To bless God that our names are kept sweet and honourable in the world among good men; 3 John 12. Demetrius hath a good report of all men, &c. Or if we be reproached, it is by none but wicked men, and that for our duty to God; Dan. vi. 9. Then said these men, we shall not find any occasion against this Daniel, except we find it against him concerning the law of his God.

Of the Tenth Commandment.

Quest. 79. Which is the tenth commandment?
A. The tenth commandment is, [Thou shalt not covet thy neighbour's house, thou shalt not covet thy neighbour's wife, nor his manservant, nor his maidservant, nor his ox, nor his ass, nor any thing that is thy neighbour's.]

Quest. 80. What is required in the tenth commandment?
A. The tenth commandment requires full contentment with our own estate, with a right and charitable frame of spirit towards our neighbour, and all that is his.

Quest. 81. What is forbidden in the tenth commandment?
A. The tenth commandment forbiddeth all discontentment with our own estate, envying or grieving at the good of our neighbour, and all inordinate motions and affections to any thing that is his.

Q. 1. What is the principal scope and aim of the tenth commandment?
A. It is to prevent all occasions of transgressing the other precepts of the second table, by restraining this sin of covetousness in the heart; Psalm cxix. 35, 36. Make me to go in the path of thy commandments, for therein do I delight. Incline my heart unto thy testimonies, and not to covetousness.

Q. 2. What doth this tenth command require of us in reference to ourselves?
A. It requires of us perfect contentment and satisfaction with that estate and condition wherein God hath placed us in... the world; Heb. xiii. 5. Let your conversation be without covetousness, and be content with such things as ye have. Reckoning it to be good for us to be in that state we are, though never so low or afflicted; Psalm cxix. 67. Before I was afflicted, I went astray; but now have I kept thy word. And verse 71. It is good for me that I have been afflicted, that I might learn thy statutes.

Q. 3. Is contentment with God's appointments attainable in this life?

A. Some Christians have attained to a very great measure, and eminent degree of contentment in the midst of changeable and afflictive providences; Phil. iv. 11. — I have learned in whatsoever state I am, therewith to be content. Psalm xvi. 5, 6. The Lord is the portion of mine inheritance, and of my cup: thou maintainest my lot. The lines are fallen unto me in pleasant places: yea, I have a goodly heritage.

Q. 4. Is there no danger of the sin of discontent in a full and prosperous condition?

A. Fulness of the world secures no man from the sin of discontentment with his own, or coveting that which is another's; because the desires enlarge as the estate doth; Psalm lxii. 10. — If riches increase, set not your heart upon them. An instance whereof we have in Ahab, 1 Kings xxi. 4. And Ahab came into his house heavy and displeased, because of the word which Naboth the Jezreelite had spoken to him: for he had said, I will not give thee the inheritance of my fathers; and he laid him down upon his bed, and turned away his face, and would eat no bread.

Q. 5. Whence doth discontent with our condition spring?

A. It springs partly from our ignorance of God's wisdom and love in ordering all for our good; Rom. viii. 28. And we know that all things work together for good to them that love God, &c. Partly from our imconsiderateness of the vanity of the creature; 1 Tim. vi. 7, 8. For we brought nothing into this world, and it is certain we can carry nothing out. And having food and raiment, let us be therewith content. And partly from our unbelief; Matth. vi. 31, 32. Therefore take no thought, saying, What shall we eat? Or what shall we drink? Or wherewithal shall we be clothed? (For after all these things do the Gentiles seek;) for your heavenly father knoweth that ye have need of all these things.

Q. 6. Is contentment with our own estate all that this commandment requires?

A. No; it requires a charitable frame of spirit towards our neighbours also; Rom. xii. 10, 15. Be kindly affectioned one to another with brotherly love, in honour preferring one another. Rejoice with them that do rejoice, and weep with them that weep.

Q. 7. What is the first sin forbidden in this commandment?
A. It directly and especially forbids all sinful and inordinate desires and motions after other men's enjoyments; Col. iii. 5. Mortify therefore your members which are upon the earth, fornication, uncleanness, inordinate affection, evil concupiscence, and covetousness, which is idolatry.

Q. 8. What is the second sin forbidden in this commandment?
A. It forbids all cruelty and incompasionateness to others in necessity, and keeping back from them that relief which is made theirs by God's command; Prov. xi. 24. There is that withholdeth more than is meet, but it tendeth to poverty. Lev. xix. 9, 10. And when ye reap the harvest of your land, thou shalt not wholly reap the corners of thy field, neither shalt thou gather the gleanings of thy harvest. And thou shalt not glean thy vineyard, neither shalt thou gather every grape of thy vineyard: thou shalt leave them for the poor and the stranger: I am the Lord your God.

Q. 9. What is the third sin forbidden in this commandment?
A. It forbids the detaining of the hirelings wages, when it is due; Hab. ii, 9, 10, 11. Wo to him that coveteth an evil covetousness to his house, that he may set his nest on high, that he may be delivered from the power of evil. Thou hast consulted shame to thy house, by cutting off many people, and hast sinned against thy soul. For the stone shall cry out of the wall, and the beam out of the timber shall answer it.

Q. 10. What is the fourth sin forbidden in this commandment?
A. It forbids all inward grudgings at, and envyings of the enjoyments of others, whether they be inward goods of the mind, or outward, belonging to the body; 1 Cor. xiii. 14. Charity envieth not, &c.

Q. 11. What is the mischief of covetousness?
A. It distracts the heart in duties; Ezek. xxxiii. 31. And they come unto thee as the people cometh, and they sit before thee as my people, and they hear thy words, but they will not do them; for with their mouths they shew much love, but their heart goeth after their covetousness. Provokes the wrath of God; Isa.
An Exposition of the Assembly's Catechism.

For the iniquity of his covetousness was wrath, and smote him, etc. And where it reigns, it becomes idolatry; Col. iii. 5. And covetousness, which is idolatry.

Q. 12. What is the first inference from hence?
A. It calls all men to humiliation for the inordinacy of their affections towards the world, their discontent with their own, and envyings of others conditions.

Q. 13. What is the second inference hence?
A. As ever we would keep clear from this evil, let us make God our portion; Psalm xvi. 5. 6. The Lord is the portion of mine inheritance, and of my cup: thou maintainest my lot. And labour to get the soul-satisfying comforts of his Spirit; John iv. 14. But whosoever drinketh of the water that I shall give him, shall never thirst, etc. 2 Cor. vi. 10. As having nothing, and yet possessing all things.

Q. 14. What is the last inference hence?
A. If God has given us a sufficiency of the things of this life for our necessity, let us be satisfied, though we want other things for our delight; 1 Tim. vi. 8. And having food and raiment, let us be therewith content. And relieve ourselves by an expectation of those better things laid up in heaven for us, if we be believers; James ii. 5. Hath not God chosen the poor of this world, rich in faith, and heirs of the kingdom, which he hath promised to them that love him.

Of keeping the Law.

Quest. 12. Is any man able perfectly to keep the commandments of God?
A. No mere man since the fall, is able in this life perfectly to keep the commandments of God, but doth daily break them in thought, word, and deed.

Q. 1. Wherein doth the perfect keeping of God's law consist?
A. It consists in the perfect and constant conformity of the internal and external actions of heart and life, to every command of God; Gal. iii. 10. Cursed is every one that continueth not in all things which are written in the book of the law to do them. Matth. xxii. 37, 38, 39. Jesus said unto him, Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind. This is the first and great commandment. And the second is like unto it, Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself.

Q. 2. But if a man commit no external act against the law, may be not be said perfectly to keep it, although in mind or thought he should transgress?

A. No; for an inward motion of sin in the heart, that never breaks forth into act, is a violation of the law, and brings the soul under the curse of it; Mat. v. 21, 22. Ye have heard that it was said by them of old time, Thou shalt not kill: And whoever shall kill, shall be in danger of the judgment. But May unto you, that whoever is angry with his brother without a cause, shall be in danger of the judgment, &c. And ver.
27, 28. Ye have heard that it was said by them of old time, Thou shalt not commit adultery. But I say unto you, that whoever looketh upon a woman to lust after her, hath committad adultery with her already in his heart.

Q. 3. May not a man keep the law if he keeps some of its commands, though he cannot keep every one of them punctually?

A. No, he cannot; for the transgression of any one command in the least degree, is a breach of all, and brings the curse of the whole upon a man's soul; Jas. ii. 10. For whosoever shall keep the whole law, and yet offend in one point, he is guilty of all.

Q. 4. Was the law never kept by any since it was made?

A. Yes, Adam in his innocent state kept it; for he was made upright; Eccl. vii. 29. God made man upright, &c. And Christ perfectly kept it; Mat. v. 17. Think not that I am come to destroy the law, or the prophets: I am not come to destroy, but to fulfil.

Q. 5. What is the first reason why no mere man in this life can fulfill and keep the law of God perfectly?

A. It is because the law of God is perfect, and the best of men in this life are imperfect; Ps. cxix. 7. The law of the Lord is perfect, &c. Eccl. vii. 20. For there is not a just man upon earth, that doeth good, and sinneth not.

Q. 6. But may not men perfectly keep it when regenerate, and born of God?

A. No; because even in the regenerate there is a law of sin, which wars against the law of God; Gal. v. 17. For the flesh lusteth against the Spirit, and the Spirit against the flesh, &c.
Rom. vii. 22, 23. For I delight in the law of God after the inward man. But I see another law in my members, warring against the law of my mind, &c. And though they are said not to sin, 1 John iii. 9. Whosoever is born of God, doeth not com-mitt sin, &c. That is not to be taken absolutely, but comparatively, as they once did, and others still do.

An Exposition of the Assembly's Catechism.

Q. 7. But did not Christ command the young man to keep the law?
A. It is true, that Christ did put the young man upon this task; Matth. xix. 17. If thou wilt enter into life, keep the commandments. But it was not on a supposition that he was able to do it; but to convince him of the impossibility of justification that way.

Q. 8. But doth not the apostle say, that the righteousness of the law is fulfilled in believers?
A. It is true that the apostle doth say so, Rom. viii. 4. but the meaning is not, that we fulfil it in our own persons, by our complete obedience to it; but it is fulfilled in us, by our union with Christ, who perfectly kept it; and the righteousness of the law, which is in Christ, becomes ours, by God's imputation of it to us; Rom. iv. 23, 24. Now it was not written for his sake alone, that it was imputed to him; but for us also, to whom it shall be imputed, if we believe on him that raised up Jesus our Lord from the dead.

Q. 9. What is the first inference from hence?
A. That justification by our own works is utterly impossible to the holiest of men; Gal. ii. 16. For by the works of the law shall no flesh be justified; Psalm ciii. 3. If thou, Lord, shouldst mark iniquities; O Lord, who shall stand?

Q. 10. What is the second inference from hence?
A. Hence we learn what an infinite mercy it is, that God sent Jesus Christ made under the law; Gal. iv. 4, 5. But when the fullness of time was come, God sent forth his Son, made of a woman, made under the law, &c. To do that for us we could never do for ourselves; Rom. viii. 3, 4. For what the law could not do, in that it was weak through the flesh, God sending his own Son in the likeness of sinful flesh, and for sin condemned sin in the flesh: that the righteousness of the law might be fulfilled in us; who walk not after the flesh, but after the Spirit.

Q. 11. What is the third inference from hence?
A. That the dreadful curse must needs lie on all unbelievers that are out of Christ; John iii. 36. He that believeth not the Son, shall not see life; but the wrath of God abideth on him. And seek their justification by the deeds of the law; Gal. iii. 10. For as many as are of the works of the law, are under the curse, &c.

Q. 12. What is the fourth inference from hence?
A. That a deluge of sin and misery brake in upon the whole world by the fall of Adam, and all his posterity being by him plunged under both; Rom. v. 12. Wherefore, as by one man sin entered into the world, and death by sin: And so death passed upon all men, for that all have sinned.

Q. 13. What is the fifth inference from hence?
A. That the popish doctrines of merits, and works of supererogation, are false and groundless doctrines, springing out of the ignorance and pride of man's heart.

Q. 14. What is the last inference from hence?
A. That all God's people should sigh under their unhappy necessity of sinning; Rom. vii. 24. O wretched man that I am, who shall deliver me from the body of this death! And long to be with Christ in the perfect state; Heb. xii. 23. And to the spirits of just men made perfect.

Of the inequality of Sin.

Quest. 83. ARE all transgressions of the law equally heinous?

A. Some sins in themselves, and by reason of several aggravations, are more heinous in the sight of God than others.

Q. 1. Whence ariseth the first difference of sin?
A. The first difference betwixt one sin and another, ariseth from the immediate object, against which the sin is committed; on this account, sins immediately committed against God, are more heinous than sins immediately committed against man; 1 Sam. ii. 25. If one man sin against another, the judge shall judge him: But if a man sin against the Lord, who shall interreat for him? And all sins of the first table are greater than those of the second: yet there are crying sins against the second.

Q. 2. What is the first sin noted for an heinous sin?
A. The sin of murder is in scripture set down for an heinous and crying sin in its own nature; Gen. iv. 10. The voice of thy brother's blood crieth unto me from the earth.

Q. 3. What other sin is noted for a crying sin?
A. The sin of oppression is noted in scripture for a crying sin; Hab. ii. 11. For the stone shall cry out of the wall, and the beam out of the timber shall answer it. Especially the oppression of the widow and fatherless; Exod. xxii. 22, 23. Ye shall not afflict any widow, or fatherless child. If thou afflict them in any wise, and they cry at all unto me, I will surely hear their cry.

Q. 4. What is reckoned in scripture an heinous sin against the first table?
A. The sin of atheism, or denying the being of God, is a sin of the first magnitude; Job xxxi. 28. This also were an iniquity to be punished by the judge: for I should have denied the God that is above. This was the sin of Pharaoh; Exod. vi. 2. And Pharaoh said, Who is the Lord, that I should obey his voice, to let Israel go? I know not the Lord, neither will I let Israel go.
An Exposition of the Assembly's Catechism.

Q. 5. What other sin is heinous in God's account?
A. The sin of idolatry is a most heinous sin, and goes nearer to the heart of God than other sins do; Ezek. vi. 9. And they that escape of you, shall remember me among the nations whither they shall be carried captives; because I am broken with their whorish heart, which hath departed from me, and with their eyes, which go a whoring after their idols; and they shall loath themselves, for the evils which they have committed in all their abominations. Jer. xliv. 4. O do not this abominable thing that I hate.

Q. 6. What is the most heinous of all the sins in the world?
A. The sin against the holy Ghost is the most heinous of all other sins, and shall never be forgiven by him; Matth. xii. 31. All manner of sin and blasphemy shall be forgiven unto men; but the blasphemy against the holy Ghost shall not be forgiven unto men.

Q. 7. From whence doth this scripture aggravate sin?
A. The Spirit of God in scripture aggravates and estimates sin, from the degree of light and knowledge men sin against; Luke xii. 47. And that servant which knew his Lord's will, and prepared not himself, neither did according to his will, shall be beaten with many stripes. John xv. 22. If I had not come, and spoken unto them, they had no sin: But now they have no cloak for their sin.

Q. 8. What is the second thing that aggravates sin?
A. The more mercies any man sins against, the greater is his sin; Rom. ii. 4. Or despisest thou the riches of his goodness, and forbearance, and long-suffering, not knowing that the goodness of God leadeth thee to repentance? And especially when it is against spiritual mercies, and means of salvation; Heb. ii. 3. How shall we escape, if we neglect so great salvation? sc.

Q. 9. Are heinous and crying sins capable of forgiveness?
A. Yes; great and heinous sins are capable of forgiveness, upon true repentance; Isr. i. 18. Though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow; though they be red like crimson, they shall be as wool.

Q. 10. From what fountain doth the pardon of all sins, both great and small, flow?
A. They all flow from the free grace of God; Luke vii. 47, 42. And when they had nothing to pay, he frankly forgave them both. And through the meritorious, satisfying blood of Christ; Eph. i. 7. In whom we have redemption through his blood, the forgiveness of sins, according to the riches of his grace.

Q. 11. What is the first inference hence?
A. Though some sins are more heinous than others, yet no sinner should absolutely despair of mercy; for the vilest have been pardoned; 1 Cor. vi. 11. And such were some of you: But ye are washed, but ye are sanctified, but ye are justified, &c.

Q. 12. What is the second inference hence?
A. That there are different degrees of torments in hell, proportioned to the different degrees of sins on earth; Matth. xii. 21, 22. Wo unto thee, Chorazin, wo unto thee, Bethsaida: For if the mighty works which were done in you, had been done in Tyre and Sidon, they would have repented long ago in sackcloth and ashes. But I say unto you, it shall be more tolerable for Tyre and Sidon, at the day of judgment, than for you.

Q. 13. What is the third inference hence?
A. That great sinners, when pardoned and received to mercy, should excel all others in love to Christ; Luke vii. 42, 43. Which of them will love him most? Simon answered and said, I suppose that he to whom he forgave most. And he said unto him, Thou hast rightly judged.

Q. 14. What is the last inference hence?
A. Let no man neglect Christ because his sins are not so heinous as others; because the least sin without Christ is damning; Rom. vi. 23. For the wages of sin is death, &c. And greater sinners are often called, when lesser are not; Matth. xxi. 31, 32. The publicans and harlots go into the kingdom of God before you.

Of the Demerit of Sin.

Qvest. 84. What doth every sin deserve?
A. Every sin deserves God's wrath and curse, both in this life, and that which is to come.

Q. 1. Wherein doth the evil of sin principally consist?
A. It consists principally in the offence it gives, and the wrong it doth to God; Psalm li. 4. Against thee, thee only have I sinned, and done this evil in thy sight.

Q. 2. What is the first offence and wrong in sin doth to God?
A. It consists in its enmity to God; Rom. viii. 7. Because the carnal mind is enmity against God, &c. Expressed in scripture by walking contrary to him; Lev. xxvi. 40. They have also walked contrary to me. Fighting against God; Acts v. 39.
An Exposition of the Assembly’s Catechism.

Lea haply ye be even found to fight against God, and resisting his Spirit; Acts vii. 51. Ye do always resist the holy Ghost.

Q. 3. Wherein is its enmity to God further discovered in scripture?

A. It is discovered under the names and notions of hatred of God; Rom. i. 30. Backbiters, haters of God, &c. Rebellion against God; 1 Sam. xv. 23. For rebellion is as the sin of witchcraft, &c. And despising the commandment of God; 2 Sam. xii. 9. Wherefore hast thou despised the commandment of the Lord?

Q. 4. What are the attributes of God that sin wrongs?

A. It wrongs all his attributes; for it slights his sovereignty; Exod. v. 2. And Pharaoh said, Who is the Lord, that I should obey his voice, to let Israel go? Resists his power; 1 Cor. x. 22. Are we stronger than he? Despises his goodness; Rom. ii. 4. Or despisest thou the riches of his goodness, &c. Taxeth his justice; Ezek. xlviii. 25. Yet ye say, the way of the Lord is not equal, &c. And clouds his holiness; Jam. ii. 7. Do not they blaspheme that worthy name, by which ye are called?

Q. 5. What doth sin deserve in the course of justice from God?

A. It deserves all temporal and eternal effects of God’s wrath, on the souls and bodies of sinners, all which in scripture go under the name of death; Rom. vi. 23. For the wages of sin is death, &c.

Q. 6. Can these sufferings satisfy God for all this wrong?

A. No, they cannot; and therefore they must, and shall be eternal on the damned; Matth. v. 26. Verily, I say unto thee, thou shalt by no means come out thence, till thou hast paid the uttermost farthing. Mark ix. 44. Where their worm dieth not, and the fire is not quenched.

Q. 7. Shall all sinners bear the desert of their sins?

A. No; all that are out of Christ shall; but Christ hath freed believers from it; John iii. 18. He that believeth on him, is not condemned, &c.

Q. 8. But is it not hard, that sinners should suffer eternally for the sins of a few years?

A. No, it is not; for the evil of sin is not to be measured by the time in which, but by the object against which it is committed; Psalm li. 4, 5. Against thee, thee only have I sinned, and done this evil in thy sight, &c.

Q. 9. What learn we from hence?

A. Hence in the first place we learn the impossibility of satisfying God’s justice for the least sin that ever we committed; Job vii. 20. I have sinned; what shall I do unto thee? &c.
Psalm cxxx. 3. If thou, Lord, shouldst mark iniquity, O Lord, who shall stand?

Q. 10. What is the second instruction hence?
A. Hence we see the necessity of a Mediator between God and us; Psalm xl. 6, 7. Sacrifice and offering thou didst not desire, &c. Then said I, Lo, I come: in the volume of the book it is written of me.

Q. 11. What is the third instruction hence?
A. That the greatest suffering is rather to be chosen than the least sin; Heb. xi. 25. Chusing rather to suffer affliction with the people of God, than to enjoy the pleasures of sin for a season.

Q. 12. What is the fourth instruction hence?
A. It teacheth us what an invaluable mercy the full, free, and final remission of sin is; Psalm xxxii. 1. Blessed is he whose transgression is forgiven, and whose sin is covered, &c.

Q. 13. What is the fifth instruction hence?
A. It vindicates God in his severest strokes on sinners; Hos. vi. 5. Therefore have I hewed them by the prophets: I have slain them by the words of my mouth, and thy judgments are as the light that goeth forth.

Q. 14. What is the last instruction?
A. Hence we learn the infinite nature of Christ's sufferings; Rom. viii. 32. He that spared not his own Son, but delivered him up for us all, how shall he not with him also freely give us all things?

Of what God requires of us.

Ques. 85. What doth God require of us, that we may escape his wrath and curse due to us for sin?

A. To escape the wrath and curse of God due to us for sin, God requireth of us faith in Jesus Christ, repentance unto life, with the diligent use of all the outward means, whereby Christ communicateth to us the benefits of redemption.

Q. 1. What are the things required of us to escape God's wrath and curse due to us for sin?
A. The things required of us, are, (1.) Faith in Jesus Christ; Acts xvi. 31. And they said, Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved, and thy house. (2.) Repentance for sin; Acts iii. 19. Repent ye therefore, and be converted, that your sins may be blotted out, &c. (3.) Diligent striving in the use of all God's appointed means; Luke xiii. 24. Strive to enter in at the strait gate: For many, I say unto you, shall seek to enter in, and shall not be able.
Q. 2. Are these things in man's power to perform, that God requires of him?
A. Though they are our duties, yet we have no power in ourselves by nature to perform them, but the power is of God; 2 Cor. iii. 5. Not that we are sufficient of ourselves to think any thing as of ourselves, but our sufficiency is of God.

Q. 3. But if men be in Christ, and justified from eternity, what need of this?
A. Though God from eternity decreed, and Christ long since purchased the salvation of the elect; yet have they no union with Christ till they believe; Eph. iii. 17. That Christ may dwell in your hearts by faith, that ye being rooted and grounded in love. Nor remission of sin; Acts iii. 19. That your sins may be blotted out, when the times of refreshing shall come from the presence of the Lord. But lie under wrath as others do; Eph. ii. 3, 12. And were by nature the children of wrath, even as others, Ver. 12. That at that time ye were without Christ, being aliens from the common wealth of Israel, and strangers from the covenants of promise, having no hope, and without God in the world.

Q. 4. If it be God that can only work these graces in us, to what purpose is our striving?
A. God's working doth not exclude man's striving, but more excites and obliges us to it; Phil. ii. 12, 13. Work out your own salvation with fear and trembling: For it is God which worketh in you, both to will and to do, of his own good pleasure.

Q. 5. To what purpose is it to strive in the use of means, except we knew we were elected?
A. The knowledge of our election is not antecedent to our diligence, but our diligence is required antecedently to that knowledge; 1 Pet. i. 10. Wherefore the rather, brethren, give diligence to make your calling and election sure, &c.

Q. 6. Is it not legal to put natural men upon striving in the use of means?
A. No, it is not; for Christ himself enjoins it; Luke xiii. 24. Strive to enter in at the strait gate, &c. And so did the apostles after him; Acts viii. 22. Repent therefore of this thy wickedness, and pray God, if perhaps the thought of thy heart may be forgiven thee.

Q. 7. Is there no escaping of God's wrath and curse without faith and repentance?
A. No, it is impossible to escape them; John iii. 18. He that believeth not, is condemned already. Heb. ii. 3. How shall we escape if we neglect so great salvation?
Q. 8. But if a man reform his life, and live soberly and justly for time to come, may he not that way escape God's wrath and curse?

A. No; sobriety and reformation are duties, but it is faith and regeneration that puts men into Christ, and out of danger; Matth. v. 20. Except your righteousness shall exceed the righteousness of the Scribes and Pharisees, ye shall in no case enter into the kingdom of heaven. Tit. iii. 5. Not by works of righteousness, which we have done, but according to his mercy he saved us, by the washing of regeneration, and renewing of the Holy Ghost.

Q. 9. Do all believing and penitent sinners escape God's wrath and curse?

A. Yes, they do, and shall for ever escape it; Rom. viii. 1. There is therefore now no condemnation to them which are in Christ Jesus, &c. Col. i. 12, 13. Giving thanks unto God the Father, which hath made us meet to be partakers of the inheritance of the saints in light; who hath delivered us from the power of darkness, and hath translated us into the kingdom of his dear Son. John v. 24. He that heareth my word, and believeth on him that sent me, hath everlasting life, and shall not come into condemnation; but is passed from death unto life.

Q. 10. What is the first inference hence?

A. Hence it appears how false and dangerous the Antinomian doctrine is, which teaches that our sins are pardoned before they are committed, or we either believe or repent; contrary to Acts xxvi. 18. To open their eyes, and to turn them from darkness unto light, and from the power of Satan unto God, that they may receive forgiveness of sin, and inheritance among them which are sanctified by faith, that is in me. James v. 20. He which converteth the sinner from the error of his way, shall save a soul from death, &c. Acts x. 43. To him give all the prophets witness, that through his name whosoever believeth in him shall receive remission of sins.

Q. 11. What is the second inference hence?

A. Hence it follows, that it is dangerous on the one side not to strive in all the ways of duty for Christ and salvation, contrary to Luke xiii. 24. Strive to enter in at the strait gate; for many, I say unto you, will seek to enter in, and shall not be able. And as dangerous, on the other side, to rest in, and depend on our own works and duties; Phil. iii. 9. And be found in him, not having mine own righteousness, which is of the law, but that which is through the faith of Christ, the righteousness which is of God by faith.
Q. 12. What is the third inference hence?
A. Hence we learn the miserable state of all unbelievers, and impenitent persons; the curse and wrath of God lies upon them; Gal. iii. 10. For as many as are of the works of the law are under the curse, &c. And their mitrimus for hell is already made; John iii. 18. He that believeth not, is condemned already.

Q. 13. What is the fourth inference hence?
A. Hence we learn the happy state into which faith and repentance bring the souls of men; Acts xiii. 38, 39. By him all that believe are justified from all things, from which ye could not be justified by the law of Moses.

Of saving Faith.

Qnest. 86. What is faith in Jesus Christ?
A. Faith in Jesus Christ is a saving grace, whereby we receive and rest upon him alone for salvation, as he is offered to us in the gospel.

Q. 1. What is the root or cause of faith?
A. Not the power of man's will; Eph. ii. 8. For by grace are ye saved through faith, and that not of yourselves; it is the gift of God: But the Spirit of God; Gal. v. 22. But the fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, long-suffering, gentleness, goodness, faith. John i. 12, 13. But as many as received him, to them gave he power to become the sons of God, even to them that believe on his name; which were born, not of blood, nor of the will of the flesh, nor of the will of man; but of God.

Q. 2. How doth the Spirit of God ordinarily produce faith?
A. By the preaching of the word he ordinarily begets it; Rom. x. 17. Faith cometh by hearing, and hearing by the word of God; though sometimes he doth it immediately.

Q. 3. Who are the proper subjects of faith?
A. Convinced and sensible sinners are the proper subjects of faith; John xvi. 8, 9, 10. And when he is come, he will reprove the world of sin, of righteousness, and of judgment. Of sin, because they believe not on me; of righteousness, because I go to my Father, and ye see me no more; of judgment, because the prince of this world is judged.

Q. 4. What is the seat or habitation of faith?
A. Not only the head or understanding, but principally the heart and will; Rom. x. 10. With the heart man believeth unto righteousness, &c. Acts viii. 37. And Philip said, If thou believest with all thine heart; thou mayest.

Q. 5. But is not the assent of the understanding true faith?
A. The mere assent of the understanding to the truths of scripture, is not such a faith as will save the soul; James ii. 19.
An Exposition of the Assembly's Catechism.

Thou believest that there is one God; thou dost well: the devils also believe, and tremble.

Q. 6. What is the act of faith that justifies a sinner?
A. It is the receiving of Christ, by the full and hearty consent of the heart that justifies us; John i. 12. But as many as received him, to them gave he power to become the sons of God, even to them that believe on his name.

Q. 7. What is the object of faith?
A. The primary object of faith is the person of Christ, and the secondary his benefits; 1sa. xlv. 22. Look unto me and be saved, all the ends of the earth, &c. Phil. iii. 8, 9. Yea, doubtless, and I count all things but loss, for the excellency of the knowledge of Christ Jesus my Lord: For whom I have suffered the loss of all things, and do count them but dung that I may win Christ, and be found in him, not having mine own righteousness which is of the law, but that which is through the faith of Christ; the righteousness which is of God by faith.

Q. 8. May not a man look partly to Christ, and partly to his own works and duties for righteousness?
A. No; he must eye Christ only, and exclude all others, or he cannot be justified; Phil. iii. 9. And be found in him, not having mine own righteousness, which is of the law, but that which is through the faith of Christ: The righteousness which is of God by faith. Rom. iv. 5. But to him that worketh not, but believeth on him that justifieth the ungodly, his faith is counted for righteousness.

Q. 9. Is it enough to eye the person of Christ only in believing?
A. No; we must eye the person of Christ, as clothed with all his offices; Acts xvi. 31. And they said, Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved, and thine house. Our ignorance needs him as a prophet, our guilt as a priest, our sins and enemies as a king.

Q. 10. Is true faith exclusive of all fears and doubts?
A. No; it is not, but true believers are troubled with many fears and doubts; IIa. i. 10. Who is he among you that feareth the Lord, that obeyeth the voice of his servant, that walketh in darkness, and hath no light, &c. Mark ix. 24. And straightway the Father of the child crieth out with tears, Lord, I believe, help thou mine unbelief.

Q. 11. Is no man actually justified till he believe?
A. No, he cannot be justified actually till he believe actually; Gal. iii. 22. But the scripture hath concluded all under sin, that the promise by faith of Jesus Christ might be given to them that believe. John iii. 18. He that believeth on him, is not condemned: But he that believeth not, is condemned already, because he hath not believed in the name of the only begotten Son of God.

Q. 12. Is every man that believes justified immediately and fully upon his believing?
A. Yes, he is; Rom. v. 1. Therefore being justified by faith, we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ. John v. 24. He that heareth my words, and believeth on him that sent me, hath everlasting life, and shall not come into condemnation; but is passed from death unto life.

Q. 13. What is the true character or description of a believer?
A. He is one that having been convinced of his sin and misery, and of his own and all other creatures inability to save him, and of the ability and willingness of Christ to save him, lets go all hold and dependance on creatures, and his own righteousness, and casts himself entirely upon Christ for righteousness and life.

Of the Properties, Signs, and Means of Faith.

Ques. 1. What is the first property of faith?
A. It is a most precious grace; 2 Pet. i. 1. To them that have obtained like precious faith with us, &c. And must needs be so, seeing it is the bond of our union with Christ; Eph. iii. 17. That Christ may dwell in your hearts by faith, that ye being rooted and grounded in love. That by which we are justified; Rom. v. 1. Therefore being justified by faith, &c. And that by which our souls do live; Heb. ii. 4. The just shall live by faith.

Q. 2. What is the second property of saving faith?
A. The second property of faith is this, that it is the most useful grace in this world to a believer, it being the soul's eye; Heb. xi. 27. By faith he forsook Egypt, not fearing the wrath of the king: For he endured, as seeing him who is invisible, &c. It is hard to apprehend Christ; Phil. iii. 12. That I may apprehend that for which also I am apprehended of Christ Jesus. It is cordial in a fainting season; Psalm xxvii. 3. I had fainted, unless I had believed, &c.

Q. 3. What are the foundations that support faith?
A. The first foundation or prop of faith, is the power of God; Rom. iv. 20, 21. He staggered not at the promise through unbelief, but was strong in faith, giving glory to God. And being fully persuaded, that what he had promised, he was able also to perform. Heb. vii. 25. He is able also to save them to the uttermost that come unto God by him, &c.

Q. 4. What is the second prop of faith?
An Exposition of the Assembly’s Catechism.

1. The truth and faithfulness of God in his promises; Heb. x. 23. Let us hold fast the profession of our faith without wa-vering, for he is faithful that hath promised, Heb. vi. 18. That by two immutable things, in which it was impossible for God to lie, we might have a strong consolation, who have fled for refuge to lay hold upon the hope set before us.

Q. 5. What encourages the faith of the saints?

A. The manifold, sweet, and sensible experiences of others; Psalm lxxiv. 14. Thou breakest the heads of Leviathan in pieces, and gavest him to be meat for the people inhabiting the wilderness. And especially their own experiences; Josh. xxiii. 14. Ye know in all your hearts, and in all your souls, that not one thing hath failed of all the good things which the Lord your God spake concerning you; all are come to pass unto you, and not one thing hath failed thereof.

Q. 6. What is the first sign of a weak faith?

A. Staggerings in our assent to divine truths, argue the weakness of faith; Rom. iv. 10. He staggered not at the promise of God through unbelief, but was strong in faith, &c.

Q. 7. What is the second sign of a weak faith?

A. Inability to trust God in time of danger, evidenced by sinful haste to avoid it; Isa. xxviii. 16. He that believeth, shall not make haste.

Q. 8. What is the third sign of a weak faith?

A. When we cannot live purely by faith, except we have some sensible encouragement; John xx. 25. Except I shall see in his hands the print of the nails, and put my finger into the print of the nails, and thrust my hand into his side, I will not believe.

Q. 9. What is the fourth sign of a weak faith?

A. When a new temptation makes us easily let go our former confidence; Luke xxiv. 21. But we trusted that it had been he which should have redeemed Israel: And besides all this, to-day is the third day since these things were done.

Q. 10. What is the fifth sign of a weak faith?

A. The prevalence of carnal fears, in times of trouble, argues weak faith; Matth. viii. 26. And he faith unto them, Why are ye fearful, O ye of little faith? &c.

Q. 11. What is the sixth sign of a weak faith?

A. Too much carefulness and anxiety about the things of this life; Matth. vi. 30. Wherefore if God so clothe the grass of the field, which to-day is, and to-morrow is cast into the oven, shall he not much more clothe you, O ye of little faith?

Q. 12. What is the first benefit of a strong faith?

Vol. VIII.
An Exposition of the Assembly's Catechism.

A. A strong faith gives much glory to God; Rom. iv. 19, 20. And being not weak in faith, he considered not his own body now dead, when he was about an hundred years old, neither yet the deadness of Sarah's womb. He staggered not at the promise of God through unbelief; but was strong in faith, giving glory to God.

Q. 13. What is the second benefit of a strong faith?
A. It gives the soul the ravishing foresight and foretastes of heaven upon earth; 1 Pet. i. 8. Whom having not seen, ye love; in whom though now ye see him not, yet believing, ye rejoice with joy unspeakable, and full of glory.

Q. 14. What is the last office faith doth for a believer in this world?
A. It supports and encourages him at death by the promises, when all other comforts fail; Heb. xi. 13. These all died in faith, not having received the promises, but having seen them afar off, and were persuaded of them, and embraced them, and confessed that they were strangers and pilgrims on the earth.

Of saving Repentance.

Quest. 87. What is repentance unto life?
A. Repentance unto life is a saving grace, whereby a sinner, out of a true sense of his sin, and apprehension of the mercy of God in Christ, doth with grief and hatred of his sin, turn from it unto God, with full purpose of, and endeavour after new obedience.

Q. 1. Who is the author of saving repentance?
A. The Spirit of God is the author of it; the heart by nature is so hard, that none but the Spirit can break it; Ezek. xxxvi. 26, 27. A new heart also will I give you, and a new spirit will I put within you: And I will take away the stony heart out of your flesh, and I will give you an heart of flesh. And I will put my Spirit within you, &c.

Q. 2. In what act doth all true repentance begin?
A. It begins in a true sight and sense of sin, and the danger and misery we are in by sin; Acts ii. 37. Now when they heard this, they were pricked in their hearts, &c.

Q. 3. Why doth God work such a sense of sin and misery?
A. He doth it to make Christ desirable in the sinner's eyes, that he may fly to him; Matth. ix. 12, 13. But when Jesus heard that, he said unto them, They that be whole need not a physician, but they that are sick. But go ye and learn what that meaneth, I will have mercy, and not sacrifice; for I am not come to call the righteous, but sinners to repentance.

Q. 4. Is the sight of sin sufficient to repentance?
A. No; there must be apprehension of mercy and forgiveness with God, or else no man can sincerely repent; Rom. ii. 4. Not knowing that the goodness of God leadeth thee to repentance. And this mercy must be discerned in and through Christ; Zech. xii. 10. And they shall look upon me whom they have pierced, and they shall mourn for him as one mourneth for his only son, and shall be in bitterness for him as one that is in bitterness for his first-born.

Q. 5. Wherein doth repentance chiefly consist?

A. It consists in real inward sorrow for sin, as committed against God; Psalm li. 3, 4. For I acknowledge my transgressions, and my sin is ever before me. Against thee, thou only have I sinned, and done this evil in thy sight, &c. A loathing of ourselves for it; Ezek. xxxvi. 31. And shall loath yourselves in your own sight, for your iniquities, and for your abominations. And of our best duties, as sinful and insufficiency things; Isa. lxiv. 5, 6. We are all as an unclean thing; and all our righteousnesses are as filthy rags, &c.

Q. 6. Wherein else doth it consist?

A. In turning from sin, as well as grieving for it; Isa. lv. 7. Let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts, &c. Prov. xxviii. 13. He that covereth his sins, shall not prosper; but whoso confesseth and forsaiketh them, shall have mercy.

Q. 7. Is turning from sin sufficient?

A. No, that is but the negative part of religion; there must be also a sincere turning to God; Psalm cxix. 59. I thought on my ways, and turned my feet unto thy testimonies; Acts xi. 23. And exhorted them all, that with purpose of heart they would cleave unto the Lord.

Q. 8. Is all sorrow for sin saving?

A. No; there is a repentance that doth no good; Matt. xxvii. 3. Then Judas which had betrayed him, when he saw that he was condemned, repented himself, &c. And a repentance unto life; Acts xi. 18. Then hath God also to the Gentiles granted repentance unto life.

Q. 9. What are the signs of true repentance?

A. Fear of sin; care to preserve ourselves from it; and zeal to honour God by new obedience; 2 Cor. vii. 11. For behold, this soul-same thing that ye sorrowed after a godly sort, what carefulness it wrought in you; yea, what clearing of yourselves; yea, what indignation; yea, what fear; yea, what vehement desire; yea, what zeal; yea, what revenge? In all things you have approved yourselves to be clear in this matter.
An Exposition of the Assembly's Catechism.

Q. 10. Is there a necessity of repentance, in order to forgiveness?
A. Yes, there is; and they are therefore conjoined in scripture; Acts v. 31. For to give repentance to Israel, and forgiveness of sins. And destruction threatened to the impenitent; Luke xiii. 3. Except ye repent, ye shall all likewise perish.

Q. 11. What is the first inference hence?
A. That it is a false doctrine, which teaches us that sins are actually forgiven from eternity; and therefore no need either of repentance or prayer, save only for the manifestation of pardon.

Q. 12. What is the second inference hence?
A. That an hard heart is a dreadful sign of a lost state of soul; Rom. ii. 5. But after thy hardness and impenitent heart, treasurest up unto thyself wrath against the day of wrath, and revelation of the righteous judgment of God.

Q. 13. What is the last inference hence?
A. That there is no cause to despair of the vilest sinner, seeing there is power enough in the Spirit of God to break the hardest heart; Ezek. xxxvi. 26. I will take away the stony heart out of your flesh, and I will give you an heart of flesh.

Of Christ's Ordinances.

Qest. 88. What are the outward means whereby Christ communicateth to us the benefits of redemption?
A. The outward and ordinary means whereby Christ communicateth to us the benefits of redemption, are his ordinances; especially the word, sacraments, and prayer; all which are made effectual to the elect for salvation.

Q. 1. What makes any thing become a divine ordinance?
A. The institution or appointment of God, is that alone which makes a divine ordinance; Matth. xxviii. 20. Teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you, &c.

Q. 2. Are the institutions of all ordinances alike clear in scripture?
A. No: Some are more explicitly and clearly revealed in scripture than others; as the Lord's supper is more clear than baptism: But whatever hath scripture-warrant, in the words or consequence, is of divine appointment.

Q. 3. May not men institute ordinances of divine worship?
A. No; this in scripture is condemned as will-worship; Col. ii. 20, 22, 23. Wherefore if ye be dead with Christ from the rudiments of the world; why, as though living in the world, are ye subject to ordinances? &c. Which things indeed have a show of wisdom in will-worship, &c.
Q. 4. Why cannot man institute a divine ordinance?

A. He cannot do it, because it is the prerogative belonging to Christ's kingly office; Matth. xxviii. 20. Teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you.

Q. 5. For what other reason cannot man do it?

A. Because he cannot bless them, and make them effectual to their ends: but they will be in vain; Matth. xv. 9. But in vain do they worship me, teaching for doctrines the commandments of men.

Q. 6. Why are the ordinances called means of salvation?

A. Because by and through them the Spirit of the Lord conveys spiritual graces into mens souls; 1 Cor. i. 21. It pleased God, by the foolishness of preaching, to save them that believe, 1 Cor. iii. 5. Who then is Paul, and who is Apollos, but ministers by whom ye believed, even as the Lord gave to every man?

Q. 7. Whence is the virtue of ordinances?

A. It is not in and from themselves, or the gifts and abilities of him that administers them, but from the blessing and Spirit of the Lord; 1 Cor. iii. 7. Neither is he that planteth anything, nor he that watereth, but God that giveth the increase.

Q. 8. Do all God's ordinances attain their end?

A. Yes; there is none of them in vain, but do attain their end, in the salvation or damnation of all that come under them; Hos. iv. 10, 11. For as the rain cometh down, and the snow from heaven, and returneth not thither, but watereth the earth, and maketh it bring forth and bud, that it may give seed to the sower, and bread to the eater: So shall my word be, that goeth forth out of my mouth: It shall not return unto me void; but it shall accomplish that which I please, and it shall prosper in the thing whereto I send it. 2 Cor. ii. 15, 16. For we are unto God a sweet favour of Christ, in them that are saved, and in them that perish: To the one we are the favour of death unto death, and to the other the favour of life unto life, &c.

Q. 9. Are instituted ordinances the only means of salvation?

A. They are not the only means; for God can convert men to Christ without them; Acts ix. 4, 5. And he fell to the earth, and heard a voice saying unto him, Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me? And he said, Who art thou Lord? And the Lord said, I am Jesus, whom thou persecutest: It is hard for thee to kick against the pricks. But they are the ordinary standing means; Rom. x. 14, 15. How then shall they call on him, in whom they have not believed? And how shall they believe in him, of whom they have not heard? And how shall they hear without a preacher? And how shall they preach, except they be sent? &c.

Q. 10. To whom are the ordinances made effectual to salvation?

A. To all God's elect they are effectual to salvation, and to them only; Acts xiii. 48. As many as were ordained to eternal life, believed. John x, 26. But ye believe not, because ye are not of my sheep, &c.

Q. 11. What is the first instruction from hence?

A. That great preparation is due to all the ordinances, before we engage in them; Job xi. 13, 14. If thou prepare thine heart, and stretch out thine hands towards him. If iniquity be in thine hand, put it far away, and let not wickedness dwell in thy tabernacles. 1 Chron. xxix. 18. And prepare their heart unto thee.

Q. 12. What is the second inference from hence?

A. That great reverence is due to God's ordinances, when we are actually engaged in the use of them; Psalm lxxxix. 7. God is greatly to be feared in the assembly of the saints; and to be had in reverence of all them that are about him.

Q. 13. What is the third inference from hence?

A. That those people that want ordinances, are in a sad and deplorable condition; Eph. ii. 11, 12. Wherefore remember that ye being in time past Gentiles in the flesh, who are called uncircumcision by that which is called the circumcision in the flesh made by hands; that at that time ye were without Christ, being aliens from the commonwealth of Israel, and strangers from the covenants of promise, having no hope, and without God in the world.

Q. 14. What is the last instruction hence?

A. That those that perish in the midst of ordinances, and means of salvation, will perish with aggravated perdition; Mat. xi. 23. And thou Capernaum, which art exalted unto heaven, shalt be brought down to hell: for if the mighty works, which have been done in thee, had been done in Sodom, it would have remained until this day.

Of the Word read and heard.

Quest. 89. How is the word made effectual to salvation?

A. The Spirit of God maketh the reading, but especially the preaching of the word, an effectual means of convincing and converting sinners; and building them up in holiness and comfort, through faith unto salvation.

Q. 1. What mean you by the word?

A. By the word is meant the word of God, consigned to
An Exposition of the Assembly's Catechism.

Writing in the books of the Old and New Testament; which though it be ministered by men, yet is no other than the very word of God, and as such to be received; 1 Thess. ii. 13. For this cause also thank we God without ceasing, because when ye received the word of God, which ye heard of us, ye received it not as the word of men; but (as it is in truth) the word of God, &c.

Q. 2. Whence is the efficacy of this word?
A. It is wholly from the Spirit of God that it becomes effectual to any man's salvation; 1 Cor. iii. 6, 7. I have planted, and Apollos watered, but God gave the increase. So then, neither is he that planteth any thing, neither he that watereth; but God that giveth the increase.

Q. 3. Is the reading of the scripture an ordinance of God for men's salvation?
A. Yes, it is; Deut. xvii. 19. And it shall be with him, and he shall feed therein all the days of his life, that he may learn to fear the Lord his God, to keep all the words of this law, and these statutes to do them. And in reading of it, God sometimes comes in by his Spirit to men's conversion; Acts viii. 27, 28, 29. And he arose and went, and behold a man of Ethiopia, an eunuch of great authority under Candace queen of the Ethiopians, who had the charge of all her treasure, and had come to Jerusalem for to worship, was returning, and sitting in his chariot, read Isaiah the prophet. Then the Spirit said to Philip, Go near, and join thyself to this chariot, &c.

Q. 4. Is the hearing of the word a means of salvation?
A. Yes, it is; Isa. lv. 3. Incline your ear, and come unto me; hear, and your soul shall live, &c. 1 Cor. i. 21. It pleased God, by the foolishness of preaching, to save them that believe.

Q. 5. To what end is the word useful to men?
A. The first end and use of the word is to convince men of their sin and misery out of Christ; 1 Cor. xiv. 24, 25. But if all prophesy, and there come in one that believeth not, or one unlearned, he is convicted of all, he is judged of all. And thus are the secrets of his heart made manifest, &c.

Q. 6. What is it useful for, besides conviction?
A. It is useful for conversion, as well as conviction; Psalm xix. 7. The law of the Lord is perfect, converting the soul, &c. Acts xxvi. 18. To turn them from darkness to light, and from the power of Satan unto God, &c.

Q. 7. Doth the word convince and convert all that hear it?
A. No, but those only that are ordained to eternal life; Acts xiii. 48. As many as were ordained to eternal life believed.
Q. 8. What else is the word useful for?

A. To build up the saints to perfection in Christ; Eph. iv. 11, 12, 13. And he gave some apostles, and some prophets, and some evangelists, and some pastors and teachers; for the perfecting of the saints, for the work of the ministry, for the edifying of the body of Christ: till we all come in the unity of the faith, and of the knowledge of the Son of God, unto a perfect man; unto the measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ. Acts xx. 32. And now, brethren, I commend you to God, and to the word of his grace, which is able to build you up, and give you an inheritance among all them that are sanctified.

Q. 9. May the common people read the scriptures?

A. Yes, it is a duty commanded by Christ; John v. 39. Search the scriptures, &c. And commended by the apostle; Acts xvii. 11. These were more noble than those in Thesalonica, in that they received the word with all readiness of mind, and searched the scriptures daily, whether those things were so.

Q. 10. Is it their duty or liberty also to preach it?

A. No, it is not; for besides abilities for that work, there must be a call; Rom. x. 14, 15. How shall they hear without a preacher? and how shall they preach, except they be sent, &c.

Q. 11. What is the first instruction from hence?

A. That the enjoyments of the scriptures, and an able faithful ministry to expound and apply them, is a special mercy to any people; Psalms cxlvii. 19, 20. He sheweth his word unto Jacob, his statutes and judgments unto Israel; he hath not dealt so with any nation; and as for his judgments they have not known them.

Q. 12. What is the second instruction?

A. That men cannot expect special and spiritual blessings from God in the wilful neglect of the ordinances; Prov. xxviii. 9. He that turneth away his ear from hearing the law, even his prayer shall be abomination.

Q. 13. What is the third inference?

A. That such is their condition, who sit all their days under the word to no purpose at all; 2 Cor. iv. 3, 4. If our gospel be hid, it is hid to them that are lost: in whom the god of this world hath blinded the minds of them which believe not, lest the light of the glorious gospel of Christ, who is the image of God, should shine into them.

Q. 14. What is the last inference?

A. That Christ's ordinances and ministers should be most welcome to the people to whom God sends them; Isa. iii. 7. How beautiful upon the mountains are the feet of him that bringeth good tidings, that publisheth peace, that publisheth salvation, that faith unto Zion, Thy God reigneth.

Of the Manner of Hearing.

Quest. 90. HOW is the word to be read and heard, that it may become effectual to salvation?

A. That the word may become effectual to salvation, we must attend thereunto with diligence, preparation, and prayer, receive it with faith and love, lay it up in our hearts, and practice it in our lives.

Q. 1. If the matter we read or hear be good, is not that enough for our salvation?

A. No, God requires that the word be read and heard in a due manner, and the manner of hearing is of special regard with God; Luke viii. 18. Take heed therefore how ye hear, &c.

Q. 2. How many things belong to the due manner of hearing?

A. Three sorts of duties belong to it; some antecedent, as preparation and prayer; some concomitant, as due diligence and retention; and some subsequent, as practice.

Q. 3. What is due preparation for hearing?

A. It consists in serious consideration of the greatness and holiness of that God whom we approach in hearing the word; Acts x. 33. Now therefore we are all here present before God, to hear all things that are commanded thee of God. And awing the heart even to a degree of holy trembling thereby; Isa. lxvi. 2. To him will I look, even to him that is poor and of a contrite spirit, and trembleth at my word.

Q. 4. What is the principal consideration thus to awe the heart?

A. The word is in its own nature an heart-searching word; Heb. iv. 12. For the word of God is quick and powerful, and sharper than any two-edged sword, piercing even to the dividing asunder of soul and spirit, and of the joints and marrow, and is a discerner of the thoughts and intents of the heart. And that eventually it will be the favour of life or death to us; 2 Cor. ii. 16. To the one we are the favour of death unto death; and to the other the favour of life unto life, &c.

Q. 5. What else belongs to due preparation to hear?

A. The discharging of the heart from worldly cares; Matth. xiii. 7. And some fell among thorns, and the thorns sprang up and choked them. And carnal lusts; James i. 21. Wherefore lay apart all filthiness and superfluity of naughtiness, and receive with meekness the ingrafted word, which is able to save your souls.

Q. 6. What is the third act of due preparation?
A. Longing after the word for further communications of grace by it; 1 Pet. ii. 2. As new-born babes desire the sincere milk of the word, that ye may grow thereby. Isa. ii. 3. And many people shall go and say, Come ye, and let us go up to the mountain of the Lord, to the house of the God of Jacob, and he will teach us of his ways, and we will walk in his paths: for out of Zion shall go forth the law, and the word of the Lord from Jerusalem.

Q. 7. What is the second antecedent duty of hearing?
A. Prayer is an antecedent duty to hearing the word, and that both for the assistance of the minister; 2 Thess. iii. 1. Finally, brethren, pray for us, that the word of the Lord may have free course, and be glorified, even as it is with you. And our own illumination; Psalm cxix. 18. Open thou mine eyes, that I may behold wondrous things out of thy law.

Q. 8. What else should we pray for?
A. That God would pour out his Spirit with the word, according to that promise, Prov. i. 23. I will pour out my Spirit upon you, I will make known my words unto you.

Q. 9. Doth unpreparedness for the word always hinder its efficacy on the heart?
A. No, God sometimes is found of them that sought him not; Isa. lxv. 1. I was found of them that sought me not, &c. But it is a sin to neglect it, and needs a pardon of God.

Q. 10. What is the first motive to prepare for solemn duties?
A. That it argues the sincerity of the heart, and in that case God will be merciful to infirmities; 2 Chron. xxx. 18, 19. For a multitude of the people, even a multitude of Ephraim and Manasseh, Issachar and Zebulun, had not cleansed themselves, yet did eat the passover, but not as it is written; wherefore Hezekiah prayed for them, saying, The good Lord be merciful towards him that prepareth his whole heart to seek the Lord God, the God of his fathers, though he be not cleansed according to the purification of the sanctuary.

Q. 11. What is the second motive?
A. It is a sweet sign that God will make that duty successful for which the heart is prepared; Psalm x. 17. Thou preparest their heart; thou bendest thine ear to them.

Q. 12. What is the third motive to preparation?
A. The majesty and jealousy of God, to whom we approach, Aft Exposition of the Assembly's Catechism.

obliges us to solemn preparation; Heb. xii. 28, 29. Whereby we may serve God acceptably, with reverence and godly fear; for our God is a consuming fire.

Q. 13. But must a man neglect the duty, if his heart be not duly prepared for it?

A. No; for that would be to add a new sin to a former, and aggravate it the more.

Q. 14. In what manner must the prepared heart go to the word?

A. Not in dependance on its own preparations, but upon the Spirit's assistance; Psalm lxxi. 16. I will go forward in the strength of the Lord God, &c.

Q. 15. What is the first act of faith due to the word?

A. The assenting act of faith is required to the word read or preached, whereby we acknowledge it to be of divine authority; 2 Tim. iii. 16. All scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness; 2 Peter i. 21. For the prophecy came not in old time by the will of man: but holy men of God spake as they were moved by the holy Ghost.

Q. 16. What is the second act of faith required of us?

A. An applying act of faith is also required of us; Rom. xv. 4. For whatsoever things were written aforetime, were written for our learning, that we through patience and comfort of the scriptures might have hope.

Q. 17. What is the first end in applying the word?

A. It is first to be applied to our conviction both of sin and misery; Acts ii. 37. Now when they heard this, they were pricked in their hearts, and said unto Peter, and to the rest of the apostles, Men and brethren, what shall we do?

Q. 18. What is the second end, or use of applying it?

A. It must be applied for our guidance and direction to Christ; John vi. 45. Every man therefore that hath heard, and hath learned of the Father cometh unto me.

Q. 19. What is the third use to which it must be applied?

A. We must apply it for our direction through the whole course of Christian duties; 2 Pet. i. 19. We have also a more sure word of prophecy; whereunto ye do well that ye take heed, as unto a light that shineth in a dark place, until the day dawn, and the day-star arise in your hearts.

Q. 20. What other use must we apply it to?

A. It must be applied for our comfort in all inward and outward troubles; Rom. xv. 4. For whatsoever things were writ.
An Exposition of the Assembly's Catechism

ten aforetime, were written for our learning, that we through patience and comfort of the scriptures might have hope.

Q. 21. On what account are we to receive it with love?
A. We are to love it for its author's sake, because it is the word of God; Psalm cxix. 159. Consider how I love thy precepts, &c.

Q. 22. What is the second motive of love to the word?
A. The holiness and purity of it deserves and engages our love to it; Psalm cxix. 140. Thy word is very pure: therefore thy servant loveth it.

Q. 23. What is the third motive to engage our love to it?
A. Our love manifests itself in our longing after it; Psalm cxix. 20. My soul breaketh for the longing that it hath unto thy judgments at all times. Our diligent attendance on it; Acts x. 33. Immediately therefore I sent unto thee, and thou hast well done that thou art come. Now therefore are we all here present before God, to hear all things that are commanded thee of God.

Q. 24. How is faith and love evidenced to the word after hearing it?
A. By preserving it carefully in our hearts and memories; Psalm cxix. 11. Thy word have I hid in my heart, that I might not sin against thee.

Q. 25. What is the best cure for a bad memory?
A. Labour to get an high esteem of it, and an experimental feeling of it, and frequently meditate on it; Psalm cxix. 16. I will delight myself in thy statutes: I will not forget thy word. Psalm cxix. 93. I will never forget thy precepts; for with them thou hast quickened me. Psalm cxix. 99. Thy testimonies are my meditation.

Q. 26. How is faith and love principally manifested to the word after hearing it?
A. It is principally manifested by bringing forth the fruits of it in our lives; Col. i. 5, 6. For the hope which is laid up for you in heaven, whereof ye heard before in the word of the truth of the gospel, which is come unto you, as it is in all the world, and bringeth forth fruit, as it doth also in you, since the day ye heard of it, and knew the grace of God in truth.

Q. 27. What is the use of all this?
A. This serves to reprove our formal and dead hearing the word, and excites us all to evidence and exercise more faith, love, and obedience, in hearing it.

Of Sacraments, as Means of Salvation.

Quest. 91. How do the sacraments become effectual means of salvation?

A. The sacraments become effectual means of salvation, not from any virtue in them, or in him that doth administer them, but only by the blessing of Christ, and the working of his Spirit in them that by faith receive them.

Q. 1. What is the first proper sense of this word sacrament?

A. It primarily signifies a solemn oath taken by soldiers, when they list themselves under a prince or general; and this oath was mutual.

Q. 2. Why do we use it, seeing it is not a scripture word?

A. Though the word be not found in scripture, yet the thing intended by it is, and that brings the word in use: for in the sacraments God obliges himself to us by confirming his covenant by it; Rom. iv. 11. And he received the sign of circumcision, a seal of the righteousness of the faith, which he had yet being uncircumcised: that he might be the father of all them that believe, though they be not circumcised; that righteousness might be imputed unto them also. And we oblige ourselves to God; Rom. vi. 3, 4. Know ye not that so many of us as were baptized into Christ, were baptized into his death? Therefore we are buried with him by baptism into death, that like as Christ was raised up from the dead by the glory of the Father, even so we also should walk in newness of life.

Q. 3. What is here meant by salvation?

A. By salvation is meant our complete and final deliverance from sin and misery, both temporal and eternal. From sin, Matth i. 21. For he shall save his people from their sins. From misery, 1 Thes. i. 10. Even Jesus who delivereth us from the wrath to come.

Q. 4. What is a mean of salvation?

A. A mean of salvation signifies any appointment of God, whereby he promotes and accomplishes his design of saving our souls; so the word is a mean; Rom. i. 16. For I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ, for it is the power of God unto salvation, to every one that believeth.

Q. 5. How doth the word and sacraments differ as means of salvation?

A. The word is appointed to be the first means of begetting...
An Exposition of the Assembly's Catechism.

10. Who then is Paul? And who is Apollos? But ministers by whom ye believed, &c. Sacraments are to seal and confirm it; Rom. iv. 11. And he received the sign of circumcision, a seal of the righteousness of faith, &c.

Q. 6. What is meant by an effectual mean of salvation?

A. By an effectual mean, is meant such a mean as fully obtains and accomplishes the end it was appointed for, 1 Thess. ii. 13. Because when ye received the word of God, which ye heard of us, ye received it not as the word of men; but (as it is in truth) the word of God, which effectually worketh also in you that believe.

Q. 7. Do not all the means of salvation prove effectual to men?

A. Though the means of salvation prove effectual to all God's elect, yet they are so not to others; Acts xxviii. 23, 24. And when they had appointed him a day, there came many to him into his lodging, to whom he expounded and testified the kingdom of God, persuading them concerning Jesus, both out of the law of Moses, and out of the prophets, from morning till evening. And some believed the things which were spoken, and some believed not.

Q. 8. Do not the sacraments save all that partake of them?

A. No, they do not; baptism may pass on a cast-away; Acts viii. 23. For I perceive that thou art in the gall of bitterness, and in the bond of iniquity. And the Lord's supper may be received unworthily; 1 Cor. xi. 27. Wherefore, whoever shall eat this bread, and drink this cup of the Lord unworthily, shall be guilty of the body and blood of the Lord.

Q. 9. What is the reason they prove not effectual to all?

A. Because their virtue and efficacy is not in themselves, but in God; for we see they work as God's Spirit concurs, or not concurs with them, as in the instance before given.

Q. 10. But is not that for want of wisdom, holiness, or zeal in the minister, that they have no more efficacy?

A. No, it is not principally, or only from thence; for it is not in the power of the holiest minister in the world to make them effectual; 1 Cor. iii. 7. Neither is he that planteth any thing, neither he that watereth; but God that giveth the increase.

Q. 11. Whence is it that sacraments become effectual?

A. It is only from the Spirit of Christ working in them, and by them on the souls of men; 1 Cor. xii. 13. For by one Spirit are we all baptized into one body,—and have been all made to drink into one Spirit.
Q. 12. What is the first instruction hence?
A. That men enjoying all the ordinances of the gospel, and partaking of the sacraments annexed to the covenant of grace, may yet perish for ever; 1 Cor. x. 3, 4, 5. And did all eat the same spiritual meat; and did all drink the same spiritual drink; (for they drank of that spiritual rock that followed them: and that rock was Christ). But with many of them God was not well pleased: for they were overthrown in the wilderness; Luke xiii. 26, 27. Then shall ye begin to say, we have eaten and drunk in thy presence, and thou hast taught in our streets.
But he shall say, I tell you, I know you not whence you are;
depart from me all ye workers of iniquity.

Q. 13. What is the second inference?
A. That men should not idolize some ministers for the excellency of their gifts, and despise others, seeing it is not in them to make the means effectual.

Q. 14. What is the last inference?
A. That in all our attendence upon the means of salvation, we should be careful to beg the Spirit and blessing of Christ, without which they cannot be effectual to our salvation.

Of the Nature of Sacraments.

Quest. 92. What is a sacrament?
A. A sacrament is an holy ordinance instituted by Christ; wherein by sensible signs, Christ and the benefits of the new covenant are represented, sealed, and applied to believers.

Q. 1. How many sorts of sacraments are found in scripture?
A. Of sacraments there are two sorts, some extraordinary and transient, as the fiery pillar, manna, and water out of the rock; 1 Cor. x. 1, 2, 3, 4. Moreover, brethren, I would not that ye should be ignorant, how that all our fathers were under the cloud, and all passed through the sea; and were all baptized unto Moses in the cloud, and in the sea; and did all eat the same spiritual meat; and did all drink the same spiritual drink; (for they drank of that spiritual rock that followed them; and that rock was Christ.) And some ordinary and standing, as circumcision and the passover, before Christ; and baptism and the Lord's supper, since Christ's death.

Q. 2. How many things are to be considered in every sacrament?
A. In every sacrament five things must be considered; (1.)
The author. (2.) The parts. (3.) The union of those parts.
(4.) The subjects. (5.) The ends and uses of it.
Q. 3. Who is the author of the sacraments?
A. The Lord Jesus Christ as King of the church, by whose sole authority baptism was instituted; Matth. xxviii. 19, 20. Go ye therefore and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost: Teaching them to observe all things, whatsoever I have commanded you, &c. And the Lord's supper; 1 Cor. xi. 23, 24. For I have received of the Lord that which also I delivered unto you, that the Lord Jesus, the same night in which he was betrayed, took bread, and when he had given thanks, he brake it, and said, take, eat, this is my body, which is broken for you: This do in remembrance of me.

Q. 4. Are the old sacraments yet in being and use in the church?
A. No, they are passed away, and the new come in their room. Baptism takes place of circumcision; Col. ii. 11, 12. In whom also ye are circumcised with the circumcision made without hands, in putting off the body of the sins of the flesh by the circumcision of Christ; buried with him in baptism, &c. And the Lord's supper of the passover; 1 Cor. v. 7. Purge out therefore the old leaven, that ye may be a new lump, as ye are unleavened, for even Christ our passover is sacrificed for us.

Q. 5. Of what parts doth every sacrament consist?
A. Every sacrament consists of two parts, one external and earthly; another internal and heavenly, or spiritual. Bread, wine, and water, are the external, Christ's blood and Spirit the internal parts; Rom. vi. 3. Know ye not, that so many of us as were baptized into Jesus Christ, were baptized into his death? 1 Cor. xi. 25. This cup is the new testament in my blood, &c.

Q. 6. Wherein consists the sacramental union of those parts?
A. It consists, by virtue of Christ's institution, in three things; (1.) In apt signification. (2.) Firm obligation. And, (3.) Real exhibition of the blessings signified and sealed.

Q. 7. What are the blessings signified by water in baptism?
A. It signifies our implantation into Christ, and communion with him in his death and resurrection; Rom. vi. 4. Therefore we are buried with him by baptism into death, that like as Christ was raised up from the dead by the glory of the Father; even so we also should walk in newness of life. And our solemn admission into the visible church; Gal. iii. 26, 27, 28, 29. For ye are all the children of God by faith in Christ Jesus. For as many of you as have been baptized into Christ, have put on Christ. There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither bond nor free, there is neither male nor female: For ye are all one in Christ Jesus. And if ye be Christ's, then are ye Abraham's seed, and heirs according to the promise.

Q. 8. What are the blessings signified by bread and wine?
A. They signify Christ's body and blood, broken and poured out for us; with all the blessings of remission, peace, and salvation, purchased by his blood; 1 Cor. x. 16, 17. The cup of blessing which we bless, is it not the communion of the blood of Christ? The bread which we break, is it not the communion of the body of Christ? For we being many, are one bread, and one body; for we are all partakers of that one bread.

Q. 9. Do the sacraments seal, as well as signify these things?
A. Yes, they do; Rom. iv. 11. And he received the sign of circumcision, a seal of the righteousness of the faith, &c. Their use is to confirm God's covenant with believers.

Q. 10. Who are the proper subjects of the sacraments?
A. Believers, and their seed, are the subjects of baptism, but adult Christians only of the Lord's supper; Acts ii. 38, 39. Repent, and be baptized every one of you; for the promise is unto you, and to your children, even as many as the Lord our God shall call. 1 Cor. xi. 28. But let a man examine himself, and so let him eat of that bread, and drink of that cup.

Q. 11. What is the main use and end of sacraments?
A. It is to ratify and confirm God's covenant with believers; Rom. iv. 11. And he received the sign of circumcision, a seal of the righteousness of the faith which he had yet being uncircumcised, &c. 1 Cor. xi. 26. For as often as ye eat this bread, and drink this cup, ye do shew the Lord's death till he come.

Q. 12. What is the first instruction from hence?
A. That the abuse of such holy and solemn mysteries is a sin of dreadful aggravation, and such as God will punish; 1 Cor. xi. 27. Wherefore, whosoever shall eat this bread, and drink this cup of the Lord unworthily, shall be guilty of the body and blood of the Lord.

Q. 13. What is the second instruction?
A. Hence we learn the tender care and love of Christ over the church, in instituting such useful and comfortable ordinances for us.
Quest. 93. Which are the sacraments of the New Testament?

A. The sacraments of the New Testament are, baptism, and the Lord's supper.

A. Christ hath appointed two, and no more; these being sufficient for our initiation and confirmation.

Q. 2. How many have the Papists added to them?
A. They have added five more; viz. Confirmation, penance, ordination, marriage, and extreme unction.

Q. 3. What is their sacrament of confirmation?
A. It is the anointing of the baptized with chrism in the fore-head, with this form of words; I sign thee with the sign of the cross, and confirm thee with the chrism of salvation, in the name of the Father, Son, and holy Ghost.

Q. 4. What is their ground for this practice?
A. The abuse of that Scripture, Heb. vi. 2. Of the doctrine of baptisms, and laying on of hands, &c. which, by a figurative speech, expresseth the whole standing ministry in the church, by laying on of hands.

Q. 5. What is their sacrament of penance?
A. It is repentance manifested by outward signs, to which the word of absolution coming, makes it a sacrament, grounded on John xx. 22. Whose soever sins ye remit, they are remitted unto them; and whose soever sins ye retain, they are retained.

Q. 6. What is their sacrament of orders, or ordination?
A. It is the laying on of hands in ordination of ministers, by which they conceive spiritual grace is given; by mistake of 2 Tim. i. 6. Wherefore I put thee in remembrance, that thou stir up the gift of God which is in thee, by the putting on of my hands.

Q. 7. What is their fourth superadded sacrament?
A. It is marriage, grounded upon those words of the apostle, Eph. v. 32. This is a great mystery; but I speak concerning Christ and the church. Which only shews a similitude of our union with Christ, not an instituted sign to that end.

Q. 8. What is their fifth superadded sacrament?
A. Extreme unction, or anointing the sick, near death, with consecrated oil, grounded on Mark vi. 13. And anointed with oil many that were sick, and healed them. And James.
v. 14. Is any sick among you? Let him call for the elders of the church, and let them pray over him, anointing him with oil in the name of the Lord. Which are neither sacramental rites, nor of ordinary standing use in the church, but extraordinary, and temporary for that age.

Q. 9. What learn we hence?
A. Hence we learn, how apt men are to corrupt God's ordinances, by their superstitious additions; Matth. xv. 9. Teaching for doctrines the commandments of men.

Q. 10. What is the second instruction hence?
A. How just and necessary our separation from Rome is, who have grossly corrupted God's ordinances, and left men no other remedy; Rev. xiii. 6. And he opened his mouth in blasphemy against God, to blaspheme his name, and his tabernacle, and them that dwell in heaven.

Q. 11. What is the third instruction?
A. That the reformation of religion is an invaluable mercy, a great deliverance from spiritual bondage; Rev. xi. 19. And the temple of God was opened in heaven, and there was seen in his temple the ark of his testament: and there were lightnings, and voices, and thunderings, and an earthquake, and great hail.

Q. 12. What is the fourth instruction?
A. That Rome shall certainly fall, and all her adherents, for the horrid injury done by them to Christ, and the souls of men; Rev. xviii. 20, 21. Rejoice over her, thou heaven, and ye holy apostles and prophets; for God hath avenged you on her. And a mighty angel took up a stone like a great millstone, and cast it into the sea, saying, Thus with violence shall that great city Babylon be thrown down, and shall be found no more at all.

Of Baptism.

Quest. 94. What is baptism?
A. Baptism is a sacrament, wherein the washing with water, in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the holy Ghost, doth signify and seal our ingrafting into Christ, and partaking of the benefits of the covenant of grace, and our engagement to be the Lord's.

Q. 1. What is the external part of baptism?
A. It is pure unmixed water; Heb. x. 22. And our bodies washed with pure water. And therefore it is a vile practice of Papists, to add oil, salt, and spittle, to water, in baptism.
Q. 2. What doth water in baptism signify?
A. It signifies the blood of Christ; Rev. i. 5. Unto him that loved us, and washed us from our sins in his own blood.

Q. 3. What is the first resemblance it hath to Christ's blood?
A. In the freeness of it to all, it represents the unpurchased blood of Christ; Isa. lv. 1. Ho, every one that thirsteth, come ye to the waters; and he that hath no money, come ye, buy and eat; yea, come, buy wine and milk, without money, and without price.

Q. 4. What is the second resemblance to Christ's blood?
A. It resembles it in its refreshing quality; water refresheth the thirsty, so doth Christ's blood; John vi. 35. He that believeth on me, shall never thirst.

Q. 5. What is the third resemblance to Christ's blood?
A. The cleansing property of water, shews the purifying virtue of Christ's blood; Heb. ix. 14. How much more shall the blood of Christ, who through the eternal Spirit, offered himself without spot to God, purge your conscience from dead works, to serve the living God?

Q. 6. What is the fourth resemblance it hath to Christ's blood?
A. It resembles it in the necessity of it: For as the body cannot live without water, so neither can the soul without Christ's blood; Heb. ix. 23. It was therefore necessary that the patterns of things in the heavens should be purified with these, but the heavenly things themselves with better sacrifices than these.

Q. 7. What is the fifth resemblance of water to the blood of Christ?
A. As water neither refresheth nor purifies the body without application; so neither doth Christ's blood refresh or purify the soul till applied; 1 Cor. i. 30. But of him are ye in Christ Jesus, who of God is made unto us wisdom, and righteousness, and sanctification, and redemption.

Q. 8. Is it necessary to plunge the whole body under water, in baptizing every person?
A. The word [baptize] signifying as well to wash, as to plunge; a person may be truly baptized, that is not plunged. And we cannot think, by the circumstances of time and place, that the jailor, in the night, was carried to a river out of the city; Acts xvi. 33. And he took them, the same hour of the night, and washed their stripes, and was baptized, he and all his straightway.

Q. 9. But is it not said, John iii. 23. That John also was baptizing in Enon, near to Salim, because there was much water there: and they came and were baptized?
An Exposition of the Assembly's Catechism. 117

A. The word signifies many waters, that is, springs of waters there; which are known by travellers to be small, not ca-capable of plunging into.

Q. 10. What are the benefits accruing to us by baptism?

A. The benefits are twofold: some external, called the fatness of the olive-tree; i.e. ordinances, and visible membership; Rom. xi. 17. And thou being a wild olive-tree, wert grafted in amongst them, and with them partakest of the root and fatness of the olive-tree. And some spiritual and saving; 1 Pet. iii. 21. The like figure whereunto, even baptism, doth also now save us (not the putting away the filth of the flesh, but the answer of a good conscience towards God) by the resurrection of Jesus Christ.

Q. 11. What engagements are laid on the baptized?

A. They are engaged to be the Lord's people, and to walk suitably to that engagement; Rom. vi. 4. Therefore we are buried with him by baptism into death: that like as Christ was raised up from the dead by the glory of the Father, even so we also should walk in newness of life.

Q. 12. Is baptism to be reiterated, as the Lord's supper?

A. No; for the Lord's supper is a sacrament for nourishing, but this for implantation; Rom. vi. 4, 5. Therefore we are buried with him by baptism into death: that like as Christ was raised up from the dead by the glory of the Father, even so we also should walk in newness of life. For if we have been planted together in the likeness of his death, we shall be also in the likeness of his resurrection.

Q. 13. Doth baptism regenerate men, and confer saving grace?

A. No, it doth not, in its own virtue, convey grace, no more than the Lord's supper; but the Spirit of God is the author of grace, and works it as he pleases, before or after baptism.

Of the Subjects of Baptism.

Quest. 95. To whom is baptism to be administered?

A. Baptism is not to be administered to any that are out of the visible church, till they profes, their faith in Christ, and obedience to him; but the infants of such as are members of the visible church are to be baptized.

Q. 1. Who are to be baptized?

A. Believers, and their infant-offspring; Acts ii. 39. For the promise is to you, and your children, and to all that are afar off, even as many as the Lord our God shall call.

Q. 2. How doth it appear, that the infant-seed of believers ought to be baptized?

A. It appears by this, that they being Abraham's seed, were taken into covenant with God, and ordered to have the sign of the covenant applied to them; and that grant was never reversed; Gen. xvii. 7, 10. And I will establish my covenant between me and thee, and thy seed after thee, in their generati-os, for an everlasting covenant; to be a God unto thee, and to thy seed after thee. This is my covenant, which ye shall keep between me and you, and thy seed after thee; every man-child among you shall be circumcised.

Q. 3. But was not that the covenant of works; and so will not hold, to infer their privilege under the covenant of grace?

A. No, it was not; for God never did, nor will become a God by way of special interest to any people, by virtue of the covenant of works, since the breach of it by the fall.

Q. 4. But if it were the covenant of grace, how doth it appear the right of believers infants is still the same it was before in Abraham's time?

A. It appears plainly from the apostle's own words, and arguments; Acts ii. 39. For the promise is to you, and to your children, &c.

Q. 5. But though infants then were members of God's visible church among the Jews, how doth it appear they are so now, when God hath cast them off?

A. It appears, the membership and privileges are as free and complete to them now, that are the children of Gentile believers, as ever they were to the Jewish infants; Rom. xi. 17. And if some of the branches be broken off, and thou being a wild olive-tree wert graffed in amongst them, and with them partakest of the root and fatness of the olive-tree.

Q. 6. How else doth it appear they are within the covenant?

A. It appears by this, that they are pronounced holy; 1 Cor.
vii. 14. Else were your children unclean, but now are they holy. Which is a foederal holiness, and none out of covenant can be holy by covenant.

Q. 7. But may not that place mean only their legitimacy?

A. No, it cannot; for then the apostle must pronounce all the infants in the world bastards, that descend not at least from one believing parent.

Q. 8. But infants are not capable to covenant with God, or to perform covenant duties; and therefore why should they be admitted to covenant privileges?

A. A child now of eight days old, is as capable of being admitted into covenant with God, as children of the same age were in Abraham's days; and then it is manifest they were admitted.

Q. 9. Though they were admitted by circumcision then, will it follow, they may be so by baptism now, seeing that ordinance is abolished?

A. Yes, it will: For though circumcision cease, yet baptism is come in its place; Col. ii. 10, 11, 12. And ye are complete in him, which is the head of all principality and power. In whom also ye are circumcised with the circumcision made without hands, in putting off the body of the sins of the flesh, by the circumcision of Christ, buried with him in baptism, &c.

Q. 10. But circumcision was a seal of the covenant of works; and the argument will not hold, from a seal of the covenant of works, to a seal of the covenant of grace?

A. Circumcision never was, nor was intended to be a seal of the covenant of works, but of the righteousness of faith; Rom. iv. 11. And he received the sign of circumcision, a seal of the righteousness of the faith which he had yet being uncircumcised, &c.

Q. 11. But have we no express command in the New Testament to baptize infants?

A. There needed no new command; their privilege had been settled many ages before upon them, and never reversed by Christ, or his apostles, but their former right declared to continue still to them; Acts ii. 39. For the promise is to you and your children, &c.

Q. 12. But if they have a right, we might expect to find some examples of their baptizing?

A. It is manifest that believers households were baptized with them; Acts xvi. 15, 33. And when she was baptized, and her household, &c. Ver. 33. And he took them the same hour of the night, and washed their stripes, and was baptized, he and all his straightway. And if infants are not named, so neither are any of age, born of Christian parents.

Q. 13. But many trust to their infant-baptism, as to their regeneration, and so much mischief is done?

A. They do so; yet the duty is not therefore to be neglected. The preaching of Christ is to some a stumbling-block; yet Christ must be preached for all that.

Q. 14. But many baptized infants prove naught?
A. And so do many baptized at age too. Duties are not to be measured by events.

Of the Lord's Supper.

Quest. 96. What is the Lord's supper?
A. The Lord's supper is a sacrament, wherein, by giving and receiving bread and wine, according to Christ's appointment, his death is shewed forth; and the worthy receivers are, not after a corporal and carnal manner, but by faith made partakers of his body and blood, with all his benefits, to their spiritual nourishment, and growth in grace.

Q. 1. By whose authority is the Lord's supper instituted and appointed?
A. By the sovereign authority of Christ, the king of the church, and not by the pleasure of man; 1 Cor. xi. 23. For I have received of the Lord, that which also I delivered unto you; that the Lord Jesus, the same night in which he was betrayed, took bread.

Q. 2. Of what parts doth this sacrament consist?
A. It consists of two parts; one earthly and visible, to wit, bread and wine; the other spiritual and invisible, the body and blood of Christ; 1 Cor. x. 16. The cup of blessing which we bless, is it not the communion of the blood of Christ? The bread which we break, is it not the communion of the body of Christ?

Q. 3. How doth these earthly and heavenly things become a sacrament?
A. By the word of institution, and blessing coming from Christ upon them; 1 Cor. xi. 23, 24, 25. For I have received of the Lord, that which also I delivered unto you; that the Lord Jesus, the same night in which he was betrayed, took bread. And when he had given thanks, he brake it, and said, Take, eat, this is my body which is broken for you: This do in remembrance of me. After the same manner also he took the cup, when he had supped, saying, This cup is the New Testament in my blood: This do ye, as oft as ye drink it, in remembrance of me.

Q. 4. When did Christ ordain and institute this sacrament?
A. He instituted it in the same night he was betrayed; 1 Cor. xi. 23. The Lord Jesus, the same night in which he was betrayed, took bread. It could not be sooner, because the passover must be first celebrated, and, by the institution of this, abrogated; nor later, for soon after he was apprehended.

Q. 5. What doth the time of its institution teach us?
A. It teaches us, how great Christ’s care and love to his people is, that he makes in his ordinance such provision for our comfort, though he knew his own bitter agony was just at hand.

Q. 6. What is the general use and end of this sacrament?
A. It is to confirm, seal, and ratify the new covenant to believers; 1 Cor. xi. 35. This cup is the New Testament in my blood: This do ye, as oft as ye drink it, in remembrance of me.

Q. 7. What are the particular ends and uses of it?
A. The first particular end and use of it, is, to bring Christ and his sufferings after to our remembrance; 1 Cor. xi. 24, 25. This do in remembrance of me.

Q. 8. What kind of remembrance of Christ is here intended?
A. Not a mere speculative, but an affectionate heart-melting remembrance of him; like that of Peter, Matth. xxvi. 75. And Peter remembered the words of Jesus, which said unto him, Before the cock shall crow, thou shalt deny me thrice. And he went out, and wept bitterly. Or of Joseph, Gen. xliii. 29, 30. And Joseph made haste, for his bowels did yearn upon his brother: And he sought where to weep, and he entered into his chamber, and wept there.

Q. 9. What doth this end of the sacrament imply?
A. It implies this; that the best of God’s people are too apt to forget Christ, and what he hath endured and suffered for them.

Q. 10. What else doth it imply?
A. It implies this; that none but those that have the saving knowledge of Christ, and have had former acquaintance with Christ, are fit for this ordinance; for no man can remember what he never knew; 1 Cor. xi. 28. But let a man examine himself, and so let him eat of that bread, and drink of that cup.

Q. 11. What is the second particular use and end of this sacrament?
A. It is to represent Christ to believers, as an apt sign of him, and of his death; and that both memorative, significative, and instructive.

Q. 12. How is it a memorative sign of Christ?
A. It brings Christ to our remembrance, as his death and bitter sufferings are therein represented to us, by the breaking of bread, and pouring forth of wine; 1 Cor. xi. 26. For as often as ye eat this bread, and drink this cup, ye do shew forth the Lord’s death till he come.
Q. 13. How is it a significative ordinance?
A. It is a significative ordinance, not only as it represents Christ’s sufferings, but the believer’s union with him as the Head, and with each other as members of his body; 1 Cor. x. 16, 17. The cup of blessing which we bless, is it not the communion of the blood of Christ? The bread which we break, is it not the communion of the body of Christ? For we being many, are one bread, and one body, &c.

Q. 14. In what respect is it an instructive sign?
A. It is an instructive sign in divers respects; namely, first, as it teaches us, that Christ is the only nutritive bread, by which our souls live; John vi. 51. I am the living bread, which came down from heaven: If any man eat of this bread, he shall live for ever, and the bread that I will give is my flesh, which I will give for the life of the world. And, secondly, as it instructs us, that the New Testament is now in its full force, by the death of Christ the Testator, Heb. ix. 16, 17. For where a testament is, there must also of necessity be the death of the Testator. For a testament is of force after men are dead; otherwise it is of no force at all, whilst the Testator liveth.

Thus much of the Author, nature, and ends of the Lord’s supper.

Of the Elements, Actions, and Subjects of it.

Quest. 1. Are not bread and wine too small and common things, to represent the body and blood of Christ?
A. Though a bit of bread, and a draught of wine, be things of small value in themselves; yet they are great in respect of their use and end. A pennyworth of wax is a small thing in itself, but being applied to the label of a deed, may be advanced to the worth of thousands of pounds, as it receives the seal to a great inheritance.

Q. 2. Is not the bread in the sacrament turned into the very body of Christ itself, by transubstantiation?
A. No, it is not; but the elements retain still their own proper nature of bread and wine, after the words of consecration; and are so called; 1 Cor. xi. 26. For as often as ye eat this bread, &c. Matth. xxvi. 29. But I say unto you, I will not henceforth drink of this fruit of the vine, until that day when I drink it new with you in my Father’s kingdom.

Q. 3. What is the first argument, by which Protestants confute the Popish doctrine of transubstantiation?
A. The first argument against it, is taken from the end of the sacrament; which is, to bring Christ’s body and blood to our remembrance; 1 Cor. xi. 24, 25. This do in remembrance of me. Now signs for remembrance, are of things absent, not present.

Q. 4. What is the second argument?
A. Because the language in which our Saviour spake, had no other property of expression; there being no other word for signify, but is instead thereof, as is manifest in both Testaments; Gen. xli. 27. And the seven ill-favoured kine, that came up after them, are seven years of famine. Rev. i. 20. The seven stars, are the angels of the seven churches; and the seven candlesticks which thou sawest, are the seven churches.

Q. 5. What is the third argument against transubstantiation?
A. The manifold gross absurdities, that naturally and necessarily follow on this doctrine, shew the falseness of it, and that it is justly rejected and abhorred by all sound Christians.

Q. 6. What is the first absurdity that follows it?
A. This doctrine allows that to a silly priest, which is not to be allowed to all the angels in heaven. It allows him power to make his Maker, and eat his God; and in justifying this by the omnipotence of God, they say no more, than what a Turk may say to justify the most ridiculous fooleries of the Alcoran.

Q. 7. What is the second absurdity of transubstantiation?
A. The second absurdity is this, that it denies the truth of the testimony given by the senses of all men, that it is real bread, and real wine, after consecration, and not flesh and blood. And if the testimony of sense be not certain, then the being of God cannot be proved by the things that are made; contrary to Rom. i. 20. For the invisible things of him from the creation of the world, are clearly seen, being understood by the things that are made, even his eternal power and Godhead, &c. Nor the truth of Christ's resurrection, by seeing and feeling; contrary to Luke xxiv. 39. Behold my hands and my feet, that it is I myself; handle me, and see, &c.

Q. 8. What is the third absurdity of transubstantiation?
A. The third absurdity is this, that in affirming the accidents of bread and wine to remain, and their substance to vanish; they affirm, that there is length, breadth, thickness, moisture, and sweetness; and yet nothing long, broad, thick, moist, or sweet; which is a perfect contradiction.

Q. 9. What is the fourth absurdity of transubstantiation?
A. It implies, that the entire living body of Christ fat at
Q. 10. What doth the breaking of this bread, and pouring out of wine in the sacrament, signify?

A. It signifies the violent painful death, and bitter sufferings of Christ for us; 1 Cor xi. 26. For as often as ye eat this bread, and drink this cup, ye do shew the Lord's death till he come.

Q. 11. What doth the giving and taking of the sacramental bread and wine signify?

A. These actions signify God's exhibiting, and the believers applying of Christ, and all his benefits, to their souls.

Q. 12. Who are fit subjects to receive the Lord's supper?

A. None that are grossly ignorant, scandalous, or unbelievers in their natural state, for such cannot examine themselves, as the word requires; 1 Cor. xi. 28. But let a man examine himself, and so let him eat of that bread, and drink of that cup. But do eat and drink judgment to themselves; 1 Cor, xi. 29. For he that eateth and drinketh unworthily, eateth and drinketh damnation to himself, not discerning the Lord's body.

Q. 13. Are morally honest and sober persons qualified for this sacrament?

A. No; civility and morality do not qualify persons, they are not the wedding-garment; but regenerating grace and faith doth, in the smallest measure; Matth. xxii. 12. And he saith unto him, Friend, how earnest thou in hither, not having a wedding-garment? &c. 1 Cor. x. 16, 17. The cup of blessing which we bless, is it not the communion of the blood of Christ? The bread which we break, is it not the communion of the body of Christ? For we being many, are one bread, and one body; for we are all partakers of that one bread.

Of the Duties of Communicants.

Quest. 97. What is required to the worthy receiving of the Lord's supper?

A. It is required of them that would worthily partake of the Lord's supper, that they examine themselves of their knowledge to discern the Lord's body; of their faith to feed upon him; of their repentance, love, and new obedience; lest eating unworthily, they eat and drink judgment to themselves.
An Exposition of the Assembly's Catechism.

Q. 1. What are the duties of worthy receivers?
A. There are three sorts of duties incumbent on them; some antecedent to it, some concomitant of it, and some subsequent to it.

Q. 2. What are the antecedent duties to it?
A. They are two: (1.) Examination of their graces. (2.) Preparation of their souls. Examination of their graces; 1 Cor. xi. 28, 29. But let a man examine himself, and so let him eat of that bread, and drink of that cup. For he that eateth and drinketh unworthily, eateth and drinketh damnation to himself, not discerning the Lord’s body. And preparation of their souls; 1 Cor. v. 8. Therefore let us keep the feast, not with old leaven, neither with the leaven of malice and wickedness, but with the unleavened bread of sincerity and truth.

Q. 3. What is the first grace to be tried?
A. Our saving knowledge of God in Christ, without which we cannot discern the Lord’s body; 1 Cor. xi. 29. For he that eateth and drinketh unworthily, eateth and drinketh damnation to himself, not disowning the Lord’s body.

Q. 4. What are we to enquire of, touching our knowledge of God in Christ?
A. We are to examine whether it be competent for quantity, and savingly operative and influential on the heart and life, for quality; Hosea iv. 6. My people are destroyed for lack of knowledge, &c. 1 Cor. xiii. 1. Though I speak with the tongues of men, and of angels, and have not charity; I am become as a sounding brass, or tinkling cymbal.

Q. 5. When is knowledge competent, and influential?
A. When we truly understand, by the teachings of the Father, the sin and misery of the fall, the nature and necessity of Christ, and, under these convictions, come to him in the way of faith; John vi. 45. ——Every man therefore that hath heard, and hath learned of the Father, cometh unto me. And subject ourselves to him in sincere obedience; Matth. xi. 28, 29. Come unto me, all ye that labour and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest. Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me, for I am meek and lowly in heart; and ye shall find rest unto your souls.

Q. 6. What are we to examine ourselves about, besides knowledge?
A. We are obliged to examine ourselves about our faith, whether we have it in any saving degree; 2 Cor. xiii. 5. Examine yourselves, whether ye be in the faith: Prove yourselves, &c. For without faith we cannot please God; Heb. xi. 6. But without faith it is impossible to please God, &c. Nor enjoy spiritual communion with Christ; Eph. iii. 17. That Christ may dwell in your hearts by faith; that ye being rooted and grounded in love, &c.
An Exposition of the Assembly's Catechism.

Q. 7. What other grace must be examined, and sought for?
A. We must examine our love to Christ, and all that are his; because no gifts signify anything without love; 1 Cor. xiii. 2. And though I have the gift of prophecy, and understand all mysteries, and all knowledge; and though I have all faith, so that I could remove mountains, and have no charity, I am nothing.

Q. 8. What else must worthy receivers examine themselves about?
A. The sincerity of their hearts, evidenced by their obedience; without which, they cannot worthily approach the table; 1 Cor. v. 8. Therefore let us keep the feast, not with old leaven, neither with the leaven of malice and wickedness, but with the unleavened bread of sincerity and truth.

Q. 9. But if, upon examination, we are in doubts about our faith and sincerity, must we forbear?
A. If our doubts arise from the weakness, and not the total want of grace, such doubts should not hinder us; Rom. xiv. 1. Him that is weak in the faith, receive you, &c.

Q. 10. What is the danger of coming to the Lord's table without these graces?
A. The danger is exceeding great both to soul and body. (1.) To the soul; 1 Cor. xi. 29. For he that eateth and drinketh unworthily, eateth and drinketh damnation to himself, &c. And to the body; 1 Cor. xi 30. For this cause many are weak and sickly among you, and many sleep.

Q. 11. What are the duties of worthy receivers at the Lord's table?
A. Their duties at the table are, to discern Christ by the eye of faith; under those signs of his body and blood; 1 Cor. xi. 29. For he that eateth and drinketh unworthily, eateth and drinketh damnation to himself, not discerning the Lord's body. On the discovery of him, to mourn bitterly for sin; Zech. xii. 10.---And they shall look upon me whom they have pierced, and they shall mourn for him, as one mourneth for his only son, and shall be in bitterness for him, as one that is in bitterness for his first-born. And to excite all their graces into vigorous acts, for the applying Christ to themselves; Cant. iv. 16. Awake, O north-wind, and come, thou south, blow.
An Exposition of the Assembly's Catechism.

Q. 12. What is the duty of worthy receivers, after the sacrament?

A. Their duty is, heartily to bless God for Christ, and the benefits of his blood, Matth. xxvi. 30. And when they had sung an hymn, they went out into the mount of olives. To double their care and watchfulness against sin; Eph. iv. 30. And grieve not the holy Spirit, whereby ye are sealed to the day of redemption. And to grow more fruitful in all spiritual obedience; Col. i. 10. That ye might walk worthy of the Lord unto all pleasing; being fruitful in every good work, and increasing in the knowledge of God.

Q. 13. What is the first inference from hence?

A. That the abuse and profanation of this ordinance, either by coming to it for carnal ends, or being forced upon it by fear of sufferings, or approaching to it without due qualifications, is a dreadful sin, which God will terribly avenge; Mat. xxii. 11, 12, 13. And when the King came in to see the guests, he saw there a man which had not on a wedding-garment. And he saith unto him, Friend, how camest thou in hither, not having on a wedding garment? And, he was speechless. Then said the king unto the servants, Bind him hand and foot, and take him away, and cast him into outer darkness: There shall be weeping, and gnashing of teeth.

Q. 14. What is the second inference from hence?

A. That great and manifold are the blessings and advantages which Christians duly prepared may reap by this ordinance.

Chapter 98. Of Prayer.

W Hat is prayer?

A. Prayer is an offering up of our desire unto God, for things agreeable to his will, in the name of Christ, with confession of our sins, and thankful acknowledgment of his mercies.

Q. 1. Who is the proper, and only object of prayer?

A. God only is the proper object of prayer; it is a part of his natural worship, therefore it is peculiarly his honour and prerogative, and none else can hear and answer them but God; Psalm lxv. 2. O thou that hearest prayer, unto thee shall all flesh come.

Q. 2. Through whom, or in whose name, are our prayers to be directed to God?

A. Our prayers are to be directed to God only through Christ, and his name; and not by the mediation of angels or saints; Col. ii. 18. Let no man beguile you of your reward, in a voluntary humility, and worshipping of angels. For the merit and satisfaction of Christ alone give success and acceptance to our prayers; Rev. viii. 3, 4. And another angel came, and stood at the altar, having a golden censer; and there was given unto him much incense, that he should offer it with the prayers of all saints, upon the golden altar, which was before the throne. And the smoke of the incense, which came with the prayers of the saints, ascended up before God, out of the angel's hand. 1 Tim. ii. 5. For there is one God, and one Mediator between God and men, the man Christ Jesus.

Q. 3. What is the first property, or quality of acceptable prayer?
A. No prayer can be acceptable to God, except the matter of it be agreeable to his will; James iv. 3. Ye ask and receive not, because ye ask amiss, that ye may consume it upon your lusts; 1 John v. 14, 15. And this is the confidence that we have in him, that if we ask any thing according to his will, he heareth us. And if we know that he hear us, whatsoever we ask, we know that we have the petitions that we desire of him.

Q. 4. Is it enough to make prayer acceptable, that the matter is agreeable to God's will?
A. No, it is not; for the manner, as well as the matter, must be so too; Psalm lxvi. 18. If I regard iniquity in my heart, the Lord will not hear me.

Q. 5. What is the first qualification of an acceptable prayer, respecting the manner of it?
A. That it be sincere, and flowing from the heart of a regenerate person; Prov. xv. 29. The Lord is far from the wicked; but he heareth the prayer of the righteous. Jer. xxix. 13. And ye shall seek me, and find me, when ye shall search for me with all your heart.

Q. 6. What is the second qualification of prayer, respecting the manner?
A. It must be performed in the heart of a child of God, by the Spirit of adoption; Gal. iv. 6. And because ye are sons, God hath sent forth the Spirit of his Son into your hearts, crying, Abba, Father. Rom. viii. 26. Likewise the Spirit also helpeth our infirmities: for we know not what we should pray for as we ought, but the Spirit itself maketh intercession for us, with groanings which cannot be uttered.

Q. 7. What is the third qualification of an acceptable prayer, respecting the manner?
A. It must be fervent and importunate, not cold and formal,
An Exposition of the Assembly's Catechism.

James v. 16.—The effectual fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much; Matth. vii. 7. Ask, and it shall be given you; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you.

Q. 8. Wherein doth true importunity with God in prayer consist?

A. Not in the multitude of words; Matth. vi. 7. But when ye pray, use not vain repetitions, as the Heathen do: for they think they shall be heard for their much speaking. But in an holy earnestness of spirit to be heard; Psalm cxliii. 7. Hear me speedily, O Lord, my spirit faileth; hide not thy face from me, lest I be like unto them that go down into the pit. A prudent choice of prevalent arguments; Job xxiii. 4. I would order my cause before him, and fill my mouth with arguments. And a resolute persistence in our requests, till they be granted; Isa. lxii. 7. And give him no rest, till he establish, and till he make Jerusalem a praise in the earth.

Q. 9. Do not prayers thus qualified sometimes miscarry?

A. God may delay and suspend the answer of them for a time; Psalm xxii. 2. O my God, I cry in the day-time, but thou hearest not, &c. But sooner or later God will always answer them, either in the very thing we ask; 1 John v. 15.--We know that we have the petitions that we desired of him: Or in that which is equivalent, or better; Gen. xvii. 18, 19. And Abraham said unto God, O that Ishmael might live before thee! And God said, Sarah thy wife shall bear thee a son indeed, and thou shalt call his name Isaac: and I will establish my covenant with him, for an everlasting covenant, and with his seed after him.

Q. 10. Is there no prayer but what is stated and fixed?

A. Yes, there is sudden occasional prayer, which we call ejaculatory. Such was Jacob's, Gen. xlix. 18. I have waited for thy salvation, O Lord. And this is exceeding useful, to maintain constant communion with God, and keep the heart in a spiritual frame.

Q. 11. Is all stated and fixed prayer public in the congregation, or church?

A. No; stated prayer ought to be in our families, with those under our charge; and in our closets, between God and us alone; Josh. xxiv. 15.—But as for me, and my house, we will serve the Lord. And Matth. vi. 6. But when thou prayest, enter into thy closet; and when thou hast shut thy door, pray to thy Father which is in secret; and thy Father which seeth in secret, shall reward thee openly.
130 An Exposition of the Assembly's Catechism

Q. 12. What do you infer from hence?
A. That the restraint of prayer is not only a great sin, but an ill sign of a graceless heart; Job vi. 4. Yea, thou castest off fear, and restrainest prayer before God. And that which entails a judgment and curse upon men, and their families; Jer. x. 25. Pour out thy fury upon the Heathen that know thee not, and upon the families that call not upon thy name.

Q. 13. What is the second inference from the ordinance of prayer?
A. That the true reason why we enjoy not the mercies we pray for, is not because God is unwilling to grant mercies, but because we either neglect prayer, or miscarry in the manner of prayer; James iv. 2, 3. Ye lust, and have not; ye kill, and desire to have, and cannot obtain: ye fight and war, yet ye have not, because ye ask not. Ye ask, and receive not, because ye ask amiss, that ye may consume it upon your lusts.

Of Direction in Prayer.

Quest. 99. What rule hath God given for our direction in the duty of prayer?
A. The whole word of God is of use to direct us in prayer; but the special rule of direction, is that form of prayer which Christ taught his disciples, commonly called, The Lord's prayer.

Q. 1. Do men need directions, rules, and helps in prayer?
A. They do greatly need them, for in, and of ourselves we know not what to pray for as we ought; Rom. viii. 26. Likewise the Spirit also helpeth our infirmities: for we know not what we should pray for as we ought, &c. Nor how to pray in a right manner, and for right ends; and a mistake in either frustrates our prayer; James iv. 3. Ye ask, and receive not, because ye ask amiss, that ye may consume it upon your lusts.

Q. 2. When do men mistake in the matter of their prayer?
A. They mistake in the matter, when they ask of God things that are not lawful, good and agreeable to his will. So the disciples were ready to do, in calling for fire from heaven on the Samaritans; Luke ix. 54, 55. And when his disciples, James and John, saw this, they said, Lord, wilt thou that we command fire to come down from heaven, and consume them, even as Elias did? But he turned and rebuked them, and said, Ye know not what manner of spirit ye are of.

Q. 3. When do men mistake in the manner of prayer?
A. They mistake in the manner, when they ask mercies of God for carnal ends, to satisfy their lusts; James iv. 3. Ye ask, and receive not, because ye ask amiss, that ye may consume it
An Exposition of the Assembly's Catechism.

Q. 4. What helps hath God afforded us to furnish us to prayer, both in respect of the matter and manner?

A. The scriptures abundantly furnish us with all sorts of helps and directions for the matter of prayer. It directs us, both in confession of sins, original and actual; Psalm li. 4, 5. Behold, I was shapen in iniquity, and in sin did my mother conceive me. Against thee, thou only have I sinned, and done this evil in thy sight, &c. Petition and thanksgiving; Phil. iv. 6. Be careful for nothing, but in every thing, by prayer and supplication, with thanksgiving, let your requests be made known unto God.

Q. 5. Doth it afford us any help, or direction, as to the manner of prayer also?

A. Yes, it doth; and that both as to, (1.) Our sincerity in prayer; Heb. x. 22. Let us draw near with a true heart, in full assurance of faith, having our hearts sprinkled from an evil conscience, and our bodies washed with pure water. (2.) As to our humility in prayer; Psalm x. 17. Lord thou hast heard the desire of the humble; thou wilt prepare their heart, thou wilt cause thine ear to hear. (3.) As to our faith in prayer; James i. 6. But let him ask in faith, nothing wavering, &c. (4.) As to our fervency in prayer; James v. 6. — The effectual fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much.

Q. 6. Are these external rules and directions sufficient in themselves to enable us to pray acceptably?

A. In respect of external direction they are sufficient, and we need no other outward rules than what the scriptures furnish; but besides that, the internal helps and assistances of the Spirit, are necessary to the offering up acceptable prayer; Rom. viii. 26. Likewise the Spirit also helpeth our infirmities; for we know not what we should pray for as we ought; but the Spirit itself maketh intercession for us, &c.

Q. 7. But doth the scripture only furnish us with general rules of direction for prayer?

A. No, it furnishes us also with an excellent pattern and example of prayer, composed by Christ for our direction; Matth. vi. 9. After this manner therefore pray ye: Our Father, which art in heaven, &c.

Q. 8. Are Christians tied by a necessity to use that form of words? Or was it only intended for a directory to them?
A. That form of words may be lawfully used, but it is plain its intention was to regulate our petitions by it; and therefore they that use it in spells and charms, as the Papists; or those that think nothing is prayer, but that form of words; abuse Christ's intention in it.

Q. 9. How doth it appear, it was not Christ's intention strictly to bind us to that very form of words in our prayers?

A. Divines give us these reasons against it, (1.) Because this prayer is set down diversly by the evangelists; Matth. vi. 10, 12. Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done in earth, as it is in heaven. And forgive us our debts, as we forgive our debtors. And Luke xi. 3, 4. Give us day by day our daily bread. And forgive us our sins; for we also forgive everyone that is indebted to us. And lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. (2.) Christ and his apostles did not always use this form of words afterwards, as appears by his prayer at Lazarus's grave, John xi. and that for his apostles, John xvii. (3.) Because these words, Matth. vi. 9. After this manner, &c. plainly shew, its use was intended for a directory to us.

Q. 10. What is the first inference from hence?

A. Hence we learn the fulness and completeness of the Scriptures, not only for the guiding and settling of our faith in things that are to be believed, but also of our whole practice in every duty we are to perform.

Q. 11. What is the second inference hence?

A. Hence we are informed, how necessary it is to acquaint ourselves with the mind of God, revealed in his word, that we may guide ourselves in prayer, both for matter and manner thereby; and not utter to God words without knowledge.

Q. 12. What is the last inference from hence?

A. That those who neglect all prayer, and those that satisfy themselves with a form of prayer, which they utter without knowledge or affection, do greatly sin against God. And that it is the duty of all Christians, from a sense of their own sins, wants, and mercies, to be often with God in prayer, guiding themselves in that spiritual duty, by such inward and outward helps, as his word and Spirit are able to furnish them with.

Of the Preface to the Lord's Prayer.

Quest. 100. What doth the preface of the Lord's prayer teach us?

A. The preface of the Lord's prayer, which is, [Our Father which art in heaven,] teacheth us to draw near to God with all holy reverence and confidence, as children to a Father, able and ready to help us: and that we should pray with and for others.

Q. 1. What doth the word Father import in this preface?
A. It imports the Spirit of adoption to be the principle of all acceptable prayers; Gal. iv. 6. And because ye are sons, God hath sent forth the Spirit of his Son into your hearts, crying, Abba, Father.

Q. 2. What is the first benefit, or help we have in prayer, from the Spirit of adoption?
A. He excites our spirits to seek God in prayer; Psal. xxvii. 8. When thou saidst, Seek ye my face; my heart said unto thee, Thy face, Lord, will I seek.

Q. 3. What is the second assistance he gives us in prayer?
A. He indites and suggests suitable and acceptable matter to us in prayer; Rom. viii. 26. Likewise the Spirit also helpeth our infirmities: for we know not what we should pray for as we ought; but the Spirit itself maketh intercession for us, &c.

Q. 4. What is the third benefit we have by him in prayer?
A. He fills our souls with spiritual and holy affections in prayer, and helps us to act his graces in our duties; Rom. viii. 26. Likewise the Spirit also helpeth our infirmities: for we know not what we should pray for as we ought; but the Spirit itself maketh intercession for us, with groanings which cannot be uttered.

Q. 5. What else doth this word Father import?
A. It imports that holy confidence which believers may, and ought to draw near to God withal, as children to a Father; Eph. iii. 12. In whom we have boldness and access, with confidence, by the faith of him.

Q. 6. Doth it only signify our relation and confidence?
A. No, it also signifies the reverential fear of God, which ought at all times to be on our hearts, especially in prayer; Mal. i. 6. A son honoureth his father, and a servant his master; If then I be a father, where is mine honour? and if I be a master, where is my fear?

Q. 7. What is further imported in this word Father?
A. It imports God's willingness and readiness to grant the best mercies to his people that seek them duly at his hand; Matth. vii. 11. If ye then being evil, know how to give good gifts unto your children; how much more shall your Father which is in heaven give good things to them that ask him?

Q. 8. Why is he here called our Father?
A. To signify to us, that it is not only our duty to pray secretly by and for ourselves, but also with and for others; Eph. vi. 18. Praying always, with all prayer and supplication in the Spirit, and watching thereunto with all perseverance, and supplication for all saints.
An Exposition of the Assembly's Catechism.

Q. 9. Why is God said here to be in heaven?
A. It is to note his sovereign power and dominion over all, as a ground-work of faith in prayer.

Q. 10. What else doth it import?
A. The great distance between God and us, which should fill our hearts with an holy awe of him; Eccles. v. 2.——-

God is in heaven, and thou upon earth: therefore let thy words be few.

Q. 11. What is the first inference from hence?
A. It shews us, what a sad case all those are in, that have no special interest in God as a Father.

Q. 12. What is the second inference from hence?
A. It shews us what a glorious privilege the Lord Jesus Christ hath purchased for, and settled on his people; Heb. iv. 15, 16. For we have not an high-priest, which cannot be touched with the feeling of our infirmities; but was in all points tempted like as we are, yet without sin. Let us therefore come boldly unto the throne of grace, that we may obtain mercy, and find grace to help in time of need.

Q. 13. What is the last inference from hence?
A. That seeing believers have a Father in heaven, they should never fear wants while they live, nor be afraid to die, since death brings them to heaven, their Father's house.

Of sanctifying God's Name.

Quest. 101. What do we pray for in the first petition?
A. In the first petition, which is, [Hallowed be thy name,] we pray, that God would enable us, and others, to glorify him in all that whereby he maketh himself known, and that he would dispose all things to his own glory.

Q. 1. Is there any word full enough, perfectly to express what God is?
A. No, his name is secret; Judges xiii. 18. And the angel of the Lord said unto him, Why akest thou thus after my name, seeing it is secret? A name which none can tell; Prov. xxx. 4.—What is his name, and what is his Son's name, if thou canst tell? A name above every name; Phil. ii. 9. Wherefore God also hath highly exalted him, and given him a name which is above every name. But the name by which he more especially manifests himself, is the name I A M ;
An Exposition of the Assembly's Catechism.

Exod. iii. 14. And God said unto Moses, I AM THAT I AM: And he said, Thus shalt thou say unto the children of Israel, I AM hath sent me unto you.

Q. 2. What doth the name of God, I AM, signify to us?
A. It signifies to us, first, The reality of his being, in opposition to idols, which are but imaginary and fantastic things; 1 Cor. viii. 4.—We know that an idol is nothing in the world, &c. God is not only the most perfect being, but the root of all other beings.

Q. 3. What else doth this name I AM import?
A. It imports both the perfection and eternity of God's being. I AM implies, he hath not that now, which he had not formerly; and that he shall not afterwards have, what he hath not now: and that there is neither beginning, end, or succession with God, whose name is I AM.

Q. 4. But what are we here to understand by the name of God?
A. All those things are here intended, by which he manifests himself to the creature; as his word, works, and ordinances, but especially his glorious attributes; Exod. xxxiv. 5, 6.—The Lord, the Lord God, merciful and gracious, long-suffering, and abundant in goodness and truth.

Q. 5. What is it to hallow, or sanctify his name?
A. Not to infuse any holiness into him, which he had not before; so he sanctifies us; but to manifest and acknowledge the holiness of God; Isa. xxix. 23. But when he seeth his children, the work of my hands in the midst of him, they shall sanctify my name, and sanctify the holy One of Jacob, and shall fear the God of Israel.

Q. 6. Why hallowed or sanctified, rather than glorified? Why that word, rather than this?
A. Because his holiness is the beauty and lustre of his other attributes. His greatness appears in his holiness; Isa. xii. 6.—Great is the holy One of Israel in the midst of thee. So doth his power; Luke i. 49. For he that is mighty hath done to me great things, and holy is his name. And therefore his holiness is that attribute, which angels single out especially to celebrate; Isa. vi. 3. And one cried unto another, and said, Holy, holy, holy is the Lord of hosts, &c. And so do men also, as it is the cause why they should glorify him; Exod. xv. 11.—Who is like thee, glorious in holiness, &c.

Q. 7. What is the first thing we are to intend in this petition?
A. The meaning is, that God would so dispose and order all things in the world, as may best promote and advance the glory of his name; on which account we may pray for the defeat of God's enemies; Psalm lxxxiii. 16, 17, 18. Fill their faces with shame, that they may seek thy name, O Lord. Let them be confounded and troubled for ever; yea, let them be put to shame, and perish; that men may know that thou, whose name alone is Jehovah, art the most High over all the earth. And the deliverance of his church and people; Psalm lxxix. 9. Help us, O God of our salvation, for the glory of thy name; and deliver us, and purge away our sins for thy name's fake.

Q. 8. What is the second thing we are to intend in it?

A. That God would sit us for, and use us in the most serviceable capacity for the glorifying of his name; Psalm lxvii. 1, 2, 3. God be merciful unto us, and bless us, and cause his face to shine upon us: That thy way may be known upon earth, thy saving health among all nations. Let the people praise thee, O God, let all the people praise thee.

Q. 9. What is the third thing intended in this petition?

A. That God may not only glorify his own name, and use us to glorify it, but that it should be our endeavour and joy to have it glorified by others all the world over; Psalm cxlv. 4, 5, 6. One generation shall praise thy works to another, and shall declare thy mighty acts. I will speak of the glorious honour of thy majesty, and of thy wondrous works. And men shall speak of the might of thy terrible acts; and I will declare thy greatness.

Q. 10. Why must our hearts be so intently set upon the sanctification of God's name?

A. Because this is the ultimate end of our own, and every other being; Rom. xi. 36. For of him, and through him, and to him, are all things; to whom be glory for ever, Amen. And the particular end of God in our effectual calling; 1 Pet. ii. 9. But ye are a chosen generation, a royal priesthood, an holy nation, a peculiar people, that ye should shew forth the praises of him who hath called you out of darkness into his marvellous light.

Q. 11. What is the first inference from hence?

A. That the dishonour of God's name must needs be a cutting affliction to a gracious soul; Psalm xlii. 10. As with a sword in my bones my enemies reproach me, while they say daily unto me, Where is thy God?

Q. 12. What is the second inference from hence?

A. That it is a dreadful infatuation, and spiritual judgment upon those men that think they glorify God in doing those things which his soul hateth; Isa. lxvi. 5. Hear the word of the Lord, ye that tremble at his word: Your brethren that hated you, that cast you out for my name's sake, said, Let the Lord be glorified: But he shall appear to your joy, and they shall be ashamed. And John xvi. 2. They shall put you out of the synagogues: Yea, the time cometh, that whosoever killeth you, will think that he doth God service.
An Exposition of the Assembly's Catechism.

Q. 13. What is the third inference from hence?

A. That it should be indifferent to a Christian what condition God puts him into, so that he may but be useful to sanctify and exalt the name of God therein; Phil. i. 20. — As always, so now also Christ shall be magnified in my body, whether it be by life or by death.

Q. 14. What is the last inference hence?

A. That it is an high and dreadful provocation of God to prophanee and abuse his worship, wherein his name is called, and wherein it is to be sanctified; Lev. x. 1, 2, 3. And Nadab and Abihu, the sons of Aaron, took either of them his censer, and put fire therein, and put incense thereon, and offered strange fire before the Lord, which he commanded them not. And there went out fire from the Lord, and devoured them, and they died before the Lord. Then Moses said unto Aaron, this is that the Lord spake, saying, I will be sanctified in them that come nigh me, and before all the people will I be glorified.

Of God's Kingdom.

Quest. 182. What do we pray for in the second petition?

A. In the second petition, which is, [Thy kingdom come,] we pray that Satan's kingdom may be destroyed, and that the kingdom of grace may be advanced, ourselves and others brought into it, and kept in it, and that the kingdom of glory may be hastened.

Q. 1. What is the first thing signified by the kingdom of God here?

A. The gospel is here intended by the kingdom of God, Matth. xiii. 47. — Again, the kingdom of heaven is like unto a net that was cast into the sea, and gathered of every kind.

Q. 2. What is the thing signified by the coming of this kingdom of God?

A. It signifies the removal of all impediments, that hinder its propagation in the world; 2 Thess. iii. 1. Finally, brethren, pray for us, that the word of the Lord may have free course, and be glorified, even as it is with you.
Q. 3. Who, and what hindersthe propagation of it?
A. Antichrist, that man of sin, hinders it externally; 2 Thess. ii. 4. Who opposeth and exalteth himself above all that is called God, or that is worshipped; so that he as God sitteth in the temple of God, shewing himself that he is God. The devil and men's lusts internally; 1 Thess. ii. 18. Wherefore we would have come unto you (even I Paul) once and again; but Satan hindered us. Luke xix. 14. But his citizens hated him, and sent a messenger after him, saying, We will not have this man to reign over us.

Q. 4. What then is the desire of all good men, with respect to the coming of the gospel kingdom?
A. That all nations may be brought to Christ by the preaching of it, and so Christ's kingdom be greatly exalted and enlarged; Isa. ii. 2. And it shall come to pass in the last days, that the mountain of the Lord's house shall be established in the top of the mountains, and shall be exalted above the hills; and all nations shall flow unto it.

Q. 5. What is the second thing here meant by the kingdom of God?
A. It signifies and intends the work of saving grace wrought in men's souls; Luke xvii. 21. Behold, the kingdom of God is within you.

Q. 6. Why is this work of grace called the kingdom of God?
A. Because where-ever saving grace comes, it subdues the soul to Christ's sceptre; 2 Cor. x. 5. Casting down imaginations, and every high thing that exalteth itself against the knowledge of God, and bringing into captivity every thought to the obedience of Christ.

Q. 7. Wherein consists the kingdom of grace?
A. It consists not in external rites and observances, but in righteousness, and peace, and joy in the holy Ghost; Rom. xiv. 17. For the kingdom of God is not meat and drink, but righteousness, and peace, and joy in the holy Ghost.

Q. 8. What do we ask of God in this petition, with respect to this kingdom of grace?
A. Herein we desire not only our own personal progressive sanctification, but the sanctification of others all the world over; Acts xxvi. 29. And Paul said, I would to God that not only thou, but also all that hear me this day, were both almost, and altogether such as I am, except these bonds.

Q. 9. What is the third thing here meant by the kingdom of God?
A. By it is here meant the future state of glory and blessed-
An Exposition of the Assembly's Catechism.

Q. 10. Why is the heavenly state called the kingdom of God?
A. This is called the kingdom of God, because in that state God reigns over his people gloriously, there being no rebellion in them in the least degree; Luke xx. 36.—For they are equal unto the angels, and are the children of God, being the children of the resurrection. And they reign with Christ; Rev. iii. 21. To him that overcometh, will I grant to sit with me in my throne, &c.

Q. 11. What do we desire in prayer for the coming of this kingdom?
A. We desire not only our preservation in our passage to that state of glory; 1 Pet. v. 10. But the God of all grace, who hath called us unto his eternal glory by Christ Jesus, after that ye have suffered a while, make you perfect, stablish, strengthen, settle you. But the hastening of it to ourselves and others; Rev. xxii. 20.—Amen, even so, come Lord Jesus.

Q. 12. What is the first instruction hence?
A. That the gospel is an invaluable mercy, as it is the instrument of bringing us into Christ's gracious and glorious kingdom; Acts xxvi. 18. To open their eyes, and to turn them from darkness to light, and from the power of Satan unto God, that they may receive forgiveness of sins, and inheritance among them which are sanctified by faith that is in me.

Q. 13. What is the second inference from hence?
A. That many men really hate and oppose the very thing they pray for.

Q. 14. What is the last instruction hence?
A. That how firmly ever Satan's and Antichrist's kingdom seem to be founded in the world, they must and shall fall before the daily prayers of the saints.

Concerning the doing of God's Will.

Quest. 103. What do we pray for in the third petition?
A. In the third petition, which is, [Thy will be done in earth as it is in heaven], we pray, that God, by his grace, would make us able and willing to know, obey, and submit to his will in all things, as the angels do in heaven.

Q. 1. What will of God is here intended?
A. Not the will of his decree; for that is in himself alone; 1 Cor. ii. 11. The things of God knoweth no man, but the Spirit of God.
An Exposition of the Assembly's Catechism.

Q. 2. What will then is here meant?

A. The will of his providence may be here meant; Psalm cxix. 6. Whatsoever the Lord pleased, that did he in heaven, and in earth, and in the seas, and all deep places. And Psalm cxix. 89. For ever, O Lord, thy word is settled in heaven. Ver. 91. They continue this day according to thine ordinances; for all are thy servants.

Q. 3. How are we to understand the doing of this will of providence in heaven?

A. (1.) As it is done by the sun, moon, and stars; Psalm cxix. 89. Thy word is settled in heaven. Ver. 91. They continue this day according to thine ordinances. Psalm xix. 6. His going forth is from the end of the heaven, and his circuit unto the ends of it; and there is nothing hid from the heat thereof. (2.) As it is done by angels; Psalm civ. 4. Who maketh the angels spirits, his ministers a flaming fire. Heb. i. 14. Are they not all ministering spirits, sent forth to minister for them who shall be heirs of salvation?

Q. 4. How do these perform the will of God's providence?

A. (1.) The heavenly bodies do it evenly, constantly, and unweariedly; Psalm civ. 19. He appointeth the moon for seasons, the sun knoweth his going down. (2.) The angels do it speedily, voluntarily, cheerfully, and so knowingly; Psalm ciii. 21. Ye ministers of his, that do his pleasure.

Q. 5. Must we be agents in this providential will?

A. Yes, we must; Acts xiii. 36. For David, after he had served his generation by the will of God, fell on sleep.

Q. 6. How must we do it?

A. By employing our abilities, faculties, and interests, in the duties of our particular callings, and by moving constantly, prudently, and vigorously in our own sphere, and so imitate those in heaven.

Q. 7. Why do we pray that God's will of providence may be done by us?

A. Because we are his creatures, and the most noble instruments of the inferior world; and therefore we should be willing to be acted by him, and active for him; and because this will of providence is always just, good, and true, and for his own glory; Psalm cxlv. 17. The Lord is righteous in all his ways, and holy in all his works. Psalm cxix. 89. For ever, O Lord, thy word is settled in heaven. Ver. 91. They continue this day according to thine ordinances; for all are thy servants.

Q. 8. What other will of God is here meant?
An Exposition of the Assembly's Catechism.

Q. 9. And how is this will of God done in heaven?
A. By the angels it is done universally, cheerfully, constantly, humbly, thankfully, loyally, readily; Psalm ciii. 20. Bless the Lord, ye his angels, that excel in strength, that do his commandments, hearkening unto the voice of his word. And so it is done by the saints in heaven; Rev. vii. 15. Therefore are they before the throne of God, and serve him day and night in his temple; And chap. xxii. 3. And his servants shall serve him.

Q. 10. Do we pray then that we may thus do the will of God?
A. Yes; for tho' we cannot perfectly without sin do it, yet that is our duty; Matt. v. 48. Be ye therefore perfect, even as your Father which is in heaven is perfect. And in all other particulars we may and we must imitate them herein; Psalm cxix. 6. Then shall I not be ashamed, when I have respect unto all thy commandments. Verse 14. I have rejoiced in the way of thy testimonies as much as in all riches. Verse 60. I made haste, and delayed not to keep thy commandments. Verse 112, &c. I have inclined my heart to perform thy statutes always even unto the end.

Q. 11. How must we know God's will?
A. Not notionally and rationally only, but spiritually also; 1 Cor. ii. 14. They are spiritually discerned.

Q. 12. Why is knowing God's will placed here before doing it, &c.?
A. Because the understanding is the leading faculty, without which it is impossible there should be any obedience; Prov. xix. 2. Also that the soul be without knowledge it is not good. Jer. v. 4. Therefore I said, Surely these are poor, they are foolish; for they know not the way of the Lord, nor the judgment of their God.

Q. 13. Why pray we to God for this knowledge; can we not know it of ourselves?
A. No, it is the special gift and grace of God; Gal. i. 15, 16. But when it pleased God, who separated me from my mother's womb, and called me by his grace, to reveal his Son in me, that I might preach him among the Heathen, immediately I conferred not with flesh and blood. Eph. i. 17, 19. That the God of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father of glory, may give unto you the spirit of wisdom and revelation in the knowledge of him. — And what is the exceeding greatness of his power to us-ward who believe, according to the working of his mighty power. Eph. v. 8. For ye were sometimes darkness, but now are ye light in the Lord.
Q. 14. Why do we pray that we may obey; can we not do it of our own free-will when we know it?

A. No, for our wills are stubborn and rebellious against God's commands, as well as our minds ignorant of them; Rom. viii. 7. Because the carnal mind is enmity against God; for it is not subject to the law of God, neither indeed can be. Ezek. xxxvi. 25, 26. Then will I sprinkle clean water upon you, and ye shall be clean; from all your filthiness, and from all your idols, will I cleanse you. A new heart also will I give you, and a new spirit will I put within you; and I will take away the stony heart out of your flesh, and I will give you an heart of flesh. Phil. ii. 13. For it is God that worketh in you, both to will and to do of his good pleasure.

Q. 15. What is meant by submitting to God's will?

A. (1.) Either a voluntary subjection of soul, and a preparedness actually to do his will: Or, (2.) A voluntary and silent submission to his will of providence in affliction: but in this particular we cannot imitate those in heaven, because no cross ever befals them.

Q. 16. Why is will added in all things?

A. Because partial obedience is no obedience; he that does not obey God in every thing, obeys him in nothing; Jam. ii. 10. For whosoever shall keep the whole law, and yet offend in one point, he is guilty of all.

Q. 17. Why do we pray that God by his grace would work this will in us, and by us?

A. Because it is free grace that determines it; 2 Tim. i. 9. Who hath saved us, and called us with an holy calling, not according to our works, but according to his own purpose and grace, which was given us in Christ Jesus, before the world began. And efficacious grace that works it in us, and enables us to do it; Eph. v. 8. For ye were sometimes darkness, but now are ye light in the Lord. Verse 10. Proving what is acceptable unto the Lord.

Q. 18. What is the first inference from hence?

A. That it is man's glory and felicity to be conformed to the will of God; Prov. xii. 26. The righteous is more excellent than his neighbour. Psal. xix. 10, 11. More to be desired are they than gold, yea, than much fine gold; sweeter also than honey and the honey-comb. Moreover, by them is thy servant warned, and in keeping of them there is great reward.

Q. 19. What is the second inference?

A. That we must mortify in ourselves every lust that contradicts God's will, and renounce without ourselves every thing that comes in competition therewith; 1 Cor. ix. ult. But I keep under my body, and bring it into subjection; lest that by any means when I have preached to others, I myself should be a cast-away. Gal. vi. 14. But God forbid that I should glory, save in the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ, by whom the world is crucified unto me, and I unto the world.
An Exposition of the Assembly's Catechism.

Q. 20. What is the third inference?
A. That it is in vain, yea, a provocation, to pray, if we be not obedient to God's will; Prov. ii. 8, 9. He keepeth the paths of judgment, and preventeth the way of his saints. Then shalt thou understand righteousness, and judgment, and equity; yea, every good path.

Q. 21. What is the fourth inference?
A. That the law still hath the authority of a rule to believers, because it reveals God's will, which they must do.

Concerning our daily Bread.

Quest. 104. What do we pray for in the fourth petition?
A. In the fourth petition, which is, [Give us this day our daily bread], we pray, that of God's free gift we may receive a competent portion of the good things of this life, and enjoy his blessing with them.

Q. 1. Why is this petition placed after the three former?
A. Because those concern immediately and generally God's glory, in the advancement of his name, kingdom and will, which ought to be preferred to all our personal concerns; Psal. lxix. 9. For the zeal of thine house hath eaten me up. Acts xxii. 13. For I am ready not to be bound only, but also to die at Jerusalem for the name of the Lord Jesus.

Q. 2. Why is it put before the two following petitions?
A. Not for its worth, but for its order; for we can have no spiritual blessings, unless we have a natural being in this life.

Q. 3. What kind of bread is here meant?
A. Not spiritual bread, or our Lord Jesus Christ, (as some), but corporal and temporal.

Q. 4. What is included in this word bread?
A. Not that only which we call strictly bread, but all the good things of this present life.

Q. 5. Do we hereby beg pure necessities only?
A. No, we pray for conveniences for our comfort, as well as necessaries for our life.

Q. 6. Do we herein pray only for personal good things for our being?
A. No, we pray for civil good things for our condition, that according to our degree in the world, in which God hath placed us, we may have a convenient allowance.

Q. 7. Do we pray here for ourselves only?
A. No, but also for our charge, children, and family, that under and with us they may have the good things of this life.

Q. 8. Why do we pray to God for these good things, can we not get them ourselves, or our fellow-creatures give them to us?
A. Not without God: whatever we have of these things, they are from God; whoever be the second cause or instrument: If ourselves, God gives us ability and success to get them; if others, God inclined their hearts, and opened their hands to bestow them; Deut. viii. 17, 18. And thou say in thine heart, My power and the might of my hand hath gotten me this wealth. But thou shalt remember the Lord thy God; for it is he that giveth thee power to get wealth.

Q. 9. Why do we pray to God to give us bread?
A. Because the least crumb of bread is a free gift, and never can be merited by all we can do or suffer; Luke xvi. 10. So likewise ye, when ye shall have done all these things which are commanded you, say, We are unprofitable servants.

Q. 10. Why are all these things couched under the expression of bread?
A. (1.) Because bread is one of the most necessary and useful things to preserve life. (2.) Because we must not ask delicacies and dainties of God.

Q. 11. What is meant by day in our petition?
A. Either, (1.) A natural day of twenty-four hours; or, (2.) The day of our whole life.

Q. 12. Why do we pray for daily bread?
A. Because God must give us the mercies and good things of every day, or else we cannot have them.

Q. 13. Why should we not pray for weekly, or monthly, or yearly bread, as well as daily?
A. (1.) Because it is fit we should be still sensible of our dependence upon God. (2.) Because we do frequently pray to God, and so exert our graces, and maintain communion with him, and daily render thanks for daily favours; Psalm lv. 17. Evening and morning, and at noon will I pray, and cry aloud, and he shall hear my voice.

Q. 14. What need we to pray for daily bread, when we may have stores laid up for years?
A. They that have the good things of this life need to pray this petition, as well as they that have them not. Not that they may have bread, but that it may be bread to them; for except God give his blessing upon it, bread would be ashes, and not sustenances to us; neither could all the comforts of this life do us any good; Isa. iii. 1. For behold, the Lord, the Lord of hosts doth take away from Jerusalem; and from Judah, the whole stay of bread, and the whole stay of water. Mal. ii. 1, 2. And now, O ye priests, this commandment is for you: if ye will not hear, and if ye will not lay it to heart, to give glory unto my name, saith the Lord of hosts, I will even send a curse upon you, and I will curse your blessings; yea, I have cursed them already, because you do not lay it to heart.

Q. 15. Why do we pray only for daily bread, or a competency, may we not pray for abundance and riches?

A. No, because riches are a great snare and temptation; Matth. xix. 23, 24. Then said Jesus unto his disciples, Verily I say unto you, that a rich man shall hardly enter into the kingdom of heaven. And again I say unto you, It is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle, than for a rich man to enter into the kingdom of God. Prov. xxx. 8, 9. Remove far from me vanity and lies; give me neither poverty nor riches; feed me with food convenient for me: lest I be full, and deny thee, and say, Who is the Lord? Or lest I be poor, and steal, and take the name of my God in vain.

Q. 16. What shall we then do with riches; if Providence cast them upon us, shall we cast them away?

A. No, for some of the best of men, and greatest of God's favourites, have lived and died rich. But, (1.) We must wean our hearts from them; Psalm lxii. 10. Trust not in oppression, and become not vain in robbery; if riches increase, let not your heart upon them. (2.) Be thankful for them; and, (3.) Fruitful with them in acts of piety and charity; 1 Tim. vi. 17, 19. Charge them that are rich in this world, that they be not high-minded, nor trust in uncertain riches, but in the living God, who giveth us richly all things to enjoy: laying up in store for themselves a good foundation against the time to come, that they may lay hold on eternal life.

Q. 17. Whencefore is the bread called our bread?

A. Not because we are absolute lords and possessors of it, for it is God's only; Psalm xxxiv. 1, 2. The earth is the Lord's, and the fulness thereof; the world, and they that dwell therein. For he hath founded it upon the seas, and established it upon the floods. Psalm i. 10, 12. For every beast of the forest is mine, and the cattle upon a thousand hills. If I were hungry, I would not tell thee, for the world is mine, and the fulness thereof. But, (1.) Because we must have a covenant right to it; and, (2.) A civil right; we must come lawfully and honestly by, and to keep the good things of this life; 2 Thess. iii. 10. For even when we were with you, this we commanded you, that if any would not work, neither should he eat.

Q. 18. Having prayed for our daily bread, need we to labour and endeavour to get it?

A. Yes, we must labour in good and honest callings; God's blessing and man's industry must concur towards the present maintenance of life; Psalm cxxviii. 1, 2. Blessed is every one that feareth the Lord: that walketh in his ways. For thou shalt eat the labour of thine hands: happy shalt thou be, and it shall be well with thee. Prov. x. 4, 22. He becometh poor that dealeth with a slack hand; but the hand of the diligent maketh rich. The blessing of the Lord maketh rich, and he addeth no sorrow with it.

Q. 19. What is the first inference from it?

A. That we must not seek great matters for ourselves, neither make them the matter of prayer to God; nor the end and design of our labours and callings among men.

Q. 20. What is a second inference from hence?

A. That having food and raiment, we must be therewith content, and therefore thankful; 1 Tim. vi. 8. And having food and raiment, let us be therewith content. 1 Thess. v. 18. In every thing give thanks.

Q. 21. What is the third inference?

A. That we ascribe not our success in the world to our own skill and industry, for the wisest and most industrious do sometimes labour in the fire, and put their gain in a bag of holes; but to God's free donation to us, and to his blessing upon our endeavours; Gen. xxxiii. 5, 11. And he lift up his eyes, and saw the women and the children, and said, Who are those with thee? And he said, the children which God hath graciously given thy servant.—Take, I pray thee, my blessing that is brought to thee, because God hath dealt graciously with me, and because I have enough. Deut. xxviii. 3. Blessed shalt thou be in the city, and blessed shalt thou be in the field. Ver. 6. Blessed shalt thou be when thou comest in, and blessed shalt thou be when thou goest out.
Concerning Forgiveness of Sins.

Quest. 105. What do we pray for in the fifth petition?

A. In the fifth petition, which is, [And forgive us our debts, as we forgive our debtors,] we pray, that God, for Christ's sake, would freely pardon all our sins; which we are the rather encouraged to ask, because by his grace we are enabled from the heart to forgive others.

Q. 1. Why doth this petition immediately follow the former?

A. To teach, that all temporal and corporal good things, without special and spiritual ones, are little worth; Psalm iv. 6. There be many that say, Who will shew us any good? Lord, lift thou up the light of thy countenance upon us. Psalm xvii. 14, 15. From men which are thy hand, O Lord, from men of the world, which have their portion in this life, and whose belly thou fillest with thy hid treasure. They are full of children, and leave the rest of their substance to their babes. As for me, I will behold thy face in righteousness: I shall be satisfied, when I awake with thy likeness.

Q. 2. Why is it annexed to the former with the copulative and?

A. To teach, that to be one minute in the confluence of all earthly good things, without the pardon of sin, is a very dangerous and dreadful condition; Luke xii. 16, 20. And he spake a parable unto them, saying, The ground of a certain rich man brought forth plentifully: But God said unto him, Thou fool, this night shall thy soul be required of thee; then whose shall those things be which thou hast provided?

Q. 3. Why is forgiveness of sins placed in the front of spiritual blessings?

A. Because till sin be pardoned, we are under wrath, and can have no special saving grace applied to us, till we are accepted; till we are in Christ, we have no covenant-right to the blessings of Christ; Mat. xi. 28. Come unto me, all ye that labour and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest. Ver. 30. For my yoke is easy, and my burden is light; John xv. 4, 5. Abide in me, and I in you; as the branch cannot bear fruit of itself, except it abide in the vine; no more can ye, except ye abide in me. I am the vine, ye are the branches. He that abideth in me, and I in him, the same bringeth forth much fruit: for without me ye can do nothing. —Ver. 7. If ye abide in me, and my words abide in you; ye shall ask what ye will, and it shall be done unto you. John iii. ult. He that believeth on the Son, hath everlasting life; and he that believeth not the Son, shall not see life; but the wrath of God abideth on him.

Q. 4. Why do we pray for forgiveness? Cannot we make amends for our sins, and be freed from their guilt, without pardon?

A. No, all that we can ever do, or suffer, can never expiate the guilt of the least sin; Psalm xlix. 7, 8. None of them can by any means redeem his brother, nor give to God a ransom for him; (for the redemption of their soul is precious, and it ceaseth for ever.) 1 Sam. ii. 25. If one man sin against another, the judge shall judge him: but if a man sin against the Lord, who shall intreat for him?

Q. 5. Does God then freely, and out of mere grace, forgive us?

A. Yes, without any respect had to any thing we can do, or be; Isa. xliii. 25. I, even I am he that blotteth out thy transgressions for mine own sake, and will not remember thy sins. Rom ix. 15. I will have mercy on whom I will have mercy, and I will have compassion on whom I will have compassion. 18. Therefore hath he mercy on whom he will have mercy, and whom he will he hardeneth.

Q. 6. How doth God forgive sins?

A. (1.) Universally, all sins; Exod. xxxiv. 6, 7. And the Lord passed by before him, and proclaimed, the Lord, the Lord God, merciful and gracious, long-suffering, and abundant in goodness and truth, keeping mercy for thousands; forgiving iniquity, and transgression, and sin. Jer. xxxiii. 8. And I will cleanse them from all their iniquity, whereby they have sinned against me: And I will pardon all their iniquities, whereby they have sinned, and whereby they have transgressed against me. Hosea xiv. 2. Take away all iniquity, and receive us graciously. (2.) Completely, and perfectly; Isa. xliii. 25. I, even I am he that blotteth out thy transgressions for mine own sake, and will not remember thy sins. Psalm ciii. 12. As far as the east is from the west, so far hath he removed our transgressions from us. Mic. vii. 19. He will subdue our iniquities; and thou wilt east all our sins into the depths of the sea. Isa. xxxviii. 17. For thou hast cast all my sins behind thy back. (3.) Everlastingly; Jer. xxxi. 34. For I will forgive their iniquity, and I will remember their sin no more. Heb. viii. 12. And their sins and their iniquities will I remember no more.

Q. 7. But doth not God punish them afterward, whom he has justified and forgiven?

A. No, not with a proper and vindictive punishment; but
An Exposition of the Assembly's Catechism.

He brings evils upon them for their sins, as a father chastises his child; and other sorts of afflictions for their spiritual good. He may be angry, as a Father, with those he has pardoned, but never hate them as a condemning Judge; Psalm lxxxix. 28. My mercy will I keep for him for evermore, and my covenant shall stand fast with him. Ver. 34. My covenant will I not break, nor alter the thing that is gone out of my lips.

Q. 8. How can God be said freely to pardon all our sins, when we pray it may be done for Christ's sake; does not that imply that Christ has satisfied God for our sins, and deserved our remission?

A. Yes, it does so; for the Lord Christ, by his life and death, did satisfy divine justice, and did merit our forgiveness. But if he did so, we did not so; our sins cost him dear, but their pardon cost us nothing; our pardon is perfectly free to us, though due to Christ, for God gave Christ freely for us; God accepts of his merits, and applies them to us freely; Rom. iii. 24. Being justified freely by his grace, through the redemption that is in Jesus Christ.

Q. 9. But is there nothing required from us as the condition of pardon? and if so, how can it be absolutely free?

A. There are required repentance from sin, and faith in the Lord Christ; Luke xiii. 3. But except ye repent, ye shall all likewise perish; John iii. ult. And he that believeth not the Son, shall not see life; but the wrath of God abideth on him. This is required from us towards our pardon, but yet it is free, (1.) Because God freely ordains thus to pardon. (2.) Because both these are the free gifts of God; Acts xi. 18. Then hath God also to the Gentiles granted repentance unto life. Eph. ii. 8. For by grace are ye saved, through faith; and that not of yourselves, it is the gift of God.

Q. 10. When then are our sins forgiven?

A. Just upon our closure with Christ by faith, in that very moment; Rom. v. 1. Therefore being justified by faith, we have peace with God, through our Lord Jesus Christ. Rom. viii. 1. There is therefore now no condemnation to them which are in Christ Jesus.

Q. 11. Why do we pray in the answer, for the forgiveness of all our sins?

A. Because if the least guilt should remain upon us, it would exclude us from God's favour, and lodge us in everlasting burnings; Rom. vi. ult. For the wages of sin is death.

Q. 12. What are the privileges and blessings that accompany pardon?
An Exposition of the Assembly’s Catechism.

A. Justification is accompanied with adoption; John i. 12. But as many as received him, to them gave he power to become the sons of God, even to them that believe on his name. With the Spirit and principle of all grace and holiness; 1 Cor. vi. 11. And such were some of you; but ye are washed, but ye are sanctified, but ye are justified in the name of the Lord Jesus, and by the Spirit of our God. With an infallible title to eternal glory; John iii. 16. That whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life; Rom. viii. 30. Whom he justified, them he also glorified.

Q. 13. How may we know that we are pardoned and justified?

A. Ordinarily, by our sanctification, by our loathing of sin, our contempt of the world, our valuing of Christ, our love and thankfulness to God, &c. 1 Cor. vi. 11. But ye are sanctified. Rom. vii. 24. O wretched man that I am, who shall deliver me from the body of this death? Gal. vi. 14. By whom the world is crucified unto me, and I unto the world. 1 Pet. ii. 7. Unto you therefore which believe, he is precious. Luke vii. 47. Her sins, which are many, are forgiven; for she loved much.

Q. 14. What is meant by [our?] Is it only such sins as we have personally and actually committed?

A. No, but also Adam’s sin, which is ours by imputation; Rom. v. 19. By one man’s disobedience, many were made sinners. And original sin, which is ours by inhesion; Psalm li. 5. Behold, I was shapen iniquity, and in sin did my mother conceive me. And other mens sins, which we have made ours, by exciting them to them, not hindering of them, silence at them, and other ways; 2 Sam. xii 9. Thou hast killed Uriah the Hittite with the sword, and hast taken his wife to be thy wife, and hast slain him with the sword of the children of Ammon. 1 Tim. v. 22. Neither be partaker of other mens sins.

Q. 15. Wherefore are sins called debts?

A. Because they are a non-payment of God’s dues, a non-performance of our duty; which makes us liable to the arrest of death, and to the prison of hell.

Q. 16. Why do we plead our own forgiveness of others?

A. Not as any merit of our own pardon; but either as an encouragement to ourselves to beg pardon; seeing such evil, envious, and malignant persons, are enabled to forgive others, much more may we hope the good and gracious God will forgive us: or, as a condition, without which we can have no pardon, and with which we shall; Matth. vi. 14. For if ye forgive men their trespasses, your heavenly Father will also forgive you.
An Exposition of the Assembly's Catechism.

Q. 17. How do others trespass against us?
A. When they injure us, either in our persons, or names, or families, or estates, or souls, &c. 1 Sam. ii. 25. If one man sin against another, the judge shall judge him; but if a man sin against the Lord, who shall intreat for him?

Q. 18. Can we forgive our neighbour freely, fully, and perfectly, as God doth forgive us?
A. We cannot.

Q. 19. What then is the meaning of God's forgiving us, as we forgive others?
A. Not as to the quantity and perfection of forgiveness, but as to the sincerity and quality thereof; Matth. xviii. ult. So likewise shall my heavenly Father do also unto you, if ye from your hearts forgive not every one his brother their trespasses.

Q. 20. Are we always bound to manifest outwardly our love and forgiveness to all our enemies, and to behave ourselves towards them as friends?
A. No, if we have experienced them to be treacherous and false, and see no change, we are not bound to trust them; if they be, and remain, wicked and profane, we must not associate with them; Psal. xxvi. 5. I have hated the congregation of evil doers, and will not sit with the wicked. Ver. 4. I have not eaten with vain persons, neither will I go in with dissemblers.

Q. 21. What then must we do to such?
A. We must heartily forgive them all their injuries, we must love them with the love of benevolence, pray for them, and be ready and willing to do them all good, both of body and soul; Matth. v. 44, 45. But I say unto you, Love your enemies; bless them that curse you, do good to them that hate you, and pray for them which despitefully use you and persecute you. That you may be the children of your Father which is in heaven; for he maketh his sun to rise on the evil, and on the good, and sendeth rain on the just and on the unjust.

Q. 22. If we forgive others, shall we be forgiven ourselves?
A. We shall, if out of obedience to God, and love to Christ, we do it.

Q. 23. What is the first inference from hence?
A. That except our sins be forgiven, we are lost and undone creatures; and therefore we must never be contented, till we are pardoned.

Q. 24. What is a second inference?
An Exposition of the Assembly's Catechism.

A. That God is a God of love, goodness, and pardon; seeing he will not pardon us, if we do not pardon others; but will, if we do so.

Q. 25. What is a third inference?
A. That if we live in hatred when we pray the Lord's prayer, we pray for our own damnation; Matth. xviii. 22. Jesus faith unto him, I say not unto thee, Until seven times, but until seventy times seven. Ver. 35. So likewise shall my heavenly Father do also unto you, if ye from your hearts forgive not every one his brother their trespasses.

Of God's leading us into temptation.

Quest. 106. What do we pray for in the sixth petition?
A. In the sixth petition, which is, [And lead us not into temptation; but deliver us from evil:] we pray, that God would either keep us from being tempted to sin, or support and deliver us when we are tempted.

Q. 1. Why is this petition joined to the former with the copulative and?
A. Because it will be but little advantage to have former sins pardoned, and to be left to the power and practice, to the love and trade of sin for the future; Ezek. xviii. 26. When a righteous man turneth away from his righteousness, and committeth iniquity, and dieth in them; for his iniquity that he hath done, shall he die

Q. 2. What is meant by temptation?
A. In general, a trial or probation of what is in us, or of what we will do.

Q. 3. What is meant by temptation here?
A. Temptation to sin and wickedness.

Q. 4. How may we be said to be tempted to sin?
A. (1.) Effectually by ourselves, and our own hearts; James i. 14, 15. But every man is tempted, when he is drawn away of his own lust, and enticed. Then when lust hath conceived, it bringeth forth sin; and sin, when it is finished, bringeth forth death. (2.) Formally, with an intention to draw into sin; and so we are tempted of the devil; 1 Chron. xxi. 1. And Satan stood up against Israel, and provoked David to number Israel. Matth. iv. 1, 3. Then was Jesus led up of the Spirit into the wilderness, to be tempted of the devil. And when the Tempter came to him, he said, If thou be the Son of God, command that these stones be made bread. (3.) Innocently, and blamelessly; and so God is said to tempt; 2 Sam. xxiv. 1.
And again the anger of the Lord was kindled against Israel; and he moved David against them to say, Go number Israel and Judah.

Q. 5. How many ways may God be said to tempt evil?
A. (1.) By withdrawing his grace, either common, or special; 2 Chron. xxxii. 31. Howbeit, in the business of the ambassadors of the princes of Babylon, who sent unto him to enquire of the wonder that was done in the land; God left him to try him, that he might know all that was in his heart. (2.) By permitting Satan, and wicked men, to tempt; 2 Sam. xxiv. 1. He moved David against them, to say, Go and number Israel and Judah. With 1 Chron. xxi. 1. Satan stood up against Israel, and provoked David. Matth. iv. 1. Then was Jesus led up of the Spirit into the wilderness, to be tempted of the devil. (3.) By presenting occasions in his providence, which he knows will be abused to sin; as in the fall of Adam, the hardening of Pharaoh, &c.

Q. 6. What do we beg in this petition?
A. We beg, that we may not any of these, or any other ways, whereby the holy God may be said to lead into temptation, be led thereinto; Psalm cxli. 1. Incline not my heart to any evil thing, to practise wicked works with men that work iniquity; and let me not eat of their dainties. Psalm xix. 13. Keep back thy servant also from presumptuous sins; let them not have dominion over me: Then shall I be upright, and I shall be innocent from the great transgression.

Q. 7. What is meant by evil?
A. Some understand it of the devil, but the best meaning is sin, which is the evil of evils, and makes the devil evil, and is the worst of evils the devil can bring upon us, and is usually so understood in scripture; Psalm xcvi. 10. Ye that love the Lord, hate evil. Isa. i. 16. Cease to do evil. Amos v. 15. Hate the evil, and love the good. Rom. xii. 9. Abhor that which is evil.

Q. 8. What is meant by deliverance from evil?
A. That if God sees meet to permit us to be tempted by Satan, and the wicked without, or by our own hearts within, to sin; or occasionally, by his providence; that he will not leave us, but undertake for us, that we may not be led into sin thereby, but by his grace he be made more than conquerors. Psalm li. 10. Create in me a clean heart, O God, and renew a right spirit within me. Psalm cxix. 133. Order my steps in thy word, and let not any iniquity have dominion over me. According to his promise; 1 Cor. x. 13. But God is faithful, who will not suffer you to be tempted above that ye are able. 2 Cor. xii. 9. And he said unto me, My grace is sufficient for thee; for my strength is made perfect in weakness.
154 An Exposition of the Assembly's Catechism.

Q. 9. What is the first inference?
A. That sin is the worst of evils.

Q. 10. What is the second inference?
A. That without God's grace we can never withstand, but shall be overcome by every temptation; 2 Cor. iii. 5. Not that we are sufficient of ourselves, to think any thing as of ourselves; but our sufficiency is of God. John xv. 5. For without me ye can do nothing.

Q. 11. What is the third inference?
A. That we must do all we can to keep ourselves from temptation, and to engage the grace of God with us in temptation, by prayer, by pleasing the Spirit of God, by looking to Jesus, &c.

Of the Conclusion.

Quest 107. What doth the conclusion of the Lord's prayer teach us?

A. The conclusion of the Lord's prayer, which is, [For thine is the kingdom, and the power, and the glory, for ever and ever; Amen.] teacheth us, to take our encouragement in prayer from God only; and in our prayers to praise him; ascribing kingdom, power, and glory to him; and in testimony of our desire, and assurance to be heard, we say, Amen.

Q. 1. Why is the conclusion joined to the particle For?
A. To teach us, that therein are included arguments, or reasons to press God withal, and to prevail with him for audience.

Q. 2. But is it lawful to argue with God, and to urge him with reasons in prayer?
A. It is not only lawful, but expedient, yea, highly commendable; as is seen in the faints prayers. In Moses's, Numb. xiv. 13. And Moses said unto the Lord, Then the Egyptians shall hear it, (for thou broughtest up this people in thy might from among them.) Ver. 19. Pardon, I beseech thee, the iniquity of this people, according unto the greatness of thy mercy, and as thou hast forgiven this people from Egypt, even until now. In Joshua's, chap. vii. 3. And Joshua said, Alas! O Lord God; wherefore hast thou at all brought this people over Jordan, to deliver us into the hand of the Amorites, to destroy us? Would to God we had been content, and dwelt on the other side Jordan. Ver. 9. For the Canaanites, and all the inhabitants of the land shall hear of it, and shall environ us round, and cut off our name from the earth: And what wilt thou do unto thy great name? In Asa's, 2 Chron. xiv. 11. And Asa cried unto the Lord his God, and said, Lord, it is nothing with thee to help, whether with many, or with them that have no power. Help us, O Lord our God, for we rest on thee; and in thy name we go against this great multitude. O Lord, thou art our God; let no man prevail against thee. In Jehoshaphat's, 2 Chron. xx. 6.—And said, O Lord God of our fathers, art not thou God in heaven? And rulest not thou over all the kingdoms of the heathen? And in thine hand is there not power and might, so that none is able to withstand thee? And Hezekiah's, 2 Kings xix. 15. And Hezekiah prayed before the Lord, and said, O Lord God of Israel, which dwellest between the cherubims; thou art the God, even thou alone, of all the kingdoms of the earth: Thou hast made heaven and earth. Ver. 19. Now, therefore, O Lord our God, &c.

Q. 3. But to what purpose, can we think to prevail with God, by our arguments and importunities?
A. They are not used, as though we would put God in remembrance of any thing, or would prevail with God to do that for us, which he is unwilling to give.

Q. 4. Why then?
A. For our own profit, for the enlarging of our own hearts, for the exciting of our fervency, for the exerting of faith, hope, zeal, charity, &c. in prayer; and so to prepare ourselves for the mercy, that we may the more gratefully receive it, and the more fruitfully employ it.

Q. 5. How many arguments are in this conclusion?
A. Three.

Q. 6. From whence are they taken?
A. From God's kingdom, from his power, and from his glory.

Q. 7. What kingdom is here meant?
A. God's universal, essential, and absolute kingdom; where in may be, and is involved, his special kingdom over the church.

Q. 8. What are the arguments from hence?
A. Because all that we can pray for in this prayer, is for the advancement and perfecting of this his kingdom, by the destruction of all persons and things that oppose it, and the completion of his dominion over all his subjects; therefore he would grant all these requests.
An Exposition of the Assembly's Catechism.

Q. 9. What is another?
A. Because he being such an absolute Lord and sovereign, has an undeniable right, and unquestionable authority, to give and grant all we ask, and to effect and bring to pass all we beg: For all persons and things are his own, and at his disposal. Mat. xx. 15. Is it not lawful for me to do what I will with my own?

Q. 10. What is meant by power?
A. God's essential, infinite, irresistible power, whereby he can do what he pleases; Psalm cxxxxv. 6. WHATSOEVER the Lord pleased &c.

Q. 11. What is the argument from hence?
A. That we ask nothing from God, but what he can do with infinite ease, in despite of all the opposition that hell, earth, and heart can make to the contrary; Philip. iii. 20. According to the working, &c. Eph. iii. 20. Now unto him that is able, &c.

Q. 12. What is meant by glory?
A. Not his essential glory, which no man, or angel, can ever apprehend.

Q. 13. What glory then?
A. His declared and acknowledged glory, even the accomplishment of all his decrees by his providence; and then the love, the adoration, and the praises, the self-dedications of angels and saints, returned to him for the same.

Q. 14. What is the argument or motive from hence?
A. That seeing the substance of every request does directly tend to, and will perfectly end in, this glory of God, when they are fully answered; therefore he would gradually answer them while we are here, and perfectly at last, to the advancement of his glory now, and the completion of it then. 1 Chron. xxix. 11. Thine, O Lord, is the greatness, and the power, and the glory, &c. Josh. vii. 9. And what wilt thou do unto thy great name? Ifa. xliii. 8. I am the Lord, that is my name, &c. Ifa. xlviii. 11. For my own sake, even for my own sake, will I do it, &c.

Q. 15. Why is Amen added?
A. Because it is the usual conclusion of prayers and praises; Psalm xlii. 13. Blessed be the Lord God of Israel, &c. Psalm lxxii. 19. And blessed be his glorious name for ever, &c. 2 Cor. xiii. 14. The grace of the Lord Jesus, and the love of God, &c. Rom. xvi. 20. The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you. Amen.

Q. 16. But what doth this word here signify?
A. It signifies, (1.) The reality and ardenency of our desires to be granted in what we pray for; Rev. xxii. 20. He which testifieth these things, faith, Surely I come quickly. Amen. Even so come, Lord Jesus.

Q. 17. And what besides?

A. Our trust and firm confidence that we shall be heard and answered in all these our requests; Rev. i. 7. Even so, Amen. Rev. vii. 12. Saying, Amen. Blessing, and glory, and wisdom, &c.

Q. 18. What are the inferences from hence?

A. That we ought to use in prayer all such arguments, as may most and best affect our hearts towards God, excite our graces, and succeed with God.

Q. 19. What is another?

A. That all we pray for must be in a subserviency to God's kingdom, and with a desire of his glory.

Q. 20. What is the next?

A. That we must act according to our prayers; do all we can for the advancement of God's kingdom, and the exaltation of his glory, as subjects and votaries thereto; Psalm cxvi. 16. 1 Cor. x. 31.

Q. 21. What may more be gathered hence?

A. That as we ought to begin, so to continue, and conclude our prayers, in lowest adorations of God, and acknowledgments of his glory and attributes.

Q. 22. What more doth this conclusion teach?

A. That in prayer we must be fervent in our desires, and longing for what we pray, James v. 16.

Q. 23. Is there any thing besides?

A. That praying for things agreeable to God's will, we ought to be confident that we shall succeed in our requests, praying for the matter, and after the manner of this prayer; James i. 6, 8. Matth. xxi. 22.
Vindiciae Legis et Foederis:

OR, A

REPLY

To Mr. Philip Cary's Solemn Call;

Wherein he pretends to answer all the Arguments of Mr. Allen, Mr. Sedgwick,

Mr. Baxter, Mr. Roberts, and
Mr. Sydenham, Dr. Burthogge,

For the Right of Believers Infants to Baptism.

By proving the Law at Sinai, and the Covenant of Circumcision with Abraham, were the very same with Adam's Covenant of Works, and that because the Gospel-covenant is absolute.

A friendly Preface to the Author of the Solemn Call, and the more discreet and charitable of the Party concerned with him in this Controversy.

Christian Friends,

When we open our Bibles, and read that text, 1 Cor. i. 10. we have cause to deal with it as Origen once did by another scripture, even close the book and weep over it, in consideration of the weak and feeble influences such melting words, delivered with such a pathos, have upon the hearts of professors this day. "Now, I beseech you, brethren, by the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, that ye all speak the same thing, and that there be no divisions among you, but that ye be perfectly joined together in the same mind, and in the same judgment."

I beseech you:] He dips the nail in oil, that it may drive the easier. I beseech you, brethren:] A compellation breathing sweetness and affection, and should drop from our lips into each others ears with the same effect that word once did upon.
the ears of Benhadad’s servants, My brother Benhadad. Sirs, (faid Moses to the striving Israelites) ye are brethren. 0 when shall the church become a true Philadelphia!

I beseech you brethren, by the name of our Lord Jesus Christ] or as you love Jesus Christ, ut quantum ipsum amant, tantum studet concordiae, faith Calvin: Be as studious of concord as you are free in professing love to Christ.

That there be no divisions] or rents among you : a Schism, schism, or rent in the church, is much the same, and altogether as dangerous as a Schism, or sedition in the commonwealth, and harder to be cured. For as the Lord Verulam truly observes, Differences amongst persecuting enemies and the church, are like the strivings of the Egyptian with the Israelite, which Moses quickly ended, by knocking down the Egyptian; but dissentions in the church are like the striving of one Israelite with another; and all that Moses can do to quiet and part these, is only by fair and gentle words, and reminding them that they are brethren.

Great is the mischief of divisions among Christians; and the less the grounds and causes are, the greater always is the sin and mischief of them. In the primitive church contentions grow fervent about meats lawful and unlawful, which did not profit, the meaning is, it greatly damned them that were occupied therein, Heb. xiii. 9. Practical religion among them grew cold, as disputations about these trifles grew fervent.

The readiest way to cool such heats is, by discovering the trivial nature of the matter contended about; as Demosthenes appeased the tumult among the people raised by a small occasion, by relating to them the story of a man that hired an ass to carry him a journey, but the sun shining fervent, he was forced to quit her back, and betake himself to her shadow; the owner withstood him, alledging, that he had hired the body of the ass, but her shadow, was not in the bargain; and so the contention between them grew as hot as the sun. Many such trifles have raised great contentions in the world, witness the great contention betwixt the Eastern and Western church about keeping of Easter.

Other points there are of greater moment, about which good men contend, and yet these oftentimes are magnified much above their true intrinsical value. So I am sure it is in the controversy before us. Mr. Cary tells us, that these things will be found at length to be of highest concernment unto us, and must therefore be our most serious practice, p. 243. If so, then the proper subject of baptism must be one of those that is of greatest weight, and the profession thereof the very Schibboleth to distinguish one person from another in matters of religion. No wonder therefore the fires of contention are blown up to such a vehement heat, even in such an improper season; much like the contentions among the English fugitives at Frankfort, when their brethren were frying in the flames at Smithfield. Just so must we be scuffling, whilst thousands of our brethren are bleeding in Ireland. Had we a true sense of the quality of the subjects, or the unseasonableness of the time, it should certainly allay these heats among us. Did we see who stand by, and look with pleasure upon our follies, it would quickly allay our heats. Tertullian tells the Christians of his time, that they were like the Funambulones, or men that walk upon ropes, the least tread awry might be their ruin, so narrowly did their enemies watch them.

Sirs, the peace, safety and honour of the dissenting interest are things of too great value to be hazarded amongst the hands of our common enemies. You may fancy they will neglect the advantage you give them; but if they do, the devil will call them fools for it. Mr. Herle tells us of a king's fool, who wrote down the king himself in his table among his brother-fools, because he had trusted an African stranger with four thousand pounds to buy Barbary horses. The king asked him how he would make him amends, if the stranger should come again? Why then (said he) I'll blot your name out of my table of fools, and write down the African in your stead. Think not our enemies are such fools to neglect the advantage we cast into their hands. It is a weighty note of Livy, Consilia non dant homines rebus, sed res hominibus; Men do not counsel things, but time and things counsel men. Methinks the postures of times and affairs give us better counsels than we seem to be governed by in such work as this. Divisions of forty years standing and more, about infants baptism, have eaten up the time, wasted the spirits, and alienated the hearts of English professors, divided them both in society and love; by reason whereof God's pleasant plant in this resembles the bramble, which taking root at both ends, by reason of the encounters of the sap, commonly withers in the middle. Your brethren, in their Narrative from their General-Assembly, make a sad and sensible complaint of withering in the power of godliness. And truly we as well as they may complain with the church, We do all fade as a leaf: The Lord help us to discern the true cause, whether it be not the misplacing of our zeal, our being cold where we should be fervent, and fervent not where it should be cold; and whether the eating up of so much time and study about baptizing of infants, have not kept us these forty years in the infancy of our graces?
I well remember that blessed time, when ours and yours were terms almost unknown amongst professors in England.
When their affections and prayers melted and mingled together sweetly in days of humiliation, and other duties of edifying and heavenly communion; and then churches began to flourish; and the graces of Christians every where flourished; and became fruitful: but no sooner did the saints divide in society and affection, but these pleasant blossoms were nipt by the church formed itself as it were, into two armies, let in battalia against each other. It was now with us much like as it is said of the amphisbena, that hath an head at either end; of which neither can well move without the consent of both; but, if each move a contrary way, the body tears in the middle. I doubt not but many that differed from us belonged to Christ, the same head with us; and yet it is past doubt, that many who seemed to be of us were headed by Satan; and quickly discovered themselves to be so, by running farther than we first, or you next, imagined, even into Quakerism, Socinianism, Ranterism; and the foulest puddle and sink of complicated errors; of which an impartial stranger, under the name of Honorius Reggius, having heard the report in his own country; came over on purpose into England for his particular and perfected information, and hath given the foreign churches a full and sad account thereof in a Latin narrative, which I have by me; whereby I find, that, if the Lord in mercy to us had not let in a third party with the common calamity upon us all, we ourselves must in all probability have mutually ruined each other. But God saw other hands fitter for such dirty work than ours; and now it was time to reflect upon former follies, and torn our ancient acquaintance in the common goals. And, through the goodness of God; thus did somewhat allay the hearts of good men, and gave us fresh hopes of an hearty and lasting redintegration. We hoped the furnace might have purged our dross, and melted our hearts into unity; both by discovering the evils for which the Lord afflicted us, and the sincerity of the sufferers hearts under those trials. "Christians, (faith Mr. Jenkins) if we must die, let us die like men, by an unanimous holy contention against the common enemy; not like fools;
by giving him our sword, and destroying one another by schisms in our own bowels.

But alas! alas! no sooner is the rod off our backs, and a respite from sufferings given us, but we are presently founding an alarm to the battle again, and, to my sorrow, myself unavoidably engaged therein.

Friends, I have a witness in many of your bosoms, how peaceably and respectfully I have always carried it towards you, even to such a degree as began to bring me under the suspicion of some of your party, that I was inclining to their opinion, though I did not openly profess it. But the true reasons of my moderation in this point were, (1.) That I ever did, and still do look upon many of you as Christians, found in the other great doctrines of the gospel. (2.) That there are difficulties in this controversy which may puzzle the minds of well-meaning Christians. (3.) I highly valued the peace of the church, and durst do nothing that tended to keep open the breaches upon a controversy of this nature, you being for purity in doctrine and worship in most other controverted points, as well as we. (4.) I observed how rare a thing it is for engaged parties to give ground.

Quo velit ingenio cedere, rarum erit.

Mad disputants to reason seldom yield.

(5.) My head, heart, and hands have been filled with better employments, from which I am extremely loth to be diverted. If Bellarmine turned with loathing from school-divinity, because it wanted the sweet juice of piety, much more may I turn from such perverse disputes as these: Sure I may find as fair expositions of scripture, and as accurate and legitimate distinctions among the school-men, as in Mr. Tombs's Examen and Apology; or (which for the most part is but a transcript of both) in Mr. Cary's Solemn Call. But I see I must not be my own chuser; I cannot now be both silent and innocent; for in this Solemn Call I find the great doctrines of God's covenants abused by my neighbour; the books dispersed into many families related to me in this place, one of them delivered to me by the Author's own hands, with a pressing desire to give my judgment upon it: Several objections which I privately and seasonably sent him, to prevent the sin and folly of his attempt, pretended to be answered from p. 164. ad p. 183. Thus am I necessarily brought into the field of controversy: whether I come not a volunteer, but a pressed man; not out of choice, but necessity. And now I am here, I resolve to be only adversarius litis, non persona, an adversary in the contro-verly, not to the person, especially of my friendly neighbour. Neither would I have appeared thus publicly against him, if differences could have been accommodated, and the evil prevented, in a more private way; in order thereunto, I have punctually observed and kept the rules and measures of friendship.

It is possible some may judge my style against him to be too sharp; but if they please to read the conclusion of his Call, and my Answer, I presume they will find enough to make atonement for that fault, if it be a fault. It is from the nature of the matter before me, not from defect of charity to the person or party, that I am forced to be so plain and pungent as I am.

To conclude, I suspect this very preface may be also censured for its plainness and tediousness. I confess, when times are busy we should be brief; and I am persuaded a sufficient preface may be contracted into four words, enim praeceptum est; without preface or passions. However, I have a little eased my own heart, by discharging my duty to my differing brethren, and pleased myself, if not them.

The God of peace create peace in all the borders of Sion, beat our swords into plow-shares, and our spears into pruning-hooks; I mean, our polemicals into practicals; that Jerusalem may once more be a city compact, and no more terrible to herself, but only to her enemies, as an army with banners. This, brethren, is the prayer, and shall ever be the endeavour of,

Your friend and servant in Christ,

JOHN FLAVEL.

PROLEGOMENA.

BEFORE we enter into the main controversy, it will be necessary to acquaint the reader, why I begin with the middle of the book; and it is because I there find these three principles or positions, on which the other parts of his discourse are superstructed; and these being destroyed, his other discourses are but arena, sine calce. I properly therefore begin with the foundation.

Next I shall shew how far we are agreed in the matters here controverted, and where it is in each of these that the controversy indeed lies betwixt us. And as to
I. Position, viz.

That the Sinai law is the same with Adam's covenant of works, made in paradise:

The difference betwixt us here is not (1.) Whether both these be called covenants in Scripture? Nor (2.) Whether there was no grace at all in both, or either of them; for we are agreed, it is grace in God to enter into covenant with man, whatever that covenant be. Nor (3.) Whether the Sinai law be not a covenant of works to some men, by their own fault and occasion? Nor (4.) Whether the scriptures do not many times speak of it in that very sense and notion wherein carnal juridiciaries apprehend, and take it; and by rejecting Christ, make it so to themselves? Nor (5.) Whether the very matter of the law of nature be not revived and represented in the Sinai law? These are not the points we contend about. But the question is, Whether the Sinai law do in its own nature, and according to God's purpose and design in the promulgation of it, revive the law of nature, to the same ends and uses it served to in Adam's covenant; and so be properly, and truly a covenant of works? Or whether God had not gracious and evangelical ends and purposes, viz. By such a dreadful representation of the severe and impracticable terms of the first covenant; instead of obliging them to the personal and punctual observance of them for righteousness and life, he did not rather design to convince them of the impossibility of legal righteousness, humble proud nature, and the necessity of betaking themselves to Christ, now exhibited in the new covenant, as the only refuge to fallen sinners. The latter I defend according to the Scriptures, the former Mr. Cary seems to assert and vehemently argue for.

2dy. In this controversy about the Sinai law, I do not find Mr. Cary distinguish (as he ought) betwixt the law considered more largely and complexly, as containing both the moral and ceremonial law, for both which it is often taken in Scripture, and more strictly for the moral law only, as it is sometimes used in Scripture. These two he makes one, and the same covenant of works; though there be some that doubt whether the mere moral law may not be a covenant of works; yet I never met with any man before, that durst affirm the ceremonial law, which is so full of Christ, to be so; and to this law it is that circumcision appertains.

3dy. The moral law, strictly taken for the ten commandments, is not by him distinguished (as it ought to be, and as the Scripture frequently doth) according to God's intention.
and design in the promulgation or it, which was to add it as an appendix to the promise, Gal. iii. 19. and not to set it up as an opposite covenant, Gal. iii. 21. as the carnal Jews, mistaking and perverting the use and end of the law, and making it to themselves a covenant of works, by making it the very rule and reason of their justification before God, Rom. ix. 32, 33. Rom. x. 3. These things ought carefully to have been distinguished, forasmuch as the whole controversy depends on this double sense and intention of the law; yea, the very denomination of that law depends hereon: for I affirm, it ought not to be denominated from the abused and mistaken end of it amongst carnal men, but from the true scope, design and end for which God published it after the fall: and though we find such expressions as these in Scripture, “The man that doth them shall live in them;” and, “Cursed is every one that continueth not in all things, &c. yet these respecting the law, not according to God’s intention, but man’s corruption and abuse of it, the law is not thereby to be denominated a covenant of works. God’s end was not to justify them, but to try them by that terrible dispensation, Exod. xx. 20. whether they would still hanker after that natural way of self-righteousness; for this end God propounded the terms of the first covenant to them on Sinai, not to open the way of self-justification to them, but to convince them, and shut them up to Christ; just as our Saviour, Matt. xix. 17. puts the young man upon keeping the commandments, not to drive him from, but necessitate him to himself in the way of faith.

The law in both these senses is excellently described, Gal. iv. in that allegory of Hagar and Sarah, the figures of the two covenants. Hagar in her first and proper station was but a serviceable handmaid to Sarah, as the law is a schoolmaster to Christ; but when Hagar the handmaid is taken into Sarah’s bed, and brings forth children that aspire to the inheritance, then faith the Scripture, “Cast out the bond-woman, with her son.” So it is here; take the law in its primary use, as God designed it, as a schoolmaster or handmaid to Christ and the promise, so it is consistent with them, and excellently subservient to them; but if we marry this handmaid, and espouse it as a covenant of works, then are we bound to it for life, Rom. vii. and must have nothing to do with Christ. The believers of the Old Testament had true apprehensions of the right end and use of the law, which directed them to Christ, and so they became children of the free-woman. The carnal Jews trusted to the works of the law for righteousness, neph, and so became the children of the bond-woman; but neither could be children of both at once; no more than the same man can naturally be born of two mothers. This is the difference betwixt us about the first position. And as to the

II. Position.

That Abraham's covenant, Gen. xvii. is an Adam's covenant of works also, because circumcision was annexed to it, which obliged men to keep the whole law.

The controversy betwixt us in this point, is not whether circumcision were an ordinance of God, annexed by him to his covenant with Abraham? Nor (2.) Whether Abraham's ordinary and extraordinary seed ought to be, and actually were signed by it? Nor (3.) Whether it were a seal of the righteousness of faith to any individual person, for he allows it to be so to Abraham? Nor (4.) Whether it pertained to the ceremonial law, and so must cease at the death of Christ? But the difference betwixt us is, Whether (1.) It was a seal of the covenant to none but Abraham? And, (2.) Whether in the very nature of the act, or only from the intention of the agent, it did oblige men to keep the whole law, as Adam was obliged to keep it in innocency? (3.) Whether it were utterly, abolished at the death of Christ, as a condition of the covenant of works? or being a sign of the same covenant of grace we are now under, it be not succeeded by the new gospel-sign, which is baptism? Mr. Cary affirms, that it was in itself a condition of the covenant of works, and being annexed to God's covenant with Abraham, Gen. xvii. it made that a true Adam's covenant of works also. This I utterly deny, and say, Abraham's covenant was a true covenant of grace. (2.) That circumcision was a seal of righteousness of faith, and therefore could not possibly belong to the covenant of works. (3.) That as it was applied both to the ordinary and extraordinary infant-feed of Abraham, during that administration of the covenant, so it is the will of Christ that baptism should take its place under the gospel, and be applied now to the infant-feed of all Abraham's spiritual children. These are the things wherein we differ about the second position. And lastly, as to the

III. Position.

That neither Moses's law, Exod. xx. nor God's covenant with Abraham, Gen. xvii. can be any other than an Adam's covenant of works, because they have each of them conditions in them on man's part; but the gospel-covenant hath none at all, but is altogether free and absolute.

The controversy here betwixt us is not (1.) Whether the gospel-covenant requires no duties at all of them that are under it? Nor (2.) Whether it requires any such conditions as were in Adam's covenant, namely, perfect, personal, and perpetual obedience, under the severest penalty of a curse, and admitting no place of repentance? Nor (3.) Whether any condition required by it on our part, have any thing in its own nature meritorious of the benefits promised? Nor (4.) Whether we be able in our own strength, and by the power of our free-will, without the preventing as well as the afflicting grace of God, to perform any such work or duty as we call a condition? In these things we have no controversy; but the only question betwixt us is,
Prolegomena.

Whether in the new covenant some act of ours (tho' it have no merit in it, nor can be done in our own single strength) be not required to be performed by us, antecedently to a blessing or privilege consequent by virtue of a promise? And whether such an act or duty, being of a suspending nature to the blessing promised, it have not the true and proper nature of a gospel-condition? This I affirm, and he positively denies.

These three positions being confuted, and the contrary well confirmed, viz. that the law at Sinai was not set up by God as an Adam's covenant, to open the old way of righteousness and life by works; but was added to the promise, as subservient to Christ in its design and use, and consequently can never be a pure Adam's covenant of works. And, secondly,

That Abraham's covenant, Gen. xvii. is the very same covenant of grace we are now under; and, (2dly,) That circumcision in the nature of the act did not oblige all men to keep the whole law for righteousness. And (3dly,)

That the new covenant is not absolutely and wholly unconditional, though notwithstanding a most free and gracious covenant; the pillars on which Mr. Cary sets his new structure, sink under it, and the building falls into ruins.

I have not here taken Mr. Cary's two Syllogisms, proving Abraham's covenant to be a covenant of works, because I find myself therein prevented by that ingenious and learned man, Mr. Whiston, in his late answer to Mr. Grantham. Neither have I particularly spoken to his twenty-three arguments to prove the Sinai law to be a pure Adam's covenant, because frustra fit per plura, quod fieri potest per pauciora: I have overthrown them all together at one blow, by evincing every argument to have four terms in it, and so proves nothing. But I have spoken to all those scriptures which concern out four positions, and fully vindicated them from the injurious senses to which Mr. Cary (following Mr. Tombes) had wrested them. These things premised, I shall only further add, that if Mr. Cary shall attempt a reply to my answer, and free his own thieves from the gross absurdities with which I have loaded them; he must plainly and substantially prove against me,
A Reply to Mr. Cary's Solemn Call.

(1.) That the Sinai law, according to its true scope and end, was promulgated by God for man's justification and happiness in the way of personal obedience; and that the Jews, that did accordingly endeavour after righteousness by the works of the law, did not mistake its true end and meaning; or if they did; and thereby made it what God never intended it to be, a covenant of works to themselves; that the Sinai law ought rather to be denominated from their mistake and abuse of it, than from its primary and proper use, and God's design in its promulgation.

(2.) He must prove against me, with like evidence of truth, that circumcision discovered no more of man's native corruption, nor any more of his remedy by Christ; nor sealed to any person whatsoever the righteousness of faith, than Adam's covenant in paradise did; and that it did in its own nature oblige all upon whom it palled, to the same terms of obedience that Adam's covenant obliged him. And,

(3.) That there is not to be found in the new covenant any such act or duty of ours, as hath been described and limited above; which is of a suspending nature to the benefits therein granted. And,

(4.) That the respective expositions he gives of the several texts to be explained and vindicated, are more congruous to the scope and grammar than mine are; and more agreeable to the current sense of orthodox expositors; and then he shall be sure to receive an answerable return from me; else it is but labour lost to write again.

A Reply to Mr. Philip Cary's Solemn Call, &c.

The book I have undertaken to animadvert briefly upon, bears the title of a solemn call; but I am not so much concerned with the solemnity, as I am with the authority of this call. Not how it is, but whose it is. If it be the call of God, it must be obeyed, though it be to part not only with the privileges, but lives of our dearest children; but then we had need to be very well assured it is the call of God, else we are guilty at once of the highest folly, and basest treachery, to part with so rich an inheritance, conveyed by God's covenant with Abraham, to us believing Gentiles, and our seed, at Mr. Cary's call. You direct your Solemn Call to all that would be owned at Christ's faithful witnesses.

Here you are too obscure and general: do you mean, all that would be owned by you, or by Christ? If you mean, that we must not expect to be owned by you till we renounce infants' baptism, you tell us no news, for you have long since turned your back upon our ministry and assemblies: yet, methinks it is strange, that we who were lately owned as Christ's faithful witnesses under our late sufferings, must now be disowned by you, when we have liberty to amplify and confirm our testimony in the peaceful improvement of our common liberty! But if your meaning be (as I strongly suspect it is) that we must not expect to be owned by Christ, except we give up infants' baptism, then, I say, it is the most uncharitable, as well as unwarrantable, and dangerous censure that ever dropt from the pen of a sober Christian. It is certainly your great evil to lay salvation itself on such a point as the proper subject of baptism, and to make it articulus fiantis vel radentis religionis, the very basis on which the whole Christian religion, and its professors salvation must stand. I hope the rest of your brethren are more charitable than yourself; but however it be, I do openly profess, that I ever have, and still do own you, and many more of your persuasion, for my brethren in Christ, and am persuaded Christ will own you too, notwithstanding your many errors and mistakes about the lesser and lower matters of religion. Nor need your censure much to affect us, as long as we are satisfied you have neither a faculty nor commission thus solemnly to pronounce it upon us.

But what is the condition upon which this dreadful sentence depends? why, it is our attendance or non-attendance to the primitive purity of the gospel-doctrine.

Sir, I hope we do attend it, and, in some respects, better than some great pretenders to primitive purity, who have cast off not only the initiating sign of God's covenant, (this did not Abraham) but also that most comfortable and ancient ordination.
A Reply to Mr. Cary's solemn Call.

of singing psalms; and what other primitive ordinance of God may be cashiered next, who can tell?

We have a witness in our bosom, that the defence of Christ's pure worship and institution hath cost us something; and as for me, were I convinced by all that you have here said, or any of your friends, that in baptizing the infants of believers, we did really depart from the primitive purity, I would renounce it, and turn Anabaptist the same day.

But really, sir, this discourse of yours hath very much convinced me of the weakness and sickliness of your cause, which is forced to seek a new foundation, and is here laid by you upon such a foundation as must inevitably ruin it, if your party, as well as yourself, have but resolution enough to venture it thereupon.

And it appears to me very probable, that they intend to fight us upon the new ground you have here chosen and marked out for them, by the high encomiums they give your book in their epistles to it, wherein they tell us, your notions are of so rare a nature, that you are not beholden to any other for them; and it is a wonder if you should, for I think it never entered into any sober Christian's head before you, that Abraham's covenant, Gen. xvii. was the very same with Adam's covenant made in paradise; or that Moses, Abraham, and all the elect of God in those days were absolutely under the very rigour and tyranny of the covenant of works, and at the same time under the covenant of grace, and all the blessings and privileges thereof; with many other such rare notions, of which it is pity but you should have the sole propriety.

I am particularly concerned to detect your dangerous mistakes, both in love to your own soul, and care of my people, amongst whom you have dispersed them; though I foresee by M. E's epistle to your book, what measure I am like to have for my plain and faithful dealing with you; for if that gentleman, upon a mere surmise and presumption that one or other would oppose your book, dare adventure to call your unknown answerer, before he ever put pen to paper, a man-pleaser, a quarreller at reformation, and rank him with the Papists, which opposed the faithful for their non-conformity to their inventions; what must I expect from such rash censurers, for my sober, plain, and rational confutation of your errors?

As to the controversy betwixt us, you truly say in your title page, and many parts of your book, and your brethren comprobate it in their epistles, that the main arguments made use of by the Pædo-baptists, for the support of their practice, are taken from the covenant of God with Abraham, Gen. xvii. You call this the very hinge of the controversy; and therefore if you can but prove this to be the very same covenant of works with that made with Adam in paradise, we shall then see what improvements you will quickly make of it.
A Reply to Mr. Cary's Solemn Call.

171

Ay, sir, you are sensible of the advantage, no less than a complete victory you shall obtain by it; and therefore being a more hardy and adventurous man than others, put desperately upon it, (which never any before you durst attempt) to prove Abraham's covenant, which stands so much in the way of your cause, to be a mere covenant of works, and therefore now abolished.

My proper province is to discover here, that part of the foundation (I mean Abraham's covenant) whence our divines, with great strength and evidence, deduce the right of believers infants to baptism now. Next, to evince the absurdity of your assertions and arguments you bring to destroy it: And, lastly, to reflect briefly upon the answers you give in the beginning of your book, to those several texts of scripture pleaded by the learned and judicious divines you oppose, for the justification of infants baptism.

(1.) Those that plead God's covenant with Abraham, Gen. xvii. as a scripture foundation for baptizing believers infants under the gospel, proceed generally upon these four grounds or principles.

(1.) That God's covenant with Abraham, Gen. xvii. was the same covenant for substance we Gentile believers are now under; and they substantially prove it from Luke i. from the 54th to the 74th verse; which place evidently shews the sameness of the covenant of grace they were, and we are now under; and from Matth. xxi. 41, 43. the same vineyard and kingdom the Jews then had, is now let out to us Gentiles; and from Rom. xi. that the Gentile Christians are grafted into the same olive-tree, from which the Jews were broken off for their unbelief; and that the blessing of Abraham cometh now upon the Gentiles, Gal. iii. 8, 14, 16. And in a word, that the partition-wall betwixt them and us is now pulled down; and that we, through faith, are let into the same covenant, and all the privileges they then enjoyed, Eph. ii. 13.

(2.) They assert and prove, That in Abraham's covenant the infant-seed were taken in with their parents, and that in token thereof, they were to have the sign of the covenant applied to them, Gen. xvii. 9.
They affirm and prove, That the promise of God to Abraham and his seed, with the privileges thereof to his children, do, for the substance of them, descend to believers now, and their seed, Acts ii. 38, 39. and though the external sign, viz. circumcision, be changed, yet baptism takes its place under the gospel, Col. ii. 11, 12.

They constantly affirm, that none of those grants or privileges made to the infant-seed of Abraham's family, were ever repealed or revoked by Christ or his apostles; and therefore believers children are now in the rightful possession of them, and that therefore there needed no new command or promise: In Abraham's covenant we find our duty to sign our children with the sign of the covenant; and in Abraham's promise we find God's gracious grant to our children, as well as his, especially since the apostle directs us, in this very respect, to the covenant of God with Abraham, Acts ii. 38, 39.

These, sir, are the principles on which we lay (as you say), great stress, and which to this day you have never been able to shake down; here therefore you attempt a new method to do it, by proving this covenant is now abolished; and this is your method, in which you promise yourself great success.

Three things you pretend to prove:

(1.) That the Sinai covenant, Exod. xx.
(2.) That Abraham's covenant, Gen. xvii. are no gospel-covenants; and that because,
(3.) The gospel-covenant is absolute and unconditional.

How you come to hook in the Mosaic covenant into this controversy, is not very evident, unless you think it were easy for you to prove that to be a covenant of works; and then Abraham's covenant, Gen. xvii. being an Old Testament covenant, were the more easily proved to be of the same nature. I am obliged to examine your three positions above noted, and if I evidence to the world the falsity of them, the cause you manage is so far lost, and the right of believers infants to baptism stands firm upon its old and sure foundation. I begin therefore with your

I. Position.

That the covenant made with Israel, on mount Sinai, is the very same covenant of works made with Adam in innocency, p. 122. and divers other places of your book, the very same.

Now, if I prove that this assertion of yours doth naturally and regularly draw many false and absurd consequents upon
A Reply to Mr. Cary's solemn Call.

You, which you are, and must be forced to own, then this your position cannot be true; for from true premises, nothing but truth can naturally and regularly follow; but I shall make it plain to you, that this your position regularly draws many false conclusions, and gross absurdities, upon you; some of which you own expressly, and others you as good as own, being able to return nothing rational or satisfactory in your own defence against them.

(1.) From this assertion, that the Sinai covenant was a pure covenant of works, the very same with Adam's covenant, it regularly and necessarily follows, that either Moses and all Israel were damned, there being no salvation possible to be attained by that first covenant; or else, that there was a covenant of grace at the same time running parallel with that covenant of works; and so the elect people of God were at one and the same time under the first, as a covenant of death and condemnation; and under the second, as a covenant of grace and justification.

This dilemma pinches you. To assert, that Moses, and all the elect of God, under that dispensation, were damned, you dare not; and if you had, you must have expunged the eleventh chapter to the Hebrews, and a great part of the New Testament, together with all your hopes of sitting down with Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, in the kingdom of heaven. The latter, therefore, (seeing you cannot avoid) you are forced upon, and in plain words yield it, p. 174, 175. 'That Moses, and the whole body of the children of Israel, without exception of any, were under, yea, absolutely under the severest penalties of a dreadful curse; that the covenant they were under, could be no other than a covenant of works, a ministration of death and condemnation; when yet it is also evident from the same holy scriptures of truth, that at the same time both Moses and all the elect among that people, were under a pure covenant of gospel-grace; and that these two covenants were just the opposite the one to the other; but to this you have nothing to say, but with the apostle in another case, 'O the depth!'

Here, sir, you father a pure and perfect contradiction upon the holy scriptures, that it speaks things just opposite and contradictory one to the other, and of necessity one part or member of a contradiction must be false: this all the rational world, knows; but so it is, say you, and fly to the infinite wisdom to reconcile them; for you say, You know not what to say to it. Just so the papists serve us in the controversy about transubstan-tiation, when they cannot reconcile one thing with another, they fly to the omnipotent power to do it.

But, sir, I wonder how you hold and hug a principle that runs naturally into such gross absurdities: Do you see what follows from hence by unavoidable consequence? You must, according to this principle, hold, That Moses, and all God's peculiar elect people in Israel, must, during their life, hang mid-way between justification and condemnation; and, after death, between heaven and hell.

(1.) During life, they must hang mid-way between justification and condemnation; justified they could not be, for justification is the soul's passing from death to life, 1 John iii. 14. John v. 24. This they could not possibly do, for the mitigation of death and condemnation hindered. He that is under condemnation by the law, cannot, during that state, pass into life. And yet to be under condemnation is as impossible on the other side; for he that is justified, cannot at the same time be under condemnation, Rom. viii. 2. John v. 24. What remains then, but that during life they must stick mid-way between both, neither justified nor condemned; and yet both so and so. Justification is our life, and condemnation our death, in law: Betwixt these two, which are privately opposed, there can be no medium of participation, and yet such a medium you here fancy.

(2.) And then after death they must necessarily hang betwixt heaven and hell; to heaven none can go that are under the very rigour and tyranny of the law, a pure covenant of works, as you say they were. To hell they could not go, being under the pure covenant of grace. What remains then, but some third state must be assigned them? and so at last we have found the limbus patrum, and your position leads us right to purgatory; a conclusion which, I believe, you yourself abhor as much as I.

(2dly,) This hypothesis pinches you with another dilemma, viz. Either there was pardon or repentance in Moses's covenant, and the Sinai dispensation of the law, or there was none; if you say none, you directly contradict Lev. xxvi. 40, 46. if they were, then it cannot be Adam's covenant of works.

You answer, pag. 179. 'That God promiseth pardon for the breach of Moses's covenant, and of Adam's covenant too, but neither Adam's covenant, nor the Jewish legal covenant, promised any pardon upon repentance, but rather threatens and inflicts the contrary.'

Reply. Either this is a direct answer to my argument, to prove the law at Sinai cannot be a pure Adam's covenant, because it had a promise of pardon annexed to it, Lev. xxvi. 40. but Adam's covenant had none. If your answer be direct, then it is a plain contradiction in saying it had, and it had not a promise of pardon belonging to it. Or else it is a mere evasion, and an eluding of the argument; and your only meaning is, that the relief I speak of is not to be found in any promise belonging to the Sinai dispensation, but in some other gospel covenant or promise. But, sir, this will not serve your turn; you see I cite the very promise of grace made to the Israelites on mount Sinai by the hand of Moses, wherein God promised upon their humiliation, to remember his covenant for their good. Now, sir, you had as good have stood to your first answer, which is less contradictory, as to this which is no less so; as will evidently appear, by a nearer and more particular view of the place, and gathering up your own concessions about it. That this text, Lev. xxvi. 40. hath the nature of a gracious gospel promise in it, no man will deny, except he that will deny that God's remembering of his covenant, for the relief of poor broken-hearted sinners, is no gospel-promise pertaining to the covenant of grace: That it was made to the penitent Israelites upon mount Sinai, and there delivered them by the hand of Moses for their relief, is as visible and plain as the words and syllables of the 46th verse are to him that reads them. Let the promise then be considered both ways.

(1.) In your sense, as a plain direction to the covenant of grace made with Abraham for their relief; for so you say it was, p. 180. or let it be considered absolutely, as that which contained relief in itself for the penitent Israelites that should live towards the end of the world, after they should be gathered from all their dispersions and captivities, as you there speak, and more fully explicate in your accommodation of a parallel promise, p. 111, 112, 113. First, let us view it in your sense, as a relative promise to the covenant of grace made with Abraham. Gen. xii. to which, say you, it plainly directs them; and then this legal dispensation can never be the same with Adam's covenant, for to that covenant no such promise was ever annexed, which should guide and plainly direct them to Christ and pardon, as that star which appeared to the wise men directed their way to Christ. If there be any such relative promise belonging to Adam's covenant in paradise, as this which I plainly shewed you was made on mount Sinai, be pleased to produce it, and you end the controversy; but if you cannot, (as you know you cannot) then never say the legal dispensation at Sinai, and the covenant of works with Adam in paradise, are the very same covenant. Secondly, Let us consider this promise absolutely in itself, and then I demand, was there mercy, relief and pardon contained in it for any penitent sinner present or to come? Yes, say you, it extends relief to penitents, after God shall gather them from all their captivities at the end of the world; very good. Then it is a very vigorous promise of grace, which not only reaches 430 years backward, as far as the first promise to Abraham, but also extends its reliefs and comforts many thousand years forwards, even to the purest times of the gospel, just before Christ coming to judgment: And can such a promise as this be denied to be in itself a gospel-promise? Sure it can neither be denied to be such, nor yet to be made upon mount Sinai by the hand of Moses. This dilemma is as pinching as the former.

Perhaps you'll say, This promise did not belong to the moral law given at Sinai, but to the ceremonial law: If so; then I should reasonably conclude, that you take the ceremonial law (of which you seem to make this a branch; pag. 181.) to be a covenant of grace, seeing one of its branches bears such a gracious promise upon it. No, that must not be so neither; for say you, p. 151. the ceremonial covenant is of the same nature with the covenant of works, or law written in tables of stone: Whither then shall we send this promise? To the covenant of grace we must not send it, unless only as an index or finger to point to it, because it was made upon mount Sinai, and delivered to Israel by the hand of Moses: To the gospel-covenant we must not therefore annex it; and to the legal dispensation at Sinai you are as loth to annex it, because it contains so much relief and grace in it for poor penitents; and that will prove, that neither the moral nor ceremonial law (place it in which you please) can be a pure covenant of works as Adam's was.

Moreover, in making this the promise which must relieve and comfort the distressed Israelites in the purest gospel-times, towards the end of the world, you as palpably contradict yourself in another respect; for we shall find you by and by stoutly denying, that the gospel promises have any conditions or qualifications annexed to them; but so hath this, which you say relates to them that shall live at the end of the world. "If their uncircumcised hearts be humbled, and if they accept the punishment of their iniquities, then will I remember my covenant," &c. But here this promise conditional or absolute, two things are undeniably clear: (1.) That it is a promise full of grace, for the relief of law-transgressors, ver. 40. (2.) That it was a Mount Sinai promise, ver. 46. And such a promise as you can never shew in Adam's covenant.

Besides, it is to me an unaccountable thing, that a promise which hath a double comfortable aspect, 430 years back, and some thousands of years forward, should not cast one comfortable glance upon the penitents of the present age, when it was made, nor upon any till near the end of the world. What think you, sir, of the 3000 Jews pricked at the heart, Acts ii. had they no relief from it, because their lot fell not late enough in time? Were the penitent Jews in Moses and Peter's days all born out of due time for this promise to relieve? O what shifting and shuffling is here! Who can think a man that twists and winds every way, to avoid the dint of an argument, can possibly have a moral assurance of the truth of his own opinion?

(3.) You say, pag. 134. 'That through Christ's satisfaction there is no repugnancy, or hostile contrariety, betwixt the law and promise, but an agreement betwixt them, and that they differ only in respect of strength and weakness; the gospel is able to go through-stitch with it, which the law cannot do.'

Reply. Well then, the law, considered as a covenant of works, whose terms or condition is, "Do this and live;" and the promise or gospel, whose condition is, "Believe and thou shalt be saved," are not specifically different, but only gradually, in point of strength and weakness: and the reason you give is as strange, that this comes to pass through the satisfaction of Christ. Good sir, enlighten us in this rare notion. Did Christ die to purchase a reconciliation betwixt the covenant of works as such, and the covenant of grace, as if both were now by the death of Christ agreed, and to be justified by works and by faith, should, after Christ's death, make no odds or difference between them? If it be so, why have you kept such a coil to prove Moses's and Adam's covenant, yeas, Abraham's too, being a covenant of works, can never consist or mingle with the gospel-covenant? And then I say, you contradict the apostle, who so directly opposes the covenant of works as such, to the covenant of grace, Gal. iii. 18. and tells us they are utterly inconsistent and exclusive of each other; and this he spake after Christ's death and actual satisfaction. But,

(4.) That which more amazes me, is the strange answer you give to Mr. Sedgwick, p. 132, 133. In your return to his argument, 'That if the law and the promise can consist, then the law cannot be set up as a covenant of works. You answer.
That the law and the promise having divers ends, it doth not thence follow, that there is an inconsistence betwixt them, and that the law, even as it is a covenant of works, instead of being against the promise, tends to the establishment of it.
And p. 133. that by convincing men of the impossibility of obtaining rest and peace in themselves, and the necessity of betaking themselves to the promise, &c. the law is not against the promise, having so blessed a subserviency towards the es-\nestablishment thereof.' Here you own a subserviency, yea, a blest subserviency of the law to the promise, which is that Mr.
Sedgwick and myself have urged to prove it cannot be so, as it is a pure Adam's covenant, but that therefore it must come under another consideration; only here we differ; you say it hath a blessed subserviency to the promise, as it is the same with Adam's covenant; we say it can never be so as such, but as it is either a covenant of grace, tho' more obscure, as he speaks; or though the matter of it should be the same with Adam's covenant, yet it is subserviently a covenant of grace, as others speak; and under no other consideration can it be reconciled to the promise.

But will you stand to this, that the law hath no hostile contradiction to the promise, but a blessed subserviency to it, as you speak, p. 173: where you say, 'That if we preach up the law as a covenant of life, or a covenant of faith and grace (which are equipollent terms) let us distinguish as we please between a covenant of grace absolutely and subserviently such; then we make an ill use of the law, by perverting it to such a service as God never intended it for, and are guilty of mingling law and gospel, life and death together.'

Reply. Here, sir, my understanding is perfectly posed, and I know not how to make any tolerable orthodox sense out of this position: Is the law preached up as a pure covenant of works, (that is, pressling men to the personal and punctual obedience of it, in order to their justification by works) no way repugnant to the promise, but altogether so, when preached in subserviency to Christ and faith? This is new divinity with me, and I believe must be so to every intelligent reader.
Do not I oppose the promise, when I preach up the law as a pure covenant of works, which therefore as such must be exclusive of Christ and the promise? And do I oppose either, when I tell sinners the terrors of the law serve only to drive them to Christ, their only remedy, who is "the end of the law for righteousness, to every one that believeth," Rom. x: 4.
Are works and grace more consistent than grace with grace?

Explain your meaning in this paradoxical expression, and leave not yourself and others in such a maze. I read, Gal. iii. 19. for what end God published the law 430 years after the promise was made to Abraham, and find it was added because of transgression, that it was put to, not set up by itself alone as a distinct covenant, but added as an appendix to the covenant of grace; whence it is plain, that God added the Sinai law to the promise, with evangelical ends and purposes. If then I preach the law to the very same evangelical uses and purposes for which God added it to the promise, do I therein make an ill use of the law, and mingle life and death together? But preaching it, as a pure covenant of works, as it holds forth justification to sinners by obedience to its precepts, do I then make it blessedly subservient (as you speak) to the promise or covenant of grace? The law was added because of transgression, that is, to restrain sin in the world, and to convince sinners under guilt, of the necessity of another righteousness than their own, even that of Christ, and for the same ends God added it to the promise. I always did, and still shall preach it, and I am persuaded, without the least danger of mingling law and gospel, life and death together, in your sense.

It is plain to me, that in the publication of the law on Sinai, God did not in the least intend to give them so much as a direction how to obtain justification by their most punctual obedience to its precepts, that being to fallen man utterly impossible; and beside, had he promulged the law to that end and purpose, he had not added it, but directly opposed it to the promise; which it is manifested he did not; Gal. iii. 21.

"Is the law then against the promise of God? God forbid." And verse 18. makes it appear, that had it been set up to that end and purpose, it had utterly disannulled the promise; for if the inheritance be of the law, it is no more by promise. What then can be clearer, than that the law at Sinai was published with gracious gospel-ends and purposes, to lead men to Christ, which Adam's covenant had no respect or reference to? And therefore it can never be a pure Adam's covenant, as you falsely call it; neither is it capable of becoming a pure covenant of works to any man, but by his own fault, in rejecting the righteousness of Christ, and seeking justification by the works of the law, as the mistaken carnal Jews did, Rom. x. 3. and other legal justiciaries now do. And upon this account only it is that Paul, who so highly praises the law in its subserviency to Christ, thunders so dreadfully against it, as it is thus set by ignorant mistaken souls in direct opposition to Christ.

(5thly,) And further, to clear this point, the apostle tells us, Rom. x. 4. "For Christ is the end of the law for righteousness to every one that believeth." Whence I argue, That if Adam's covenant had an end, namely, the justification of men by their own personal obedience; and the law at Sinai had a quite contrary end, namely, to bring sinners to Christ by faith for their righteousness; the one to keep him within himself, the other to take him quite out of himself, and bring him for his justification to the righteousness of another, even that of Christ; then that Sinai law cannot possibly be the same thing with Adam's covenant of works. But the antecedent is true and plain in the forecited text, therefore so is the consequent.

Christ is the end of the law for righteousness. Take the law here either more strictly, for the moral law, or more largely, as it comprehends the ceremonial law, still Christ is the end of the law. The moral law shuts up every man to Christ for righteousness, by convincing him (according to God's design in the publication of it) of the impossibility of obtaining justification in the way of works.

And the ceremonial law many ways prefigured Christ, his death and satisfaction, by blood, in our room, and so led men to Christ, their true propitiation; and all its types were fulfilled and ended in Christ. Was there any such thing in Adam's covenant? You must prove there was, else you will never be able to make them one and the same covenant.

(6thly,) It seems exceeding probable from Acts vii. 37, 38, that the Sinai covenant was delivered to Moses by Jesus Christ, there called the angel. "This is he that was in the church in the wilderness, with the Angel that spake to him in the mount Sinai, and with our fathers, who received the lively oracles to give unto us." Now, if Christ himself were the Angel, and the precepts of the law delivered by him to Moses were the lively oracles of God, as they are expressly affirmed to be, then the law delivered on mount Sinai cannot be a pure Adam's covenant of works: for it is never to be imagined, that Jesus Christ himself should deliver to Moses such a covenant, directly opposite to all the ends of his future incarnation; and that these precepts (which, if they were of the same nature, and revived to the same end, at which Adam's covenant directly aimed) should be called the lively oracles of God; when contrariwise, upon your supposition, they could be no other than a manifestation of condemnation and death: but that they were lively,
A Reply to Mr. Cary's solemn Call.

Grades, viz. in their design and intention, is plain in the text; and that they were delivered to Moses by Jesus Christ, the angel of the covenant, seems more than probable, by comparing it with the former verses.

(7thly.) Neither is it easy to imagine how such a covenant, which by the fall of Adam had utterly lost all its promises, privileges, and blessings, and could retain nothing but the curses and punishments annexed to it, in case of the least failure, could possibly be numbered among the chief privileges in which God's Israel gloried; as it apparently was, Rom. ix. 4. "Who are Israelites; to whom pertaineth the adoption, and the glory, and the covenants, and the giving of the law, and the service of God, and the promises."

These things considered, with many more (which the intended brevity of this discourse will not now admit) I am fully satisfied of the falsity of your position, and so may you too, when you shall review the many gross and palpable absurdities with which I have clogged and loaded it, with many more, regularly and fairly deductible from it; which I could easily produce, did I not suspect these I have produced, have already press your patience a little too far: but if ever I shall see (which I never expect) a fair and scriptural solution of these weighty objections, you may expect from me more arguments against your unsound position, which, at the present, I judge needless to add.

To conclude: These premises (as before I noted) can never be true, from whence such, and so many gross and notorious absurdities are regularly and unavoidably deductible. For ex veris nil nisi verum, from true premises nothing but truth can regularly follow.

Had you minded those things which I seasonably sent you, you had avoided all those bogs into which you are now sunk, and been able fairly to reconcile all those seeming contradictions in Paul's epistles, with respect to the law at Sinai: But, however, by what hath been said, your first position, That the Sinaic covenant is the same covenant of works with Adam's in paradise, vanishes before the evidence of scripture, truth, and reason.

But yet, tho' what I have said destroys your false position, I am not willing to leave you, or the reader ignorant, wherein the truth lies in this controverted point betwixt us; and that will appear, by a due consideration of the following particulars.

(1.) It is plain and uncontroverted, that Adam's covenant in paradise; contained in it a perfect law and rule of natural righ-covenants, founded both in God's nature, and in man's; which, in its perfect state of innocency, was every way enabled perfectly to comply therewith: For the scripture tells us, Eccl. vii. 29. That God made man upright; and his punctual complying therewith, was the righteousness by which he stood.
A Reply to Mr. Cary's solemn Call.

(2.) This covenant of works being once broken, can never more be available to the justification and salvation of any fallen man. There was not now a law found that could give righteousness: The broken covenant of works lost immediately all the blessings and privileges which before it contained, and retained only the curse and punishment; in token whereof, cherubims, with flaming swords, turning every way, were set to keep the way of the tree of life, Gen. iii. 24.

(3.) Soon after the violation of the covenant of works, God was graciously pleased to publish for the relief of mankind, now miserable and hopeless, the second covenant, which we call the covenant of grace, Gen. iii. 15. which is the first opening of the grace of God in Christ to fallen man. And tho' this first promise of Christ was but short and obscure, yet it was in every age to be opened clearer and clearer, until the promised seed should come. After the first opening of this new covenant, in the first promise of Christ, the first covenant is shut up for ever, as a covenant of life and salvation; and all the world are shut up to the only way of salvation by Christ, Gal. iii. 23. It being contrary to the will of God, that two ways of salvation should stand open to man at once, and they so opposite one to another, as the way of works, and the way of faith are, Acts iv. 12. John xiv. 6. Gal. ii. 21.

(4.) It is evident, however, that after the first opening of the promise of Christ, Gen. iii. 15. God foreseeing the pride of fallen man, who naturally inclines to a righteousness of his own in the way of doing, was pleased to revive the law of nature, as to its matter, in the Sinai dispensation; which was 430 years after the first promise had been renewed, and further opened unto Abraham, of whose seed Christ should come: And this he did, not in opposition to the promise, but in subserviency thereto, Gal. iii. 21. And though the matter and substance of the law of nature be found in the Sinai covenant, strictly taken for the ten commandments; yet the ends and intentions of God in that terrible Sinai dispensation were two-fold: (1.) To convince fallen man of the sinfulness and impotency of his nature, and the impossibility of obtaining righteousness by the law, and so by a blessed necessity, to shut him up to Christ, his only remedy. And, (2.) To be a standing rule of duty, both towards God and man, to the end of the world. But if we take the Sinai covenant more largely, as inclusive of the ceremonial with the moral law (as it is often taken, and is so by you, in the New Testament;) then it did not only serve for a conviction of impotency, and a rule of duty; but exhibited and taught much of Christ, and the mysteries of the new covenant in those its ceremonies, wherein he was prefigured to them.
A Reply to Mr. Cary's solemn Call.

(5.) Whence it evidently appears, that the Sinai covenant was neither repugnant to the new covenant in its scope and aim; "The law is not against the promise," Gal. iii. 21. nor yet set up as co-ordinate with it, with a design to open two different ways of salvation to fallen man; but was added to the promise in respect of its evangelical purposes and designs: On which account it is called by some a covenant of faith, or grace, in respect of its subserviency unto Christ, who is the end of the law for righteousness, Rom. x. 4. and by others a subservient covenant, according to Gal. iii. 23, 24. And accordingly we find both tables of the law put into the ark, Heb. ix. 4. which shews their consistency and subordination with, and to the method of salvation by Christ in the new covenant.

(6.) This design and intention of God was fatally mistaken by the Jews, ever since God promulged that law at Sinai, and was by them notoriously perverted to a quite contrary end to that which God promulged it for, even to give righteousness and life, in the way of personal and perfect obedience; Rom. x. 3. "For they being ignorant of God's righteousness, and going about to establish their own righteousness, have not submitted themselves unto the righteousness of God." Hence Christ came to be slighted by them, and his righteousness rejected: For they rested in the law, Rom. ii. 17. were married to the law, as an husband, Rom. vii. 2, 3. and so might have no conjugal communion with Christ. However, Moses, Abraham, and all the elect, discerned Christ as the end of the law for righteousness, and were led to him thereby.

(7.) This fatal mistake of the use and intent of the law, is the ground of those seeming contradictions, in Paul's epistles. Sometimes he magnifies the law, when he speaks of it according to God's end and purpose in its promulgation, Rom. vii. 12, 14, 16. But as it was fatally mistaken by the Jews, and set in opposition to Christ; so he thunders against it, calls it a ministration of death and condemnation; and all its appendant ceremonies weak and beggarly elements. And by this distinction, whatsoever seems repugnant in Paul's epistles, may be sweetly reconciled: and it is a distinction of his own making.

1 Tim. i. 8. "We know that the law is good, if we use it lawfully." There is a good and an evil use of the law. Had you attended to these things, you had not so confidently and inconsiderately pronounced it a pure covenant of works.

II. Position.

Secondly, You affirm with like confidence, That the covenant of circumcision is also the same; viz. the covenant of works made with Adam in paradise.

This I utterly deny; and will try whether you have any better success in the proof of your second, than you had in your first position. And to convince you of your mistake, let us consider what the general nature of this ordinance of circumcision was; what its ends were; and then prove, That it cannot be what you affirm it to be, the very same covenant God made with Adam before the fall, but must needs be a covenant of grace.

(1.) Circumcision, in its general nature, was, (1.) An ordinance of God's own institution, in the 99th year of Abraham's age; at which time of its institution, God renewed the covenant with him, Gen. xvii. 9, 10. (2.) That it consisted (as all sacraments do) of an external sign, and a spiritual mystery signified thereby. The external part of it (which we call the sign) was, the cutting off the fore-skin of the genital part of the Hebrew males, on the eighth day from their birth. The spiritual mystery thereby signified and represented, was the cutting off the filth and guilt of sin from their souls, by regeneration and justification, called "the circumcision of the heart," Deut. x. 16. And though this was laid upon them by the command, as their duty, yet a gracious promise of power from God to perform that duty, was added to the command; Deut. xxx. 6. "The Lord thy God will circumcise thy heart to love him," &c. just as promises of grace in the New Testament are added to commands of duty. (2.) Next, let us consider the ends for which circumcision was instituted and ordained of God: Of which these were the principal.

(1.) It was instituted to be a convulsive sign of their natural corruption, propagated by the way of natural generation; For which reason, this natural corruption goes in scripture, under the name of the uncircumcision of the heart, Jer. ix. 26.

(2.) It also signified the putting off of this body of sin, in the virtue of Christ's death, Col. ii. 11.

(3.) It was appointed to be the initiating sign of the covenant, or a token of their matriculation, and admission into the church and covenant of God, Gen. xvii. 9, 10, 11.

(4.) It was ordained to be a discriminating mark between God's covenanted people, and the Pagan world, who were strangers to the covenant, and without God in the world. And accordingly both parties were, from this ordinance, denominated the circumcision, and the uncircumcision, Col. iii. 11.

(5.) It was also an obliging sign to Abraham and his seed, to walk with God in the uprightness and sincerity of their hearts; in the performance of all covenanted duties; in which duties, Abraham, and the faithful, walked obediently with God, looking to Christ for righteousness: but the carnal Jews resting in, and trusting to those duties and ordinances for righteousness and justification, made it a covenant of works to themselves, and circumcision itself a bond of that covenant.

(6.) Now, forasmuch as circumcision prefigured Christ, who was to come of this holy circumcised seed of Abraham, and his death also was pointed at therein, Heb. ii. 16. Col. ii. 11. of necessity this ordinance must vanish at the death of Christ; and accordingly did so.

These things duly pondered, how irrational is it to imagine this covenant of circumcision to be the very same with the Paradisical covenant? Did that covenant discover native corruption, and direct to its remedy in Christ, as this did? Surely it gave not the least glimpse of any such thing. Did that covenant separate and distinguish one person from another, as this did? No, no; it left all under equal and common misery, Eph. ii. 3.

Had Adam's covenant a seal of the righteousness of faith annexed to it, as this had? Rom. iv. 11. "He received circumcision, a seal of the righteousness of faith." The righteousness of faith is evangelical righteousness, and this circumcision sealed. Say not it was to Abraham only that it sealed it; for it is an injurious restriction put upon the seal of a covenant, which extended to the fathers as well as to Abraham, Luke i. 72. But you admit, however, that it sealed evangelical righteousness to Abraham: but I hope you will not say, that a seal of the covenant of works ever did, or could, seal evangelical righteousness to any individual person in the world. So then, turn which way you will, this truth still follows you, and will fasten upon you, that the covenant of circumcision was not a pure covenant of works, but a gospel-covenant. Which I thus prove:

Argument I.

If circumcision be a part of the ceremonial law, and the ceremonial law was dedicated by blood, and whatsoever is so dedicated, is by you confessed to be no part of the covenant of works; then circumcision is no part of the covenant of works, even by your own confession. But it is; ergo,

That it is a part of the ceremonial law, was never doubted, or denied by any man: that it was dedicated by blood, and therefore no part of the moral law, you yourself not only acknowledge, but vehemently plead for it, p. 148, where you blame Mr. Sedgwick with some sharpness, and unbecoming reflection, for making no distinction betwixt the ceremonial covenant, which was dedicated by blood, and the law written in tables of stone; which was not so dedicated, and therefore could not be the same with the moral law, which you make the covenant of works; telling him, that this dedication by blood ought to distinguish it from the moral law, or Sinai covenant of works, as you say it doth, and ought to do; how then can circumcision be the same with, and yet quite another thing from the Sinai covenant? Was the ceremonial law dedicated by blood? Yes, the apostle plainly asserts it, from Exod. xxiv. 7, Heb. ix. 18, 19. "Moses took the book of the covenant, and read it in the audience of the people; and took the blood, and sprinkled it upon the people, and said, Behold the blood of the covenant, which the Lord hath made with you, concerning these things." But what kind of covenant then was this covenant that was sprinkled with blood? You tell us, p. 147, it could not possibly be the law written in stones, (which you make the covenant of works); but was indeed another covenant, delivered at a distinct season, and in a distinct method. What covenant then must this be, seeing it could not possibly (as you say) be the Sinai covenant written in stones? It must either be the covenant of grace, or none. No, say you, that it was not, neither; for it was of the same nature with, and is no other than a covenant of works, p. 151.

It was the same, and yet could not possibly be the same.

Mr. Sedgwick, that learned and grave divine, is checked, p. 148, for confounding the ceremonial law that was sprinkled with blood, with the moral law (which you call the covenant of works) that was not sprinkled with blood, and say you, p.
147, It could not possibly be the same. And then, p. 151, you say, It is clear, these two, viz. the moral and ceremonial law, were both of the same nature; that is, no other than a covenant of works. How doth this hang together? Pray reconcile it, if you can. You say, It is an ungrounded supposition of Mr. Sedgwick's, that that covenant which was so confirmed by blood, must of necessity be confirmed by the blood of Christ also; p. 148. But, sir, the truth you oppose, viz. That the book of the ceremonial law was sprinkled by typical blood, and therefore confirmed by the blood of Christ, for the time it was to continue, shines like a bright sun-beam in your own eyes, from Heb. ix. 14, 23. Was not the blood that sprinkled this law, the figure or type of Christ's own blood? Whose blood was it then, if not Christ's? How dare you call this an ungrounded supposition? Was not that blood typical blood? And what, I pray you, was the antitype, but Christ's blood? And did not the holy Ghost signify the one by the other? Heb. ix. 8. I stand amazed at these things! You distinguish, and confound all again. You say, it could not possibly be the same with the law written in stone: and you say, it is clear both were of the same nature, no other than a covenant of works. At this rate you may say what you please; for I see contradiction is no crime in your book.

Argument II.

If circumcision was the seal of the righteousness of faith, it did not pertain to the covenant of works; for the righteousness of faith and works are opposites, and belong to two contrary covenants.

But circumcision was the seal of the righteousness of faith; Rom. iv. 11. "He (i. e. Abraham) received the sign of circumcision, a seal of the righteousness of faith." Therefore it pertains not to the covenant of works, but grace.

A man would think it impossible to evade so clear and scriptural an argument as this is. The major proposition is even self-evident and undeniable; the minor, the plain words of the apostle.

And what is your reply to this? Certainly as strange a one as ever I met with; p. 105. you say, It is true, circumcision was a seal of the righteousness of faith to Abraham; but it was so to him only in his extraordinary circumstances: but it was not so to any of his natural seed in its ordinary use.

I cannot deny but I have met with such an assertion before in Mr. Tombes; and I can tell you too, that Bellarmine invented it before Mr. Tombes was born, and that Dr. Ames fully confuted it in his third tome p. 27. proving, that there was no extraordinary cause on Abraham's account, why God should justify or seal him more than any other believer; and that Abraham had nothing to glory in before God. But to restrain, as you do, the public seal of a covenant, that comprehended and equally concerned the whole church and people of God, to one single person; so that neither Isaac nor Jacob, who were by name enrolled in that great chatter, should have any right to the seal of it, is such a conceit as amazes an intelligent reader. We know Abraham was the first that received it, but utterly deny that he received it only for himself; but he received it as the father of all them that believe, whether Jews or Gentiles, as the very next words tell us, "He received it, that he might be the father of all them that believe;" that is, for himself, and all his spiritual children. One half of this sacrament of circumcision you allow, p. 205. to the rest that were under it, viz. to be a sign of the covenant; but the other half you cut off, and say, it was only a seal to him. What good vouchers have you for this exposition of the text? Have you the concurrence of orthodox expositors? Or is it the rash and bold adventure of your own head? I am sure it no ways agrees with the drift and scope of the Apostle's argument, which evidently is to prove, that both Jews and Gentiles are justified by faith, as Abraham was; and that the ground of justification and blessedness is common both to the uncircumcised Gentiles, and circumcised Jews; and that Abraham and all other believers, have but one way of justification, and salvation, and that how great soever Abraham was, in this case he hath found nothing whereof to glory, ver. 1, 2. And is not your exposition a notable one, to prove the community of the privilege of justification, because the seal of it was peculiar to Abraham alone? Rectify it, and better consider it.
A Reply to Mr. Cary Solemn Call

Argument III.

In the covenant of circumcision, Gen. xvii. God makes over himself to Abraham and his seed to be their God, or give them a special interest in himself.

But in the covenant of works, God doth not, since the fall, make over himself to any, to be their God by way of special interest.

Therefore the covenant of circumcision cannot be the covenant of works.

This is so plain and clear, that none can doubt or deny it, that understands the nature of the two covenants. And now, sir, what course do you take to avoid this argument? Such a
A Reply to Mr. Cary's solemn Call.

One sure as no man that ever I met with took before you, and that is this: you boldly cut Abraham's covenant, Gen. xvii. into two parts, and make the first to be the pure covenant of grace, which is the promissory part, to the ninth verse; and the restipulation (as you call it, p. 205.) to be as pure a covenant of works. What hard shift will some men make to maintain their opinion! You say truly, p. 205, that at the seventh and eighth verses was their restipulation: why then do you say, p. 224, that at ver. the 7th he proceeds to speak of another covenant than what he had been speaking of before? Does the promise and the restipulation make two covenants; or are they just and necessary parts of one and the same covenant? You also tell us, that the covenant, Gen. xvii. 1, 2, 3, 4. was a plain transcript of several free promises of the gospel under the denomination of a covenant. But why then don't you take the restipulation, ver. 7, 8, 9, 10. to be a part of it? O no; there is something required on Abraham's and his posterity's part; they must be circumcised, and that spoils all. Why but, sir, if the requiring of circumcision alters the case so greatly, as to make it a quite contrary covenant; how comes it to pass, that in the covenant to Abraham, he himself was first required to be circumcised? Why, this is the reason; here is somewhat required on their part as a condition; and a condition quite alters the nature of the covenant. Very well; but tell me then why you say, p. 223, and in many other places, that the covenant made with Abraham, in Gen. xii. was a gospel covenant; and yet there Abraham is obliged to walk before God, and be perfect? Does not that also there alter the nature of the covenant, as well as here in the seventeenth chapter? You also grant, the covenant made with Abraham, Gen. xxii. was a pure gospel-covenant; or if you deny it, the apostle proves it, Heb. vi. 13. And yet there is more appearance of respect to Abraham's obedience in that covenant, than is in submitting to circumcision: see Gen. xxii. 16, 17. "By myself have I sworn, faith the Lord; " for because thou hast done this thing, &c. That in blessing, "I will bless thee; and in multiplying, I will multiply thee."

I will trouble you, on this head, but with one query more: if the four first verses of the xvii. of Genesis contain a pure gospel-covenant, as you say, and the restipulation in the following verses make a covenant of works, because it thereby becomes conditional; then tell me, if you please, whether what God graciously granted to Abraham in the former verses be not all nulled, and made void again by their restipulation? Does not this seem hard? Here you have brought Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, and all the believers of Abraham's race, just into the same case you brought Moses and all the Israelites before, under two opposite covenants, where one cuts off all that the other granted.

But there is a stronger reason urged than the conditionality of the covenant, to prove it a covenant of works; and that is, circumcision is made the condition of Abraham's covenant; and that is the worst of all conditions, for it obliges a man to keep the whole law, Gal. v. 3. it is the yoke of bondage, and to whatsoever covenant it be so annexed, it makes it become a bondage legal covenant. "If we be circumcised, Christ shall profit us nothing." Thus it was in the covenant, Gen. xvii.

Great use is made of this in many parts of your discourse. But, sir, you are greatly mistaken in applying these texts to the purposes you do; for the apostle all along in that epistle to the Galatians, argues against the false teachers, who taught and pressed the necessity of circumcision, as a bond obliging them to the strict and perfect obedience of the law, in order to their justification thereby, or at least to join it with the righteousness of Christ, as a con-cause of justification; see Gal. ii. 4, 5. and iii. 1. Now against this abuse of circumcision it is that the apostle argues thus, and tells them, that in submitting to it on that account, they made the death of Christ of no effect, and obliged themselves by it to the whole law; for circumcision did not simply and absolutely, in the nature of the work or action, oblige men to the whole law in the way of justification by it, but it did so from the intention of the worker, and the supposition of such an opinion of it, and design in it, for in itself, and with respect to God's design in the institution of it; it was to be a seal of the righteousness of faith, Rom. iv. 11. and so it was an excellent, useful, instructive ordinance to all believers, as long as the ceremonial law stood; and even when it was expiring, as the gospel began to open more and more clearly, there was yet some kind of toleration of it to such as were born of Jewish parents: Thus Paul himself circumcised Timothy, his mother being a Jewess, Acts xvi. 1, 3. but Titus, being a Greek, was not circumcised, and that because of these false teachers, that would make an ill use of that their liberty, Gal. ii. 3, 4. This Paul could never have done, in case circumcision, in the nature of the act, had bound Timothy to keep the law for justification. By which it appears, that the action in its own nature did not oblige to the keeping of the whole law, but from the intention of the agent; and therefore, as the apostle rightly argues, if a man be circumcised with a design to be justified by it, he would thereby bind himself to the whole law, and frustrate the death of Christ to himself; but it was now to have its funeral with all other parts of the ceremonial law, which vanished, and were accomplished in the death of Christ; and it falling out that such a vile use was made of it at that time, the apostle thus thunders against it. Had this been observed, as also the like abuse of the moral law, you would have known how to have reconciled the apostle's encomiums of them both, with his sharp invectives against the one and the other. But being ignorant of these two great and necessary distinctions of the law, according to God's intention in the promulgation of it at Sinai, and the carnal Jews sense of it, as a pure covenant of works, against which the apostle so sharply inveighs in the places by you cited, all your 23 arguments from page 183, to page 187, fall to the ground at one stroke; your mediusterm inushaving on sense in your major proposition, and another in your minor; and so every argument hath four terms in it, as will easily be evinced by the particular consideration of the respective places from whence you draw them.

So in like manner, in your arguing here against circumcision, as a bond to keep the whole law, and as such vacating the death of Christ, is a stumble at the same stone, not distinguishing as you ought to have done, betwixt an obligation arising out of the nature of the work, and out of the end and intention of the workers; and this every learned and judicious eye will easily discern. But we proceed to

Argument IV.

That which in its direct and primary end teacheth man the corruption of his nature by sin, and the mortification of sin by the Spirit of Christ, cannot be a condition of the covenant of works; but so did circumcision in the very direct and primary end of it.

This ordinance supposeth the fall of man, points to the means and instruments of his sin and misery, and also to the remedy thereof by Christ: (1.) It singles out that genital part by which original sin was propagated, Gen. xvii. 11. Psal. li. 1. To this the sign of the covenant is applied in circumcision, for the remission of sins past, and the extirpation of sin for the future. (2.) Therefore it was instituted of God, that men might see both the necessity and true way of mortifying their lusts, in the virtue of Christ's death and resurrection, whereof baptism, that succeeds it, is a sign now, as circumcision was then; as is plain from Col. ii. 11, 12. "In whom al-A Reply to Mr. Gary’s solemn Call.

"so ye are circumcised with the circumcision made without hands, in putting off the body of the sins of the flesh by the circumcision of Christ, buried with him in baptism, where in also ye are risen with him, through the faith of the operation of God, who raised him from the dead."

It is clear then that circumcision directed men to the death and resurrection of Christ, as the true and only means of mortifying their lusts; and if it did so, sure it was not the covenant of works, for that gives fallen man no hint of a remedy.

(3.) It was also a discriminating sign or token, betwixt the church and the world: God’s people, and the heathens, who were accordingly denominated from it, the circumcision and the uncircumcision, the holy seed and the Gentiles; and now under the New Testament, the children of Abraham by faith, and the children of the flesh: This also shews it cannot be the covenant of works; for in that covenant all are equally and alike concluded under sin and misery, Eph. ii. 3. and there is no difference made by that covenant betwixt person and person, state and state.

If this be not enough to evince, that the covenant of circumcision is a covenant of grace, I promise you many more arguments to prove it, as soon as I shall find these refuted, and your contrary assertion well discharged from the gross absurdities with which it is clogged and loaded. You see how genuine, natural, and congruous to scripture the notion of it as a covenant of grace is, and all the world may see how harsh, alien, and repugnant to scripture your notion of circumcision as a covenant of works is. You see into what bogs you are again driven in defence of your opinion: Exemp. gra.

That circumcision is a part of the ceremonial law, which was dedicated with blood, and therefore could be no part of the moral law or ten commandments, which was (say you) the covenant of works; and yet that it is of the same nature, and that it is clear it is no other than a covenant of works: do not you there distinguish and confound all again, blame and check Mr. Sedgwick without cause, and commit a greater absurdity presently than you charged him with? Do not you question whether that covenant was typically sealed by Christ’s blood? Pray, sir, consider where-ever God commands typical blood to be applied, it relates to Christ’s blood spiritually applied, or to nothing.

Are not you forced, in defence of your erroneous thesis, to say with Bellarmine, That circumcision was extraordinary in its institution, and applied as a seal to none but Abraham himself? It excluded even Isaac, the type of Christ, and Jacob, a prince with God. O what will not men venture upon in defence of their darling opinions!
A Reply to Mr. Cary's solemn Call. 193

Are you not forced, for your security from the danger of the third argument, to cut one of the same covenants made with Abraham just in two, and of the pure promissory part to make a covenant of grace; and of the other part, which you yourself call a restitution, to make another quite opposite covenant? Do not you magnify the bounty and grace of God to Abraham in the first four verses, and then destroy it all, by putting him at once under a contrary covenant, and so cut off all capacity to enjoy one of those mercies?

Do not you make circumcision, in its own nature, without respect to the intention of the person, an obligation to the whole law, and that which frustrates the death of Christ, and yet must grant, that Paul himself took Timothy, and circumcised him, and yet thereby brought him under no such dangerous obligation to the law? In a word,

You reject all those covenants as legal, that have any conditions in them, or respect to any thing that is to be done by us, and allow Gen. xii. and Gen. xxii. to be pure gospel covenants of grace; and yet in the first, Abraham is bound to "walk before God and be perfect," and in the other God faith, "For because thou haft done this thing, surely blessing I will bless thee."

And so much for Abraham's covenant.

III. Of the conditionality of the new covenant.

Come we next to consider that opinion of yours, which led you into these other gross mistakes and absurdities, and that is this, that the covenant of grace is absolute; and whatever covenant is not so, but hath any condition upon our part, must needs for that reason be a covenant of works. See pag. 229.

It is observable (say you) that as the covenants mentioned Gen. ii. Exod. xx. &c. were all conditional, and therefore legal covenants, requiring strict and perfect obedience, as the condition propounded, in order to the enjoyment of the mercies contained in them, which are all therefore done away in Christ; so on the other hand we see, that the covenant of God made with Abraham, Gen. xii. 2, 3. and Gen. xvii. 2, 3. and Gen. xxii. 16, 17, 18. was wholly free and absolute, and therefore purely evangelical, &c. We will review these things anon, and see if you truly represent the matter; but in order to it, let me tell you,

First, What we mean by a gospel-condition.

Secondly, Prove that there are such in the gospel-covenant.
Thirdly, Shew you the absurdity of your opinion against it.

(1.) What we mean by a condition in the gospel-covenant. By a condition of the covenant, we do not mean, in the strictest rigid sense of the word, such a restipulation to God from man of perfect obedience in his own person, at all times, so as the least failure therein forfeits all the mercies of the covenant; that is rather the condition of Adam's covenant of works, than of the evangelical covenant: nor do we assert any meritorious condition, that in the nature of an impulsive cause shall bring man into the covenant and its privileges, or continue him in when brought in. This we renounce as well as you: but our question is about such a condition as is neither in the nature of it an act perfect in every degree, nor meritorious in the least of the benefit conferred, nor yet done in our own strength. But plainly and briefly, our question is, Whether there be not something as an act required of us in point of duty, to a blessing consequent by virtue of a promise? Such a thing, whatever it be, hath the nature of a condition, inasmuch as it is antecedent to the benefit of the promise; and the mercy or benefit granted, is suspended until it be performed. The question is not, whether there be any intrinsical worth or value in the thing so required, to oblige the disposer to make or perform the grant or promise, but merely that it be antecedent to the enjoyment of the benefit; and that the disposer of the benefit do suspend the benefit until it be performed? Thus an act or duty of ours, which hath nothing at all of merit in it, or answerable value to the benefit it relates to, may be in a proper sense a condition of the said benefit. "For what is a condition in the true notion of it, but * the suspension of a grant until something future be done?" "Or, † as others to the same purpose, The adding, of words to a grant, for the future, of a suspending quality, according to which the disposer will have the benefit he disposeth to be regulated?" This properly is a condition, though there be nothing of equivalent value or merit in the thing required. And such your brethren, in their narrative, pag. 14. do acknowledge faith to be, when they assert none can be actually reconciled, justified, or adopted, till they are really implanted into Jesus Christ by faith; and so, by virtue of this their union with him, have these fundamental benefits.

* Condicio est suspensio alicuius dispositionis, tantisper dum aliquid futurum fiat. Navarr. Enchirid. 482.
† Est verborum adiectio in futurum suspendetum, secundum quam disponsus vult dispositionem regulari.
A Reply to Mr. Cary's solemn Call.

...which contains the proper notion of the condition we contend for.

And such a condition of salvation we assert faith to be in the new covenant grant; that is to say, the grant of salvation by God in the gospel-covenant is suspended from all men, till they believe, and is due by promise, not merit, to them as soon as they do truly believe. The notes or signs of a condition given by civilians, or moralists, are such as these, If, if not, unless, but if, except, only, and the like. When these are added in the promise of a blessing or benefit for the future, they make that promise conditional; and your grammar (according to which you must speak, if you speak properly and strictly) will tell you, that Si, fin, modo, and dum, are all conditional particles; and it is evident, that these conditional particles are frequently inserted in the grants of the blessings and privileges of the New Testament. As for example; Mark ix. 23. εἰ διανοεῖτε ἐπιφάνειαν, "If thou canst believe." Acts viii. 37. εἰ πιστεύετε ἐπὶ ὀλίγος τὰς καρδίας, "If thou believest with thy whole heart, thou mayest." &c. Rom. x. 9. ἄπιστας μη, "That if thou shalt confess with thy mouth, and believe with thy heart, &c. thou shalt be saved." Matth. xviii. 3. ἤρθας μη, "Except ye be converted, and become as little children, ye shall not enter into the kingdom of heaven." Mark v. 36. μόνον, "Only believe." Mark xi. 26. μὴ γὰρ ἐκκαθαρίζοντες, "But if ye forgive not," &c. with multitudes more, which are all conditional particles inserted in the grants of benefits.

(2.) Having shewn you what the nature of a condition is, I shall, I hope, make it plain to you, that faith is such a condition in the gospel-grant of our salvation; for we find the benefit suspended till this act of faith be performed; John iii. 36. "He that believeth on the Son, hath everlasting life; and he that believeth not the Son, shall not see life, but the wrath of God abideth on him." And most plainly, Rom. x. 9. having shewn before what the condition of legal righteousness was, he tells us there what the gospel-condition of salvation is; "The righteousness which is of faith, speaketh on this wise; That if thou shalt confess with thy mouth the Lord Jesus, and shalt believe in thy heart, that God raised him from the dead, thou shalt be saved." I ask you, sir, whether it be possible to put words into a frame more lively expressive of a condition than these are? Do but compare Mark xvi. 16. "He that believeth, and is baptized, shall be saved; but he that believeth not, shall be damned." Do but compare, I say, that scripture-phrase with the words of Jacob's sons, which all allow to be conditional, Gen. xliii. 4, 5. "If thou wilt send our brother with us, we will go down; but if thou wilt not send him, we will not go down;" and judge whether the one be not as conditional as the other; more particularly,
A Reply to Mr. Cary's solemn Call.

Argument I.

If we cannot be justified or saved till we believe, then faith is the condition on which those consequent benefits are suspended. But we cannot be justified or saved till we believe. Ergo,

The sequel of the major is evident; for, as we said before, a condition is the suspension of a grant till something future be done. The minor is plain in scripture; Rom. iv. 24. "Now it was not written for his sake alone, that righteousness was imputed to him; but for our sakes also, to whom it shall be imputed if we believe." On quibus futurum est ut imputetur, to whom it shall come to pass, that it shall be imputed, if we believe; And Acts x. 43. "Whosoever believeth on him, shall receive remission of sins." John iii, 36. "He that believeth not, shall not see life, but the wrath of God abideth on him;" with multitudes more. Now, sir, lay seriously before your eyes such scriptures as these, that promise salvation to believers, and threaten damnation to all unbelievers, as Mark xvi, 16. doth, and then give a plain and clear answer to this question; either the positive part of that text promises salvation absolutely to men, whether they believe or believe not, and consequently unbelievers shall be saved as well as believers; and the negative part threatens damnation absolutely to sinners, as sinners; and consequently all sinners shall be damned, whether they believe or believe not: or else, if you allow neither to be absolute, but that none can be saved till they believe, nor any damned when they do believe; is not that a conditional promise and threatening?

Argument II.

If God's covenant with Abraham, Gen. xii. 2, 3. and that Gen. xvii. 2, 3. were (as you say) pure gospel-covenants of grace, and yet in both some things are required as duties on Abraham's part, to make him partaker of the benefits of the promises; then the covenant of grace is not absolute, but conditional.

But so it was in both these covenants; Ergo,

The minor only requires proof; for which let us have recourse to the places, and see whether it be so or not.

(1.) For the first you instance in as a pure gospel-covenant made with Abraham, Gen. xii. 2, 3. I must confess, as you
A Reply to Mr. Cary's solemn Call.

Dismember the text, p. 229, by chusing out the second and third verses, and leaving out the first, which was the trial of Abraham's obedience, in forsaking his native country, and his father's house; I say, give me but this liberty to separate and disjoin one part of a covenant from the other, and it is easy to make any conditional covenant in the world to become absolute: for take but the duty required, from the promise that is made, and that which was a conditional, presently becomes an absolute grant. Suppose, sir, that Abraham had refused to leave his dear native country, and dearest relations, as many do; think you that the promised mercies had been his? I must plainly tell you, you assume a strange liberty in this matter, and make a great deal bolder with the scriptures than you ought: and the very same usage other scriptures hath.

Argument III.

If all the promises of the gospel be absolute and unconditional, requiring no restipulation from man, then they cannot properly and truly belong to the new covenant.

But they do properly and truly belong to the new covenant; therefore they are not all absolute and unconditional.

The sequel of the major is only liable to doubt or denial, namely, That the absoluteness of all the promises of the New Testament cuts off their relation to a covenant; but that it doth so, no man can deny, that understands the difference between a covenant and an absolute promise. A covenant is a mutual compact or agreement betwixt parties, in which they bind each other to the performance of what they respectively promise; so that there can be no other proper covenant where there is not a restipulation or re-obligation of one part, as well as a promise on the other: but an absolute promise binds only one party, and leaves the other wholly free and unobliged to any thing, in order to the enjoyment of the good promised? So then, if all the New Testament promises be unconditional and absolute, they are not part of a covenant, nor must that word be applied to them; they are absolute promises, binding no man to whom they are made to any duty, in order to the enjoyment of the mercies promised: But those persons that are under these absolute promises, must and shall enjoy the mercies of pardon and salvation, whether they repent or repent not, believe or believe not, obey or obey not. Now, to what licentiousness this doctrine leads men, is obvious to every eye. Yet this absoluteness of the covenant (as you improperly call it) is by you asserted, p. 229, 230. There is (say you) no condition at all, it is wholly free and absolute, as the covenant with Abraham, Gen. xii. 2, 3. Gen. xvii. 2, 3.

Thank you, sir, for making them so; for by cutting off the first verses, where the duty required on Abraham's part is contained, you make them what God never intended them to be. And the same foul play is in Deut. xxx. where you separate the plain condition contained in ver. 1, 2. from the promise, ver. 6. Or if the condition, ver. 1, 2. be not plain enough, but you will make it part of the promise, I hope that after, in ver. 10. is too plain to be denied. As to the other texts, more anon; mean time see how you destroy the nature of a covenant.

Object. But say you, pag. 233. To impose new conditions, though never so mild, is a new covenant of works with some mercy, but not a covenant of grace, properly so called.

Sol. It is true, if those works or acts of ours, which God requires, be understood of meritorious works in our own strength and power to perform, it destroys the free grace of the covenant; but this we utterly reject, and speak only of faith wrought in us by the Spirit of God, which receives all from God, and gives the entire glory to God; Eph. ii. 5, 8.

Object. But you will say, If faith be the condition, and that faith be not of ourselves, then both the promise and the condition are on God's part (if you will call faith a condition) and so still on our part the covenant is absolute.

Sol. This is a mistake, and the mistake in this leads you into all the rest; though faith (which we call the condition on our part) be the gift of God, and the power of believing be derived from God, yet the act of believing is properly our act, though the power by which we believe be of God; else it would follow, when we act any grace, as faith, repentance, or obedience, that God believes, repents, and obeys in us, and it is not we, but God that doth all these. This, I hope, you will not dare to assert; they are truly our works, though wrought in God's strength? Isa. xxvi. 12. "Lord, thou hast wrought all our works in us;" i.e. though they be our works, yet they are wrought in us by thy grace or strength.
A Reply to Mr. Cary's solemn Call.

As for Dr. Owen, it is plain from the place you cite in the doctrine of justification, pag. 156. he only excludes conditions, as we do, in respect of the dignity of the act, as is more plain in his treatise of redemption, pag. 103, 104. in which he allows conditions in both the covenants, and makes this the difference. That the Old required them, but the New effects them in all the soledates.

I know no orthodox divine in the world, that presumes to thrust in any work of man's into the covenant of grace, as a condition, which, in the Arminian sense, he may or may not perform, according to the power and pleasure of his own free will, without the preventing or determining grace of God; which preventing grace is contained in those promises, Ezek. xxxvi. 25, 26, 27. &c. Nor yet that there is any meritorious worth, either of condignity or congruity in the Popish sense, in the very justifying act of faith, for which God justifies and saves us. But we say, That tho' God, in the way of preventing grace, works faith in us, and when it is wrought, we need his assisting grace to act it, yet neither his assisting nor preventing grace makes the act of faith no more to be our act; it is we that believe still tho' in God's strength, and that upon our believing, or not believing, we have or have not the benefits of God's promises; which is the very proper notion of a condition.

Argument IV.

If all the promises of the new covenant be absolute and unconditional, having no respect or relation to any grace wrought in us, nor duty done by us, then the trial of our interest in Christ, by marks and signs of grace, is not our duty, nor can we take comfort in sanctification, as an evidence of our justification.

But it is a Christian's duty to try his interest in Christ by marks and signs: and he may take comfort in sanctification, as an evidence of justification; Ergo,

The sequel of the major is undeniably clear; for that can never be a sign or evidence of an interest in Christ, which that interest may be without; yea, and as * Dr. Crispe affirms, according to his Antinomian principles, 'Christ is ours (faith

A Reply to Mr. Cary's solemn Call.

he) before we have gracious qualifications; every true mark and sign must be inseparable from that it signifies." Now, if the works of the Spirit in us be not so, but an interest in Christ may be where these are not, then they are no proper marks or signs; and if they are not, it cannot be our duty to make use of them as such, and consequently if we should, they can yield us no comfort.

The minor is plain in scripture; 1 John ii. 3. "Hereby we do know that we know him, if we keep his commandments." The meaning is, we perceive and discern ourselves to be sincere believers, and consequently that Christ is our propitiation, when obedience to his commands is become habitual and easy to us; So 1 John iii. 19. "Hereby we know that we are of " the truth, and shall assure our hearts before him;" i.e. by our sincere cordial love to Christ and his members, as ver. 18.
this shall demonstrate to us, that we are the children of truth; and again, 1 John iii. 14. "We know that we are passed from " death to life; because we love the brethren." With multititudes more to the same purpose, which plainly teach Christians to fetch the evidences of their justification out of their sanctification, and to prove their interest in Christ, by the works of his Spirit found in their own hearts.

And this is not only a Christian's liberty, but his commanded duty to bring his interest in Christ to this touchstone, and test; 2 Cor. xiii. 5. "Examine yourselves, prove yourselves," &c. 2 Pet. i. 10. "Give all diligence to make your calling " and election sure;" i.e. your election by your calling.
No man can make his election sure a priori, nor can any make it surer than it is in se; therefore it is only capable of being made sure to us a posteriori; arguing from the work of sanctification in us, to God's eternal choice of us.

And as the saints in all ages have taken this course, so they have taken great and lawful comfort in the use of these marks and signs of grace; 2 Kings xx. 3. 2 Cor. i. 12.

I am sensible how vehemently the Antinomian party, Dr.
Crispe, Mr. Eyre, and some others, do oppugn this truth, representing it as legal and impracticable (for they are for the absolute and unconditional nature of the new covenant, as well as you); but by your espousing their principle, you have even run Anabaptism into Antinomianism; and must, by this principle of yours, renounce all marks and trials of an interest in Christ, by any work of the Spirit wrought in us. You must only stick to the immediate sealings of the Spirit; which, if such a thing be at all, it is but rare and extraordinary.
A Reply to Mr. Cary's solemn Call.

I will not deny but there may be an immediate testimony of the Spirit, but sure I am his mediæ testimony by his graces in us, is his usual way of sealing believers. We do not affirm any of these his works to be meritorious causes of our justification; or that, considered abstractly from the Spirit, they can of themselves seal, or evidence our interest in Christ: Neither do we affirm, that any of them are complete and perfect works; but this we say, that they being true and sincere, though imperfect graces, they are our usual and standing evidences, to make out our interest in Christ by. And I hope you, and the whole Antinomian party, will find it hard, yes, and impossible, to remove the saints from that comfortable and scriptural way of examining their interest in Christ, by the graces of his Spirit in them; as the saints, who are gone to heaven before them, have done in all generations.

Argument V.

If the covenant of grace be altogether absolute and unconditional, requiring nothing to be done on our part, to entitle us to its benefits; then it cannot be man's duty in entering covenant with God, to deliberate the terms, count the cost, or give his consent by word or writing, explicitly to the terms of this covenant:

But it is man's duty in entering covenant with God, to deliberate the terms, and count the cost; Luke xiv. 26, 34. and explicitly to give his consent thereunto, either by word or writing: Ergo;

The sequel of the major is self-evident: For where there are no terms or conditions required on our part, there can be none to deliberate, or give our consent to; and so a man may be in a covenant without his own consent.

The minor is undeniable in the text cited: If you say, These are duties, but not conditions: I reply, they are such duties, without the performance of which we can have no benefit by Christ and the new covenant, Luke xiv. 33. And such duties have the true suspending nature of conditions in them. If you say they are only subsequent duties, but not antecedent or concomitant acts, the 28th verse directly opposes you: Let him first sit down and count the cost. And for those overt acts, whereby we explicitly declare our consent to the terms of the covenant, at our first entering into the bond of it, I hope you will not say, that it is a legal covenant too; Isa. xliv. 3, 4. "I will pour water upon him that is thirsty, and floods upon the dry ground: I will pour my Spirit upon thy seed; and my blest..." Vol. VIII. C 6
"Sing upon thine offspring; and they shall spring up as among the grass, as willows by the water-courses: One shall say, I am the Lord's, and another shall call himself by the name of Jacob; and another shall subscribe with his hand unto the Lord," &c. A plain allusion to soldiers, when they lift themselves under a captain, or general.

What remains now to reply to these arguments, but either that the places by me cited and argued upon, do not intend the new covenant, under which we are; or that this new covenant hath its conditions, and is not altogether absolute, as you have asserted it to be.

And thus, sir, you are fairly beaten off (if I mistake not) from the new ground you had chosen and marked out to raise your battery upon, to demolish that strong fort which secures the right of believers infants to baptism; and you must return again to the old answers of Mr. Tombes, and others, to our solid and substantial argument from Abraham's covenant, Gen. xvii. which have been baffled over and over by Baxter, Blake, Sydenham, and many other stout champions for infants baptism.

All that I am further concerned about, is to examine some of those scriptures as you have spoken to, which are by us produced in defence of those four grounds or principles mentioned in the beginning of this discourse, whereon we establish the right of infants baptism; and to vindicate those scriptures from your strained and injurious interpretations of them: Which being done, they will each of them stand in those eminent places of service, where they have been so long useful to the cause we defend.

As for your pretended solutions of the incomparable Mr. Baxter's, and the learned and accurate Dr. Burthogg's arguments, I admire at your confidence therein; and let me tell you, without breach of charity, it is an high piece of confidence in you, to throw the gantlet, and bid defiance to two such worthies yet alive, and easily able to detect your folly, in the weaknesses and impertinency of your answers. Alas! my friend, you little know what it is to have such weak and inartificial discourses as yours brought under the strict examen of such acute and judicious eyes. But,

——— Sic dama leonem
Insequitur, audetque viro concurret virgo.

Nor will I presume to anticipate either of their answers to your discourse (if they shall think it worthy of an answer);
but rather briefly reflect upon what you return to the arguments of those eminent divines that are gone to glory in the faith of that truth you oppose, and are not capable of defending their solid and regular interpretations of scriptures, against the notions you force upon them, contrary both to the grammar and scope of several of them.

And here, sir, in the beginning, let me mind you what a learned and judicious person faith, about all interpretations of scriptures: 'Four things (faith be) commend an interpretation, and establish it as a king upon the throne, against whom there is no rising up.'

First, If the latter and grammar of the text fairly bear it.

Secondly, If the scope and argument of the place will close directly with it.

Thirdly, If the interpretation set up against it, cannot stand before both, or either of the former.

Fourthly, If the judgment of learned, wise, and impartial men be found generally agreeable to it.

According to these rules (whereat you can have no just exception) I shall briefly, yet I hope clearly and sufficiently, answer some of the replies you make to the arguments of those deceased worthies: And,

(1.) In pag. 1. you produce Mr. William Allen's argument, ad hominem, against your practice: 'He tells you, your own principle condemns you; for you reject the baptizing of infants, because there is no example in the New Testament of it; and yet baptize persons at age, whose parents were Christians; which is as much without a gospel precedent, or example, as the former. The sum of your reply is, That tho' it should be granted, that there is no express example for the baptizing such in scripture, yet there are examples enough concerning the baptism of believers.'

Reply. Here you grant all that Mr. Allen objects; viz. that you are altogether without example or precedent for your practice: And object to him and us, what he nor we ever scrupled or denied; viz. 'The baptizing of some adult persons, upon the personal profession of their faith.' I have done it myself, and, in like circumstances, am ready to do it again.

Once you clearly yield it, that you have no precedent nor example for your practice in the gospel: That is all that he seeks, and what he seeks, you plainly grant. As to the precept and examples of baptizing adult believers, whose parents were unbelievers, and themselves never baptized in infancy, that is not the point you are now to speak to; nor have we any controvery about it. Certainly you are none of the finest persons in the world to clamour so loudly against us, for want of express precedents for infants baptism, whilst yourself confesses, you want even one precedent in the New Testament to legitimate your own practice; and in the mean time are found in the sinful neglect of a sweet and heavenly gospel-ordinance, viz. the singing of psalms, for which you have both precept and precedent in the gospel, Col. iii. 16. James v. 13. i Cor. xiv. 26.

(2.) It is objected against you, page 2. "That if the commission, Matth. xxviii. excludes none from baptism, but such as are to be excluded by the order therein to be observed; and if baptizing and teaching are to precede, or follow one the other, as there named by Christ, then these two conclusions will follow. (1.) That infants are not there excluded from baptism. (2.) That a person may be baptized, before he be taught; for there we have, First, Matthew xxviii. to disciple all nations; make them disciples, or Christians. Secondly, We have Baptizing and teaching; which, literally to translate, is baptizing and teaching. Now then discipling being a general word, that contains in it the two others that follow, viz. Baptizing and teaching; and being the imperative mood, whereas the other two are participles; it is manifest, that the whole command, or commission, is given in that, and the mode of execution in these. And if the mode of executing that general commission be expressed in these, where baptizing is first, and teaching comes after; what is become of the order of the Antipoedobaptists that have been so long talked of?"

The sum of your answer is, "That if baptizing be first, and teaching comes after; then it will follow, that the apostles understood not their commission aright; for they first preached, and then baptized them that by their preaching behaved. Acts viii. Acts x. Acts ii, with many other places you heap up to the same purpose. And therefore infants must be excluded by that commission, because uncapable of being taught. And therefore let us criticize as we please upon imperative moods and participles, the case is clear, teaching must go before baptizing."

Reply. It had been more modest to suspect that you understood not the text aright, than that the apostles understood not their commission aright. The order of the words (as this well fortified objection declares, and you cannot deny) puts teaching after baptizing. And though we should allow you, that they discipled adult persons by teaching, and taught others baptized in infancy, after their baptizing them; in both they followed their order and commission, in discipling the parents by preaching, and teaching their children baptized, by virtue of the promise to them, after their baptism. For he declares, Acts ii. the promise is to them, and to their children which gives a right to both unto baptism: And in teaching, according to the order of this commission, may be an antecedent duty to the parent, and a subsequent duty to him and his baptized children. For if Matthew includes teaching before baptizing, why should not Acts, which is put after baptizing, respect the subsequent duty of teaching both the one and other?

(3.) Mr. Allen’s next argument, mentioned by you, pag. 5, is taken from Matth. xix. 14. “Suffer little children to come unto me, and forbidd them not, for of such is the kingdom of heaven.” Whence he argues against your objection, of the incapacity of infants for baptism; that if they are capable of interest, or membership in the kingdom of heaven, or church, they are equally capable of the sign or cognizance, which is baptism.

To this you reply these things: (1.) That it remains to be proved, that these little children were infants, and not grown boys or girls, capable of making an actual profession of their faith in Christ. (2.) It is doubtful, whether they were for the present in the kingdom of God, or were only elected, and so in time should be of his kingdom. And (3.) whatever they were, they were brought unto Christ, who himself baptized not; not to his disciples, who did baptize.

Reply. Your first exception is vain and groundless: That they were very young, and little ones appears not only by Christ’s taking them in his arms, but from the very notation of the word παιδία, a diminutive word, signifying a little child, or infant. So John was called, when new-born, Luke i. 76. And Christ, when he lay in the manger; and Moses, when among the flags. And if this be not enough, St. Luke gives them another name, Luke xvii. 15. Τα βρέφη, infants; a word given to a child in the womb, Luke i. 41. And for what you object out of Piscator, that the same word is used of Timothy, who knew the scriptures from a child; it is an evident mistake or shift: For the word is, κατά βρέφω, he knew them, not being an infant, but from his childhood, or infancy; that is, when he had passed his infant-state, in which state these were that were brought unto Christ. And, (2.) Whereas you question their present right in the kingdom of God, or whether it were not future, by virtue of their election? The text will not allow your interpretation, 樾 ink राँ वी, Of such is: not, what, भाल be, the kingdom of God. Their present church-membership, asserted by Christ, is also a known rule, to regulate for the future the disciples' carriage towards them;
which was too severe, harsh, and therefore highly displeasing to Christ: But by telling them they were members of the church, or kingdom of heaven, (they being very probably the infants of believing parents, as their bringing them unto Christ with such affection, through the frowns and repulses of the disciples, shews) he gives them a known and plain rule, how to distinguish infants, and regulate their carriage towards them; which God's election can never be, that being an unrevealed secret. And, (3.) Whereas you say Christ did not baptize them: I reply, We never urged this scripture, to prove he did so; but only to prove their church-membership; which, methinks, Christ asserts as plainly as words can assert it, whence he faith, Of such is the kingdom of heaven. And though you use to quibble at the word 1 लेखा, of such, as though it respected not the present infants, but grown persons, resembling them in humble and innocent qualities; Mr. Sydenham hath sufficiently baffled that interpretation, by shewing its inconsistence with the scope and argument of that place, and how ridiculous this sense would be, when reduced to a formal argument.

(4.) The fourth argument you pretend to answer, pag. 8. is drawn from 1 Cor. vii. 14. "Else were your children unclean;
"but now are they holy." To this you answer two things:
(1.) That the holiness here spoken of, is not a federal, but a matrimonial holiness, namely, legitimacy; and is as much as to say, Your children are no bastards, seeing one of you is a believer.

Reply. If this be the true and genuine sense of this text, than all the children in the world, not immediately descended from one, or both believing parents, must of necessity be all bastards; their parents, how solemnly ever married, must live in uncleanness: And what mad work (think you) will this affirmation make in the world? And how many millions of persons will it nearly touch, both in point of honour and inheritance?

(2.) You say, though the holiness here spoken of, should be allowed to be a federal, or covenant holiness; yet for want of an express institution, it will not warrant our practice.
A Reply to Mr. Cary's solemn Call.

Reply. The holiness of the children being granted to be a covenant holiness, none can deny them to be within the covenant: how else come they to be holy by covenant? And if within the covenant, who can deny them the initiating sign, which is baptism? Or how shall they (ordinarily) be visibly admitted into the visible church without it? The connection betwixt their federal holiness, and right to baptism, will appear plain enough from Acts ii. 38, which you come next to speak to.

(5.) You attempt to answer Mr. Allen's argument from Acts ii. 38. "Be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ, for the remission of sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the holy Ghost. For the promise is unto you, and to your children, and unto all that are afar off, even as many as the Lord our God shall call."

On this text, you know, we lay a very great stress for the proof of infants baptism; and it deserves a remark, that you wholly suppress our arguments drawn from that text, but however return an answer to them all, such as it is. You first tell us, 'The promise here spoken of, is not a promise of any external privileges, but the promise of the gospel, or the grace of God in Christ Jesus.'

Secondly, 'That the promise was not to their children, as believers feed, nor to them, or any other uncalled by the Lord; but only a promise of remission of sins, and receiving the holy Ghost, upon their actual repentance; which infants cannot perform, and therefore cannot here be intended.' This is the true and whole sense of your answer.

Reply. Now, because you have wholly omitted our argument from this text (for which doubtless there was some reason) I think myself obliged to let the world know, how we expound it, and what we duly infer from that exposition of it; and then let the reader judge, whether by the fore-mentioned rules of a just interpretation, you or we are in the right.

(1.) We observe this famous text to contain the first argument used by the apostle, after Christ's ascension, to persuade the Jews to embraceChristianity, by repenting, and submitting themselves to baptism, the initiating sign of it; and therefore here we justly expect much light about this controverted point: Nor doth the apostle, in this text, deceive our expectation.

(2.) We take it for granted, that the direct and proper
A Reply to Mr. Cary's Solemn Call.

...scope of this place, is to persuade the Jews (to whom St. Peter preached) to repent, and be baptized. 'This you allow; when you say, p. 10. 'He uses it as a motive, why they and theirs should actually repent, and be baptized.' In these two then there is no controversy.

(3.) We take it for certain, that the promise here referred to by Peter, is that gracious promise, Gen. xvii. 7. 'I will be a God to thee, and to thy seed after thee.' The adjoining of their children to them, faith Calvin, (and with him runs the general current of expositors) depends on the words of that promise, Gen xvii. 6. If you be not satisfied with this, but rather will refer it to Joel ii. 28. you are then obliged to answer Mr. Sydenham's arguments a fortiori, from that reference. But you make no exception at all to this accommodation of it: And then the sense must be this; the promise shall run as before, 'to you and to your children.'

(4.) We say, that except it had had relation to the covenant with Abraham, there had been no occasion, or reason at all, here to have mentioned children as well as parents: 'The promise is to you, and to your children.' It had been enough, if he had only intended the believing parents, exclusive of their infant seed, to have said, The promise is made to 'as many as the Lord our God shall call.' What reason, or occasion, was there to bring in their children at all?

(5.) We find here the children both of believing Jews and Gentiles, mentioned in the promise, accompanying the precept of baptism; and the precept to them built on the promise, as that which gave them their title to baptism; thus you mustframe, 'For the promise is to you, and to your children.' In the same line that he mentions baptism, he also mentions the promise upon which their right is founded; and in the same breath with which he mentions their children, he also mentions the promise: which he would never have done, had his design been to have excluded their children from both, or either of them; especially seeing their children had been so long in the possession of both. These things are obvious, natural, and every way agreeable, both to the grammar and scope of the text. Whence we argue:

Arg. If the promise be the same to believers under the gospel, that ever it was to Abraham and his natural seed; then the children of believers, by virtue thereof, have as good a title to baptism, as Abraham's children had to circumcision:

But the promise is the same: Ergo, &c.

Next let us consider your answers:
A Reply to Mr. Cary's solemn Call

(i.) You say, The promise, here spoken of, is not a promise of any external privilege, but the promise of the gospel.

Reply. Your distinction is vain and groundless; for it opposeth promises, that contain external privileges, to gospel promises, contrary to 1 Tim. iv. 8. "Godliness hath the promise of the life that now is, and of that which is to come." Secondly, Circumcision then, and baptism now, which have both their foundation in that promise, contain privileges in them of both sorts. This no man can deny, but he that thinks it no privilege to be admitted into the visible church, by the external iniating sign, and to be thereby distinguished from the Pagan world. You have no warrant, therefore, to divide those things which God hath united.

(ii.) You say, The promise was not to them as believers seed, nor to any uncalled by the Lord.

Reply. Your meaning is, that these words [as many as the Lord shall call.] are a limitation of the promise to them only, whether parents or children, that are actually called. Let this your interpretation be compared with, and examined by the scope of the text, which you confessed before to be a motive to persuade them and theirs to repentance and baptism, and see if it can stand before it, as ours doth. For if this be the meaning, then the apostle's argument must run thus: 'I exhort you, convinced Jews, to repentance and Christian baptism: for whereas you, and your children, have hitherto been an holy seed, and the promise formerly was to them as well as you; but now the case is altered: if you yourselves repent, and be baptized, you shall have the benefit of the promise; but as for your children, they shall be in the same case, and state, with the children of Pagans and infidels. Indeed, if any of your children shall hereafter believe, they shall have benefit by the promise, but no more than the children of Pagans and infidels, which upon repentance shall be equal with them. "Repent ye therefore, and be baptized; for the promise is unto you, and to your children." This, and no other, must the apostle's motive be, according to your interpretation and limitation of his words.

We make the motive or argument to run thus: 'God hath now remembered his covenant to Abraham, in sending that blessed seed, in whom he promised to be the God of him, and his seed; yea, and of all believing Gentiles, as well as Jews and their children: do not you, therefore, by your unbelief, deprive both yourselves, and your dear children, of the mer...
A Reply to Mr Cary's Solemn Call.

Cries and privileges of so great a promise? "Repent, there-fore, and be baptized; for the promise is unto you, and to your children," &c. Let the impartial reader judge both, and the acknowledged scope of the place determine the matter. And as it cannot stand with the scope of the place, so neither (as Mr. Sydenham * hath plainly evinced) with the grammar of the text, nor rules of logic, by which, according to your exposition, the word [children] must be redundant and superfluous, as being neither comprehended under Jews or Gentiles, those that are near, or far off: into which two classes, or ranks, the text distributes the whole world; but must stand out of the text; as a party, by themselves, though expressly mentioned in it, as those to whom the promise belongs. But enough of this.

(6.) Having vindicated Acts ii. 38, 39. which confirms our fourth assertion, viz. the identity of the promise the Jews were, and we are under; we proceed next to vindicate Col. ii. 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, whereby we prove the succession of baptism to circumcision, and vindicate it from that foreign sense you force upon it, to the great injury of the text, as well as of our infants, whom you exclude from any concernment therein.

Without any representation at all of the grounds on which we proceed, to prove the succession of this ordinance to that, you (as rashly as confidently) call it a groundless inference; which, whether it be or no, let the impartial judge, when they shall see the grounds on which we build that assertion.

(1.) It is out of controversy, that the scope of this place is to take off the Colossians from circumcision, and other Jewish rites and ceremonies, which the false teachers at that time earnestly endeavoured to reduce them to; as appears, ver. 4. to be his plain design: "And this I say, lest any man should beguile you with enticing words." And he saith it with great concernment of mind, as appears ver. 1.

(2.) It is as plain, that the argument by which he establishes them in the truth of the gospel, and secures them against the danger of returning to those Jewish rites, especially circumcision, is drawn from their completeness in Christ without it; ver. 9, and 10. And that whatsoever they had under circumcision, they now enjoy in as complete and full a measure and manner, as ever Abraham and his seed did. "And ye are complete in him," (i.e.) in Christ.

(3.) To evince this, he instanceth in the very case then under

* Infant Baptism, p. 44, 45.
A Reply to Mr. Cary's Solemn Call.

debate, viz. circumcision, ver. 11, 12. And first distinguishing of a twofold circumcision, one made with, and the other without hands, which he calls the circumcision of Christ: he tells them, as to both of these, (namely, inward circumcision of the heart, and the external sign thereof too) both are fully answered in baptism; "In whom also ye are circumcised with the circumcision made without hands; in putting off the body of the sins of the flesh, by the circumcision of Christ, buried with him in baptism," ver. 11, 12. That is, look, as before inward circumcision of the heart was signified by outward circumcision of the flesh, as the proper, direct, and appointed sign of it; so now, the same inward circumcision, or regeneration of the soul, is as really and fully signified to you, by the new gospel sign of it, which is baptism: and therefore you are as complete, in respect both of outward and inward privileges now, as ever Abraham and his seed were. Do but convert the proposition, and suppose the apostle's design had been to take them off from baptism, and bring them back to circumcision; and in order to it had said, "In whom ye are also baptized with the baptism of Christ, being circumcised with him:" would not the substitution of circumcision in the place of baptism have been clear? And why is not this as clear as that would have been?

(4.) We further say, That except he had intended in these words to have placed baptism as an external ordinance, in place and stead of outward circumcision, he could never have pitched upon a worse instance than that of circumcision, which was so much valued by them: yea, from the very instance he brings, he had put a strong objection into their mouths, against his assertion, ver. 10. That we are every way as complete without it, as the Jews were with it; for then their children enjoyed an ordinance of great value, which ours are deprived of, having none under the gospel in lieu of it. Hence we argue:

Argument. If the ordinance of baptism now be appointed to answer the same ends that the circumcision did to the Jews, and to make us every way as complete in privileges as circumcision did them, then it comes in the place and room of it; and our children have the same right to this, as theirs had to that.

But the antecedent is plain, from the scope and argument of the apostle in this text and context: Ergo, So is the consequent.

The sum of your answer is, (1.) 'That circumcision in the flesh, is neither expressed nor meant here, but that of Christ in his own person. (2.) That if baptism had been intended to have come in the place of circumcision, then it would follow, that females must be excluded from baptism.'

Reply. Your first answer is manifestly false: for if the apostle distinguishes of a twofold circumcision, one made with hands, the other made without hands; then it is manifest, he means the circumcision in the flesh, which is now abolished, and all its ends and uses answered in gospel baptism. And whereas you say, The circumcision here spoken of, is no other but the circumcision of Christ in his own person; I would gladly know how the Colossians are said to be circumcised in Christ's personal circumcision only? And whether the baptism here spoken of, wherewith they are said to be buried with him, be not meant of Christ's personal baptism too; and, consequently, there is no need of the outward ordinance to pass upon them, or us; but especially, it is worth while for you to explain the reason why he calls the Colossians circumcision, a circumcision of Christ made without hands, if he only intends Christ's personal circumcision; when we all know, that Christ's personal circumcision was a circumcision made with hands; and could not possibly be such a circumcision as theirs was, consisting in the putting off the body of the sins of the flesh, or mortification of their corruptions. Christ had no sin by propagation, to put off or mortify in his own person.

(2.) Your second answer is no less absurd; That, if baptism, according to our argument, succeeds in the place of circumcision, then females must be excluded from baptism. You had as good have said, that the enlargement of the privilege under the gospel, is no good medium to prove we are as complete now under baptism as they were under circumcision. Cannot baptism stand in the place of circumcision, because it answers all its ends with an advantage? This, to me, is a very strange answer; however, it must stand in the place of a better, rather than baptism shall stand in the place of circumcision.

Object. But if baptism succeed in the room of circumcision, and there be such an analogy betwixt them, as you pretend; then it will follow, that you are obliged to baptize your children on the eighth day, as they circumcised theirs.

Sol. The objection is frivolous and vain: no man, that I know, doubts, but the Lord's supper succeeds in the room and place of the passover. Christ was the substance of that, as well as this; and that was abrogated by his institution of this, the very same night: as soon as he and his disciples had celebrated the one, the other was instituted, and immediately suc-
A Reply to Mr. Cary's Sollemn Call.

Cceeded it. And yet Christians are not obliged to the same month, day, or hour, for the celebration of the Lord's supper: the analogy is betwixt the substantial parts of both; amongst which, the spiritual mystery, principal ends, and proper subjects, are of principal consideration; not the minuter circumstances of time and place. In the passover and the Lord's supper, there is a correspondence betwixt the proper subjects of both. No uncircumcised person, or stranger to the covenant, might eat of that, Exod. xii. 43, 48. No unbelieving person, uncircumcised in heart, hath a right to this, 1 Cor. xi. 27, 28. So in the other; the infants of God's covenanted people were the proper subjects of circumcision then, and so they are (say we) of baptism now; for the same promise is still to believers and their children, Acts ii. 38, 39. Here lies the analogy, and not in the variable circumstances of time.

Whereas you say, pag. 12. Baptism cannot succeed circumcision, because it leaves no character or mark upon the body, as that did. This very objection of yours is borrowed in express words from Socinus, that enemy of Christ, in disp. de bapt. pag. 113, and fully answered by Maccovius, loc. com. pag. 830, 831.

Object. But it will be further said, That according to our opinion, there can be no analogy, or correspondency, betwixt the very subjects of both ordinances: for infants, at eight days old, were the proper subjects of circumcision; but the subjects of baptism were adult believers, from the time of its first institution: and so the analogy fails in the very subjects.

Sol. This objection is grounded upon a great mistake: it is your opinion, not ours, that destroys it; for with us it lies fairly in these three respects of it. (1.) We find, that at the first institution of circumcision, Abraham, the father, at ninety years old, and all the men of his house, were first circumcised, Gen. xvii. 25, 26, 27. Answerably, at the first institution of baptism, parents, masters of families, &c. being adult believers, were first baptized. (2.) After the circumcision of Abraham, and the men of his house, their infant-seed were also circumcised, the promise belonging to them, as well as their parents. Answerably, under the gospel, the whole families of believers were baptized; and the promise runs to their infants under the gospel, as it did before, Acts ii. 39. (3.) As in the days of circumcision, if any stranger that had not been circumcised in his infancy, should afterward become a proselyte, and join himself to the Lord, he was to be circumcised, of whatever age he was: so now, if any infidel shall be converted, he is to be baptized, upon his personal profession of faith, and so much for the a logy. As for your correspondence of identity, I cannot und-stand it.

I meet with little more in your first part, wherein I have any concernment; only there I find four arguments, in mood and figure, against the innovation of symbolical rites, by human authority, into the worship of God; which is certainly the best page in your book: and of them I have nothing to say, but that they are good ware; and I very well know the mark and number of that parcel of goods, and to whom they properly belong.

But yet before I dismiss your book, I think myself concerned to vindicate one place of scripture more, viz. Rom. xi. 16, 17.
which I alleged in the beginning for the confirmation of our first proposition, viz. That God's covenant with Abraham, Gen.
xvii. is the same covenant for substance we Gentile believers are now under. "If the first-fruits be holy, the lump is also holy: and if the root be holy, so are the branches. And if some of the branches be broken off, and thou, being a wild
" olive, were grafted in among them, and with them partakest
" of the root and fatness of the olive-tree, boast not against the " branches," &c. This place is deservedly of great value with us, to prove, that we Gentile believers, with our infant-feed, are invested under the gospel with the same substantial privileges that the Jews and their infants formerly enjoyed. Here, without opening one term, you proceed, in your wonted manner, consistently to deny the arguments of our learned divines from this place. I shall therefore open this famous text, and regularly deduce the right of Gentile believers infants to baptism from it. And here, keeping to the rules above;

(1.) I note, that verses 13, 14, 15. give us the true level and scope of the apostle's argument, which is to prove the calling-in-again of the Jews, though for the present broken off; and on this ground to excite himself to all diligence for their conversion, and suppress all glorying and boasting in the Gentile believers, as if they were more worthy than those, because they fill their rooms and places.

(2.) To prove the calling again of the Jews, he argues strongly, verse 16. from the foederal holiness derived to the branches from their root or ancestors; namely, Abraham, Isiac, and Jacob, with whom the covenant was made, Gen. xvii.
" For if the first-fruit be holy, the lump is also holy; and if " the root be holy, so are the branches;" i.e. Abraham, Isiac, and Jacob, being in covenant with God, a foederal holiness is from them derived to the branches. And this can be no other than a foederal holiness; because those their ancestors were utterly un-capable to transmit any inherent holiness to them, that being the incommunicable prerogative of God. This foederal holiness lying still in the root (the covenant with Abraham) will recover the branches again to life, though at present many of them be broken off; as Job speaks in another case, Job xiv. 7, 8, 9: "There is hope of a tree, though it be cut down, that it will " sprout again, and that the tender branch thereof will not " cease; though the root thereof wax old in the earth, and " the stock thereof dry in the ground; yet through the scent " of water it will bud, and bring forth boughs like a plant."

(3.) We affirm, by the authority of this text, That all the Jewish nation was not broken off, but only a part of it: So the 17th verse plainly declares; "And if some of the branches be " broken off," &c. Not all, but some; for many of them were converted to Christ; we read of three thousand at one sermon, Acts ii. and multitudes more at other times. All these converted Jews stood in the apostle's time as branches in the true olive, still enjoying all their privileges; and that which brake off them that were broken off, was nothing else but their own unbelief: Ver. 20. "Well then, because of unbelief they " were broken off." For at the promulgation of the gospel, a new article was added to their creed; namely, That this same Jesus, whom they had crucified, is the promised and true Messiah. This some believed, and so stood by faith, still enjoying all their ancient privileges of the covenant: Others believed not, and their unbelief broke them off.

(4.) We find in this place two sorts of branches growing upon this root Abraham; some natural branches; namely, Jews by nature, embracing Christ by faith; others wild and foreign branches, viz. Gentiles by nature, but ingrafted by faith, and by their ingrafture growing among the natural branches, and with them partaking of the root and fatness of the olive-tree, verse 17. that is, the rich privileges of the covenant and prommise to Abraham, Gen. xvii. "I will be a God to thee, and to " thy seed." This is the sweet juice, or fatness of the olive-tree, which both sorts of branches live upon, ver. 17. some on the external, others on the internal; some on both.

(5.) These naturally wild, but now ingrafted branches, viz: the believing Gentiles, being grafted by faith amongst the natural branches, and with themucking the fatness of the same root and olive; that is to say, the privileges, ordinances, and franchises of the church; we cannot but judge it to be a natural, clear, and necessary consequent, that the same privileges the natural branches once had, and the remaining branches (amongst whom the Gentile believers were ingrafted) then had; the very same the Gentile believers, and their children, do now enjoy, by virtue of their interest in the same root; else we cannot understand how we should be laid to partake with them of the root and fatness of the olive. Certainly the sap is the same which the root sends into all the branches, whether they be natural, or ingrafted ones; and is as plentifully communicated to the ingrafted, as to the natural branches: For the watering of this olive with the more rich and plentiful grace of the gospel, must make the olive-tree as fat and flourishing as ever it was, to supply all its branches, and more than ever before.
A Reply to Mr. Cary's solemn Call.

Seeing then we Gentiles have (1.) the same grafting into the true olive; and (2.) that our present grafting in, is answerable to their present casting out; and (3.) that their re- ingrafting, in the end of the world, shall be the same for substance that ours now is, and their own first was: For when they were first taken in, they, and their children, were taken in together; when they were broken off, they and their children were broken off together; and when they shall be taken in again, they and their children shall be taken in again: And (4.) seeing all these their expected mercies are secured to them by the covenant made with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, which will extend again to them when their unbelief shall be taken away; methinks (as was said before) nothing can be clearer than this conclusion, That we Gentile believers are now invested with the same privileges they once enjoyed; and our children have the same federal holiness or relation to the covenants theirs had, by being grafted amongst them, and living on the same sap they did, and that by the same promise, Acts ii. 39.

But you will say, There is no mention here made of the grafting in of our children with us. We reply, Neither is there any mention here made of the breaking off of their children with them; which yet was so. Nor was there need to say it, seeing both their infants and ours are comprehended in the parents, as twigs are comprehended in the branch, or buds in the graft, and the one being holy, so is the other. And this federal holiness of the children is not only mentioned in this chapter, ver. 16. but also in 1 Cor. vii. 14. Now are your children holy. And the very same promise, which conveyed the fatness of the olive to Abraham's natural seed, manifestly extends itself to the Gentile believers seed, Acts ii. 38, 39. And if men will not shut their eyes, and study evasions, what can be plain:
A Reply to Mr. Cary's solemn Call

Cer from scripture than this explication and application of this place? We have with us the consent of the generality of orthodox expositors; the sense itself is genuine, easy, and unconstrained, agreeable with the letter and scope of the text. Whether the sense you set up against it, be as probable as this, we come next to examine. And truly, sir, your answer is as ambiguous as a Delphic oracle: For (1.) you tell us, page 8. That the ingrafting spoken of in this place, is into the invisible church, by election. We say, it is into the visible church, by profession of faith; for we know not how to understand any breaking off from the invisible church, or falling from election: But it is like, you better considered the consequents of that opinion, drawn upon you by Mr Sydenham, in his 85th page; and therefore, nauseating those dregs of Arminianism, you speak more orthodoxly to the point, page 27.; where you honestly acknowledge, That the church of the Jews and Gentiles, as to the true essence and inward substance of either, is one and the same: In which respect, the believing Gentiles, according to the apostle's metaphor, are here said to be grafted in amongst them, and, with them, to be made partakers of the root and fatness of the olive-tree: And in reference hereunto, it is rightly added by the apostle, that the gifts and callings of God are without repentance: The inward substance of the church, and covenant of grace, whereon it is founded, being invariable, and which shall for ever remain immoveable, though the outward form and administration be not so. Well then, from hence we have gained two things: (1.) That the church of the Jews and Gentiles are essentially and substantially the same church. (2.) That the Jews were not broken off from the invisible church, or from faith and election; for these, you truly say, are invariable and immoveable: And if you had denied it, the apostle assures us, that the foundation of God stands sure; and that the gifts and callings of God are without repentance. But what then was their breaking off, and the Gentiles grafting in, which made this great alteration in the church? Can it be any thing else, but our ingrafting into the visible church, by the profession of our faith, from whence the Jews were broken off for their unbelief? For certainly, from the invisible church they were not broken off, and into the invisible church, multitudes of professing Christians are not ingrafted. It is evident, therefore, by grafting us into the olive-tree, he means the visible church; and by the fatness thereof, the ordinances and privileges of that church. Though we deny not but all sincere profession are... members of the invisible church also, and do belong to the election of grace; but that is not the breaking off, or grafting in, here spoken of.

And now, having given up Mr. Tóbémé's notion of the invisible church, and election, you are again put to your shifts; and must either shuffle, and seek to hide yourself in an heap of strange and unintelligible distinctions, or (which had been much fairer) honestly have yielded the cause; and, wherever you meet with them, I find a whole troop of distinctions rallied together for this purpose, page 23, 24.

* This grafting in (say you) may be either into the visible, or invisible church; either by faith, profession of faith, or by some outward ordinance. Children may be either grown men, or infants. The ingrafting in may be either certain, or probable. Certain, either by reason of election, or their natural birth, being children of believers. Probable, as being likely; either because frequently, or for the most part, it happens so: Though necessary, and so not certain. The thing to be proved, is, That the children of believers are in the covenant of free grace in Christ, and by virtue thereof, to be baptized into the communion of the visible church.

Reply. Words enough, and distinctions enough, to reduce the text to an indivisible point. But whither doth all this tend? I will ask you two or three plain questions, and then make what use you please of your distinctions. (1.) Whether the breaking off of the Jews, and the ingrafting of the Gentiles, here spoken of, have relation to the invisible church by election, or to the visible church by profession of faith, and some outward ordinance? (2.) Whether, if it were into the visible church by profession of faith that the Gentile believers were grafted in, as doubtless it was (and by relinquishing the former sense, you here seem to yield it, saying, this ingrafture may be certain, upon the account of natural birth, being children of believers); then I would fain know, why you so state the question, as to make the certainty of believers children's interest in Christ to be the only ground of their admission into the communion of the visible church? This (say you) must first be proved, or no baptism for them.

Alas, poor infants! to what hard terms are they here tied up? Very much harder than the terms any of your own society are tied to: And if baptism must be suspended, till this point can be cleared, that the person to be baptized be first in Christ, and in the covenant of free grace, as to the saving benefits thereof; then farewell to all baptism, both of infants and adult pro-
A Reply to Mr. Cary's solemn Call.

For how can you prove, that the persons you baptize, are all, or any of them, really in Christ? May they not deceive you, as Simon Magus did Peter? I did not think you had proceeded in this matter upon a certainty, but a probability: And if you proceed with yours upon the grounds of probability; how come you to tie up the children of believers, to a certainty of their interest in Christ as the antecedent suspendent condition of their baptism? We need dispute no more about the proper subjects of baptism, for by this account we have lost the ordinance of baptism itself.

We thought, sir, that our children's title to baptism was derived to them from their believing parents, as the children of the Jews was to circumcision, from their circumcised and professing parents; and that the same promise which conveyed their children privilege to them, Gen. xvii. had conveyed the right of believers children to baptism unto them also, Acts ii. 38, 39. and that the root being holy, the branches are holy also, that is foederally holy, Rom. xi. 16. But to this you make such an answer as astonishes me to read, page 26; where allowing Abraham to be the root, you say, "The holiness here spoken of, is first in respect of God's election; holiness personal and inherent, in God's intention: Eph. i. 4. "He hath chosen us in him, that we should be holy." (1.) It is also holiness derivative; but not from any ancestors, but from Abraham only; and that not as a natural, but a spiritual father; where- in he is a lively image, or figure of Christ, and is derived from the covenant of grace, which passed in his name to him and his seed. And, lastly, it shall be inherent, being actually communicated by the Spirit of God, when they shall be actually called.'

Reply. Here we see into what brakes and pits men run themselves, when they depart from the plain and safe path in explications of scripture. Here is such a tripartite distinction of holiness, as I never met with before. (1.) Here is personal holiness inherent in God's intention. By this you must either mean sanctification decreed for them, and to be bestowed on them at the time of their calling; and then it is coincident with the third member of your distinction. Or else you mean, that it is holiness inherent in the intention of God, as an accident in its subject; and then the simplicity of God's nature resists your incongruous notion. But it would be a less crime, to confound the first with the last member of your vain and self-created diction, than to speak things so repugnant to the simple and uncompounded nature of God.
A Reply to Mr. Cary's solemn Call.

Or if your meaning be, That this holiness is in God by way of intention, but in them by way of imputation; that will not deliver you out of your confusion neither, but run you into greater: For then you confound the immanent with the transient acts of God, and make the same thing at the same time, to be purely in intention, and in execution; or to be only in God's purpose to bestow hereafter, and yet, at the present, inherent in the persons he intends it for: So that I must leave your strange notion of personal holiness inherent in God's intention, to be cleared by a more metaphysical head than mine; or else to stand, among other rare and unintelligible notions, to be admired and applauded by the ignorant reader.

But then, when we come to the second member of your distinction, I am as much at a loss to find your sense as before: For there you tell us, 'The holiness here spoken of, is a derivative holiness also; and that from Abraham only; and from him, not as a natural, but a spiritual father, resembling Christ in this.'

Reply. This word derivative is an equivocal word, and may signify either inherent personal holiness, or foederal holiness; for both of them are derived. If you say the former, it looks too black and horrid for me to believe you mean it, though you should say you mean it; for then you make Abraham not only the figure and image of Christ, as you speak, but Christ himself, by attributing to Abraham Christ's incommunicable property and prerogative. Then Abraham may say to all his children, as Christ doth, John xv. 4, 5. 'I am the vine, ye are the branches, &c.' I am he that sanctifies you. But if you mean the last (as necessarily you must, if you mean any thing that hath orthodox sense in it) then this derivative holiness you speak of, is not personal holiness, or internal sanctification, but foederal holiness, derived from covenanted ancestors, or parents to their children; and therein you come over to us, and to the true sense of the text. But why must this be squeezed from you with so much difficulty? And why did you hide this foederal holiness under an equivocal term, lest you should seem to yield the controversy with a word? This is not fair.

Object. If you say we are too hasty, and triumph before the victory: Far though you do yield it to be a foederal holiness, yet it is such as can be derived from no other father, or progenitor, but Abraham only.

Sol. Yes, sir, I hope you will allow Isaac and Jacob, at least, to be the root and first-fruit, as well as Abraham, seeing the covenant was jointly and expressly made with them all three, and thereby they became root and first-fruit of that holy nation: And if that people be called the seed of Abraham, they are also called the seed of Jacob; and if father-hood be ascribed to Abraham, it is ascribed to Jacob too, Isa. lviii. 14. And if Abraham be first named in the covenant, so is Jacob: See Lev. xxvii. 42. But if you allow these three patriarchs, perhaps that is all you will allow; for you seem to say, that no foederal holiness can be derived from any other progenitors. Good sir, whatever your own private opinion be in this matter, allow us to believe otherwife, as long as those scriptures, 1 Cor. vii. 14. and Acts ii. 39. stand in our Bibles: For we cannot think but the foederal holiness of children results from the immediate parent's faith, or covenant-interest, as well as from the remote progenitors; else we cannot understand how the Corinthians children should be holy, or how the promise should belong to the children of them that are afar off, viz. the Gentiles, who could derive no such thing to their children by a lineal descent from Abraham, but only as they became ingrafted branches by faith; and so suck the fatness of the olive to themselves, and to their huds, or children, as the natural branches did. I desire you to consider also, how this covenant passed, as you say it did, to Abraham and his seed, in Christ's name, if it be the same with Adam's covenant? Did that pass to Adam in Christ's name too?
A Reply to Mr. Cary's solemn Call.

I have now dispatched what I at first promised and intended, viz. the confutation of my friends mistakes about the covenants; and the vindication of those scriptures, by which our arguments, deduced from one of them, are confirmed. And now I have no farther concernment with Mr. Cary's solemn call; save only to note his high confidence, rash, and most unchristian cenures, of all his differing friends and brethren, with which he concludes his discourse; wherein he calls infants baptism.

(1.) A great abuse in the divine worship, page 242, 243. And yet he that so calls it, never looked half way into the controversy; nor is able, without manifest shuffling, and contradiction, both to the words of God, and his own words, to answer our arguments; as is here made too evident.

(2.) That it is no other than a change of a divine institution, and making void the commandment of Christ, the horrid sin charged by Christ upon those hypocrites, the Scribes and Pharisees, Matth. xv. 6. With no better than these doth he rank and associate the many thousands of God's choice and dear people, who differ in this circumstantial point from him.

(3.) He compares it with the sin of Nadab and Abihu; and with that of Israel, with respect to the ark, 1 Chron. xv. 13. A sin, which provoked the Lord to execute judgment, by an immediate stroke in fire from heaven upon them. Thus Mr Cary is ready to call for fire from heaven upon his brethren. Alas, poor man! he knows not what spirit he is of, as Christ told the disciples in a like case. It is well we are not in his hands, to execute the wrath, as well as charge the guilt upon us. But I hope all this is but rashness in him.

(4.) He affirms it to be no less than a transgressing of the law, a changing of the ordinances, and a breaking of the everlasting covenant. If it be a transgressing of the law, he should have shewn us in what scripture that law that forbids it is, or where God hath repealed his former grant to the children of his covenant-people. And for the changing of the ordinances, I am of opinion, it is he that is guilty of that sin, and not we: For we have proved, God settled this privilege upon the infant-seed of his people; that the promise, under the gospel, continues still to them; and if he exclude them from baptism, he changes the ordinance of God. And for breaking the everlasting covenant, for which he cites Isa. xxiv. 5, 6. the Lord make him sensible of the danger he hath put himself under, from that very text he produces against us; for it is manifest, that the covenant here spoken of, is God's covenant with Abraham, renewed with the Israelites at Sinai, which in that text is truly called an everlasting covenant; when, mean time, Mr. Cary hath pronounced it to be an Adam's covenant, and now utterly abolished. Who is it, sir, that fights against, and changes this everlasting covenant, you or we, that are for its continuance to us and our children?

(5.) He affirms these things to be of highest concernment to us. If so, then sure it must follow, that repentance from dead works, and faith towards our Lord Jesus Christ, must be inferior things to them; for nothing can be higher than the highest, or equal with it. And then by making them the chief fundamentals in religion, as that expression doth (if it be not a vain and sinful hyperbole) the salvation or damnation of men depends upon compliance or non-compliance with them. And then, whither must you send all God's people in the world, that differ from you? Sir, I find your brethren in the appendix to their confession of faith, page 110, placing one of these which you make of highest concernment, among the other circumstances of religion; and doubtless that is in its proper place: Nor do I see how they can free themselves from participation in your sin, till they have admonished you for it, and caused you to expunge it out of your book.

(6.) That is a settling of your thresholds by God's threshold:
These words you recite from Ezek. xliii. 8. which speak of the idolatrous kings of Judah and Israel building temples and altars for their idols, in or near the courts of the temple of God; as the English annotations on the text will inform you; an abomination that defiled God's holy name, a wickedness not to be named, and for which the Lord consumed them, and calls it whoredom in the next words. Here, sir, you have exceeded all the bounds of society and Christian charity, and made this circumstantial difference about the proper subject of baptism the grossest heathenish idolatry in the world; and consequently dissolved the bonds of Christian charity, and broken off all communion with us; for with such idolaters you ought not to have any communion.

Your more wise and moderate brethren, in the place abovecited, tell us, 'They are loth hereby to alienate their affections or conversations from any that fear the Lord, and are willing to participate of the labours of those whom God hath endowed with abilities above themselves; qualified and called to the mistry of the word; desirous of peace, and not of renewed contentions hereabout.' This is a language of another air: And if they be (as I dare not suspect but they are) sincere in that profession, they dare not comprobate such a desperate and un-Christian censure as yours is: If they do, then we may easily guess what our lot and treatment shall be, whenever Anabaptism gets the ascendant in England; we may expect as civil usage as is due to gross idolaters, and no better: But I hope better things.

(7.) You say, that as these things are of highest concernment, so they ought to be our most serious practice and endeavour, page 243. ult. Good Lord! whither hath zeal for an opinion transported you! Our most serious practice and endeavour! Sir, I thought the most serious practice of a minister had been to preach Christ and salvation to the souls of men, and not to baptize: I am sure St. Paul reckoned so; Christ sent me not to baptize, but to preach; that is, baptism is not my principal work, or main business. And ver. 14th, he thanks God he had baptized none of them but Crispus and Gaius. I believe he never uttered such an expression about his other work of preaching Christ. And for all Christians, I thought the securing of their interest in Christ, living in the duties of communion with him, watching their hearts, and mortifying their corruptions, had been the object matter of their most serious practice, and faithful endeavour; and not the litigations about baptism. But I hope these were only inconsiderate expressions, falling from your pen, whilst you were in a paroxysm of zeal, or a transport in the height of a conceited triumph: But whatever was the cause, I am sure you ought to revoke and repent such words.

(8.) You wish your testimony rise not up at last as a witness against us. Sir, we do not apprehend any cause we have to fear your testimony against us, or severest censures of us, whilst we are satisfied, that as you neither have the faculty or commission to be our judge, so neither is there any convincing evidence in your reply to our arguments. But I think you have much more cause to fear, lest those arguments should come in at last as a witness against you, who deny and contemn them; when, mean time, you are put to most lamentable shifts, even contradictions, and somewhat worse, to escape the point and edge of them.

(9.) To conclude, You tell us, we must not expect the special presence of Christ to be afforded to us, without our compliance in these points with you.

Sir, we never yet deserted the judgment or practice of infants baptism, and yet have had (blessed be Jesus Christ for it) great and manifold, sweet and signal proofs and evidences of his presence with us: He hath owned and blessed our ministry to the conversion of many; and there are some, and those not mean, or few, of our spiritual children, now in your societies in England, who have acknowledged us to be the first instruments of their conversion: The Lord lay it not to their charge, who now desert that ministry in which they first received Christ! But as for the departure of his presence, I assure you, friend, I am more afraid of the rents and divisions you now renew so unseasonably among the churches of Christ, than of any one thing amongst us beside. It grieved my soul to see you, quieta movere, awake a sleeping controversy, especially in such a season, when we are little more than half delivered from our enemies and dangers; you take us by the heel, as Jacob did his brother, whilst but yet in the birth. Sir, except you return to a more quiet and Christian temper, than you seem here to be in, I am out of hope that ever you and I shall see those blessed days, we have so often, with pleasure, comforted ourselves with the hopes of. However, extend
Your charity (if you have any left) so far; as to believe that I am one, notwithstanding of all this, that am studious of the church's peace, and inquisitive into the rules of duty, not daring to hold any truth of God in unrighteousness; and yet well satisfied I am, in the path of my duty, wherein, though we cannot walk together, yet I hope to meet you at the end of our way, in our Father's house, where perfect light and peace dwells.

And here I had put an end to this debate, had I not received your return to some of these sheets, whilst the last of them was under my hand; wherein I only find four things in which I am concerned. In general, you tell me, 'You are not convinced of any error, by what I have said.' I am sorry to hear it: But considering the nature of error on one side, and the difficulty of self-denial on the other, you have not much deceived my expectation. More particularly,

(1.) You say, As to your hooking the Sinai covenant into this controversy, I gave you the first occasion of it; for when you shewed me your papers about God's covenant with Abraham, I told you, that you were best first to try if you could prove the covenant at Sinai to be a covenant of works; for as much as our divines are so far from conceiting the covenant with Abraham to be a covenant of works, that they will not allow the Sinai law itself to be so; and to convince you of it, I lent you Mr. Roberts and Mr. Sedgwick on the covenant, to enlighten and satisfy you about it: But little, did I think you had confidence enough to enter the lists with two such learned and eminent divines; and make them to follow your triumphant chariot, shackled with the incomparable Baxter and Allen, Sydenham and Burthogg, like three pair of noble prisoners of war. But whatever was the occasion (setting aside your sin?) I am not sorry you have given a fit opportunity to enlighten the world in that point also.

(2.) You seem to fancy in your letter, that I once was of your opinion about the moral law, because you find these passages in a sermon of mine, upon John viii. 36. "If the Son therefore shall make you free, than are you free indeed;" viz.

That the law required perfect working, under pain of that curse; accepted no short endeavours, admitted no repentance, and gave no strength." But finding me here pleading for the law, you think you find me in a contradiction to that doctrine.
The words I own; the contradiction I positively deny; for I speak not there, and here, ad idem; for in that sermon, and in those very words you cite, I speak against the law, not as God intended it, when he added it to the promise; but as the ignorance and infidelity of unregenerate men, make it to themselves a covenant of works, by looking upon it as the very rule and reason of their justification before God: This was the stumbling-stone at which all legal justiciaries then did, and still do stumble, Rom. ix. 31, 32, 33. In this sense the apostle, in his epistles to the Romans and Galatians, argues against the law, and so do I in the words you cite; but vindicate the law in the very same sermon you mention, as consistent with, and subservient to Christ, in the former sense; and therefore tell you, The law sends us to Christ to be justified; and Christ sends us back to the law to be regulated. The very same double sense of the law you will find in this discourse; and from the mistaken end and abuse of the law, which the apostle so vehemently opposeth, I here prove against you, that the law in this sense cannot consist with, or be added to the promise; and therefore make it my medium to prove against you, that the true nature and denomination of the Sinai law, can never be found in this sense of it, but it must be estimated and denominated from the purpose and intention of God, which I have proved to be evangelical. Try your skill to fasten a contradiction betwixt my words in that sermon and this discourse.

I know you would be glad to find the shadow of one, to make some small excuse, or atonement for the many faults of that nature you have here committed.

(3.) Your letter also informs me, that you hear you are answered by one hand already; and, for ought you know, many more may be employed against you, and I for one; and so we shall compass you about like bees.

Reply. I have only seen Mr. Whiston's little book against your brother Grantham, wherein he hath baffled two of your principal arguments; but you only come in collaterally there, and must not look upon it as a full answer to your book, but only as a lash for your folly, en passant. And for our compassing you about like bees, methinks you seem to be elated in your own fancy, by the supposition, or expectation, of a multitude of opponents. You know as well as I, who it is that glories in this motto, Unus contra omnes. Sir, I think your mind may be much at rest in that matter. Of all the six famous adversaries mentioned in your title page, there are but two living: and you know, Mortui non mordent; and of the remaining two, one of them, viz. Mr. Baxter, is almost in heaven, living in the daily views, and cheerful expectations of the saints ever last resting with God; and is left for a little while among us; as a great example of the life of faith.
And it is questionable with me, whether such a great and heavenly soul can find any leisure or disposition to attend such a weak and trivial discourse as this.

And as for myself, you need not much fear me; I have not, either do I intend to vibrate my sting against you, unless I find you infecting or disturbing that hive to which I belong, and to which I am daily gathering and carrying honey; and then who but a drone would not sting.

(4.) To conclude: in the close of your letter you fall into the former strain of love, assuring me, 'That the ancient friendship of so many years, shall still continue on your part.'

Reply. All that I shall return to this, is only to relate a short story out of Plutarch, in the life of Alexander; where he tells us, That whilst he was warring in the Indies, one Taxiles an Indian king, came with his company to meet him; and fa-luting Alexander, said, 'What need you and I to sight and war one upon another? If thou comest not to take away our water, and the necessaries of life from us, for which we must needs fight: As for other goods, if I am richer than thee, I am ready to give thee of mine; and if I have less, I will not think scorn to thank thee for thine.' Alexander, highly pleased with his words, made him this reply; 'Think-eft thou, that this meeting of ours can be without fighting?
No, no; thou hast won nothing by all thy fair words; for I will fight and contend with thee in honesty and courtesy, and thou shalt not exceed me in bounty and liberality,'

I say with Taxiles, I had never armed against you, had you not come to take away our water, and the necessaries of life;
I mean, the covenant of God with Abraham, which contains the rich charter of the Gentile believers children, and make it an abolished Adam's covenant, and told us, that we must come up to the primitive purity in these things; that is, in renouncing it as a covenant of grace, and relinquishing infants baptism, as grounded thereon.

Sir, were my own father alive, I must and would oppose him, should he attempt what here you do. Infant-baptism, with you is not; singing of psalms, that plain and heavenly gospel ordinance, with you, is not; and will you take away our
A Reply to Mr. Cary.

Benjamin also? What! the covenant of God with Abraham and his children in their generations? All these things are against us. No, sir, we cannot part with that covenant, as an abolished Adam's covenant, nor will I give it up for all the friendship in the world.

And yet I will say with Alexander, I will contend with you in friendship and courteously, even whilst I earnestly contend against you for the truths of God, which you have here opposed, and I have endeavoured to vindicate.

One word more before I part with you; I do assure you, and the whole world, that in this controversy with you, I have not, knowingly or advisedly, misrepresented your sense: If you shall say I did so in my second argument, from the words, pag. 179, I assure you, both myself, and others, could understand you no otherwise than I did in the papers I sent you; and when you told me, you meant there was no pardon in either of those covenants, but that it plainly directed to Abraham's covenant, you will find, I have given you as fair a choice as you can desire, either to stand to your words in the first sense, wherein I understood them, or (which will be the same to me) to your own sense, in which you afterwards explained it to me. And whereas I blame you over and over in my epistle and conclusion, for putting the proper subject of baptism amongst the highest things in religion; let the reader view your conclusion, and see, whether you do, or not. If you say, you speak of the covenant there, as well as of baptism, I allow that you do so; yet I hope it is equally as bad, nay, in deed and truth, a great aggravation of your fault, to make this article, viz. God's covenant with Abraham, Gen. xvii. an abolished Adam's covenant, one of the highest concerns of a Christian, the baptism only of adult believers another. My consequences, from your words, are just and regular, how surprizing soever they seem to you.

If you think fit to rejoin to this my answer, I desire you will avoid, as much as you can, a tedious harangue of words, and speak strictly and regularly to my arguments, by limiting, distinguishing, or denying, as a disputant ought to do: If so, I promise you a reply; but if I find no such thing, it shall pass with me but for waste paper; nor will I waste time about it. The Lord give us unity in things necessary, liberty in things indifferent, and charity in all things!
SACRAMENTAL MEDITATIONS
Upon divers select Places of SCRIPTURE WHEREIN Believers are assisted in preparing their Hearts, and exciting their Affections and Graces, when they draw nigh to GOD in that most awful and solemn Ordinance of the LORD's SUPPER.

TO THE READER.

Christian Reader,

CHRIST may be said to be crucified three ways; by the Jews actually, in the sacrament declaratively, and by unbelievers at his table interpretatively. Among sins, blood-guiltiness is reckoned one of the most heinous; and of all blood-guiltiness, to be guilty of the blood of Christ, is a sin of the deepest guilt, and will be avenged with the most dreadful punishment, 1 Cor. xi. 27, 29. If vengeance be taken sevenfold on him that slew Cain, what vengeance shall be taken on him that crucifies the Lord of glory?

The heaviest blow of divine justice is still ready to avenge the abuse of the best mercy: what can the heart of man conceive more solemn, more sacred, or more deeply affective, than the representation of the most gracious love of the Father, and the most grievous passion of the Son? What sin can be more provoking to God, than the slight and contempt of those most awful mysteries? And what punishment can be more terrible, than for such a wretched soul to eat and drink damnation to itself? Melancthon records a very dreadful example of God's righteous judgment upon a company of profane wretches, who, in a tragedy, intended to act the death of Christ upon the cross. He that acted the soldier's part, instead of piercing with his spear a bladder full of blood hid under his garment, wounded him to death that was upon the cross, who falling down ajo To the Reader.
killed him, who (in a disguise) acted the part of the woman that stood wailing under the cross. His brother, who was first slain flew the murderer, who acted the soldier's part, and for slaying him was hanged by order of justice. Thus did the vengeance of God speedily overtake them, and hanged them up in chains, for a warning, to all that should ever dare to dally with the great and jealous God.
These are terrible strokes, and yet not so terrible as those which are more ordinarily, but less sensibly, inflicted on the inner man for the abuse of this ordinance.
To prevent these judgments, and obtain those blessings which come through this ordinance, great regard must be had to two things; viz. 1. The in-being. 2. The activity of true grace.
First, Examine thyself, reader, whether there be any gracious principle planted in thy soul, whereby thou art alive indeed unto God. It was an ancient abuse of the sacrament (condemned and cast out by the Carthaginian council) to give it unto dead men. Dead souls can have no communion with the living God, no more benefit from this table than the Emperor's guests had from his table, where loaves of gold were set before them to eat. There is more than a shew of grace in the sacrament; it hath not only the visible sign, but the spiritual grace also, which it represents. See that there be more than a shew and a visible sign of grace also in thy soul, when thou comest nigh to the Lord in that ordinance: see to the exercise and activity, as well as to the truth and sincerity of thy grace.
Even a believer himself doth not eat and drink worthily, unless the grace that is in him be excited and exercised at this ordinance.
It is not faith inhering, but faith realizing, applying and powerfully working. It is not a disposition to humiliation for sin, but the actual thawing and melting of the heart for sin; whilst thou lookest on him whom thou hast pierced, and mournest for him as one that mourneth for his only son, for his first-born: nor is it a disposition or principle of love to Christ that is only required, but the stirring up of that fire of love, the exciting of it into a vehement flame.
I know the excitations and exercises of grace are attended with great difficulties; they are not things within our command, and at our beck. Oh! it is hard, it is hard indeed, reader, e-

To the Reader.

In vain after God hath taken the heart of stone out of thee, and given thee an heart of flesh, to mourn actually for sin, even when so great an occasion and call is given thee to that work at the Lord's table; for the same power is requisite to excite the act that was required to plant the habit. Gratia gratiam posuit.

However, the duty is thine, though the power be God's; why else are his people blamed, because they stirred not up themselves to take hold of him? Isa. lxiv. 7.

To assist thee in this work, some help is offered in the following meditations: it is true, it is not the reading of the best meditations another can prepare for thee, that will alter the temper of thy heart, except the Spirit of God concur with these truths, and bless them to thy soul: but yet these helps must not be slighted, because they are not self-sufficient. "Man lives not by bread alone; but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God;" yet it were a fond vanity, and sin, for any man, upon that ground, to cast away bread, and expect to live by a miracle without it. We must lift up our hearts to God for a blessing, and then eat. Do the same here: first pray; then read; and the Lord quicken thee by i. for duty.

There are two things of special concernment to thee, reader, when thou art to address thyself to any solemn duty, especially such as this.

1. Prepare for thy duty diligently.
2. Rely not upon thy preparations.

1. Prepare with all diligence for thy duty. Take pains with thy dull heart; cleanse thy polluted heart; compose thy vain heart; remember how great a presence thou art approaching. If * Augustus thus reproved one, that entertained him without suitable preparation, saying, 'I did not think we had been so familiar;' much more may thy God reprovethee, for thy careless neglect of due preparation for him.

2. But yet take heed, on the other side, that thou rely not upon thy best preparation. It is an ingenious, and true note of Luther, † (speaking to this very point of preparation for the sacrament) 'Never are men more unfit, than when they think themselves most fit, and best prepared for their duty; never more fit, than when most humbled and ashamed, in a sense of their own unfitness.'

* Non putaham me tibi tam familiarem.
† Tunc passime dispo situs, quando aptissime.
Sacramental Meditations.

That the blessing of God, and the breathing of his good Spirit, may accompany these poor labours to thy soul, is the heart's desire of,

Thy servant in Christ,

JOHN FLAVEL.

THE FIRST MEDITATION, UPON

Psall. lxxxix. 7. God is greatly to be feared in the assembly of his saints, and to be had in reverence of all that are about him.

There are special seasons, wherein the saints approach near unto God in this life, and wherein the Lord comes near unto them.

If pleaseth the Majesty of heaven, sometimes to admit poor worms of the earth to such sensible and sweet perceptions of himself, as are found above all expression, and seem to be a transient glance upon that glory, which glorified eyes more steadily behold above: "Believing, we rejoice with joy unspeakable, and full of glory;" or, "glorified joy;" as it is, 1 Pet. i. 8. And yet how sweet and excellent foreever these foretastes of heaven are, heaven itself will be an unspeakable surprise to the saints, when they shall come thither.

Now among all those ordinances, wherein the blessed God manifests himself to the children of men, none are found to set forth more of the joy of his presence, than that of the Lord's supper: at that blessed table, are such sensible embraces betwixt Christ and believers, as do afford delight and solace, beyond the joy of the whole earth.

And where such special manifestations of God are, suitable dispositions and preparations should be found on our part, to meet the Lord.

And, certainly, we shall find reason enough for it, if we will consider the importance of this scripture before us; "God is greatly to be feared in the assembly of his saints, and to be *Ἐλαξιμότερα ἀρχή ἑξελεξάμενα εἰς Ἰδοὺν οὖν Ἰννηραβίλυ, ἐγλορι-φικαὶ. Montanus.

Sacramental Meditations.

"had in reverence of all that are round about him." Wherein we have, 1. The object; 2. The subject; 3. The mode of divine worship.

First, The object of worship, God; God is to be feared. In all divine worship, men and angels have to do with God. "All things (faith the apostle) are open and naked to the eyes of him with whom we have to do," Heb. iv. 14. With whom we have speech, or busines; so it may be understood. When we worship, we draw nigh to God; and that about the greatest concerns, and weightiest business in the world.

Secondly, The subject, or the persons that approach unto God in his worship; "His saints, and all that are about him." By saints, many interpreters do (in this place) understand the angels, called saints, from the purity and holiness of their nature; and so make the next clause exegetical of this. Those that before were called saints in respect of their nature, are, in the next words said to be such as are round about him, his satellites, attendants, or those that stand as servants about him, to do his pleasure; where they are described by their office. Both these seem to be grounded upon the precedent verses: "Who in heaven can be compared to the Lord? Who among "the sons of the mighty," (or of God, so the angels are called, Job i. 6.) "can be likened to the Lord?" And though it be true, that the angels worship, and serve the Lord with the greatest reverence and dread (for these are his nigh ones, or such as are round about him;) yet there is no necessity to limit this scripture so narrowly, by excluding the people of God on earth; they also are his saints, and more frequently so stiled, though they be saints of a lower class and order: and they also are round about him, as well as the angels; and when they worship him, he is in the midst of them, Matth. xviii. 20.

And the place where they assemble to worship, is called the place of his feet, Isa. lx. 13. But if we find not the saints on earth in the direct and immediate sense of this text, yet we must needs meet them in the rebound and consequence. For if creatures so much above us, as the angels, do perform their service, and pay their homage to the highest Majesty with so much fear and reverence; shall not inferior creatures, the poor worms of the earth, tremble at his presence? And this brings us to the third thing; namely,

Thirdly, The mode, or manner, in which the worship of God is to be performed; viz. with great fear and reverence:
Sacramental Meditations.

"God is greatly to be feared." Piscator translates it, Veher- menter formidandus, to be vehemently feared; and opposes it to that formal, careless, trifling, vain spirit, which too often is found in those that approach the Lord in the duties of his worship. The observation from hence will be this:

Observation. That the greatest composedness and seriousness of spirit is due to God, from all those that draw nigh unto him in his worship.

And this is no more than what the Lord expressly requires at our hands; Lev. x. 3. "I will be sanctified in them that come nigh unto me." So Heb. xii. 28, 29. "Let us have grace, whereby we may serve God acceptably, with reverence and godly fear. For our God is a consuming fire."

And as this disposition and temper of spirit is due to every act and part of God's worship; so (to accommodate this general to our particular occasion) it is especially due to this great and solemn ordinance of the Lord's supper.

It is the observation of the Casuists, that sacramentum et mortis articulusaequiparantur: The sacrament of the Lord's supper, and the very point of death, require equal seriousness; a man's spirit should be as deeply solemn and composed at the Lord's table, as upon a death-bed. We should go to that ordinance, as if we were then going into another world.

The primitive Christians used to sit up whole nights in meditation and prayer, before their participation of the Lord's supper; and these nights were called Vigiliæ, their watches. Such was the reverence the saints had for this ordinance (which they usually called mysterium tremendum, a tremendous mystery,) that they would not give "sleep to their eyes, or slumber to their eye-lids," when so great and solemn a day drew near. Chrysost. lib. 3. de facerdot,

And that all this solemn preparation is no more than needs, will convincingly appear to us, upon the following grounds and reasons.

Reafon 1. From the solemn nature and ends of this ordinance. For what is the express design and use of it, but a lively representation of the Lord's death? 1 Cor. xi. 26. "As often as ye eat this bread, and drink this cup, ye do shew the Lord's death till he come." Jesus Christ is therein set forth crucified before us; and not to make a bare representation of it to us, as a thing wherein we have no personal interest or concernment, but to represent his death lively, and seal our title to it firmly: "This is my body, which is broken for you," verse 24.
Now, which of these is to be attended with a dead, careless, and slight spirit? Is it the representation of Christ's death? God forbid! Oh! if there be any subject of meditation in the world, able to drink up the very spirit of a man, this is it!

The sun fainted, the heavens mourned in black, the very rocks rent in pieces, when this tragedy was acted; and thall our hearts be more senseless and obdurate than they, at the representation of it? But, lo! here is more than a representation: Christ is set forth in this ordinance, as crucified for you; as suffering, and enduring all this, in your room and stead. Now, Suppose, reader, thyself to be justly condemned to the torture of the rack, or strappado; and that thy father, brother, or dearest friend, preferring thy life to his own, would become thy Antipsychos, rasvomen, by undergoing the torment for thee; and all that is left for thee to suffer, were only by way of sympathy with him: suppose now thyself standing by that engine of torture, and beholding the members of thy dear friend distorted, and all out of joint; hearing his doleful groans, extorted by the extremity of anguish; and under all these torments, still maintaining a constant love to thee; not once repenting his torments for thee; couldst thou stand there with dry eyes? Could thy heart be unaffected, and stupid at such a sight? Write him rather a beast, a stone, than a man, that could do so.

But this is not all: the believer's interest in Christ is sealed, as well as the sufferings of Christ represented, in this ordinance.

And is a sealed interest in Christ so cheap or common a thing, as that it should not engage, yea, swallow up all the powers of thy soul? Oh! what is this? what is this?

The seal of God, set to the soul of a poor sinner, to confirm and ratify its title to the person of Christ, and the inestimable treasures of his blood. Surely, as the sealing up of a man to damnation, is the sum of all misery; and that poor creature that is so sealed, hath cause enough to mourn and wail to eternity; so the sealing up of a soul to salvation, is the sum of all mercy and happiness; and the soul that is so sealed, hath cause enough to lie at the feet of God, overwhelmed with the sense of so invaluable a mercy.

Reason 2. As the nature and ends of this ordinance call for the greatest com posedness of spirit; so the danger of unworthy receiving, should work our hearts to the most serious frame: for if a man be here without his wedding-garment, if he eat and drink unworthily, it is at the greatest peril of his Wherefore, whosoever shall eat this bread, and drink this cup of the Lord unworthily, shall be guilty of the body and blood of the Lord.

To profane and undervalue that body and blood of the Lord, is a sin above measure sinful; and the punishments of such sins, will be the most dreadful: for still the more excellent the blessings are that come by any ordinance, the more dreadful the curfes are, that avenge the abuse of such mercies. How soon may a man draw fearful guilt upon his soul, and dreadful judgments upon his body, by an heedless management of such sacred mysteries? "For this cause many are weak and sickly among you, and many sleep;" verse 30.

It is a most weighty note, that a worthy pen sets upon this scripture: 'They discerned not the body of his Son Jesus Christ, in his ordinances; but instead of that holy, reverend and deep-dyed behaviour, which was due to it, both from their inner and outward man, as being a creature of the highest and deepest sanctification, that ever God sanctified; sanctified not only to a more excellent and glorious condition; but also to many ends and purposes, of far higher and dearer concernment, both for the glory of God, and benefit of men themselves, than all other creatures whatsoever, whether in heaven or earth: They handled, and dealt by it in both kinds, as if it had been a common unsanctified thing: Thus they discerned not the Lord's body.'

And as they discerned not his body, so neither did God (in some sense) discern theirs; but in those sore strokes and heavy judgments which he inflicted on them, had them in no other regard or consideration, than as if they had been the bodies of his enemies, the bodies of wicked and sinful men; thus drawing the model and platform of their punishment (as usually he doth) from the structure and proportion of their sin.

Thus the just and righteous God builds up the breaches that we make upon the honour belonging to the body of his Son, with the ruins of that honour which he had given unto ours, in health, strength, life, and many other outward comforts and supports.

O then what need is there of a most awful and composed spirit, when we approach the Lord in this ordinance?

Reason 3. As the danger of unworthy receiving should compose us to the greatest seriousness, so the remembrance of that frame and temper Christ's Spirit was in, when he actually suffered those things for us, should compose our spirits, into a frame more suitable and agreeable to his. When we see his death, as it were acted over again before our eyes: Was his heart roving and wandering in that day? Did he not regard and mind the work he was going about? Was his heart, like thine, stupid, and unaffected with these things? Look but upon that text, Luke xxii. 44. and you shall see whether it were so, or not. It is said (when this tragedy drew nigh, and his enemies were ready to seize him in the garden) That being “in an agony, he prayed more earnestly; and his sweat was, as it were, great drops of blood falling to the ground.” And Matth. xxvi. 38. he faith, “My soul is exceeding sorrowful, even unto death.” His soul was full of sorrow: And is thine full of stupidity? God forbid!
Sacramental Meditations.

If thy heart be cold, Christ’s was hot: If thou canst not shed a tear, he poured out clods of blood from every part. O, how unsuitable is a dry eye, and hard heart, to such an ordinance as this!

Reason 4. As the frame Christ’s Spirit was in at his death, should command the most solemn frame upon our spirits, at the recognizing of it; so the things here represented, require, and call for the highest exercise of every grace of the Spirit in our souls: For we come not thither as idle spectators, but as active instruments, to glorify God, by exercising every grace upon Christ, as crucified for us. Behold here are, among the rest,

First, The proper object of faith.
Secondly, The flowing spring of repentance.
Thirdly, The powerful attractive of love.

First, The proper object of faith is here. This ordinance, as a glass, represents to thine eye that glorious Person, of whom the Father said, “This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased,” Matth. xvii. 5. Of whom he said, “I have laid help upon one that is mighty.” This was he that was made sin for us, who had no sin, that we might be made the righteousness of God in him,” 2 Cor. v. 21. Who trode the wine-press alone, and is here to be seen in his red garments. Every drop of his precious blood hath a tongue, calling for faith to behold it, poured forth as a sacrifice to God for sin. “This (faith he) is the cup of the New Testament in my blood, which was shed for many, for the remission of sins.”

And what footing could thy faith find for pardon and salvation any where else? It is Christ crucified that faith clasps, as the last and only hope and refuge of a poor sinner: Here all
Sacramental Meditations.

Believers drop anchor. This is that blessed object, on whom they take the dead gripe, or last grasp, when their eye-strings and heart-strings are breaking. When you see the blood of Christ flowing forth, how can faith be silent in thy soul? When he bids thee, as it were, to put thy finger into his side, shews thee his hands, and his feet there; it will cry out in thy soul, My Lord! and my God!

Secondly, The flowing spring of repentance is here. If there be any fire that can melt, or hammer that can break a hard heart, here it is; Zech. xii. 10. “They shall look upon me, whom they have pierced, and mourn.” Nothing lays a gracious soul lower in itself, than to see how low Christ was laid in his humiliation for it.

Here the evil of sin is also represented in the clearest glass, that ever the eye of man saw it in. The sufferings of the Son of God discover the evil of sin, more than the everlasting torments of the damned can do. So that, if there be but one drop of spiritual sorrow in the heart of a Christian; here, methinks, it should be seen dropping from the eye of faith.

Thirdly, The most attractive object of love is here. Put all created beauties, excellencies, and perfections together; and what are they but blackness and deformity, compared with the lovely Jesus? My beloved (faith the enamoured spouse) is white and ruddy, Cant. v. 10. Behold him at the table, in his perfect innocency, and unparalleled sufferings! This is He who was rich, but for our fakes became poor; that we, through his poverty, might be rich,” 2 Cor. viii. 9. This is he that parted with his honour first, and his life next; yea, he parted with his honour in his incarnation, that he might be capable to part with his life for our redemption.

Behold here the degrees of his sufferings, and by them measure the degrees of his love. Behold in his death, as in the deluge, all the fountains beneath, and the windows of heaven above, opened; the wrath of God, the cruelty of men, the fury of hell, breaking in together upon him, and his soul surrounded with sorrow; and how can this be represented, and thy soul not astonished at this amazing, matchless love of Christ? Surely one flame doth not more naturally produce another, than the love of Christ, thus represented to a gracious soul, doth produce love to Christ, and that in the most intense degree.

Use 1. How naturally doth this doctrine shame and humble the best hearts, for their sinful discompositions, vanity, and deadness; for the rovings and wanderings of their hearts, even when they come near the Lord in such a solemn ordinance as this is?
Sacramental Meditations.

The holiest man upon earth may lay his hand upon his breast, and say, 'Lord, how unsuitable is this heart of mine, to such an object of faith, as is here presented to me? Doth such a temper of spirit suit thine awful presence? Should the represented agonies and sufferings of Christ for me, be beheld with a spirit no more concerned, pierced, and wounded for sin? O how can I look upon him whom I have pierced, and not mourn, and be in bitterness for him, as for an only son, a first-born! O the stupefying and benumbing power of sin! O the efficacy of unbelief!'

It was charged upon the Israelites, as the great aggravation of their sin, that they "provoked God at the sea, even at the red sea," Psal. cvi. 7. the place where their miraculous salvation was wrought. But, Lord Jesus! my hard heart provokes thee in an higher degree, even at the red sea of thy precious invaluable blood, by which my eternal salvation was wrought. O my God! what a heart have I? Did the blood of Christ run out so freely and abundantly for me; and cannot I shed one tear for my sins, that pierced him? O let me never be friends with my own heart, till it love Christ better, and hate sin more.

Use 2. This scripture hath also an awakening voice, to all that come nigh to God in any of his ordinances, especially in this ordinance. O Christians! bethink yourselves where you are, and what you are doing: Know you not, that the King comes in to see the guests? Yea, you do know, that God is in this place; an awful Majest. beholds you! "All the churches shall know, that I am he that searcheth the heart and thereins, "and will give to every one as his work shall be," Rev. ii. 2.

Thy business, Christian, is not with men, but with God; and the solemnest business that ever thy thoughts were conversant about. Thou art here to recognize the sufferings of thy Redeemer; to take the seals and pledges of thy salvation from the hand of his Spirit: Imagine the same thing, which is now to be done spiritually, and by the ministry of faith, were but to be performed visibly and audibly, by the ministry of thy senses.

Suppose Jesus Christ did personally shew himself at this table, and were pleased to make himself known in breaking of bread, as once he did to the disciples. Suppose thou sawest him appear at this table as he doth now appear in heaven, as a Lamb that had been slain: Imagine thou heardst him say, 'Believer, this precious blood of mine was shed for there: There be millions of men and women in the world, naturally as good as thee, that shall have no interest in it, or benefit by it: But for thee, it was shed, and for the remission of thy sins; my blood was the only thing in the world that was equal to the desert of thy sins, and it hath made full satisfaction to God for them all: Thy sins, which are many, are therefore forgiven thee: My blood hath purchased the eternal inheritance of glory for thee; and this day I am come to deliver the seals and pledges thereof into thine hand. Take then the seals of eternal salvation this day, take thine own Christ with all that he is, and hath; in thine arms. Whatever I have suffered, done, or procured for any of my saints; I have suffered, done, and procured the same for thee."
Sacramental Meditations.

Why, all this is here to be done, as really and truly, tho' in a more spiritual way, at this table. And shall not such business as this is, fully fix and engage thy heart? What then shall do it?

Awake, faith; awake, repentance; awake, love; yea, let all the powers of my soul be thoroughly awakened this day to attend the Lord.

THE SECOND MEDITATION, UPON

Jer. xii. 2. Thou art near in their mouth, and far from their reins.

THIS scripture gives us the character and description of an hypocrite: And he is here described two ways; viz.

1. By what he hath.

2. By what he hath not.

First, The hypocrite is described by what he hath: He hath God in his mouth; "Thou art near in their mouth;" i.e. They profess with a full mouth, that they are thy people, faith Piscator; or, they speak much about the law (as another explains it); God, and his temple, religion, with its rites, are much talked of among them; they have him in their prayers and duties; and this is all that the hypocrite hath of God; re-Sacramental Meditation.

Religion only sanctifies his tongue; that seems to be dedicated to God; but it penetrates no farther. And therefore,

Secondly, He is described by that he hath not, or by what he wants: And (or, but) thou art far from their reins; i. e. They feel not the power and influences of that name, which they so often invoke and talk of, going down to their very reins, and affecting their very hearts. So we must understand this metaphorical expression here, as the opposition directs: For the reins, having so great and sensible a sympathy with the heart, (which is the seat of the affections and passions,) upon that account, it is usual in scripture, to put the reins for those intimate and secret affections, thoughts, and passions of the heart, with which they have so near cognition, and so sensible a sympathy. When the heart is under great consternation, the loins or reins are seized also. As Dan. v. 6. Then the "king's countenance was changed, and his thoughts troubled him, and the joints of his loins were loosed." On the contrary, when the heart is filled with delight and gladness, the reins are said to rejoice; Prov. xxiii. 16. "Yea, my reins shall rejoice, when thy lips speak right:" Totus latus tia dissiliam; "I shall even leap for joy." So then, when the prophet faith, "God is far from the reins of the hypocrite;" the meaning is, he feels not the heart-affecting influence and power of religion upon his heart and affections, as God's people do. And hence the note will be, Doct. That God comes nearer to the hearts and reins of his people in their duties, than he doth to any hypocritical, or formal professor.

By God's nearness, we understand not his omnipresence (that neither comes nor goes) nor his love to his people (that abides); but the sensible, sweet manifestations, and outlets of it to their souls. So in Psal. cxlv. 18. "The Lord is high unto to all that call upon him, unto all that call upon him in truth."

Note, the restriction and limitation of this glorious privilege; it is the peculiar enjoyment of sincere and upright-hearted worshippers. Others may have communion with duties, but not with God in them.

But that God comes nigh, very nigh, to upright hearts in their duties, is a truth as sensibly manifest to spiritual persons, as that they are nigh the fire, when they feel the comfortable heat of it refreshing them in a cold season, when they are at most starved and benumbed with cold. Three things make this evident.

Vol. VIII.

First, Sincere souls are sensible of God's access to them in their duties, they feel his approaches to their spirits; Lam. iii. 57. "Thou drewest near in the day that I called upon thee; thou saidst, Fear not." And what a surprize was that to the church; Cant. ii. 8. "It is the voice of my beloved; behold, he cometh," &c. Certainly there is a felt presence of God, which no words can make another to understand; they feel that fountain flowing abundantly into the dry pits, the heart fills space, the empty thoughts swell with a fulness of spiritual things, which strive for vent.

Secondly, They are sensible of God's recesses, and withdrawal from their spirits; they feel how the ebb follows the flood, and how the waters abate. So you find it in Cant. v. 6. "I opened to my beloved, but my beloved had withdrawn himself, and was gone; my soul failed when he spake: I sought him, but I could not find him; I called, but he gave me no answer." The Hebrew is very pathetic; He was gone, was gone. A sad change of the frame of her heart quickly followed.

Thirdly, The Lord's nearness to the hearts and reins of his people in their duties, is evident to them from the effects that it leaves upon their spirits. For look, as it is with the earth and plants, with respect to the approach or remove of the sun in the spring and autumn; so it is here as Christ speaks, Luke xxii. 29. "When ye see the fig-tree, and all the trees, shoot forth, ye know that summer is nigh at hand." An approaching sun renews the face of the earth, and makes nature smile. The trees bud and blossom, the fishes rise, the birds sing; it is a kind of resurrection to nature from the dead. So it is when the Lord comes near the hearts and reins of men in duty: For then they find that,

Dr. Preston, when dying, said, I shall change my place, not company. First, A real taste of the joy of the Lord is here given to men, the fulness whereof is in heaven; hence called, 2 Cor. i. 22. "The earnest of his Spirit." And 1 Pet. i. 8. Glorified joy, or a short salvation. Oh! what is this! what is this! Certainly it is something that hath no affinity with flesh, or gross corporeal pleasures; but is of another nature, something which transcends all that ever was felt or tasted in this world, since we were first conversant among sensible objects.
Secondly, A mighty strength and power coming into their souls, and actuating all its faculties and graces. When God comes near, new powers enter the soul; the feeble is as David, Psalm cxxxviii. 3. "In the day that I cried, thou answeredst me, and strengthenedst me with strength in my soul." Cant. i. 12. "Whilst the king sitteth at his table, my spikenard," &c. Hope was low, and faith was weak, little strength in any grace, except desires; but when the Lord comes, strength comes with him. Then as it is, Neh. viii. 10. "The joy of the Lord is your strength." O the vigorous fallies of the heart to God! Psalm lxiii. 8. "O the strength of love!" Cant. viii. 6. Duties are other manner of things than they were wont to be. "Did not our hearts burn within us?" Luke xxiv. 32.

Thirdly, A remarkable transformation and change of spirit follows it.

These things are found to be marvellously assimilating. The sights of God, the felt presence of God, is as fire, which quickly assimilates what is put into it to its own likeness. So 2 Cor. iii. 18. They are said to be "changed from glory to glory." It always leaves the mind more refined and abstracted from gross material things, and changed into the same image. They have a similitude of God upon them, who have God near unto their hearts and reins.

Fourthly, A vigorous working of the heart heaven-ward; a mounting of the soul upward. Now the soul shews that it hath not forgot its way home again. It is with such a soul as sensibly embraces Christ in the arms of faith, as it with was Simeon, when he took him bodily into his arms. "Now (faith he) let thy servant depart in peace, for mine eyes have seen thy salvation." O it would have the wings of a dove, to fly away from this polluted world, this unquiet world; and be at rest.

Inser. 1. Then certainly there is an heaven, and a state of glory for the saints. Heaven is no dream or night vision: It is sensibly tasted and felt by thousands of witnesses in this world; they are sure it is no mistake. God is with them of a truth, in the way of their duties: They do not only read of a glorified eye, but they have something of it, or like it in this world: "The pure in heart do here see God," Mat. v. 8. The saints have not only a witness without them in the word, that there is a state of glory prepared for believers, but they have a witness in themselves. These are not the testimonies of crazed brains, but of the wisest and most serious of men; not a few, but a multitude of them; not conjecturally delivered, but upon taste, feeling, and trial. O blessed be God for such sensible confirmations, such sweet prelirations!

Infer. 2. But, oh! what is heaven? And what that state of glory reserved for the saints? Doth a glimpse of God’s presence in a duty, go down to the heart and reins? O how utterable then must that be which is seen and felt above, where God comes as near to men as can be! Rev. xxii. 3, 4. “The throne of God and the Lamb shall be in it, and his servants shall serve him; and they shall see his face.” And 1 Thess. iv. 17. “And so we shall be ever with the Lord.” O what is that! “Ever with the Lord?” Christians, what you feel and taste here by faith, is part of heaven’s glory; but yet heaven will be an unspeakable surprizal to you, when you come thither for all that: “It doth not yet appear what we shall be,” 1 John iii. 1, 2.

Infer. 3. See hence the necessity of casting these very bodies into a new mold by their resurrection from the dead, according to that, 1 Cor. xv. 41. It is sown in weakness, but raised in power.” How else could it be a co-partner with the soul in the ineffable joys of that presence above! The state of this mortality cannot bear the fulness of that joy. Hold, Lord, stay thy hand, said a choice Christian once, thy creature is but a clay-vessel, and can hold no more. If a transient glimpse of God here, be felt in the very reins, if it so work upon the very body by sympathy with the soul, O what vigorous spiritual bodies, doth the state of glory require! and such shall they be; Phil. iii. 12. “Like unto Christ’s glorious body.”

Infer. 4. Is God so near to his people above all others in the world? How good is it to be near them that are so near to God? O, it would do a man’s heart good to be near that person who hath lately had God near to his soul! Well might David say, Psalm xvi. 3. “All my delight is in the saints, and in the excellent of the earth.” And again, Psalm cxix. 63. “I am a companion of all such as fear thee.” O this is the beauty of Christian fellowship, this is the glory of that society! not the communication of their gifts, but the favour of God on their spirits. If any thing be alluring in this world, this is; 1 John i. 3. “That ye may have fellowship with us; and truly our fellowship is with the Father, and with his Son Christ Jesus.” It is said, Zech. viii. 23. of the Jews, the time shall come, when there shall be such a presence of God among that people, that “ten men out of all languages shall take hold of
Sacramental Meditations.

The first of him that is a Jew; saying, We will go with you; for we have heard that God is with you."

Christians, if there were more of God upon you, and in you, others would not be tempted to leave your society, and fall in with the men of the world; they would say, we will go with you, for God is with you.

Inf. 5. If God be so near to the heart and reins of his people in their duties, O how affidious should they be in their duties? “It is good for me to draw nigh to God,” Psalm lxxxiii. 28. Good indeed; the world cannot reward the experience of time at this rate, with all its glory; James iv. 8. "Draw nigh to God, and he will draw nigh to you: thou meetest him that rejoiceth and worketh righteousness; those that remember thee in thy ways,” Isa. lxiv. 5.

Obj. It would be an encouragement indeed, if I might thus meet God in the way of duty; but that is but seldom I can so meet God there, in sensible powerful outlets of his grace and love! I am most dead and cold there: I see not communion with God going down to my heart and reins.

Sol. First, You draw nigh to God; but is it in truth, or in mere formality? God is only nigh to such as call upon him in truth, Psalm cxlv. 18.

Secondly, If your hearts be sincere, yet are they not sluggish? Do you stir up yourselves to take hold of God? Many there be that do not; Isa. lxiv. 7. and Cant. v. 3, 5.

Thirdly, Have you not grieved the Spirit of God, and caused him to withdraw from you. O remember what pride and vanity hath been in you, after former manifestations; Ephes. iv. 30.

Fourthly, Nevertheless wait for God in his ways; his coming upon our souls is oftentimes, yea, mostly, a surprizal to us; Cant. vi. 12. “Or ever I was aware, my soul made me as the chariots of Amminadib.”

Inf. 6. What steady Christians should all real Christians be? For lo, what a seal and witness hath religion in the breast of every sincere professor of it? True Christians do not only hear by report, or learn by books, the reality of it; but feel by experience, and have a sensible proof of it in their very hearts and reins; their reins instruct them, as it is Psalm xvi. 7. They learn by spiritual sense and feeling, than which nothing can give greater confirmation in the ways of God.

There are two sorts of knowledge among men; one traditional, the other experimental: this last the apostle calls a "knowing in ourselves;” Heb. x. 34. and opposes it to that traditional knowledge which may be said to be without ourselves, because borrowed from other men.
Sacramental Meditations.

Now this experience we have of the power of religion in our souls, is that only which fixes a man’s spirit in the ways of godliness. It made the Hebrews take joyfully the spoiling of their goods; no arguments or temptations can wrest truth out of the hand of experience, Non est disputandum de gustu. For want of this, many professors turn aside from truth in the hour of trial. O brethren! labour to feel the influences of religion upon your very hearts and reins! this will settle you better than all the arguments in the world can do; by this, the ways of God are more endeared to men, than by any other way in the world. When your hearts have once felt it, you will never forfake it.

THE THIRD

MEDITATION,

UPON

Rom. vii. 21. I find then a law, that when I would do good, evil is present with me.

This chapter is the very anatomy of a Christian’s heart, and gives an account of the most secret frames, and inward workings of it, both as to graces and corruptions: and this verse is a compendium of both; for the words are a mournful complaint, uttered with a deep sense of an inward pressure, by reason of sin; wherein we are to consider three things:

1. The person complaining.
2. The matter of complaint.
3. The discovery of that matter.

First, The person complaining: I find, I Paul, though I come not behind the chieapest of all the apostles, though I have been wrapt into the third heaven, and heard things unutterable; yet I, for all that, find in me a law. Never was any mere man more deeply sanctified; never any lived at an higher rate of communion with God; never any did Christ more service in this world; and yet he found a law of sin in himself.

Secondly, The matter of the complaint, which consists in a double evil he groaned under; viz. 1. The presence of sin at all times. 2. The operation of sin, especially at some times.

First, The presence of sin at all times: Evil (faith he) is present with me, it follows me as my shadow doth. By evil we must understand no other evil but sin, the evil of evils; which, in respect of power and efficacy, he also calls a law; because as laws, by reason of their annexed rewards and punishments, have a mighty power and efficacy upon the minds of men; so sin, indwelling sin, that root of all our trouble and sorrow, hath a mighty efficacy upon us.

And this is the mournful matter of his complaint: it is not for outward afflictions, though he had many; nor for what he suffered from the hands of men, though he suffered many grievous things; but it is sin, dwelling and working in him, that swallows up all other troubles, as rivers are lost in the sea; this evil was always with him, the constant residence of sin was in his heart and nature.

Secondly, And what further adds to his burden, as it dwelt in him at all times, so it exerted its efficacy more especially at some times, and those the special times, and principal seasons in his whole life: when I would do good (faith he) any spiritual good, and among the rest, when I address myself to any spiritual duty, or heavenly employment; when I design to draw near to God, and promise myself comfort and redress in communion * with him, then is evil present. Oh! if I were but rid of it in those hours, what a mercy should I esteem it, though I were troubled with it at other times! Could I but enjoy my freedom from it in the seasons of duty, and times of communion with God, what a comfort would that be! But then is the special season of its operation: never is sin more active and busy, than at such a time; and this, O this is my misery and my burden!

Thirdly, The next thing to be heeded here, is the discovery of this evil to him, over which he so mourns and laments: I find then a law, faith he, I find it (i.e.) by inward sense, feeling, and sad experience. He knew there was such a thing as original sin in the nature of men, when he was an unregenerated Pharisee; but though he had then the notion of it, he had not the sense and feeling of it as now he had; he now feels what before he traditionally understood and talked of: I find a law, q. d. what or how others find, I know not: some may boast of their gifts, and some may talk more than becomes them of their graces; they may find excellencies in themselves, and admire themselves too much for them; but, for my part, "I find a law, that when I would do good, evil is present." I am sure I find a bad heart in the best season, a proud, dead, wandering, hard heart; I find it woefully out of order, God knows, and this is my misery. Hence note, Doct. That the best Christians do sensibly feel, and sadly bewail the workings of their corruptions, and that in the very seasons and opportunities of their communion with God.

* When I go about the best exercises of religion, I find within me the law of the flesh rising up, and withdrawing me from them. Tostellius.
Sacramental Meditations.

Bring thy thoughts, reader, close to this point, and sadly ponder these three things in it:

First, In what special acts Christians use to feel the workings of their corruption in the season of their communion.

Secondly, Why is it that corruption stirs and troubles them more at such a time than at others.

Thirdly, Upon what account this is so great a burden to every gracious heart.

First, As to the first of these, namely, the special acts of corruption in the seasons of communion, they are such as have a natural aptitude and design to destroy all communion betwixt God and the soul; Gal. v. 17. "The flesh lusteth against the Spirit." It is contrary to the Spirit; and by reason of that contrariety, a poor Christian cannot do the things that he would.

How many times have some Christians lamented this upon their knees, with bleeding hearts and weeping eyes? Lord, I came hither to enjoy thee; I hoped for some light, strength, and refreshment in this duty: I promised myself a good hour; my heart began to warm and melt in duty; I was nigh to the expectation and desire of my soul; but the unbelief, deadness, and vanity of my heart hath separated betwixt me and my God, and with-held good things from me.

Three things are requisite to communion with God in duties:

First, Composedness of thoughts.

Secondly, Activity of faith.

Thirdly, Excitation of affections: and all these are sensibly obstructed by innate corruption; for by in-dwelling sin,

First, The order of the soul is disturbed by sending forth multitudes of vain and impertinent thoughts, to infest and distract the soul in its approaches to God: the sense of this evil gave occasion to that prayer, Psal. lxxvi. 11. "Unite my "heart to fear thy name." How much have we to do with our own hearts upon this account every day? Abundance of rules are given to cure this evil, but the corruption of the heart makes them all necessary.

Secondly, The activity of faith is clogged by natural unbelief: O what difficulties is every work of faith carried through! "Lord, I believe, help thou my unbelief," Mark ix. 24. It cramps the hand of faith in every part of its work; the soul sensibly feels itself bound and fettered by its own unbelief, so that it cannot assent with that fulness, clearness, and determinateness that it would; it cannot apply with that strength, certainty, and comfort it desires; and thus are the wings of faith pinioned, that when we should soar aloft in the highest acts of sweet communion with God, we can but flutter upon the earth, and make some weak essays and offers heaven-ward, which oftentimes are frustrated and put by, through the unbelief that is in us.

Thirdly, The excitation of the affections is rendered difficult, by reason of that natural deadness and hardness that is in the heart. Alas, it is naturally an heart of stone, and as easy it is to dissolve or melt the rocks into a sweet syrup, as the heart into spiritual and heavenly affections towards God. There is scarce any one thing in the world that Christians more passionately bewail, and are more sensibly afflicted for, than the deadness and hardness of their own hearts. Nothing is found sufficient sometimes to affect and raise them; and yet if they be not excited out of their torpor and stupidity, they cannot have communion with God in duties.

Secondly, And if we enquire into the reasons why poor Christians find themselves more infested by natural corruptions in the seasons of duty than at other times; the reasons are obvious to him that considers, 1. That duty irritates it; 2. Satan excites it; 3. God permits it to be so.

First, Corruption is irritated by duty, it is provoked by that which bridles and purges it: Nothing is found more destructive to sin than communion with God is; and therefore nothing makes a fiercer opposition to all fellowship and communion betwixt the soul and its God than sin doth. As waters swell and rage when they are obstructed by a dam, so do our corruptions when obstructed and checked by duty. Sin would fain make men leave praying, and prayer would fain make men leave sinning.

Secondly, As duty irritates it, so Satan excites it, especially... in such seasons. When Joshua the high priest stood before the Lord, Satan was seen standing at his right hand to resist him, Zech. iii. 1. How hard is it for a Christian then to be dextrous, apt, and ready for spiritual works, whilst Satan stands at his right hand, the working hand, to make resistance.

The devil is aware that one hour of close, spiritual, and hearty converse with God in prayer, is able to pull down what he hath been contriving and building many a year. Now this envious spirit having an easy access to the fancy, that busy and unruly power of the soul, will not be wanting to create such figments and notions in it, as, like a rapid stream, shall carry away the soul and all its thoughts from God in duty. O what ado have most Christians to prevent the fallies and excursions of their hearts from God at such times!

3. As Satan exercises it, so the wise and holy God, for good ends to his people, permits it to be so.

This thorn in the flesh keeps them humble; these lamented distractions and corruptions in their duties destroy their dependance upon them, and glorying in them: For if we be so prone to pride and confidence in our duties, amidst such sensible workings and minglings of corruption with them, what would we be if they were more pure and excellent? These things also make the faints weary of this world, and to groan within themselves after the more perfect state wherein God shall be enjoyed and seen in more perfection and satisfaction. But,

Thirdly, This in the mean time cannot but be a very grievous affliction and pressure to the gracious soul, to be thus clogged and infested by its own corruptions in the very season of its communion with God. For,

First, By this the foul is rendered very unsuitable to that holy preference it approaches; Hab. i. 13. “Thou art of purer eyes than to behold evil, and canst not look upon iniquity.” Must the great and blessed God wait upon a poor worm till it be at leisure to attend him? Must he be forfaken for every trifle that comes in the way of its fancy? Oh, how provoking an evil is this! “Surely God heareth not vainty, neither will the Almighty regard it,” Job xxxv. 13. This unsuitableness of our spirits to the Lord, cannot do less than cover our faces with shame; as it did Ezra; chap. ix. 6. “O my God, I am ashamed, and even blush to look up unto thee.”

Secondly, By this those benefits and comforts are intercepted which are better than life; there is a sensible presence of God; there are manifestations of pardon, peace and love;
Sacramental Meditations.

There are reviving influences and fresh anointings of the Spirit; there are a thousand mercies of this kind, that in their seasons are communicated to men in the way of duty; and would it not grieve a man to the very heart and soul, to be defeated of those inestimable treasures, by the breaking forth of the unbelief, pride, or vanity of his own heart, when such mercies are almost in his hand? “Your iniquities, (faith the prophet) have separated betwixt you and your God; and your sins have hid his face from you, that he will not hear,” Isa. lix. 2. O cruel covering! O dismal cloud! that hides the face of God from his people, that they cannot behold it! “Wherefore am I come from Geshur (faith Absalom) if I may not see the king’s face?”

What do I hereupon my knees, faith a Christian, if I may not see God? Duties are nothing to me without God; the world and all its comforts are dry and tasteless things to me without God; his manifested favour and sealed love are the very life of my life, and from this the corruptions of my own heart have cut me off.

Thirdly, By these things the beauty and excellency of duties are defaced. These dead flies spoil that excellent ointment; for wherein consists the beauty and true excellency of duties, but in that spirituality and heavenly temper of soul with which they are performed? This makes them suitable to their object, John iv. 24. Take away spirituality from duties, and then you may number them among your sins, and the matters of your shame and sorrow. Take away the heart from duty, and what remains but a dead carcass without life or beauty?

Fourthly, By these things gracious souls are greatly puzzled and perplexed about their estate and condition; this is the fountain of their fears and doubtings. Oh! when a man feels such deadness in his heart towards God, such stiffness in his will to the will of God, such a listless careless temper to all that is spiritual, how (thinks he) can this consist with a renewed state and temper? Sure no Christian is troubled with such an heart as mine is, especially when it shall be found in its ordinary course, so free, nimble and indefatigable in its pursuits and entertainments of things sensual and earthly: there it is as the chariots of Amminadib, but here, like Pharaoh’s chariots: there it as much needs the curb, as it doth the spur here. Lord, faith the poor soul, I know not what to do; if I do not look into my heart, I cannot be sincere; and if I do, I can have no comfort. This is a sad perplexity indeed!
Fifthly, and lastly, By these things the Spirit of God is grieved; and that which grieves him cannot but be a grief and burden to us: his motions are quenched by these corruptions, his sanctifying designs (as much as lies in us) obstructed by them; surely then there is cause enough why a Christian should follow every vain thought with a deep sigh, and every stirring of unbelief with a sad tear.

The usefulness of this point is great and exceeding seasonable, when we are to draw nigh to God, and address ourselves to spiritual duties; it may to great purpose be improved by way;

1. Of information.
2. Direction.
3. Consolation.

We may greatly improve it for our information, in the following particulars.

1. Hence we may take our measures of the wonderful and astonishing grace and condescension of God to his people, who, notwithstanding all that evil which is present with them in the good they do, will not reject their persons or duties for all that.

How doth free grace make its own way through swarms of vanity! How doth it break through all the deadness, infidelity, and hardness of our hearts to do us good? Though evil be present with us, our gracious God will not be absent from us notwithstanding that.

How greatly was the spouse amazed at the unexpected condescension and grace of Christ in this matter? Cant. ii. 8. "It is the voice of my beloved; behold, he cometh leaping over the mountains, skipping over the hills." It is the voice of my beloved. That abrupt broken expression shews a perfect surprize: the few mountains of guilt and unworthiness between Christ and her soul; and yet, behold, he comes skipping over all those mountains and hills: O free grace, rich and admirable grace, which with so many notwithstanding and nevertheless, will save and comfort the poor unworthy soul!

How little reason have any of us to be proud of our best performances! "There is not a just man upon earth, that doth good, and sinneth not," faith Solomon, Eccles. vii. 20. If there be something supernaturally good in our duties, yet there is abundance of natural evil commixed with that good; the evil is wholly ours, the good wholly God's; we have no reason then to glory in our best performances.

It hath been a question with some, Whether some short transient act of a regenerate soul may not be free from sin; but it was never questioned, whether any continued act, much less a course of actions, could be without sin. Evil will be present with us in all we do; it will be with us in our closets; present even in the awful presence of the holy God, in the most high and solemn duties of religion, in the most pure and spiritual actions that pass from us; cease then, as from dependence, so from pride and conceitedness in all you do. Whilst our natures are sanctified but in part, and our principles mixt, our duties and performances can never be pure. "Who can bring a clean thing out of an unclean? not one," Job xiv. 4.

3. How are we all obliged to bless God for Jesus the Mediator, to make us and our sinful duties acceptable to God? Sad were our case if this high priest did not "bear the iniquity of our holy things," as it is, Exod. xxviii. 38. It is his oblation and intercession that obtains and continues our pardon for our prayer-sins, our hearing-sins, our sacrament-sins; these alone would eternally damn us, if we had no other, did not free-grace make us accepted in the Beloved," Eph. i. 6. When evil is present with us, then is Christ, our Advocate, present with the Father for us; and thence it is that we are not destroyed upon our knees, and that the jealousy of God breaks not forth as fire, to devour us in our very duties.

4. If evil be present with us, yea, inherent in us, in our best duties, what need had Christians then to watch against the external occasions of sin, and to keep a close guard upon their senses, especially when they have to do with God? There is danger enough from within; you need not open another door from without. This natural corruption is too active in itself, if there be no irritation by any external occasion; how much more when the eye and ear are opened and unguarded, and occasions are offered it from without. Watching is half the work of a Christian, whilst he is praying, Eph. vi. 18. The Arabian proverb is as instructive as it is mystical, Shut the windows, that the house may be light.

5. If evil be present when we would do good, if it infests us in our best duties, then certainly there is no rest to be expected for any of God's people in this world. Where shall we go to be free from sin? If any where, let us go to our closets, to our knees, to the ordinances of God; yea, but even there evil is, and will be present with us; if we cannot be free from evil there, it is in vain to expect it elsewhere in this world. Only in heaven believers rest from sin. When once they are absent from the body, and present with the Lord, sin shall no more be present with them; which should make all that hate sin, long for heaven, and be "willing to be dissolved and be
Sacramental Meditations.

"with Christ."

2. For direction. Let all that experimentally see and feel what the apostle here mourns over, carefully attend such directions as may prevent the spoil of their duties by the working of their corruptions in them.

Though no rules are found sufficient to prevent wholly the influence of our corruptions upon duties, yet own it as a special mercy, if it may in any measure be prevented or restrained: In order whereunto I shall hint briefly these following rules, which the experience of many Christians hath recommended, as exceeding useful in this case.

Rule 1. Be more diligent in preparation for your duties, if you would meet with less interruption in your duties. The very light of nature teaches solemn preparation to all important and wefty business: And is there more solemn and concerning business in all the world, than that which thou transactest with God in duties? Angels approach not this God with whom thou hast to do, without profound respect to his immense greatness and awful holiness, Isa. vi. 3. When you stretch forth your hands, it is required that you first prepare your hearts, Job xi. 13, 14.

Rule 2. Realize the presence of God in all your duties; and awe your hearts all that you are able by that consideration. O think what a piercing holy eye beholds thy heart, and tries thy reins! Wouldst thou not be really ashamed, if thy thoughts were but vocal to men, and the workings and wanderings of thy heart visible to those that join with thee in the same duty?
O, if the presence of God were more realized, certainly your hearts would be better secured against the incursions of your corruptions.

Rule 3. Labour for a deeper measure and degree of sanctification; many other rules are but spiritual anodynes to give present ease, but this is the way to a real cure. A thousand things may be found helpful to put by a vain thought for the present, but then it returns again, and it may be with more strength: This is the proper method to dry the spring, when others are but attempts to divert the stream: If habits of grace were more deeply radicated, acts of grace would be more easy to us, and flow more freely from us.

Rule 4. Lastly, Consider what an aggravation it is to your evil, to vent itself in the special presence of God in duties. See who Paul mourns over it in the text: It is not only a sin, but an affronting of God to his face: This grieving of his Spirit is the spoil of thy duty; it is (as one aptly calls it) obex infernalis, an hellish bar or remora to all sweet and free intercourse of the soul with God.

3. For Consolation. But whilst I am representing the evil of it to some, it may be there are others overwhelmed with the sorrowful sense of it, even to discouragement and despondency: Poor Christian! is this thy case? Are all the afflictions in the world nothing to thee, in comparison with this evil which is present with thee, when thou wouldst do good? Well, though thou canst not do the good thou wouldst, nor free thyself yet from the evil thou wouldst, rather than live, be freed from, there are four things that may give much relief to thy penitent soul.

1. Though the presence of evil, even in thy best duties, be sad, yet thy grief and afflictions for it is sweet: That is a sad sin, but this is a sweet sign. It is not heart-evils, heart-wandering in duties, hardness and unbelief, that hypocrites mourn for, but more gross and external evils. Let this trouble for sin comfort thee when the presence of sin grieves thee.

2. God accepts, through Jesus Christ, what you do sincerely, though you can do nothing purely and perfectly, Cant. v. 1. Your sincerity is your evangelical perfection; the evil that is present is not imputed; the good that is present is (notwithstanding that commixed evil) accepted, which is strong consolation.

3. You find your case was the case of blessed Paul, a man of eminent sanctity. And if you consult all the saints, one by one, you will find them all sick of this disease; so that your case is not singular.

4. Your justification is perfect, and without spot, though your sanctification be not so; and the time is coming, when your sanctification shall be as your justification is, and after that no more complaints.

THE FOURTH MEDITATION, UPON

Eph. i. 13. In whom also, after that ye believed, ye were sealed with the holy Spirit of promise.

FROM his doxology and solemn thanksgiving, ver. 3. the apostle enumerates the principal Christian privileges that gave the occasion of that thanksgiving, among which this in the text is not the least, though last named.
Sacramental Meditations.

In this one verse we have the two noble acts of faith displayed; its direct act, called trusting; and its reflex act, which in order of nature and time follows it, and is implied in the word sealing.

In the latter clause (to which I shall confine my meditations) four things must be remarked; viz. 1. The subject; 2. Nature; 3. Author; And 4. Quality of assurance.

1. The subject of assurance, which is, and can be no other than a soul that hath closed with Christ by faith: Reflex acts necessarily presuppose direct ones. Never was any unbeliever sealed, except to damnation: Assurance is peculiarly the prerogative of believers.

2. The nature of assurance: He calls it sealing; an apt metaphor to express the nature of it; for assurance, like a seal, both confirms, declares, and distinguishes it; it confirms the grant of God, declares the purpose of God, and distinguishes the person so privileged from other men.

3. The Author of assurance, which is the Spirit, he is the keeper of the great seal of heaven; and it is his office to confirm and seal the believer's right and interest in Christ and heaven, Rom. viii. 16.

4. Lastly, The quality of this Spirit of assurance, or the sealing Spirit: He seals in the quality of an holy Spirit, and of the Spirit of promise; as an holy Spirit, relating to his previous sanctifying work upon the sealed soul; as the Spirit of promise, respecting the medium or instrument made use of by him in his sealing work; for he seals by opening and applying the promises to believers from the Spirit's order. The note will be this:

Doct. That the privilege of sealing follows the duty of believing.

There is no season more proper to treat of the sealing of the Spirit, than at a sealing ordinance: Nor can I handle the Spirit's sealing-work in a more profitable method, than in satisfying these five queries particularly, and then applying the whole.

1. What is the Spirit's sealing-work, and how performed?
2. Why none are sealed till they believe?
3. Whether all believers are sealed?
4. What is the privilege of being sealed?
5. What are the effects of the Spirit's sealing?

1. Query. What is the Spirit's sealing-work? and how is it performed.
Sacramental Meditations.

The sealing of the Spirit is, his giving a sure and certain testimony to the reality of that work of grace he hath wrought in our souls, and to our interest in Christ and the promises, thereby satisfying our fears and doubts about our estate and condition.

Every matter of weight and concernment is to be proved by two sufficient witnesses, Deut. xix. 15. Our sincerity and interest in Christ are matters of the deepest concernment to us in all the world, and therefore need a farther witnesses to confirm and clear them than that of our own spirits, Rom. viii. 16.

Three things concur to the Spirit's sealing-work.

He sanctifies the soul; he irradiates and clears that work of sanctification; he enables it thereby to apply promises.

The first is his material or objective seal; the latter his formal sealing. None but the Spirit of God can clear and confirm our title to Christ, for he only searcheth the deep things of God, 1 Cor. ii. 10. and it is his office, Rom. viii. 16.

This seal or witness of the Spirit must needs be true and certain, because omniscience and truth are his essential properties. He is omniscient, 1 Cor. ii. 10. and therefore cannot be deceived himself. He is the Spirit of truth, John xiv. 17. and therefore cannot deceive us; so that his testimony is more infallible and satisfactory than a voice from heaven, 2 Pet. i. 19.

If an angel should appear, and tell us, Christ hath said to him, Go and tell such a man, that I love him, that I shed my blood for him, and will save him, it could never give that repose and satisfaction to the mind, as the internal witness or seal of the Spirit doth; for that may be a delusion, but this cannot. The witness of our own heart may amount to a strong probability, but the witness of the Spirit is demonstration, 1 John iv. 24.

So, that as it is the design and work of Satan, to cast in doubts and fears into gracious hearts, to perplex and entangle them, so, oppositely, it is the work of the Spirit to clear and settle the sanctified soul, and fill it with peace and joy in believing, John xvi. 7. Rom. xiv. 17.

In sealing, he both attests the fides qua creditur, the doctrine or object of faith, and the fides qua creditur, the infused habit or grace of faith: of the former he faith, This is my word; of the latter, This is my work; and his seal or testimony is evermore agreeable to the written word, Isa. viii. 20. So that what he speaks in our hearts, and what he faith in the scripture, are evermore concordant and harmonious testimonies.
To conclude: In sealing the believer he doth not make use of an audible voice, nor the ministry of angels, nor immediate and extraordinary revelations, but he makes use of his own graces implanted in our hearts, and his own promises written in the scriptures; and in this method he usually brings the doubting trembling heart of a believer to rest and comfort.

2. Query. Why are none sealed till after believing?

Answ. It cannot be denied, but that many persons in a state of nature and unbelief, may have ungrounded considerations, and false comforts built thereupon. This is evident from Matt. vii. 22. "Many will say unto me in that day, Lord, "Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name?" And John viii. 54, 55. "Of whom ye say that he is your God, and yet "ye have not known him." And, beyond all, is that startling scripture, Heb. iv. 4, 5. "Who were once enlightened, "and have tasted of the heavenly gift, and were made partakers "of the holy Ghost, and have tasted the good word of God, "and the powers of the world to come, if they fall away," &c.

But for any, except real believers, to have those witnesses and sealings of the Spirit described above, is utterly impossible, and will evidently appear to be so, whether we consider the author, nature, object, mediums, end and design of this work.

First, Consider the author of this work, the Spirit of God, who is an holy Spirit, as the text calls him, and the Spirit of truth, as Christ calls him, John xiv. 17. and it cannot be that ever he should give testimony to a lie, or give a false witness, quite cross to the very tenor of the written word, as he must do, should he seal an unbeliever. What though they be elect? yet, whilst unregenerate, they have no actual interest in Christ and the promises, and therefore can have none sealed by the Spirit. Prima est pradicare de esse quam de cognoici; we must be saints before we can be known to be so.

Secondly, Consider but the nature of this work, and it cannot be that ever an unbeliever should be sealed by the Spirit; for assurance is produced in our souls by the reflexive acts of our faith: the Spirit helps us to reflect upon what hath been done by him formerly upon our hearts; "hence we know that "we know him," 1 John ii. 3. To know that we know, is a reflex act; now it is impossible there should be a reflex before there hath been a direct act: no man can have the evidence of his faith, before the habit be infused, and the vital act first performed.

Thirdly, Consider the object-matter, to which he seals, and it will be found to be his own sanctifying operations upon our Sacramental Meditations.

Hearts, and consequently to our privileges in Christ, Rom. viii. 16. 1 John iii. 24. The thing or matter attested is, that Christ abideth in us, and that we are the children of God; but no such thing can be sealed till we believe, for neither our adoption nor sanctification can be before faith.

Fourthly, Consider the mediums or instruments used by the Spirit in his sealing-work: the promises are his sealing instruments, and on that account he is called the Spirit of promise in the text; not only because he is the Spirit promised, but as the promises contain the Spirit, so the Spirit uses the promises, (i. e.) clears them to our understandings, and helps us to apply them to our souls. But this he never doth, nor can do, till the soul, by faith, have union with Christ; for till then, it hath no right in the promises.

Fifthly, and lastly, Consider the end and design of this work of the Spirit, which is to secure to the soul its peace, pardon, and salvation in Christ, he seals believers to the day of redemption, Eph. iv. 30. (i. e.) to their complete salvation; so then it must be equally impossible for an unbeliever to be sealed as to be saved.

3. Query. The next enquiry is, Whether all believers are sealed by the Spirit?

Answ. The resolution of this query will depend upon several distinctions that must be made upon this matter.

Distinction 1. We must distinguish the different kinds of the Spirit's sealing; all his sealing-work is not of one kind, nor to one and the same use and end.

There is an objective seal, which distinguishes the person; and a formal seal, which clears and ratifies his interest in Christ and salvation: the first he doth in sanctifying us, the second in assuring us.

When he seals objectively, that is, when he sanctifies us really by the infusion of grace, he seals us by way of distinction from other men, which is one end of sealing; for though, in respect of God's decree and purpose, there was a difference betwixt us and others before time, 2 Tim. ii. 19. and although in regard of Christ's intention in his death, there was a difference betwixt us and others, John xvii. 9. yet all this while there is no personal actual difference betwixt us and others, till sanctification do make one, Eph. ii. 19. and 1 Cor. vi. 11. But the sanctification of the Spirit makes a real difference in the state and temper of the person, 2 Cor. v. 17. and manifests that difference which election put betwixt us and others before time, 1 Thess. i. 4, 5. And yet all this while a man may not be formally sealed, i.e. his sanctification may be very doubtful to himself, and he may labour under great fears about it.

Distinction 2. The seafons of the Spirit's sealing must be distinguished; and these are to some, 1st, Immediately upon the soul's first closing with Christ at conversion, especially when conversion is wrought at a riper age, and is ushered in by a greater degree of the Spirit of bondage, and deep inward terrors. Thus the Prodigal (the emblem of a convert so brought home to God) was entertained with the fatted calf and music; but all find not this presently, as some do.

2dly, Times of eminent communion with God are sealing times. There are extraordinary out-lets of peace, joy, and comfort, at some seafons, in duty, which makes the state of the soul very clear, and banishes all scruples and fears from the heart.

3dly, Others are sealed upon some eminent hazard they have been exposed to for Christ, or some extraordinary sufferings they have undergone for Christ, wherein they have carried it with eminent meekness, patience, and self-denial, 2 Cor. i. 4, 5. Thus the martyrs were many times sealed in the depth of their sufferings.

4thly, It is usually found that a sealing-time follows a dark day of desertion, and fore combats with temptations; post nubila phoebus. So that text, Rev. ii. 17., is expounded by some, "To him that overcometh will I give to eat of the hidden manna, and will give him a white stone, and in the stone a new name written."

5thly, Dying-times prove sealing-times to many souls, if their whole life hath been like that day described by the prophet, Zech. xiv. 17. Neither dark nor light, a life betwixt hopes and fears, yet at evening-time it hath been light.

Distinction 3. Last, We must distinguish these several ways and manners of sealing: Some are extraordinary and immediate, vouchsafed only to some persons, at some special times and seafons. Thus Zaccheus was in an extraordinary and immediate way ascertained of his salvation; Luke xix. 9. "This day is salvation come to this house." And so the palsied man; Mark ii. 5. "Son, (faith Christ) thy sins be forgiven thee." But these immediate ways are ceased; no man may now expect by any new revelation or sign from heaven, by any voice or extraordinary inspiration, to have his salvation sealed, but must expect that mercy in God's ordinary way and method, searching the scriptures, examining our own hearts, and waiting on the Lord in prayer.

The learned Gerson gives an instance of one that had been long upon the borders of despair, and at last sweetly assured and settled; and being asked how he attained that assurance, he answered, non ex nova aliqua revelatione, &c. Not by any new revelation, but by subjecting my understanding to, and comparing my heart with the written word.

And Mr. Roberts, in his treatise of the covenants, speaks of another that so vehemently panted after the scalings and assurance of the love of God to his soul, that for a long time he earnestly desired some voice from heaven; and sometimes walking in the solitary fields, earnestly desired some miraculous voice from the trees or stones there: This was denied him, but in time a better was afforded, in a scriptural way.

Now to resolve the query out of these distinctions.

First, Though all believers have not the formal scalings of the Spirit, yet they have the objective or material seal; that is, the Spirit is in them as a sanctifying Spirit, putting a real difference between them and others, when he is not with them by way of evidence and assurance of sanctification.

Secondly, Though all believers are not sealed at one and the same time, yet there are few, if any believers, but do meet with some seal or other in this life, wherein the Lord doth seal them; if not at their first close with Christ, as many have been sealed, yet in some choice and eminent seal of communion with God: Such golden spots of time, such precious seafons most Christians can speak of; though, as Bernard speaks, it be rara hora, brevis mora, seldom, but sweet: Or if not in the course of their active obedience, it is a thousand to one but they shall meet it in the way of their passive obedience, if God exercise them eminently under the cross, or after a dark cloud of desertion, or in a dying hour.

Thirdly, and lastly, though God now seals not men in an extraordinary and immediate way, by revelation, immediate inspiration, or voices from heaven, yet most Christians are sealed in the ordinary way of the Spirit, under one ordinance or other, in one duty or other.

4. Query. What is the privilege of being sealed by the Spirit? Answer. Much every way; words cannot express the riches of this mercy: For let us but consider the four following particulars, and you will admire the mercy.

First, Consider whose act and proper work sealing is. God doth not send angels upon this errand; though, if he did, that would be a great honour to poor dust and ashes, but he sends his Spirit to do it. O the condescension of the great God to men! This is a greater honour than if millions of angels were employed about it.

And then, as to the certainty and satisfaction, it is beyond all other ways and methods in the world; for in miraculous voices and inspirations it is possible there may, subesse falsum, be found some cheats or imposture of the devil; but the Spirit's witness in the heart, suitable to his revelation in the scripture, cannot deceive us.

Secondly, The conclusion or truth sealed is ravishing and transporting. All Christians vehemently pant for it, few have the enjoyment of it for any long continuance; but whilst they do enjoy it, they enjoy heaven upon earth, a joy beyond all the joys of this world. To have this conclusion surely sealed, Christ is mine, my sin is pardoned, I shall be saved from wrath through him; O what is this! what is this!

Thirdly, Consider the subject or person sealed, a poor sinful wretch, that has, ten thousand times over, grieved the good Spirit of God, by whom, notwithstanding, thou art sealed to the day of redemption: Thou hast by every sin deserved to be sealed up to damnation: Thou hast reason to account and esteem thyself much inferior in graces and duties to many thousands of the saints that are panting after this privilege, and cannot obtain it: O the riches of the goodness of God!

Fourthly, and lastly, Consider the designs and aims of the Spirit in his sealing thy soul, which are,

1. To secure heaven to thee for ever.
2. As intermediate thereunto, to bring very much of heaven into thy soul, in the way to it; indeed to give thee two heavens, whilst many others must suffer two hells.

Query. Lastly, we will enquire, What are the effects of the Spirit's sealing upon our souls, by which we may distinguish and clearly discern it from all delusions of Satan, and all impostures whatsoever.

Answer. The genuine and proper effects and fruits of sealing are, 1. Inflamed love. 2. Renewed care. 3. Deep abasements. 4. Increase of strength. 5. A desire to be with the Lord. 6. Improved mortification to the world.

Wheresoever these are found consequent to our communion with God, and his manifestations of himself to us therein, they put it beyond all doubt that it was the seal of his own blessed Spirit, and no delusion.

1. The sealings of the Spirit cannot but inflame the love of the soul in a very intense degree towards God; one flame doeth no more naturally beget another, than the love of God doeth kindle the love of a gracious soul to him: "We have "known and believed the love that God hath to us," 1 John iv. 16, 19. When Christ had forgiven much to that poor woman that had sinned much, and manifested pardoning mercy to her soul; O how much was her love to Christ inflamed thereby! Luke vii. 47.

2. Renewed care and diligence follows the sealings of the Spirit: Now is the soul at the foot of Christ, as Mary was at the sepulchre, with fear and great joy. He that travels the road with a rich treasure about him, is afraid of a thief in every bush. This is exemplified in the spouse, who had endured many a sad day and night in Christ's absence, and sought him forrowing: But when she had regained his felt and sensible presence, it is said, Cant. iii. 4. "I found him whom my soul loveth; "I held him, and would not let him go."

She doth not (as Mr. Durham speaks) lay by diligence, as if all were done; but is of-new taken up with as great care to retain and improve this mercy, as before she was solicitous to obtain it. Whether a believer want or have, whether he be seeking or enjoying, there is still matter of exercise for him in his condition.

3. Deep abasements, and great humblings, use to follow the eminent appearances of God to the souls of men. "Lord,
"(said that disciple) how is it that thou wilt manifest thyself to "us, and not unto the world?" John xiv. 22. When God sealed the covenant to Abraham, to be a God to him, at this Abraham fell upon his face, Gen. xvii. 1, 2, 3. Never doth a soul lie lower in the dust, and abhor itself, than when the Lord makes the most signal manifestations of his grace and love to it.

4. Increased strength follows the sealings of the Spirit.
New powers enter into the soul, and a sensible improvement of its abilities for duty: "Or ever I was aware (faith the spouse)
"my soul made me as the chariots of Amminadib," Cant. vi. 12.

Now the wheels of the soul being oiled with the joy and comfort of the Spirit, run nimbly in the ways of obedience.
The joy of the Lord is your strength.

5. Sealings of the Spirit inflame the desires of the soul after heaven, and make it long to go home. Nothing makes death so undesirable to the saints, as the doubts and fears that hang upon their spirits, about their condition. Were their evidences for heaven clear, and their doubts resolved, they would, as the apostle speaks, "desire to be dissolved, and to be with "Christ," Phil. i. 23. If once the great question of our interest in Christ be thoroughly decided, and all be clear betwixt us and our God, we shall find life the matter of patience, and death the object of desire.

Sixthly, and lastly, Improved mortification to the world, flows naturally from the sealings and assurances of the love of God to our souls. It is with our souls, after such a view of heaven, and a sealing interest therein, as it is with him that hath been gazing upon that glorious creature the sun, when he comes to cast his eyes again upon the earth, all things seem dark and cloudy to him; he sees no beauty in any of those things because of that excellent lustre which he lately beheld.

"We know (faith the apostle) that if our earthly house of this tabernacle were dissolved, we have a building of God; an house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens:" There is assurance or sealing. "For in this we groine earnestly; desiring to be cloathed upon with our house which is from heaven:" There is the natural effect of it, 2 Cor. v. 1, 2.

Uses. The point speaks to three sorts of persons, viz. 1. To those that have not yet been sealed. 2. To those that once had, but now want, this comfort. 3. To those that enjoy the comforts of it.

First, To those that yet want this mercy, who have not been formerly sealed by any assurance of their title to Christ, but all their days have been clogged with fears, and doubt of their condition. To such my counsel is,

1. That you be not quiet under these uncertainties, but pant after the assurance of peace and pardon. Say unto Christ, as the spouse did, Cant. viii. 6. "Set me as a seal upon thy heart, as a seal upon thine arm:" Pant after it, as David did, Psalm xxxv. 3. "Say unto my soul, I am thy salvation."

How can you look upon such precious promises, and not dare to taste them? How can you hear others speak of their satisfaction, peace, and assurance, and be quiet until you have also attained it? What is it that hinders this mercy, that it cannot come home to your souls? Is it your neglect of duty? O stir up yourselves to take hold of God! Is it want of a thorough search and examination of your state? O let not thine eyes find rest, till that be fully done. Is it some special guilt upon thy soul, that grieves the Spirit of God? Be restless till it be removed. I know this mercy is not at your command, do what you can do; but yet I also know, when God bestows it, he usuall doth it in these ways of our duty.

Secondly, To those that once had, but now want this blessing, who say as Job xxix. 2, 3. "O that it were with me as in days past!" The darkness is the greater to you, because you have walked in the light of the Lord. The sum of Christ's counsel in this case is given in three words; Rev. ii. 5. Remember, repent, reform.
Sacramental Meditations.

First, Remember, i.e. Ponder, consider, compare time with time, and state with state, how well it once was, how sad it is now.

Secondly, Repent; mourn over these your sinful relapses; sure you may challenge the first place among all the mourners in the world. Your loss is great. O better to have lost the light of your eyes, than this sweet light of God's countenance. Your sin hath separated between you and your God; O mourn over it.

Thirdly, Reform; Do your first works again. O Christian, consider thy heart is sunk deeper into the world than it was wont to be; thy duties are fewer, and thy zeal and affection to God much abated. Return, return, O backsliding soul, and labour to recover thy first love to Christ whatever pains it cost thee.

Lastly, To those that do enjoy these choice and invaluable mercies, the sealings of the Spirit:

First, Take heed that you grieve not the good Spirit of God, "by whom ye are sealed to the day of redemption," Eph. iv: 30. He hath comforted you; do not you grieve him: The Spirit is a tender delicate thing, you may quickly deprive yourselves of his joy and peace.

Secondly, Be humble under this advancement and dignity. If your hearts once begin to swell look out for humbling dispositions quickly, 2 Cor. xii. 7. This treasure is always kept in the vessel of a contrite and humble heart.

Thirdly, Keep close to duty; yea, tack one duty to another by intermediate ejaculations. If care of duty be once remitted, you are not far from a sad change of your condition.

Fourthly, Improve all ordinances, especially this great sealing ordinance, for your farther confirmation and establishment. Act your faith to the uttermost of its ability, upon Christ crucified; and comfort will flow in: The more the direct acts of faith are exercised, the more powerful and sweet its reflex acts are like to be.
THE FIFTH MEDITATION,
UPON

JOHN i. 29. Behold the Lamb of God, which taketh away the sins of the world.

THE scope of this chapter, is to prove the divinity and eternal Godhead of Jesus Christ. One of those arguments by which this great article of faith is confirmed and proved is the testimony of John. This testimony of John is the more remarkable, because it was before prophesied of him, that when the Messiah should come, this messenger should go before his face, to prepare the way for him, Mal. iii. 1.

Now, among all the testimonies that ever John gave of Christ, none ever was, or could be more full and clear than this in the text: "Behold the Lamb of God, which taketh away the sins of the world!"

In which words are remarkable, 1. The preface to his testimony. 2. The testimony itself.

First, The preface or introduction to John's testimony; Behold! there is a double use in scripture of this word: sometimes it is used by way of indication, and sometimes by way of excitation. In the first, it points out the person; in the last, it raises our affections to him. In this place it hath both these uses.

Behold the Lamb of God! q. d. This is the great expectation and hope of all ages. This person whom you behold, is the desire of all nations. Lo this, is God manifest in the flesh.

This is the great sacrifice, the Lamb of God: Never did human eyes behold such an object before.

Secondly, The testimony itself: Which must be considered two ways; as it respects. 1. The truth and reality; 2. The virtue and dignity of Christ its object.

First, John's testimony respects the truth and reality of the object: This is another, the Lamb of God; the very antitype to which all legal sacrifices had respect, and from which they derived all their value and virtue; grace and truth came by Jesus Christ, as he had said before, ver. 17. The paschal lamb and the lamb for daily sacrifice, were but the types and shadows of this Lamb of God.
Sacramental Meditations.

Secondly, His testimony respects the virtue and dignity of Christ and his blood. He taketh away the sin of the world. The Greek word, ἀφίεσθαι, (as De Dieu, a learned critic, observes) answers both the Hebrew words, וַיִּגְדְּל, Isa. lii. and signify not only to bear, but to bear away; Potando expiat, expiando aufert, efficitque ut remittatur. By bearing sin, he expiates it; by expiating, takes it away, or procures the remission of it. The expression seems to allude to the scape-goat, mentioned Lev. xvi. 22. Thus Christ really and wholly takes away the sin of the world; i.e. the sin of all believers in the world, for whom he was sacrificed? as Drusius well expounds it, concurring with the stream of sound expositors.

So that this is a very full testimony which John gives to Christ, and it is given with great affection, and admiration of him: Behold! yea, admire in beholding the Lamb of God, which taketh away the sin of the world. Behold him with affections suitable to such an object; Ecce persona a Deo ordinata, in victimam ad expiandum peccata. Grotius. Behold the person appointed by God, for a sacrifice to expiate sin! Now, tho' this scripture be very fruitful in practical observations, yet it is not my purpose, at this time, to note or prosecute any of them except this one, which rises from the prefatory particle, or that note of admiration, with which John's testimony of Christ is ushered in; Behold the Lamb of God! And the note thence will be this:

Doct. That Jesus Christ, the Lamb of God, is to be beheld with admiration and affection suitable to such an object.

Christ is beheld by men three ways:

First, Carnally, with an eye of flesh: So men saw him in the days of his flesh, and despised him, Isa. lii. 2. Carnal eyes saw no beauty in him, that he should be desired.

Secondly, Fiducially, by the eye of faith: believing, is seeing Christ, John vi. 40. Faith is to the saints instead of eyes: By it they make Christ present, tho' the heavens have received him out of our carnal sight.

Thirdly, Beatifically, by the glorified eye: so the spirits of just men made perfect do, by their mental eye, see him in glory; and all the saints, after the resurrection, shall with these corporeal eyes, see their Redeemer, according to Job xix. 26, 27.

The sight of Christ by faith (which is all the sight of him that any man now hath, or can have in this world) as it is much more excellent than the first; for "blessed are they that have not seen, and yet believe," John xx. 29. So it is much inferior to the last; 1 Cor. xiii. 12. "For now we see darkly through a glass, but then face to face." But tho' it be an inferior vision in respect of that which is immediate and perfect; yet the eye of faith is a precious eye, and the visions of Christ by faith, are ravishing visions; and he that beholds Christ, the Lamb of God, by a steady fixed eye of faith, cannot but admire, and be deeply affected with such a sight of him. The views of Christ by faith, are ravishing and transporting views, 1 Pet. i. 8. "Whom having not seen, ye love; in whom, though now ye see him not, yet believing, ye rejoice with joy unspeakable, and full of glory."
Sacramental Meditations.

It is a disparagement to so glorious an object as Christ, to behold him, and not wonder; to see, and not love him. Certainly the admiration, love, delight, and joy of our hearts, are all the command of faith: for let us but consider what ravishing excellencies are in Christ, for the eye of a believer to behold and admire.

First, God is in Christ, 2 Cor. v. 19. He is God manifest in the flesh, 1 Tim. iii. 16. A God incarnate, is the world's wonder! Here is finite and infinite joined in one; eternity matched with time; the Creator and creature making but one person! "The Lord hath created a new thing upon the earth; A woman shall compass a man," Jer. xxxi. 22. It is an argument of weakness, to admire little things; and of stupidity, not to admire great things. Many miracles (faith one) were wrought by Christ in the flesh; but the greatest of all miracles was his assumption of flesh.

Secondly, The wisdom of God is in Christ; yea, in him are hid all the treasures of wisdom and knowledge, Col. ii. 3. Never did the divine wisdom display its glorious beams, in the eyes of men and angels, in any work of God since the beginning of time, as it hath done in the designation of Christ to be the Lamb of God, a sacrifice for sin. Behold the Lamb of God! and in him behold the unsearchable wisdom of God, in recovering the elect perfectly from all the danger of sin, and yet making sin more dreadful to them, by way of their recovery from it, than ever it could be made by any other consideration. Infinite wisdom, in suiting the sinner's remedy to the cause of his disease! The disease was the pride of man; the remedy was the humiliation of the Son of God. Man affected to be as God; that ruined him: God comes down, assumes flesh, and will be found in fashion as a man; that saved him.

O profound wisdom! which from the loss and ruin of our primitive glory (which was the undoing of us, foul and ho-
Sacramental Meditations.

Who but Jesus Christ, the wisdom of God, (as he is called, 1 Cor. i. 24.) could ever have ordered and over-ruled the worst of evils, so as by occasion of the breach of the law, to raise more glory to God, than ever could have been given to him by the most punctual observance of its commands, or by the most rigorous execution of its penalties? O the astonishing depth of wisdom!

Thirdly, The love of God is in Christ. Behold the Lamb of God! and in him behold the love of God, in the highest and most triumphant discovery that ever was, or can be made of it in this world! 1 John iv. 10. “Herein is love, not that we loved him, but that he loved us, and sent his Son to be the propitiation for our sins.” O here, here is the love of God to sinners! he manifests love to us, in our daily provisions, protections, deliverances, and comforts. That we have health, when others groan under pains; therein is love: that we have bread to eat, when others are ready to perish; therein is love. O! but to have Christ to be a propitiation for us, when the angels that fell were left desperate; therein was love indeed! All the love that breaks out in the variety of providences for us in this world, in our health and estates, in our relations and comforts, is nothing compared with this love: Herein is love indeed!

Fourthly, The tender mercies of God over poor sinners are in Christ. As Christ is the mercy promised, Luke i. 72. the capital mercy; so he is the channel, thro' which all the streams of God's mercy flow freely to the sons of men, Jude 21. The mercy of God to eternal life, or his saving mercies, are only dispensed to us thro' Jesus Christ. Behold the Lamb of God! a Lamb prepared by the astonishing mercy of God, a sacrifice for us, when no sacrifice was laid out for fallen angels. Mercy alone hath made this difference: mercy opened its tender eye, and looked through Christ upon us, in the depth of our misery: in Christ it is that the milder attribute of mercy is exercised upon us, whilst severe justice punishes them.

Fifthly, All the hopes of poor sinners are in Christ, Col. i. 27. Take away Christ, and where is the hope of our souls? Tim. i. 1. it is by the blood of the Lamb that we have hope towards God: in his oblation, and no where else, our hope of salvation finds footing: on him it is, the anchor of hope is fixed, and the soul stayed, when the storms of fear and inward trouble do arise, and beat violently upon it.

Sixthly, The salvation of our souls to eternity, is in Christ;
Acts iv. 12. "Neither is there any other name given under heaven by which we must be saved." He is the ark, in whom we are preserved, Jude ver. 1. Look, as the sprinkling of the blood of the Paschal Lamb upon the door-posts of the Israelites, was that which preserved them from the destroying angel; so the blood of Christ, the Lamb of God, typified by that blood, saves believers from the wrath to come.

But who can open the unsearchable riches, or recount the ravishing excellencies found in Christ? Angels, and the spirits of just men made perfect, behold, and admire forevermore, the incomparable excellencies of Christ! Heaven would be no heaven to them, if they could not behold Christ there, Psal. lxxxiii. 25.

But my business rather lies in improving this point, than endeavouring farther to unfold it: for new wonders will appear in Christ, if we behold him to eternity.

Use. And all the improvement I shall make of it, shall be in one use of exhortation; beseeching every one of you, whatever your present condition and estate be, "to behold the Lamb of God, which taketh away the sin of the world!" And,

First, If there be found among you any that are sensible of a stony hard heart, which cannot relent and mourn for all the wrong done to Jesus Christ, by sin, whose affections are numbed and stupidied by sin, so that no considerations they can urge upon their own hearts, are able to thaw them, and cause a relenting pang for sin; to such I would direct the words of this text, as the most effectual means to melt such hearts. Look hither, hard heart; "Behold the Lamb of God!" Consider, believe, and apply what is here sensibly represented; and thy heart is hard indeed, if it relent not upon such a view of Christ. It is said, Zech. xii. 10. "They shall look upon me, whom they have pierced, and mourn." Behold the Son of God, brought "as a Lamb to the slaughter" for thee, a vile polluted sinner! Behold the invaluable blood of this sacrifice, shed for thee! Bring thy thoughts close to this subject; think who it is that was made a Lamb for sacrifice; for whom he endured all his unspeakable sufferings; how meekly and willingly he endured all the wrath of God and men, standing in his perfect innocency, to be slain for thee. Behold! he was "made sin for thee, who had no sin; that thou, who hadst no righteousness, mightest be made the righteousness of God in him." Oh! whoever loved thee at that rate Christ hath done? Who would endure that misery that Christ did endure for thy sake? Would thy father, or the wife of thy bosom, or thy friend, that is as thy own soul, be content to feel that for thee (though but one hour) which Christ felt, when "his sweet was as it had been great drops of blood falling to down to the ground?" Nay, thou wouldest never taste such a cup for the saving of thine own child, as Christ drank off, when he cried, "My God! my God! why hast thou forfaken me?" Behold how he loved thee!

Surely, if the rocks rent asunder at his passion, thy heart is harder than a rock, if it thaw not at such a sight as this. Fix thine eyes a while here, and thine eye will affect thy heart.

Secondly, Is there any among us that make too light of sin, and are easily overcome by every temptation to the commission of it? O come hither, and "behold the Lamb of God!" and you cannot possibly have slight thoughts of sin after such a sight of Christ. See here the price of sin! behold what it cost the Lord Jesus Christ to expiate it. Did he come into the world as a Lamb, bound with the bands of an irreversible decree, to die for sin? Did he come from the bosom of the Father, to be our ransomer, and that at the price of his own life? Did the hand of severe justice shed the heart-blood of this immaculate Lamb, to satisfy for the wrongs thy sins have done to God? And yet, canst thou look upon sin as a light matter? God forbid!

I remember, when the worthies of Israel brake through the host of the Philistines, and brought unto David the waters of the well of Bethlehem, it is said, 2 Sam. xxiii. 17. "He would not drink thereof, but poured it out before the Lord, and said, Be it far from me, that I should do this: Is not this the blood of the men that went in jeopardy of their lives?"

He longed for it, and yet would not taste it, how pleasant soever it would have been to him, considering what hazard was run to obtain it.

Ah Christian! it was but the hazard of their blood, that gave check to David's appetite to the water: And if the water had cost an equal quantity of their blood, yet it had been but a low argument to dissuade him from drinking it, to this consideration that now lies before thee. Thy sin actually cost the blood of Christ; one drop whereof is more valuable than all human blood; and yet wilt thou not deny thy lusts, nor resist a temptation for his sake? "Behold the lamb of God, slain for thy sin!" and thou canst never have slight thoughts of it any more.

Thirdly, Is there any among you that droop, and are discouraged in their spirits, because of their manifold aggravated... iniquities; who being overweighed with the burthenome sense of sin, despond and sink in their minds? To such I would apply the words of my text, as a sovereign cordial, to revive their hearts and hopes: "Behold the Lamb of God, that taketh away the sin of the world!"

If the blood of the Lamb can take away the sin of the world, it can take away thy sin, though there be a world of sin in thee. For do but consider Christ, as designed from eternity to be our propitiation; John vi. 27. "Him hath God the Father sealed," as sacrificed in our room, "in the fulness of time." 1 Cor. v: 7. "Christ our passover is sacrificed for us?" As accepted by the Father with the greatest content and pleasure, even "as a sweet-smelling favour," Eph. v. 2. As publicly justified and discharged by God, the Creditor, at his resurrection, 1 Tim: iii. 16. and John xvi. 9. And lastly, Consider him as now in heaven, where he "appears before God for us, as a Lamb that had been slain," Rev. v. 6. bearing the very marks of his death, and presenting them before God, as the most effectual and moving plea, to procure pardon, and mercy, for his people. Let these things, I say, be duly pondered, and nothing will be found more effectual to relieve the despondent minds of poor believers against the sinking sense of their sin.

He that represents himself in the sacrament as wounded for you, shews at the same time, to the Father in heaven, the real body that was wounded; than which nothing more effectually moves mercy, or stays the sliding feet of a poor believer's hope: And that whether we consider,

First; The dignity of that body which was wounded; the most hallowed and deeply sanctified thing that ever was created; Luke i. 35. "That holy thing."

Secondly, Or his vicegerency in suffering; "He was wounded for our transgressions," Isa. liii. 5. It was for that hard, proud, vain, dead heart, that thou complaineft of. Or,

Thirdly, The end and design of those wounds; which was to repair the honour of God, and the violated law: the language of that blood (which is said to "speak better things than the blood of Abel," Heb. xii. 24.) is this:

' Father, have these poor souls wounded thy name, thine honour, thy law? Behold the wounds thy justice hath inflicted on me, for reparation of all that wrong they have done thee? O how sweetly doth the blood of the Lamb settle the conscience of a poor drooping believer!

Fourthly, Is there any among you that are faint-hearted, and ready to shrink away from any sufferings for Christ, as unable to bear and endure any thing for his sake? To such I would say in the words of this text, Behold the Lamb of God! Did Christ suffer such grievous things for you! and cannot you suffer small matters for him? Alas! what is the wrath of man to the wrath of the great and terrible God? Besides, he was an innocent Lamb, and deserved not to suffer the least degree of penal evil upon his own account; but thou hast deserved hell, and yet shrinkest under the sufferings of a moment. Did he suffer so much for you, and can you suffer nothing for him? Surely he, in suffering for you, hath "left you an example, that you should follow his steps," 1 Pet. ii. 21. What! is our blood compared in dignity to the blood of Christ? What! are our sufferings compared in kind, or degree, to the sufferings of Christ? Nothing is found to fortify a man's spirit for sufferings, as the meditation of Christ's sufferings for us doth.

Fifthly, Is there any among you that are impatient under your own personal trials and troubles, apt to howl under common afflications from the hand of God, or swell with revenge under injuries from the hands of men? To such I would say, Behold the Lamb of God! Was Christ a Lamb for meekness, and art thou a lion for fierceness? Was he silent, not once opening his mouth; when he suffered most vile things from the hands of sinners, and can you bear nothing? He suffered patiently, and deserved it not; you suffer impatiently, and have deserved infinitely more.

O that you would learn to be more Christ-like in all your trials and affictions! Let it not be said, that Christ carried it as a Lamb when he was tried, and we like swine, grumbling or howling when we are tried. O get a Christ-like temper!

Sixthly, Is there any among you that stagger at the promises, through unbelief, that cannot rely upon a word of promise, because their own unbelieving hearts fill them with unworthy suspicions of the power, faithfulness, or willingness of God to perform them to them? O that such would behold the Lamb of God; as represented in this ordinance! Are not all the promises of God sealed to believers in the blood of the Lamb? Heb. ix. 17, 18, 19, 20. Are not all the promises of God, in Christ, "Yea, and Amen, to all that are in him?" 2 Cor. i. 20. Or is there any thing put into any promise of greater value than the blood of the Lamb, that was shed to purchase it? Or is not the giving of Christ to die for us, the accomplishment of the greatest promise that ever God made to us? And after the fulfilling thereof, what ground remains for any to doubt the fulfilling of lesser promises?

Lastly, Is there any among you that desire to get up your affections at this table, to have your hearts in a melting temper, to awaken and rouse up all the powers of your souls in so great an occasion for it as this? Behold the Lamb of God! and this will do it.

Christ calls off your eyes and thoughts from all other objects to himself; Isa. lxxv. 11. "I said, Behold me! behold me!" Fix the eye of faith here, and you will feel a pang quickly coming upon your hearts like that, Cant. ii. 5. "Stay me with flaggons, comfort me with apples; I am sick with love." Your eyes will affect your hearts; whilst you behold, your hearts will melt within you.

THE SIXTH MEDITATION

UPON

Rom. viii. 32. He that spared not his own Son, but delivered him up for us all; how shall he not with him also freely give us all things.

THIS scripture contains a most weighty argument to encourage and confirm the faith of Christians in the expectation of all spiritual and temporal mercies. It proceeds from the greater to the lesser affirmatively: he that delivered his Son for us, what can he deny us after such a gift? Every word hath its weight.

Did not God spare (i.e. abate) any thing which his justice could inflict upon his Son, his own Son, opposed here to his adopted sons, as being infinitely more excellent than they, and most dear to him above and beyond all others; but, on the contrary, delivered him up, how dear soever he was unto him, to humiliation, contradiction of sinners, to all sorrows and temptations, yea, to death, and that of the cross, and all this for us, for us sinners, for us enemies to God, for us unlovely wretches? "How shall he not with him also freely give us all things?" How is it imaginable that God should withhold after this, spirituals or temporals, from his people? How shall he not call them effectually, justify them freely, sanctify them thoroughly, and glorify them eternally? How shall he not clothe them, feed them, protect, and deliver them?
Sacramental Meditations.

Surely if he would not spare or abate to his own Son one stroke, one tear, one groan, one sigh, one circumstance of misery, it can never be imagined that ever he should, after this, deny or withhold from his people, for whose sakes all this was suffered, any mercies, any comforts, any privilege, spiritual or temporal, which is good for them, and needful to them. So that in the words we find, 1. A proposition. 2. An inference from it.

The proposition opens the severity of God's justice to Christ; the inference declares the riches of his mercy to us in Christ.

1. We have here before us a proposition, containing the severity of divine justice towards Christ; and this is expressed two ways, viz.

1st. Negatively; he spared him not.

2dly. Affirmatively; he delivered him up for us.

1st. Negatively; He spared not his own Son. There is a threefold mercy of God, viz. Preventing mercy, which steps between us and trouble; delivering mercy, which takes us out of the hand of trouble; and sparing mercy, which tho' it do not prevent nor deliver, yet it mitigates, allays, and graciously moderates our troubles; and tho' sparing mercy be desirable and sweet, yet it is the least and lowest sort of mercy that God exercises towards any. Tho' it be mercy to have the time of sufferings shortened, or one degree of suffering abated, yet these are the least and least effects of mercy; and yet these were denied Jesus Christ, when he stood in our room to satisfy for us: God spared not one drop, he abated not one degree of that wrath which Christ was to suffer for us.

2dly. Affirmatively; but on the contrary, He delivered him up for us all.

He delivered him, as a judge by sentence of law delivers up the prisoner to be executed. It is true, Pilate delivered him to be crucified, and he also gave himself for us; but between God's delivering, Pilate's delivering, and his own, there is this difference to be observed; in God it was an act of highest justice; in Pilate an act of greatest wickedness; in himself, an act of wonderful obedience.

God, as by an act of highest justice, delivered him up for us. For us, notes the vicegerency of his sufferings, not only for our good, as the final cause; nor only for our sins, as the meritorious cause; but for us, (i.e.) in our room, place, or stead according to Pet. iii. 18. and 2 Cor. v. 14.
2. We have also here before us a most sweet and comfortable inference and conclusion from this proposition: If God have so delivered him, how shall he not with him freely give us all things? For Christ comprehends all other mercies in himself; therefore in giving him for us, all other mercies are necessarily with him given to us.

And these mercies the poorest, weakest believer in the world may warrantably expect from God; for as God delivered him for us all, so the treasuries of all spiritual and temporal mercies are thereby freely opened to us all, to the weak as well as to the strong.

He faith not, Christ was delivered for all absolutely, but for us all; i.e. all that believe, all that are elected and called; in whose person it is manifest the apostle here speaks, as Panaeus on the place well observes. Hence these two doctrinal conclusions fairly offer themselves.

Doct. 1. That the rigour and severity of divine justice was executed upon Jesus Christ, when he suffered for us.

Doct. 2. That believers may strongly infer the greatest of mercies to themselves, from the severity of God's justice to Jesus Christ.

I would willingly speak to both these points at this time, each affording such proper matter of meditation to us in such a season as this. To begin therefore with the first observation.

Doct. 1. That the rigour and severity of divine justice was executed upon Jesus Christ, when he suffered for us; God did not spare him.

In Zech. xiii. 7. you have God's commission given to the sword of justice, to smite his own Son, and that without pity; "Awake, O sword, against my Shepherd, and against the man that is my fellow; smite the Shepherd," &c. And when this commission came to be executed upon Christ, the text tells us, God did not spare him; all the vials of his wrath were poured out to the last drop.

Two things require our attention in this point: 1. Wherein the severity of justice to Christ appeared. 2. Why must justice be executed on him in such rigour and severity? Why there could be no abatement, mitigation, or sparing mercy shewn him in that day?

1. Wherein the severity of divine justice to Christ appeared? And this will manifest itself in the consideration of the following particulars.

First, Let us consider what Jesus Christ suffered, and we shall see the severity of justice in his sufferings, for he suffered all kinds of miseries, and that in the most intense degree of them: His sufferings were from all hands, from heaven, earth, and hell; from his enemies, who condemned him, buffeted him, reviled, scourged, and crucified him; from his own disciples and followers, one of whom perfidiously betrayed him, another openly denied him, and all in the hour of his greatest trouble forsook and abandoned him.

He suffered in his body the most exquisite torments; the cross was a cruel engine of torment, and more so to him than any other, by reason of the excellent cruelitas and temperamentum of his body, and his most acute and delicate sense; for, as the schoolmen truly say, he was optime complexionatus, of the most exact and exquisite complexion; and his senses remained acute and vigorous, no way blunted, during the whole time of his sufferings, but full of life and sense to the last gasp, as may be gathered from Mark xv. 39. "When the centurion, which stood over against him, saw that he so cried out, and gave up the ghost, he said, Truly this man was the Son of God."

He suffered in his soul; yea, the sufferings of his soul were the very soul of his sufferings; he felt in his inner man the exquisite torments and inexpressible anguish of the wrath of God. Hence was that preternatural bloody sweat in the garden; and hence that heart-rending out-cry upon the cross, My God! my God! why hast thou forsaken me?

In all which sufferings from heaven, from earth, from hell, from friends, from enemies, there was no allay, or abatement of the least degree of misery. "God spared not his own Son," (faith the text) "but delivered him up." Wherein the severity of divine justice to Jesus Christ, is displayed in these five remarkable considerations following.

First, God spared not. If mercy, pity, and forbearance might be expected from any hand, surely it might be God; he is the fountain of mercy; "That the Lord is very pitiful, and of tender mercy," faith the apostle, James v. 11. The most melting and tender compassions of a mother to her sucking child, are but cruelty in comparison with divine tenderness and mercy; Isa. xlix. 15. "Can a woman forget her sucking child, that she should not have compassion on the son of her womb? Yea, they may forget, yet will I not forget thee."

Can a woman, the more affectionate sex, forget her sucking child, her own child (and not a nurse-child) her only child, whilst it hangs on her breast, and, with the milk from her breast, draws love from her heart? Can such a thing as this be in nature! Possibly it may; some such cruel mothers... may be found, but yet I will not forget thee, faith God. Though human corrupt nature may be so vitiated, yet from the divine nature, compassion and mercy are inseparable; it flows as waters flow from their fountain, only here it restrained itself, and let not out one drop to Jesus Christ, in the day of his sufferings. God, the God of mercy, spared not.

Secondly, God spared not, faith the text; i.e. he abated not any thing which justice could inflict; Christ was not spared one stroke, one tear, one groan, one drop, one sigh, one shame, one circumstance, no, not the least which justice could demand as satisfaction for man’s sin.

There be divers kinds of mercy in God; there is in him preventing mercy, delivering mercy, and sparing mercy. Now sparing mercy (as Mr. Caryl on Job well observes) is the lowest mercy of all the three; it is less mercy to be spared or abated some degree or circumstance of misery, than to have misery prevented by mercy’s stepping in betwixt us and it; it is less also than to be wholly delivered out of the hand of misery. Either of these are greater acts of mercy, than to abate a degree, or shorten an hour of our trouble; the least abatement of any one circumstance of misery had been sparing mercy, though it had been but the least and lowest act of mercy; and yet even this was denied to Christ; he was not abated one minute of time, or the least degree of sorrow. God spared not.

Thirdly, He spared not his own Son. So stiled Simeon, his own or his proper Son, in a special and peculiar manner nearer and dearer to him than the angels, who are his sons by creation, Job i. 6. or any of the saints, who are his sons by grace, in the way of regeneration and adoption, John i. 12, 13. This was his own Son by nature, a son of an higher rank and order, Psal. ii. 7. begotten in an ineffable manner, from all eternity, in his own divine essence; and so is his Son by nature, having the same essence and nature with the Father, being co-equal, co-essential, and co-eternal with the Father.

No relation in nature is so intimate, strict and dear as this; our children are not so much our own children, our bodies are not so much our own bodies, as Christ was God’s own Son; and yet, though he were so dear to him, his other self, his express image, his own dear Son, He spared him not: God spared not his own Son.

Fourthly, And that which makes a farther discovery of divine severity towards Jesus Christ, is this, that God spared not... his own Son in the day of his greatest distress, when he cried to his Father in an agony, that if it were possible the cup might pass from him: For of that day, this scripture is mainly to be understood, the day when he fell to the ground and prayed, "That if it were possible the hour might pass from him. " And he said, Abba, Father, all things are possible unto thee, " take away this cup from me," Mark xiv. 35, 36. He beheld his own dear Son sweltering under the heaviest pressure of his wrath, sweating great drops of blood, crying, "If it were possible, let this hour, let this cup pass;" and yet it could not be granted. O the severity of God! he heard the cry of Ahab, and spared him; he heard the Ninevites cry, and spared them; he heard the cries of Hagar and Ishmael, and spared them; yea, he hears the young ravens when they cry, and feeds them; but, when his Son cried with the most vehement cry, that the cup might pass, he cannot be excused, he must drink it up, even the very dregs of the cup of trembling, and that to the last drop. O the justice and severity of God!

Fifthly, and lastly, Consider what the Father of mercies did instead of sparing the Son of his love, and the text will inform you, that "he delivered him up for us all." So it is noted in Acts ii. 23. "Him, being delivered by the determinate counsel and foreknowledge of God, ye have taken, " and by wicked hands have crucified and slain."

There was a concession or permission to those wicked instruments that shed his blood, a loosing of the chain to those bandogs that compassed him about; such a concession as never was given them before; for till then they were tied up from perpetrating their wickedness; but now the restraints of Providence are taken away, and he is delivered unto their will; his own Father delivers him into the hands of cruelty. And thus you see wherein the severity of divine justice to Christ was manifest.

In the last place, let us see the ground and reason of this rigour and severity to Christ. Now, there are, among others, three special reasons why Christ could not be spared.

The honour of divine justice required, that he should suffer the utmost degree of punishment. It was meet that the rights of heaven should be vindicated to the full, and that the justice of God should have the last mite it could demand for satisfaction. And this was the special design and aim of God in the suffering of Christ, as the apostle speaks, Rom. iii. 25, 26. It was "to declare his righteousness;" and lest we should lose the emphatical word, it is doubled and repeated, "to declare,
Sacramental Meditations.

"I say, at this time, his righteousness." And indeed here God fully obtained his design; for never was justice so honoured before, to have such a person as the Son of God stand at its bar, and such a sum as his blood paid down at once for our discharge: so that justice triumphs as well as mercy, and one attribute is not robbed to pay another.

As it was necessary to God's satisfaction, so it was necessary to ours also. If the Lord Jesus had not made full payment to the utmost mite, we could never have had full satisfaction in our consciences, about that deep and dear concernment of our souls, the remission of sin. Man is a guilty and a suspicious creature, and hard to be brought to an entire confidence in the pardoning mercy of God. Yea, it is impossible to persuade a convinced conscience, of the possibility of remission, except you can also prove the fulness of divine satisfaction; for conscience requires as much to satisfy it, as God doth to satisfy him. If God be satisfied, then conscience can be satisfied too, and securely rest upon that ground; but if there be any doubt of that, there is no appeasing of an anxious and jealous conscience; greatly therefore hath God consulted our peace in the severity of his justice to Jesus Christ. "Now the God of peace; who brought again from the dead our Lord Jesus, that great Shepherd of the sheep, through the blood of the everlasting covenant," Heb. xiii. 20. Let the words be weighed; he is stiled the God of peace, when he brought back Christ from the dead; it was incensed justice that put him to death, and appeased justice that brought him back from the dead; and that which pacified God, is the only thing in the world that is able to satisfy the conscience of a sinner.

Therefore did God proceed with such rigour and severity with Jesus Christ, that thereby the demerit and evil of sin might be fully discovered to the world, and an everlasting caution left upon all hearts to beware of contracting new guilt. If justice had descended in a visible form, and hanged up millions of sinners in chains, it had not been such a warning as this against sin. Nay, let me say, the grievous and eternal torment that the damned suffer in hell, is not such a demonstration of the evil of sin as this is; for those torments are much unknown to men till they feel them; and when they begin to feel them, it is too late to be convinced or cautioned against sin then. But to see such a person as Christ exposed to the utmost severity of God's wrath for our sin, to see such things done in the green tree, may well make us cry out, "Lord, what will be done to the dry tree?" O the infinite evil of fin! O the inflexible severity of divine justice! It is a fearful thing to fall into the hands of the living God!
Sacramental Meditations.

4. In a word, hereby Jesus Christ is endear'd the more to his people, by suffering such great and hard things in their place and for their sakes. The extremity of his sufferings for us, commands the strength of his affection to us.

And thus you see the reasons of all this severity to Jesus Christ. God intended the sweetest mercies for you, and therefore prepared the bitterest sufferings for Christ: from his deep sufferings you may confidently conclude the best of mercies are designed for you; as you will hear in the prosecuting of the second doctrine, which, for dispatch, I purpose to handle as one use of this point now before me.

O the admirable and astonishing love of God to us poor worms of the earth, to deliver up his own Son into the hands of his enemies, that thirsted for his blood! Long had they been restrained from satisfying their wickedness, and executing their malice, till now; and this was the hour which he often spake of, “My hour is not yet come.” But, oh! what a dismal hour was it when it did come, when Providence let loose both devils and men upon Christ, delivered him over to the will of his enemies! And this was not all; Christ was not only delivered up into the hands of the worst of men, but, which was much more terrible, into the severe hands of divine justice, to grapple with the pure, unmixed, and unalayed wrath of the great and terrible God.

Lastly, We will improve this point by a double use; by way of information; and exhortation.

Use 1. Of information.

First, The severity of God’s justice to Jesus Christ informs us what a dreadful evil sin is, which so incenses the wrath of God even against his own Son, when he bare out sins, and stood before the bar of God as our surety:

Come hither, hard hearts (hard indeed if this cannot break them;) you complain, you cannot see the evil of sin, so as to be deeply humbled for it: fix your eyes a while here, and intently consider the point in hand: suppose you saw a tender and pitiful father come into open court with fury in his face, to charge his own, his only, and his most beloved Son, and to prosecute him to death, and nothing able to satisfy him but his blood, and be well pleaed when he sees it shed; would you not say, Oh! what horrid evil hath he done! It must be some deep wrong, some heinous crime that he has guilty of; else if could never be that his own father could forget his bowels do pity and mercy. Yet thus did the wrath of God break forth against his dear Son, when he stood before the bar, as our surety, charged with the guilt of our sins.

Secondly, Learn hence what a fearful thing it is to fall into the hands of the living God. Well might Luther cry out, Noli Deum absolutum, Let me have nothing to do with an ab-sole God. Wo to them that stand before God in their own persons, without Christ, how will justice handle them! "For
"if these things were done in the green tree, what shall be done "in the dry tree?" Luke xxiii. 31. Did the Son of God fear, tremble, sweat clots of blood? Did he stand amazed, and fall into such an agony of soul when he drank that cup, which he knew in a few hours he should drink up, and then never taste the bitterness of it more? How sad is their case that must drink of that cup for ever, a cup that hath eternity to the bottom!

Thirdly, How incomprehensible and ravishing is the love of God to men, that would rather be so severe to Jesus Christ, the darling of his soul, than make us the objects of wrath for ever? Which of you (though there be infinitely less tenderness in your hearts than God's) would lay your hands upon a child, the worst child you have, and put him to death for the sake of the best friend you have in the world? But God with his own hand delivered his Son, his only Son, that from everlasting was the delight of his soul, who never offended him, to death, the most cursed and cruel death, and all this for enemies: how unspeakable is this love, and past finding out!

Fourthly, Did not God spare his own Son? then let none of us spare our own sins. Sin was that sword which pierced Christ: O let sorrow for sin pierce your hearts! if you spare sin, God will not spare you, Deut. xxix. 20. We spare sin when we faintly oppose it, when we excuse, cover and defend it, when we are impatient under just rebukes and reproofs for it; but all kindness to sin is cruelty to our own souls.

Fifthly, and lastly, If God did not spare Christ, certainly he intends to spare believers for his sake.

The surety could not not be spared, that the principal might be spared for ever. If God had spared him, he could not have spared us; if he afflicts his people, it is not for satisfaction to himself, but profit to us, Heb. xii. 10. Should God spare the rod of affliction, it would not be for our advantage; so many sanctified afflictions as are spared or abated, so many mercies and spiritual advantages are withheld from us. But as for those strokes of justice that are the effects of God's vindictive wrath, Sacramental Meditations.

they shall never be felt by believers for ever. All the wrath, all the curse, all the gall and wormwood was squeezed into Christ's cup, and not one drop left to imbitter ours.

Use 2. Of Exhortation.

Did not God spare his own Son, but give him up to the death for us all! Then possess your hearts fully in the assurance of this great truth, That the greatest and best of mercies shall not be denied or withheld from you, if you be in Christ; lay it down as a sure conclusion of faith, and build up your hope and comfort upon it. This takes in the second observation; and surely never was any truth better fortified, never any inference more strongly inferred. Henceforth ye may infer temporal, spiritual, and eternal mercies; all must be yours, if you be Christ's, 1 Cor. iii. 21, 22, 23. O, make sure that Christ's is yours, and never hesitate at any other mercy! For,

First, God hath certainly a value and esteem for his own Son infinitely above all other things; he is his own Son, his dear Son, Col. i. 13. the Beloved, Eph. i. 6. the delight of his soul, Isa. xxxii. 1. Nothing is valued by God at that rate that Christ is valued. If therefore he spare not the most excellent mercy, but parteth with the very darling of his soul for us, how shall he deny, or withhold, any lesser inferior mercy? It is not to be imagined, for he is the mercy, emphatically so called, Luke i. 72.

Secondly, Jesus Christ is a comprehensive mercy, including all other mercies in himself; he is the tree of life, all other mercies are but the fruits growing on him; he is the sun of righteousness; and whatever comfort, spiritual or natural, refreshes your souls or bodies, is but a beam from that sun, a stream from that fountain. If then God part with Christ to you, and for you, he will not withhold other mercies; he will not give the whole tree, and deny an apple; bestow the fountain itself, and deny you the streams. All spiritual mercies are in him, and given with him; Eph. i. 3. “Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who hath blessed us with all spiritual blessings, in heavenly places in Christ Jesus.” All temporals are in him, and given with him, Matth. vi. 33. they are additions to that great mercy.

Thirdly, If God spared not Christ, the best mercy, but delivered him up for us all when we were his enemies, then certainly he will not deny lesser mercies when we are reconciled and made friends to him. And this is the forcible reason of the apostle, which even compels assent; Rom. v. 9. “Much more, being now justified by his blood, we shall be saved from wrath through him.” In a word, Fourthly, and lastly, if it were the very design and intention of God in not sparing his own Son, to open thereby a door for all mercies to be let in upon us, then it is not imaginable he should withhold them; he will not lose his design, nor lay so many stripes upon Christ in vain; some shall surely have the benefit of it, and none so capable as believers.

When God spared not his own Son, this was the design of it; and could you know the thoughts of his heart, they would appear to be such as these:

- I will now manifest the fierceness of my wrath to Christ, and the fulness of my love to believers. The pain shall be his, that the ease and rest may be theirs; the stripes his, and the healing balm issuing from them, theirs; the condemnation on his, and the justification theirs; the reproach and shame his, and the honour and glory theirs; the curse his, and the blessing theirs; the death his, and the life theirs; the vinegar and gall his, the sweet of it theirs. He shall groan, and they shall triumph; he shall mourn, that they may rejoice; his heart shall be heavy for a time, that theirs may be light and glad for ever; he shall be forsaken, that they may never be forsaken; out of the worst of miseries to him, shall spring the sweetest of mercies to them. O grace! grace beyond conception of the largest mind, the expression of the tongues of angels!

---

THE SEVENTH MEDITATION, UPON

Mark ix. 24. And straightway the father of the child cried out, and said with tears, Lord, I believe, help thou mine unbelief.

The occasion of these words is to be gathered from the context: and briefly it was this; A tender father brings a possessed child to Christ to be cured; with Socratic? a doubting question, “If thou canst do any thing? have compassion upon us, and help us?” Words importing much natural affection and tender love to his child; “Have compassion upon us,” and “help us.” If the child be sick, the parent is not well; what touches the child, is felt by his father.
And as they import his natural affection to his child, so also his own spiritual disease, or the weakness of his faith. His child was possessed with a dumb devil, and himself with unbelieving doubts and suspicions of Christ's ability to cure his child. The child had a sick body, and the father an infirm soul: Satan afflicted one by a possession, and the other by temptation, ver. 22.

Christ returns his doubting language upon himself, ver. 23. "If thou canst believe, all things are possible to him that believeth:" q.d. Doest thou doubt of my ability to heal thy child? Question rather thy own ability to believe, for his cure. If he be not healed, the cause will not be in my inability, but in thine own infidelity: Which he speaks not, to intluinate that faith was in his own power, but to convince him of his weakness, and drive him to God for assistance: Which effect it obtained; for immediately he cried out, and said with tears, "Lord, I believe, help thou mine unbelief."

O how good is it for men to be brought into the straits of affliction sometimes! Had not this man fallen into this distress, it is not like that he had (at least not so soon) arrived either to the sense of his grace, or the weakness of it.

In the words we may note these three parts.

First, A profession of his faith; Lord, I believe.
Secondly, A sense of the weakness of his faith; Help thou my unbelief.
Thirdly, The affection with which both were uttered; He cried out, and said with tears. If these tears proceeded from the sense and feeling of divine power, enabling him to believe, as some think; then they were tears of joy, and would inform us of this great truth:

Doct. 1. That the least and lowest measure of true faith, is matter of joy unspeakable to the possessor of it.

If they proceeded from the sense of the weakness of his faith, then they give us this note:

Doct. 2. That the remainders of unbelief in the people of God, do cost them many tears: They are the burdens and sorrows of gracious souls.

Doct. 1. That the least and lowest measure of true faith, is matter of joy unspeakable to the possessor of it.

The apostle, in 2 Pet. i. 1. calls it precious faith; and it well deferves that epithet; for the least and lowest degree of saving faith, is of invaluable excellency; as will appear in these particulars:

First, The least degree of saving faith, truly unites the soul to Jesus Christ, and makes it as really a branch or member of him, as Moses, Abraham, or Paul were.

All saving faith receives Christ, John i. 12. Indeed, the strong believer receives him with a stronger and steadier hand than the weak one doth, who staggers, doubts, and trembles, but yet receives him; and consequently is as much interested in the blessed privileges flowing from union, as the greatest believer in the world. Such is Christ's complacency in our persons and duties, his sympathy with us in our troubles and afflictions, and our interest in his person and purchase. And is not this matter of exceeding joy? Is it not enough to melt, yea, overwhelm the heart of a poor sinner, to discover and feel that in his own heart, which entitles him to such mercies?

Secondly, From the least degree of saving faith, we may infer as plenary a remission of sin, as from the strongest. The weakest believer is as completely pardoned, as the strongest; Acts x. 43. “By him all that believe are justified from all things.” All that believe, without difference of sizes, strength, or degrees; the least as well as the greatest; the believer of a day old, as well as the fathers and worthies of greatest name, and longest standing.

Lo then, the least measure of faith entitles thee as really to the greatest blessing, as the highest acts of faith can do. It is true, the stronger the acting of faith is, the clearer the evidence usually is; but interest in the privilege is the same in both. If then thou canst discern but the weakest act and smallest measure of faith in thy soul, hast thou not reason, with him in the text, to cry out, and say with tears, Lord, I believe? Canst thou receive and read this pardon, the pardon of such, and so many sins, and not wet it with thy tears? O, it is matter of joy unspeakable!

Thirdly, The least degree of saving faith infers thy election of God; and if that be not matter of melting and transporting consideration, nothing is. O, it is matter of more joy, that our names are written in the book of life, than that the devils are subject to us, Luke x. 20. From hence it may be inferred, that we are chosen of God; Acts xiii. 48. “As many as were ordained to eternal life, believed.”

Fourthly, The least measure of saving faith, is a mercy greater than most men ever partake of.

It is true, God is rich and bountiful in the gifts of providence to others; they have the good things of this life, many of them more than their hearts can wish, Psal. lxxiii. 7. He enricheth many of them also, with endowments of the mind, natural and moral knowledge and wisdom; yea, and adorns them with homilistical virtues, that render them very desirable and lovely in their converses with men; but there are but few to whom he gives saving faith, Isa. liii. 1. Believers are but a small remnant among men.

Fifthly, and lastly, He that hath any, the least degree of saving faith, hath that which will never be taken from him: All other excellencies go away at death, Job iv. 21. but this is a spring that never fails, “it springs up into everlasting life,” John iv. 14. A man may outlive his friends and familiars, his estate and health, his gifts and natural parts, but not his faith. How great matter of joy and comfort is wrapt up in the least degree of faith!

Use 1. Of trial.

It concerns us then to examine ourselves, whether our faith be true, be it more or less, stronger or weaker; and, until we discern its truth, it will yield but little comfort.

I confess, weak believers are under great disadvantages as to comfort; small and weak things being usually very inevident and undiscernible. But yet, in this example before us, we find weak faith was made evident, though much unbelief was mixed with it. Lord, I believe, help thou mine unbelief. In which words, many very useful signs of true, tho' weak, faith did appear; and they are very relieving to weak believers, to consider them. O that we might find the like in us!

First, His faith gave him a tender, melting heart. He cried out, and said with tears. Doth your faith melt your hearts, either in a sense of your own vileness, or the riches of free grace to such vile creatures?

Secondly, His faith gave him a deep sense of his remaining unbelief, and burdened his heart with it: Help my unbelief. And sure so will yours, if it be but as a grain of mustard-seed in you.

Thirdly, His weak faith carried him to Christ, in fervent prayers and cries, for his help to subdue unbelief in him; and so will yours, if your faith be right. O how often do the people of God go to the throne of grace upon that errand! Help, Lord, my heart is dead, vain, and very unbelieving; there is no dealing with it in my own strength: Father, help me!

Fourthly, His weak faith made him hunger and thirst after greater measures of it: Help my unbelief; i.e. Lord, cure it, that I may believe with more strong and steady acts of faith; that I may not question thy power any more, or say, If thou canst do any thing? Why thus it will be with you, if you be true believers; Luke xvii. 5. "Lord, (said the disciples) increase our faith."
Sacramental Meditations.

Fifthly, There was a conflict in his soul betwixt faith and infidelity, grace and corruption; and this is very sensible to him; faith inclining him one way, and unbelief carrying him another: And hence he speaks like a man greatly distressed, betwixt the working of contrary principles in his own soul (and so you will also find it in yourselves), Gal. v. 17. "The flesh lusteth against the Spirit, and the Spirit against the flesh; so that ye cannot do the things that ye would."

Use 2. Of consolation.

Well then, bless the Lord for the least degree of saving faith; and be not so discouraged at its imperfections, as to overlook and slight the smallest working of faith in your souls. This poor man was deeply sensible of his unbelief, and yet at the same instant truly thankful for a small measure of faith; and so should you. For,

First, The least measure of saving faith, is more than all the creatures power could produce: It is the faith of the operation of God, Col. ii. 12. It is the work of God, that ye believe, John vi. 29. Yea, it is the exceeding greatness of his power, Eph. i. 19, 20. No ministers of Christ, how excellent soever their gifts are, no duties or ordinances, no labour or diligence of your own, without this mighty power of God, can ever bring you to faith.

Secondly, It is the just matter of wonder and astonishment, that ever one spark of faith was kindled in such an heart as thine is; an heart which had no predisposition or inclination in the least to believe: Yea, it was not Rasa Tabula, like clean paper, void of any impression of faith, but filled with contrary impressions to it; so that it is marvellous that ever your hearts received the stamp or impression of faith on them.

It was wonderful, that fire should fall from heaven and burn upon the altar, when Elijah had laid the wood in order upon it; but much more when he poured so much water upon it, as not only wet all the wood, but filled the trenches, 1 Kings xviii. 33. Just so was the case of thy soul, reader, when God came to kindle faith there: Thy heart was dark and ignorant, neither acquainted with God, or thy own condition; yea, thy heart was a proud heart, full of self-righteousness, and self-conceitedness, Rev. iii. 17. Rom. x. 3. A heart, that would rather venture eternal damnation, than deny self, and submit to Christ: And yet the light of the Lord must shine into this darkness, and the pride and stiffness of thy heart must be broken, and brought to yield, or there is no believing.

Beside, How many and mighty enemies did oppose the work of faith in thy soul? Among which Satan and thy own carnal reasonings were the principal, 2 Cor. x. 4. By them, what strong-holds and fortifications were raised, to secure thee from the strokes of conviction that make way for faith. Let but the state of thine own heart, as it was by nature, be considered, and thou wilt say, it was the wonderful work of God, that ever thou wast brought in any degree to believe.

Thirdly, Though thy faith be weak, yet it is growing, if it be saving faith. The largest tree was once but a kernel, or acorn; the most famous believer, at first but a weak and doubting one: Be not discouraged therefore, God will fulfil all the good pleasure of his goodness in you, and the work of faith with power. It were certainly much better for you to be blessing God for a little faith, praying for the increase of faith, and diligently attending those means by which it may be improved and made flourishing in your souls, than, by a sinful ungrateful, and prejudicial despondency, at once to dishonour God, and thus wrong yourselves.

Doct. 2. That the remains of unbelief in gracious hearts do cost them many tears and sorrows.

There are many things that afflict and grieve the people of God from without; but all their outward troubles are nothing to these troubles that come from within.

There are many inward troubles that make them groan, but none more than this, the unbelief they find in their own hearts. This sin justly costs them more trouble than other sins, because it is the root from which other sins do spring; a root of bitterness, bearing wormwood and gall, to the imbittering of their souls. For,

First, The remains of unbelief in the saints, greatly dishonour God; and what is a great dishonour to God, cannot but be a great grief and burden to them: For look, as faith gives God special honour above all other graces, so unbelief, in a special manner, both wrongs and grieves him above all other sins. Unbelief in dominion makes God a liar, 1 John v. 10. And even the relics thereof in believers, do shake their assent to his truths and promises, and nourish a vile suspicion of them in the heart. And how do those base jealousies reflect upon his honour? Certainly, it cannot but be a grief to a grarious heart to see God dishonoured by others, Psalm cxix. 36—and a much greater to dishonour him ourselves. Hinc illae lachrymae: Upon this ground, we may justly cry out, and say with tears, Lord, help our unbelief!

Secondly, The remains of unbelief in the saints, doth not only dishonour God, but deface and spoil their best duties, in which they at any time approach unto God. Is the face of God clouded from us in prayer, hearing, or receiving? Examine the cause and reason, and you will find that cloud raised from your own unbelieving hearts. Are your affections cold, flat, and dead in duty? Dig but to the root, and you will find this sin to lie there. If the word do not work upon you as you desire and pray it might, it is because it is not mingled with faith, Heb. iv. 2. No duties, nor ordinances, no promises, can give down their sweet influences upon your souls, because of this sin. Now communion with the Lord in duties is the life of our life: These things are dearer to the saints, than their eyes. Justly therefore do they bewail and mourn over that sin, which obstructs and intercepts their sweetest enjoyments in this world.

Thirdly, The remains of unbelief give advantage and success to Satan's temptations upon us. Doth he at any time affright and scare us from our duty, or draw and entice us to the commissions of sin, or darken and cloud our condition, and fill us with inward fears and horror, without cause? All this he doeth, by the mediation of our unbelief. The apostle, in Eph.
vi. 16. calls faith the soul's shield against temptation: And 1 John v. 4. it is called the victory by which we overcome;
i. e. the sword, or weapon, by which we achieve our victories.
And if so, then unbelief disarms us both of sword and shield, and leaves us naked of defence in the day of battle, a prey to the next temptation that befalls us.

Fourthly, The remains of unbelief hinder the thriving of all graces; it is a worm at their root; a plant of such a malignant quality, that nothing which is spiritual can thrive under the droppings and shadow of it. It is said, Heb. iv. 2. That the gospel was preached to the Israelites, but it did not profit them, not being mixed with faith in them that heard it. No ordinances, nor duties, be they never so excellent, will make that soul to thrive, where unbelief prevails: You pray, you hear, you fast, you meditate; and yet you do not thrive; your spiritual food doth no good: You come from ordinances as dead, careless, and vain, as you went to them. And why is it thus, but because of remaining unbelief?
Sacramental Meditations.

Use I. Let all the people of God bewail, and tenderly mourn over the remainders of infidelity in their own hearts: There, there is the root of the disease. And surely, reader, thy heart is not free of such symptoms of it, as appear in other mens hearts. For do but consider, Symp. 1. What is our impatience to wait for mercy, and despondency of spirit, if deliverance come not quickly in the outward, or inward straits of soul or body, but a plain symptom of unbelief in our hearts? "He that believes, will not make haste," Isa. xxviii. 16. He that can believe, can also wait God's time, Psalms xxvii. 14.

Symp. 2. And what means our readiness to use sinful mediums, to prevent, or extricate ourselves out of trouble, but a great deal of infidelity, lurking still in our hearts? Might but faith be heard to speak, it would say in thy heart, let me rather die ten deaths, than commit one sin. It is sweeter, and easier, to die in my integrity, than to live with a defiled, or wounded conscience. It is nothing but our unbelief, that makes us so ready to put forth our hands to iniquity, when the rod of the wicked rests long upon us, or any eminent danger threatens us, Psalms cxxv. 3.

Symp. 3. Doth not the unbelief of your hearts shew itself in your deeper thoughtfulness, and great anxieties about earthly things? Matth. vi. 30. We pretend, we have trusted God with our souls to all eternity, and yet cannot trust him for our daily bread. We bring the evils of to-morrow upon us to-day; and all because we cannot believe more.

O reader! how much better were it to hear such questions as these from thee. How shall I get an heart suitable to the mercies I do enjoy? How shall I duly improve them for God?

"What shall I render to the Lord, for all his goodness?" This would better become thee, than to afflict thyself with, "What shall I eat? What shall I drink? Or wherewithal shall I be cloathed?"

Symp. 4. What doth the slavish fear of death speak, but remains of unbelief still in our hearts? Are there not many faintings, tremblings, despondences of mind, under the thoughts of death? Oh! if faith were high, thy spirit could not be so low, 2 Cor. v. 1, 2, 3. The more bondage of fear, the more infidelity.

Symp. 5. To conclude: What is the voice of all those distractions of thy heart in religious duties, but want of faith, weakness in faith, and the actual prevalence of unbelief? You come to God in prayer; and there a thousand vanities before you: Your heart is carried away: it roves, it wanders to the ends of the earth. Conscience lites for this, and faith, Thou dost but mock God; thy soul will smart for this: Thou feel-est neither strength nor sweetness arising out of such duties. You enquire for remedies, and fills the ears of friends with your complaints; and, it may be, see not the root of all this to be in your own unbelief. But there it is; and all that be cured, it will not be better with you.
Sacramental Meditations.

Use II. Yet let not poor Christians so mourn, as those that have no hope, or ground of comfort, even in this case. For,

First, Though there be remains of unbelief in you, yet you have infinite cause to bless God that they are but remains. You once were in unbelief; 1 Tim. i. 13. (i.e.) under the full power and dominion of it. Had God cut you off in that state, you must certainly have perished. This is the disease, but that was the death of your souls.

Secondly, Though unbelief be in you, yet it is not in you per modum quietis, by way of rest, as it is in all unbelievers; but by way of daily conflict, and as a burden too heavy to be borne. Now though the sin be bad, yet the sorrow for it is sweet; and your conflicts with it bring you under a very com-fortable sign of grace, Rom. vii. 21.

Thirdly, This is a disease, under which all Christians do labour more or less. There is not a heart so holy in all the world, but is in some degree tainted and infected with this dis-ease. And this hath been evident, not only in all Christians, of all sizes, but in all the acts of their faith. Job's faith tri-umphed in chap xiii. 15. yet had its eclipse and fainting-fit in chap. xix. 20. Abraham was a most renowned believer, a great pattern and example of faith: O. how high a pitch did his faith mount to in Gen. xxii. 3! And yet there was a time when it fainted, and failed him, as at Gerar, Gen. xx. 2, 10, 11. David in Pfal. xxvii. 1, 23. was not like David in 1 Sam. xxvii. 1. The faith of Peter shone out like the sun, in a glo-rious confession, Matth. xvi. 16. and yet was not only becloud-ed, but seemed to be gone down, and quite set, in Matth. xxvi. 69. though it afterwards recovered itself.

Fourthly, It is not this, or that degree of unbelief, that damns a man, but the power and dominion of it, that damns him. Indeed, your comfort depends much upon the strength of your faith; but your salvation depends upon the truth of it. Most Christians come to heaven with a weak and doubting faith; but few, with their fails filled with a direct and fresh wind of assurance.

Fifthly, There is enough in Christ to help thy unbelief: Lord, said this poor man, help my unbelief. He is an excellent physician, and knows how to relieve and cure thee: Go to him, and groan out thy complaint; tell him, thy heart is pained and troubled with this disease; thou shalt find him a faithful, skilful, and merciful Saviour.

Sixthly, It is but a little while, before this, with all other diseases bred by it in thy soul, shall be perfectly healed; sanctification is a cure begun; glorification is a cure performed and completed: The former hath destroyed the dominion, the latter will destroy the existence of it in thy soul: When you come to heaven, and never till then, will you find yourselves well, and at ease in every part.

And thus much of the second point.

There are some general observations arising from both parts of my text considered together, viz. the thankful acknowledgment of his faith, and the sorrowful sense of his unbelief. It shall suffice, for a conclusion to this meditation, only to note them; and they are these;

First, That the deepest sense of sin must not exclude an humble and thankful acknowledgment of the grace of God in his people. It is the fault of most, to hide their sins; and the fault of some, to hide their graces.

Secondly, Acceptance of our persons and duties, is a pure act of grace: There is no duty performed in a perfect act of faith; all is mixed with unbelief in some degree; the honey and the comb are mixed together, Cant. ii. 8. No duty as it comes from us is pure.

Thirdly, Justly may we suspect that faith for a false faith, which boasts of its own strength, but never mourns in the sense of unbelief. Where there are no conflicts with sin, there can be no found evidence of sincerity.

Fourthly, Believers must not wonder to find strange vicissitudes and alterations in the state of their souls: Sometimes a clear, and sometimes a cloudy day: Sometimes they have their songs in the night, and sometimes their bitter lamentations. If you ask, why is it thus? the answer is, there are within you contrary principles struggling in your souls; and it is no wonder at all to find peace and trouble, hope and fear, light and darkness taking their turns, and sharing your time betwixt them.
CASTING my eye upon this precious text, I find it perplexed and darkened with variety, yea, contrariety of expostitions. The Jews and Socinians generally refer all to David, denying Christ to be the person here spoken of. Others refer the whole Psalm to Christ; but the best expositors refer it partly to David, and partly to Christ, that this paragraph in which my text lies, refers to Christ, is plain from the apostle's allegation of it in Heb. x. 5, 6, 7. In this and the two former verses there lie three great points of truth, which you may take up in this order.

First, The insufficiency and rejection of all legal sacrifices, as things of no virtue in themselves to satisfy God, or save men, ver. 6. These thou would'st not; i.e. thou never didst appoint them to be the means of salvation, farther than they signified and pointed me, and now must vanish when I come in a body of flesh; according to that, Col. ii. 17.

Secondly, The introduction of a complete and sufficient means of redemption, ver. 7. Lo, I come.

Thirdly, The suitableness and agreeableness of this work of redemption to the heart and will of Jesus Christ, ver. 8. "I delight to do thy will, O my God; yea, thy law is within my heart;" or, as it is in the Hebrew, in the midst of my bowels.

In the words we are to note two things; viz. 1st, The rise and spring of man's redemption. 2dly, The acceptableness and suitableness of it to the heart of Christ.

1st, The rise and first spring of man's redemption, the will and pleasure of God. So it pleased the Lord to appoint and order it, that a remnant of poor lost sinners should be saved.

The execution and accomplishment of this good pleasure of God, was that part which by agreement and consent was committed to the Son, and is here called a law, or command laid upon him; and, answerably, the death of Christ is represented as an act of obedience, Phil. ii. 8. and respected God's command for it; John x. 18. "This commandment have I receiv-
Sacramental Meditations.

"ed from my Father;" referring to the covenant of redemption which was betwixt them from everlasting: And this was the rise and first spring of our redemption by Christ.

2dly, You have here the gratefulness and suitableness of this work to the heart of Christ. I delight to do it; it is in my heart: Lo, I come.

The Hebrew words note not simple consent or willingness, but the highest pleasure and complacency that can be; a work which ravishes his soul with the delights of it, I delight to do thy will; and that other expression, Thy law is within my heart, or bowels, hath as deep a sense and signification as the former; it notes the greatest care, solicitude, and intention of mind, in keeping the most precious treasure that was committed to him! for so the phrase is used in Prov. iv. 21. and so did our Redeemer esteem and reckon this work, which was by the Father demanded and committed to him. Hence the note is, Doct. That the will of God to redeem sinners by the incarnation and death of Jesus Christ, was most grateful and pleasing to the very heart of Christ.

It is said, Prov. viii. 31. When he was solacing himself in the sweetest enjoyment of his Father, whilst he lay in that blessed bosom of delights, yet the very prospect of this work gave him pleasure, Then were his delights with the sons of men. And when he was come into the world, and had endured many abuses and injuries, and was even now come to the most difficult part of the work; yet, how am I straitned, or pained, (faith he) till it be accomplished, Luke xii. 50.

Two things call our thoughts to stay upon them in this point.

First, The decency of it, why it ought to be so.
Secondly, The reasons of it, whence it came to be so.

First, Why it ought to be a pleasant and grateful thing to Christ to take a body of flesh, and lay it down by death again for the redemption of sinners.

1. It became Christ to go about this work with cheerfulness and delight, that thereby he might give his death the nature and formality of a sacrifice.

In all sacrifices you shall find that God had still a regard, a special respect, to the will of the offerer. See Exod. xxxv. 5. 21. and Lev. i. 3. the voluntarines and cheerfulness with which it is given, is of great regard with God.

2. It ought to be so, in regard of the unity of Christ's will, with the Father's. The work of our redemption is called the pleasure of the Lord, Isa. liii. 10. and what was the Father's pleasure, could not be displeasing to him who is one with the Father. It is impossible their wills can clash, whose nature is one.

3. This was necessary to magnify and commend the love of Jesus Christ to us, for whom he gave himself. That he came into the world to die for us, is a mercy of the first magnitude, but that he came in love to our souls, and underwent all his sufferings with such willingness for our sakes, this heightens it above all apprehension. O, this is the most taking, the most ravishing, the most astonishing consideration of all: "He loved me, and gave himself for me," Gal. ii. 20, "He loved us, and washed us from our sins in his own blood," Rev. i. 5. Here love is in its highest exaltation.

4. It was necessary to be so, for the regulating of all our obedience to God according to this pattern, that seeing and setting this great example of obedience before us, we might never grudge nor grumble at any duty or suffering that God should call us to; "You know the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ; how, that though he was rich, yet for our sakes he became poor," faith the apostle, when he would press the Corinthians to their duty, 2 Cor. viii. 9. And when he would effectually urge the Philippians to their duty, this is the argument, "Let this mind be in you, which also was in Christ Jesus," Phil. ii. 5. So that it became and behoved Christ thus to undertake this great service.

Secondly, Next let us consider and examine whence it came to be so pleasant and acceptable to Jesus Christ, to come into the world and die for poor sinners.

And we shall find although the sufferings of Christ were exceeding sharp, and the cup of God's wrath unspeakably bitter, yet that which made it pleasant and desirable to Jesus Christ, was the prospect he had of the sweet results and issues of his sufferings, Isa. liii 10, 11. "He shall see of the travail of his soul and shall be satisfied," (i. e.) he shall have great content and pleasure from the issues and fruits of his sufferings, as Psal. cxxviii. 2. "Thou shalt eat the labour of thy hands," (i. e.) the fruit of thy labours. So here, "He shall see the "travail of his soul," (i. e.) the fruit and effects of his travail; and to see this shall be to him the reward and recompence of all his sufferings. Now, among the sweet results of the sufferings of Christ there are especially these three, which he foresaw with singular content and delectation.

First, That in his sufferings there would be made a glorious Sacramental Meditations.

297

Display and manifestation of the divine attributes; yea, such a glorious display of them, as was never made before to angels or to men, nor ever shall be any more in this world. For though,

1. The wisdom of God had made itself visible to men in the creation of the world, yet there it shone but in a faint and languishing beam, compared with this. Here divine wisdom put itself as it were into a visible form, and represented itself to the life. See 1 Cor. i. 24. and Eph. iii. 16. Behold, in the death of Christ, the wisdom of God in its highest exaltation and glory: O the manifold wisdom of God! O the depth of his unsearchable wisdom! which I touched in some particulars before.

Behold here the wisdom of God, raising more glory to himself by occasion of the breach of the law, than could ever have risen to him from the most punctual observation of its commands, or the most rigorous execution of its threatenings; from the occasion of the fall, which was our undoing, raising us to a far better estate, and with a much better security to enjoy it, than that from which we fell. Yea, behold and wonder, God by the death of Christ recovering his elect from all the danger and mischief of sin, and yet making the way and manner of their recovery the fairest glass to represent the horror and evil of sin to them, that ever was shewn them in this world. Oh, the triumph of divine wisdom:

2. Though the love of God had appeared before in our creation, protection, and provision, yet nothing to what it doth in our redemption by the death of Christ. Lo, here is the love of God in its strength and glory, 1 John iv. 10. “Herein is love, not that we loved God, but that he loved us, and sent his Son to be the propitiation for our sins.” Herein is love.

Herein is love; i. e. Here is the highest expression of God’s love to the creature; not only that ever was, but that ever can be made; for in love only God acted to the uttermost, whatever his power hath done, it can do more; but for his love, it can go no higher, he hath to greater thing to give than his Christ. It is true, in giving us a being, and that in the noblest rank and order of creatures on earth, herein was love. In feeding us all our life long by his affiduous tender providence, herein is love. In protecting us under his wings from innumerable dangers and mischiefs, herein is love: much love; and yet set all this by his redeeming love in Christ, and it seems nothing. When we have laid all, “herein is the love of God, that he sent his Son,” &c.
Sacramental Meditations.

This was free love to undeserving, to ill-deserving sinners: preventing love; not that we loved him, but that he loved us. Just as an image in the glass, faith Ficinus, that is imprinted there by the face looking into it; the image does not look back upon the face, except the face look forward upon the image; and in that the image does seem to see the face, it is nothing else but that the face does see the image. O the inexpressible glory of the love of God in Christ!

3. Though God had given several sad marks of his justice before, both upon the angels that fell, clapping upon them the chains of darkness; in the overthrow of Sodom and the neighbouring cities, turning them to ashes, as you may read in Jude, ver. 6, 7. Yet never was the exactness and severity of justice so manifested before, nor ever shall be any more, as it was at the death of Christ. Christ did not only satisfy it fully, but he also honoured it highly, making that attribute which was once a bar, now to be a bottom of our peace, Rom. iii. 25. Never did such a person as Christ stand at the bar of justice before: the blood of God was poured out to appease and satisfy it. When Christ suffered, he did both give and take satisfaction; he gave it to the justice of God in dying; he took it, in seeing justice so honoured in his death.

Secondly, Another delightful prospect Christ had of the fruit of his sufferings, was the recovery and salvation of all the elect by his death; and though his sufferings were exceeding bitter, yet such fruit of them as this was exceeding sweet: upon this account he assumed his name Jesus, Matth. i. 21. yea, and his human nature also, Gal. iv. 4, 5. Souls are of great value in his eyes; one soul is of more worth in his account than all the world, Mark viii. 36. What a pleasure then must it be to him, to save so many souls from the everlasting wrath of the great and terrible God! Add to this,

Thirdly, The glory which would redound to him from his redeemed ones to all eternity; for it will be the everlasting pleasant employment of the saints in heaven, to be ascribing glory, praise, and honour, to the Redeemer: “To him that loved us, “ and washed us from our sins in his own blood, and hath made “ us kings and priests to God and his Father; to him be glory “ and dominion for ever and ever,” Rev. i. 5, 6. The improvement of all this will be in a word or two.

Use 1. for conviction.

This truth then, in the first place, may convince, shame, and humble the very best of Christians, who find so little delight in the most easy, sweet, and spiritual duties of obedience, when Christ undertook and went through the most difficult task for them with such cheerfulness and readiness. "Lo, I come, thy law is in my heart, I delight to do thy will;" and yet the work he so applied himself to, was a work full of difficulty, attended with reproach and shame, as well as anguish and pain.

Did Christ find pleasure in abasement and torment, in suffering and dying for me, and can I find no pleasure in praying, hearing, meditating, and enjoying the sweet duties of communion with him? Did he come so cheerfully to die for me, and do I go so dead-heartedly to prayers and sacraments, to enjoy fellowship with him? Was it a pleasure to him to shed his blood, and is it none to me to apply it, and reap the benefits of it? Oh, Lord, what an heart have I? How unsuitable is this frame of heart to the nature of God, whose essential excellencies make him the supreme delight, the sweet repose, solace, and rest of souls! Psal. xvi. 11.

How unsuitable to the principles of regeneration and holiness, purposely planted in the soul, to make spiritual performances a pleasure to it!

How unsuitable to the future expected state of glory, which brings the sanctified soul to a sweet complacential rest and satisfaction in God! In a word, how unsuitable is this temper of spirit to the heart of Jesus Christ! O, methinks I hear Christ thus expostulating with me this day:

Is this thy zeal and delight in the duties of obedience? Is it rather the awe of conscience than the pleasure of communion that brings thee to this duty? Doth thy hard heart need so many arguments to persuade it, even to the sweetest, easiest, and most pleasant duties in religion? Well, I did not love thee at that rate; my heart readily echoed to the Father's call, to die for thee, to drink the very dregs of the cup of trembling for thee: "I come, I come, I delight to do thy will, thy law is in the midst of my bowels."

2. Use of exhortation.

If it be so, how great a motive have the people of God before them, to make them apply themselves with all cheerfulness and readiness of mind to all the duties of active and passive obedience! O, let there be no more grumblings, lazy excuses, shiftings of duty, or dead-hearted and listless performances of them, after such an example as this. Be ready to do the will of God; yea, be ye also ready to suffer it. Let the same mind be in you, which also was in Christ Jesus. The more pleasure and delight you find in doing or suffering the will of God, the more of Christ's spirit is in you, and the more of his image is upon you. Are not all holy duties expressed in scripture by the saints walking with God? Gen. xvii. 1. And is not this an angelical life? Can it be a burden to the ear to hear sweet ravishing strains of melody; or to the eye, to behold variety of pleasant and lively colours; or to the palate, to relish the delicious sweetness of meats and drinks?
Sacramental Meditations.

Oh, reader, were thy heart more spiritual, more deeply sanctified, and heavenly, it would be no more pain to thee to pray, hear, or meditate on the things of God, than it is to a bird to carry and use his own wings; or to a man, to eat the most pleasant food when he is hungry; "I have rejoiced, (saith David) in the way of thy commandments, as much as in all riches," Psal. cxix. 14.

And as to sufferings for Christ, they should not be grievous to Christians, that know how cheerfully Christ came from the bosom of the Father to die for them. What have we to leave or lose, in comparison with him? What are our sufferings to Christ's? Alas, there is no compare; there was more bitterness in one drop of his sufferings, than in a sea of ours.

To conclude, Your delight and readiness in the paths of obedience, is the very measure of your sanctification.

THE NINTH MEDITATION, UPON

Zech. xii. part of ver. 10. And they shall look upon me, whom they have pierced; and they shall mourn for him, as one mourneth for his only son; and shall be in bitterness for him, as one that is in bitterness for his first-born.

THIS promise is confessed to have a special respect to the Jews conversion to Christ: It was in part accomplished in the apostle's days, Acts ii. 37. yet that was but a specimen or handsel, of what shall be, when the body of that nation shall be called.

But yet it cannot be denied, that all Christians find the same piercing sorrows, and wounding sense of sin, when God awakens them by convictions, and brings them to see the evil of sin, and the grace of Christ, that is here expressed concerning them at their conversion.

The words present us with three very remarkable particulars:
in evangelical repentance; viz.

First, The spring and principle of it.
Secondly, The effects and fruits of it.
Thirdly, The depth and measure of it.

First, The spring and principle of repentance, expressed in these words, They shall look upon me, whom they have pierced.
This looking upon Christ, is an act of faith; for so it is described in scripture, John vi. 40. Isa. xlv. 22. and it respects Christ crucified, as its proper object: Yea, and that by them, not only as their progenitors involved them, in that guilt, by entailing it on them, but as their own sins were the meritorious cause of his death and sufferings; they shall look upon me, whom they have pierced.

Secondly, The effects and fruits of such an aspect of faith upon Christ, is here also noted; They shall mourn, and be in bitterness: i.e. it shall melt and thaw them into godly sorrow; it shall break their hard and stony hearts to pieces: The eye of faith shall affect their hearts. For indeed, evangelical sorrows are hearty and undissembled tears, dropping out of the eye of faith.

Thirdly, and lastly, The depth and measure of their sorrow is here likewise noted. And it is compared with the, greatest and most piercing sorrows men are acquainted with in this world, even the sorrow of a tender-hearted Father, mourning over a dead son, yea, an only son, and his first-born; than which, no earthly sorrow is more penetrating and sharp; Jer.
vi. 26. Hence the note will be,

Doct. That the sufferings of Christ are exceeding powerful, to melt believers hearts into godly sorrow.

The eye of faith is a precious eye; and according to its va-rions aspects upon Christ, it produceth various effects upon the hearts of men. Eying Christ as our complete righteousness:
so it pacifies and quieteth the heart: Eying him as our pattern:
so it directs and regulates our actions: Eying him as a sacrifice offered up to divine justice for our sins; so it powerfully thaws the heart, and melts the affections.

By melttings, I do not only understand tears; as if they only were expressive of all spiritual sorrow: For it is possible, the waters of sorrow may run deep in the heart, when the eye cannot yield a drop.

There be two things in repentance; trouble and tears. Tho
Sacramental Meditations.

The first is essential, the last contingent. The first flows from the influence of faith upon the soul; the last much depends upon the temper and constitution of the body. It is a mercy, when our tears can flow from an heart filled with sorrow for sin, and love to Christ; yet it often falls out, that there is an heavy heart, where the eyes are dry. But that there is efficacy in faith to melt the heart, by looking upon the sufferings of Christ for sin, is undoubted: And how it becomes so powerful an instrument to this end, I will shew you in the following particulars.

First, Faith eyes the dignity of the person of Christ, who was pierced for us; how excellent and glorious a person he is. In the captivity, it was for a lamentation, that "princes were hanged up by the hands, and the faces of elders were not honoured," Lam. v. 12. We read also the lamentation of David, 2 Sam. iii. 38. as he followed Abner's hearse, "A prince, and a great man, is fallen in Israel to-day."

But what was Abner, and what were the princes of Israel to the Son of God? Lo, here, by faith, the believer sees the Prince of the kings of the earth, the only begotten of the Father, equal to God, in nature and dignity, He, whom all the angels worship, hanging dead upon the cursed tree. Faith sees royal blood, the blood of God, poured out by the sword of justice, for satisfaction and reconciliation; and this cannot but deeply affect the believing soul.

Secondly, Faith represents the severity of divine justice to Jesus Christ, and the extremity of his sufferings; and this sight is a melting sight.

The apostle tells us, Gal. iii. 13. he was made a curse and execration for us. It relates to the kind and manner of his death upon the cross, which was the death of a slave; servile supplicium: A Freeman was privileged from that punishment. It looks upon, and well considers the sad plight and condition Christ was in, in the days of his humiliation for us. It is said of him, Matth. xxvi. 28. He was iniquus, undeque tristis, surrounded with griefs; exactly answerable to his name, Isa. liii. 3. a man of sorrows. Let him look which way he would, outward or inward, upward or downward, to friends or enemies; he could behold nothing but sorrow, and what might increase his misery. Another evangelist faith, he was sore amazed; Mark xiv. 33. Exoarhima: It notes such a consternation, as makes the hair of the head stand upright; Horripilatio. A third tells us, his soul was troubled, John xii. 27. ζ ψυχα με οναριλα, unde tartarus, a word from whence hell is.
Sacramental Meditations.

And the fourth tells us, he was in an agony; Luke xxiii. 44.

And the fourth tells us, he was in an agony; Luke xxiii. 44. all expressing, in several emphatical notions and metaphors, the extremity of Christ's anguish and torment. This cannot but greatly affect and break the believer's heart.

Thirdly, But then that which most affects the heart, is Christ's undergoing all this, not only in love to us, but in our room and stead. He suffered not for any evil he had done, for there was no guile found in his mouth, Isa. liii. 4, 5. But the just suffered for the unjust, 1 Pet. iii. 18. It was for me, a vile, wretched, worthless sinner. It was my pride, my earth-lines, the hardness of my heart, the corruption of my nature, the innumerable evils of my life, that brought him down to the dust of death: "He was made sin for us, who knew no sin," 2 Cor. v. 21.

Fourthly, Faith melts the heart, by considering the effects and fruits of the sufferings of Christ, what great things he hath purchased by his stripes and blood for poor sinners; a full and final pardon of sin, a well-settled peace with God, a sure title and right to the eternal inheritance; and all this for thee, a law-condemned, a self-condemned sinner. Lord, what am I, that such mercies as these should be purchased by such a price for me? For me, when thousands and ten thousands of sweeter dispositions must burn in hell for ever! Oh, what manner of love is this!

Fifthly, Faith melts the heart, by exerting a threefold act upon Christ crucified:

1st, A realizing act, representing all this in the greatest certainty and evidence that can be. These are no devised fables, but the sure and infallible reports of the gospel.

2dly, An applying act; "He loved me, and gave himself for me," Gal. iii. 20. "He loved us, and washed us from our sins in his own blood," Rev. i. 5.

3dly, and lastly, By an inferring or reasoning act. If Christ died for me, then I shall never die: If his blood were paid down for me, then my sins, which are many, are forgiven me: If he was condemned in my room, I am acquitted, and shall Then sure there is but little faith, because there is so much deadness and unaffectedness among professors. A believing sight of Christ will work upon a gracious heart, as a dead son, a beloved and only son, uses to do upon a tender father's heart.

Reader, was it ever thy sad lot to look upon such an heart-rending object? Didst thou ever feel the pangs and commotions in thy bowels that some have felt upon such a sight? Why, so will thy heart work towards Christ, if ever thou believingly lookest on him whom thou hast pierced.

Infer. 2. Then the acting and exercising of faith is the best expedient to get a tender heart, and raise the dead affections.

We are generally full of complaints how hard, how dead and stupid our hearts are; we are often putting such cases as these, how shall I get a broken heart for sin? How shall I raise my dead heart in duty? Why this is the way, no expedient in all the world like this; look upon him whom thou hast pierced; it is the melting argument.

2. Use, of examination.

But that which I especially aim at in this point, is for the trial and examination of thy heart, reader, in the point of true evangelical repentance, which is thy proper business at this time; and I will go no further than the text for rules to examine and try it by.

Rule 1. All evangelical repentance hath a supernatural spring. "I will pour out the Spirit of grace, and they shall mourn." Till the Spirit be poured out upon us, it is as easy to press water out of a rock, as to make our hearts relent and mourn. There are indeed natural meltings, the effects of an ingenuous temper, but these differ in kind and nature from godly sorrow.

Rule 2. Godly sorrows are real, sincere, and undissembled; "they shall mourn, as for an only son."

Parents need not any natural helps to draw tears on such accounts; O! their very hearts are pierced, they could even die with them; sighs, groans, and tears, are not hanged out as false signs of what is not to be found in their hearts.

Rule 3. Evangelical sorrow is very deep; so much the mourning for an only son, a first-born, must import. These waters, how still soever they be, run deep, very deep, in the bottom channel of the soul. See Acts ii. 37. They were cut to the heart.
Rule 4. Faith is the instrument employed in breaking the heart; "they shall look, and mourn." This is the burning-glass that contracts the beams, and fires the affections.

Rule 5. Lastly, The wrong sin hath done to God, and the sufferings it hath brought Christ under, are the piercing and heart-wounding considerations; "They shall look upon me, whom they have pierced, and mourn." The piercing of Christ by our sin, is that which must pierce thy soul with terror.

---

THE TENTH MEDITATION, UPON.

J O H N vi. 55. For my flesh is meat indeed, and my blood is drink indeed.

In the context our Lord Jesus Christ makes a most spiritual and excellent discourse to the Jews, about the nature and necessity of faith in him; taking the occasion thereof from the bread, which a little before he had so miraculously multiplied and fed them with; raising up their minds to more sublime and spiritual things, and letting them know that bread, how sweet soever it was, was but a shadow of himself, infinitely more sweet and necessary.

These words are a proposition, in which are these three things observable:

First, The subject; my flesh and my blood.

Secondly, The predicate; it is meat and drink.

Thirdly, The manner of predication; it is meat indeed, and drink indeed.

First, The subject; my flesh and my blood, i.e., my humanity; this is meat and drink, true spiritual food. If it be demanded, why he had not said, I am meat and drink indeed; but rather choses to say, my flesh and blood is so? The reason is evident, faith learned Camero; because if you take away flesh and blood from Christ, he cannot be food or life to us: for, in order to his being so, he must satisfy God for us, and obtain the remission of our sins; but without shedding of blood there is no remission. Now, forasmuch as by the offering up of his body, and shedding of his blood, he hath obtained pardon and life for us; therefore his flesh and his blood, is called our meat and our drink, that by which our souls live. Which brings us to the second thing:

Secondly, The predicate; it is meat and drink: i.e. It is to our souls of the same use and necessity, that meat and drink are to our natural life, which cannot be sustained, or continued without them.

The life of our souls as necessarily depends upon the flesh and blood of Christ, as our natural life doth upon meat and drink. Yet beware of a mistake here: the flesh and blood, or the humanity of Christ, is not the fountain of our spiritual life, but the channel rather through which it flows to us from his divinity. By reason of his incarnation and death, righteousness and life came to us.

Thirdly, The manner of predication is very emphatical; it is "meat indeed, and drink indeed." Which notes two things:

First, Reality, in opposition to all legal shadows and types.

Secondly, Transcendent excellency, far surpassing all other food, even manna itself, which, for its excellency, is stiled angels food. "My flesh is meat indeed," i.e. true, substantial, and real food to souls, and choice, excellent, and incomparable food. Hence observe, Doct. That what meat and drink is to our bodies, that, and much more than that, the flesh and blood of Christ is to believing souls.

Two things require explication in this point. First, Wherein the resemblance, or agreement lies, betwixt the flesh and blood of Christ, and meat and drink? Secondly, Wherein the former transcends and excels the latter?

1. Query. Wherein lies the resemblance and agreement between the flesh and blood of Christ, and material meat and drink?

Sol. The agreement is manifest in the following particulars.

First, Meat and drink is necessary to support natural life; we cannot live without it. Upon this account, bread is called the staff and stay; i.e. the support of the natural spirits, which do as much lean and depend upon it, as a feeble man doth upon his staff; Isa. iii. 1. But yet how necessary soever it be, the flesh and blood of Christ is more indispensibly necessary for the life of our souls; John vi. 53. "Except ye eat the "flesh of the Son of man, and drink his blood, ye have no "life in you." Our souls have more absolute need of peace and pardon by Christ, than our bodies have of meat and drink.
Better our bodies were starved and famished, than our souls damned and lost for ever.

Secondly, Meat and drink are ever most sweet and desirable, to those that are hungry and thirsty. It is hunger and thirst, that gives value and estimation to meat and drink; Prov. xxvii. 7. "To the hungry soul, every bitter thing is sweet;" and so it is in our esteem of Christ; John vii. 37. "If any man thirst, let him come to me, and drink." When God, by illumination and conviction, makes men deeply sensible of their miserable, lost, and perishing condition: then ten thousand worlds for Christ. All is but dung and dross, in comparison of the excellency of Christ Jesus.

Thirdly, Meat and drink must undergo an alteration, and lose its own form, before it actually nourishes the body. The corn is ground to pieces in the mill, before it be made bread to nourish us. And Christ must be ground betwixt the upper and nether millstone of the wrath of God, and malice of men, to be made bread for our souls. The prophet faith, Isa. liii. 14. His visage is marred more than any man's. He did not look like himself, the beauty and glory of heaven; but the reproach of men, and despised of the people. Oh what an alteration did his incarnation and sufferings make upon him! Phil. ii. 6, 7. Quantum mutatus ab illo!

Fourthly, Natural food must be received into our bodies, and have a natural union with them; and Christ must be received into our souls, and have a spiritual union with them by faith; or else we can have no nourishment, or benefit by him. An empty profession, a mere talkative religion, nourishes the inner man, just as much as the sight of meat, and our commending of it, doth our outward man. It is Christ's dwelling in our hearts by faith, Eph. iii. 17. our receiving of him, John i. 12. our eating his flesh, and drinking his blood, John vi. 53. i.e. The effectual application of Christ to our souls by faith, that makes us partakers of his benefits.

Fifthly, Meat and drink must be taken every day, or else natural life will languish; and spiritual life will never be comfortably maintained in us, without daily communion with Jesus Christ. If a gracious soul neglect, or be interrupted in its course of duties, and stated times of prayer; it will be quickly discernible by the Christian himself, in the deadness of his own heart; and by others also, in the barrenness of his discourses. And in these things stand the analogy, and agreement of the flesh and blood of Christ, with meat and drink.
Query. The next thing is to open the transcendent excellency of Christ's flesh and blood, above all other food in the world. And this appears in four particulars.

First, This flesh and blood was assumed into the nearest union with the second person in the blessed Trinity, and so is not only dignified above all other created beings, but becomes the first receptacle of all grace, intended to be communicated through it to the children of men; John i. 14.

Secondly, This flesh and blood of Christ was offered up to God, as the great sacrifice for our sins, and purchase of our peace; Col. i. 20. Eph. v. 2. and so it is of inestimable price and value to believers. The human nature of Christ was the sacrifice, the divine nature was the altar on which it was offered up, and by which it was dignified and sanctified, and made an offering of a sweet-smelling favour to God, Eph. v. 2.

Thirdly, This flesh and blood of Christ, is the great medium of conveyance of all blessings and mercies to the souls and bodies of believers. It lies as a vast pipe at the fountain-head of blessings, receiving and conveying them from God to men; Col. i. 14, 19.

So then, it being united to the second person, and so become the flesh and blood of God; it being the sacrifice offered up to God for atonement and remission of sins, and the medium of conveying all grace and mercy from God the fountain, to the souls and bodies of believers; how sweet a relish must it have upon the palate of faith? Here faith may taste the sweetness of a pardon; a full, free, and final pardon of sin; than which nothing in this world can be sweeter to a sin-burdened conscience.

Here it tastes the incomparable sweetness of peace with God, a peace which passeth understanding: The breach sin made, is by this sacrifice made up for ever; Col. i. 20.

Here it tastes the inexpressible sweetness of acceptation with God, an interest in his favour; a mercy, which a poor convinced sinner would give ten thousand worlds for, were it to be purchased. Yea, here it repleniseth all the sweet promises in the covenant of grace, as confirmed and ratified by this sacrifice; Heb. ix. 5. So that well might he say, "My flesh is meat indeed, and my blood is drink indeed;" the most excellent New Testament food for believers:

I. Use, of information.

First, See here the love of a Saviour, that heavenly pelican, who feeds us with his own flesh and blood. You read, Lam. iv. 10. of pitiful women, who eat the flesh of their own chil-
Sacramental Meditations.

Firstly, but where have you read of men or women, that gave their own flesh and blood, for meat and drink to their children? Think on this, you that are so loth to cross and deny your flesh for Christ: He suffered his flesh to be rent, and his blood set abroach for you: What love like the love of Christ?

Secondly, Learn hence a ground of content, in the lowest and poorest condition allotted to any believer in this world. It may be some of you live low in the world; you have hard fare, and are abridged of many of those sweet comforts in the creature, which the enemies of God abound in: But still remember you have no cause to envy their dainties, and be dissatisfied with your own lot and portion; when not many nobles, or mighty in the world, feed as your souls do feed. O what a feast have you! What dainties do your souls taste by faith; whilst others do but feed upon ashes and husks? What is the flesh of lambs and calves out of the stall, to the flesh of Christ? Amos vi. 4, 5, 6. What is wine in bowls, and the chief ointment, to the blood of Christ, and the anointings of his Spirit? O be satisfied with your outward lot, however God hath cast it, whilst he hath dealt so bountifully with your souls.

Thirdly, Learn hence the necessity of faith, in order to the livelihood and subsistence of our souls. What is a feast to him that cannot taste it? And what is Christ to him that cannot believe? That cannot, by faith, eat his flesh, and drink his blood?

It is not the preparation made for souls in Christ, but the application of him by faith, that gives us the sweetnes and benefit of him. Faith is the soul's mouth, or palate: The unbeliever tastes no sweetness in Christ; he can relish more sweet- nesses in money, meat, drink, carnal mirth, or any sensual enjoyment than in Christ.

Fourthly, How excellent are gospel ordinances? What sweetnes is there to be found in them by true believers? For there Christ is prepared, and, as it were, served in for them to feed upon. It is your minister's work, to prepare for you all the week long, and to furnish for you a feast of fat things. Lo here is a table spread and furnished this day, with the costliest dainties that heaven affords? O prize these mercies: sit not here with flat, or wanton appetites, lest God call to your enemies, and bid them away.
II. Use, of exhortation.

Is the flesh and blood of Christ meat and drink indeed? Then let me exhort you, brethren,

First. To come to this table with sharp and hungry appetites. Have you ever tasted, That the Lord is gracious? And do you not hunger and thirst, to taste it again? Surely, "Where the carcase is, thither will the eagles be gathered;" Matth. xxiv. 28. There is a two fold appetite; a dainty, and an hungry appetite. Beware of a nice and dainty appetite, that can relish nothing in the most solid and spiritual duties, except the dish be garnished with flowers of rhetoric, or the matter served in with art and elegancy. This hath been the great sin of the professors of this generation. O Christians! no more of that I pray you. Were you really an hungry and athirst for Christ, you would come to his ordinances, as famishing men to a feast.

Secondly, To feed heartily upon Christ, in every ordinance, and in every sacrament especially. O that your souls might hear, and answer that invitation this day! Cant. v. 1. " Eat, O friends: drink, yea, drink abundantly, O beloved."

For motives, I will only hint these three following.

First, Christ is the matter of the feast. God hath prepared him for your souls. Is any thing in heaven or earth so sweet, as Christ sacrificed is? Do not the angels and saints in heaven feast upon him? Surely one drop of Christ's blood hath more sweetness and excellency in it, than the whole ocean of all creature-comforts.

Secondly, Do not your graces need it? Have you not a languishing love, a staggering faith, dull and sluggisht desires? Look into your hearts, and see what need there is of strengthening the things that are in you, which are ready to die. O feed upon Christ, that your graces may be revived and strengthened.

Thirdly, Do you know how many days you are to go in the strength of this meal? How long it may be, ere you sit again at the Lord's table? Surely, even these, as well as your inferior temporal comforts, stand upon terms of greatest uncertainty. Ah Christians! consider well the times you live in, the enemy that stands ready to take away the cloth, and remove your spiritual food from you. It is said of Peter Martyr, that being in Oxford when queen Mary came in, and hearing the first mass-bell ring; he was struck to the heart, and said, Haec una notula omnem meam doctrinam evertit: This one tinkling bell overthrows all the labours of my ministry at once.
God grant that we may hear none of that music in England any more: but it is like to be, according to your estimation and improvement of Christ's precious ordinances.

Thirdly, _Commend the experienced sweetness of Christ to others_. Do not conceal his loveliness and excellency. Thus the fair and enamoured spouse charges, or adjures others; Cant. v. 9. Be not content to feast upon Christ alone, whilst other souls are starving, and perhaps the souls of your dear natural relations. Say to them, as David, Psal. xxxiv. 8. "O taste and see how good the Lord is."

Fourthly, and lastly, _See that your appetite to Christ be right, and truly spiritual_. Such an hunger and thirst, upon which blessedness is entailed by promise. And you may conclude it so, when,

_Firstly._ It is a sharp and strong appetite, Psal. xlii. 1. Let your thoughts run upon Christ night and day; even continually.

_Secondly._ When it is an universal appetite, after every thing in Christ; his holiness, as well as his righteousness; his commands, as well as his promises; for he is altogether lovely, Cant. v. 16.

_Thirdly._ When it is a continued appetite. I mean not, that the pulse of your desires should keep an even stroke at all times, but that there be real and sincere workings of heart after him always; Psal. cxix. 20.

_Fourthly._ When it is an industrious appetite, awakening the soul to the use of all means, and practice of all duties, in order to satisfaction; Psal. xxvii. 4. "One thing have I desired of the Lord, and that will I seek after."

_Fifthly, and lastly._ It is then a right, when it is an insatiable appetite, never to be allayed with any thing beside Christ; Psal. lxxiii. 25. no, nor with Christ himself, till thou comest to the full enjoyment of him in heaven. The believer knows, how sweet ever his communion with Christ is in this world, yet that communion he shall have with Christ in heaven, will far excel it: there it will be more intimate and immediate, 1 Cor. xii. 12. more full and perfect, even to satisfaction, Psal. xvii. 15. more constant and continued, not suffering such interruptions as it doth here, Rev. xxi. 25. more pure and unmixed; here our corruptions work with our graces, Rom. vii. 21. but there grace shall work alone: in a word, more durable and perpetual; we shall be ever with the Lord, 1 Thess. iv. 7. Long therefore to drink that new wine in the Father's kingdom. "The Spirit and the bride say, Come; and let him that heareth, say, Come. Even so, come Lord Jesus; come quickly."
Sacramental Meditations.

The Eleventh Meditation, Upon

Cant. viii. 6. Set me as a seal upon thy heart, as a seal upon thine arm: for love is strong as death; jealousy is cruel as the grave: the coals thereof are coals of fire, which hath a most vehement flame.

This book is a sacred allegory; the sense thereof is deep and spiritual. Our unacquaintedness with such schemes and figures of speech, together with the want of spiritual light and experience, makes it difficult to be understood; but the allegory being once unfolded, by reason of its affinity with the fancy, truth is more easily and affectingly transmitted, both to the mind and heart.

St. Augustine assigns this reason, why we are so much delighted with metaphors and allegories; because they are so much proportioned to our senses, with which our reason hath contracted an intimacy and familiarity; and therefore God, to accommodate his truth to our capacity, doth, as it were, embody it in earthly expressions; according to that of the ancient Cabbalists, Lumen summum nunquam descendit sine idumento; heavenly truth never descendeth to us without its veil and covering.

The words before us, are the request of the spouse to Jesus Christ; and consist of two parts, viz.
1. Her suit; which is earnest.
2. Her argument; which is weighty.

1. Her earnest suit, or request to Jesus Christ; "Set me as a seal upon thy heart, as a seal upon thine arm." The heart of Christ notes his most dear, inward, and tender affection; his arm notes his protecting and preserving care and power. The last naturally follows the first; what men dearly affect, they tenderly and carefully protect. And by setting her as a seal upon his heart and arm, she means a sure and a well-confirmed interest, both in his love and power; this she would have firmly sealed and ratified: and that this is her meaning, will plainly appear from.

The argument with which she enforces her request: "For love is strong as death; jealousy is cruel as the grave," &c.

By jealousy, we must understand her fears and suspicions of coming short of Christ and his love; q. d. What if after all I Should be deceived? What if Jesus Christ do not love me with a special love? O these fears and suspicions are intolerable torments to her; she cannot bear them; they are cruel as the grave; insufferable as coals of fire, which have a most vehement flame; &c. Lord, if thou leave me in the midst of these jealousies of thy love, I shall be but a torment to myself; I shall live as one upon the rack, or in the flames. Hence the note is, Doct. That there is nothing in this world, which true Christians more earnestly desire, than to be well assured and satisfied of the love of Jesus Christ to their souls.

In the meditation of this point, two things must be enquired into:

1. Why this assurance is so desirable.
2. How it may be obtained.

1. Why the assurance of the love of Christ is so desirable in the eyes of true Christians. And among others, there are two things that especially make it so; viz.

1. The sweetness of its enjoyment.
2. The difficulty of its attainment.

The sweetness of its enjoyment, which is inexpressible, and inconceivable; for it is a mercy above all estimation. It is,

1. The riches of faith,
2. The rest and ease of the heart.
3. The pleasure of life.
4. A cordial at death.
5. A sweet support in all troubles.

1. It is the very riches of faith, the most pleasant fruit which grows upon the top branches of faith. The scripture tells us of an assurance of understanding, hope, and faith. All these graces are precious in themselves; but the assurance of each of them is the most sweet and pleasant part. Knowledge, above knowledge, is the full assurance of knowledge: hope above hope, is the full assurance of hope: and faith above faith, is the full assurance of faith. The least and lowest act of saving faith is precious, and above all value; what then must the highest and most excellent acts of faith be? Certainly, there is a sweetness in the assurance of faith, that few men have the privilege to taste; and they that do, can find no words able to express it to another's understanding. The weakest Christian is exalted above all other men; but the assured Christian hath a preference before all other Christians.

2. It is heart's ease; the very Sabbath and sweet repose of the soul. Thousands of poor Christians would part with all they possess in this world, to enjoy it; but it flies from them.
The life that most of them live, is a life betwixt hopes and fears; their interest in Christ is very doubtful to them. Sometimes they are encouraged, from sensible workings of grace; than all is dashed again, by the contrary stirrings and workings of their own corruptions. Now the sun shines out clear, by and by the heavens are overcast and clouded again; but the assured Christian is at rest, from those tormenting fears and jea-loies which my text speaks of, that are as cruel as the grave, and as insufferable as coals of fire in a man's bosom. He can take Christ into the arms of faith, and say; " My beloved " is mine, and I am his. Return to thy rest, O my soul, for
" the Lord hath dealt bountifully with thee!"

3. It is the pleasure of life; yea, the most rational, pure, and transporting pleasure. What is life without pleasure?
And what pleasure is there in the world, comparable to this pleasure? For let the sealed and assured believer consider, and compare; and he must needs find a joy and pleasure, beyond the joy of the whole earth. If he consider well what he is assured of, it is no common mercy, but Christ himself, and his love; a mercy incomprehensible by men or angels; Eph. iii.
19. Put Christ into the sensible possession of a believer, and joy is no more under his command for that time: he cannot forbear to rejoice; and especially when his thoughts are exercised in comparing states and conditions; either his own with others mens, or his own now, with what it was, and what it shall be. To think with thyself thus, I am assured of Christ, and his love; my interest in him is sealed; but this is a mercy few enjoy besides me. There be millions of souls of equal value with mine by nature, that shall never enjoy such a mercy as this. Yea, the time was, when I myself was far from it, in my unregenerate state. Lord, how is it I had not then been sealed to damnation? O, it is well with me for the present, that I can call Christ my own; and yet it will be better and better:
my condition will mend every day. I am now in Christ; and it is but a little while, before I shall be with Christ. and arrive at the full satisfaction of my very heart. O, what pleasure do the every glance, backward or forward, give to the sealed soul.

4. It is a cordial in death; and there is none like it. This will make the soul triumph over the grave, take death cheerfully by the cold hand, welcome its grim messengers, and long to be gone, and be with Christ. Dark and doubting Christians may indeed shrink back from it, and be afraid of the exchange;
but the assured soul longs to be gone, and needs patience to five, as other men do to die. When one was asked, if he were willing to die? his answer was, Illius est nolle mori, qui nolit ire ad Christum; Let him be loth to die, that is loth to go to Christ: The sugar of assurance sweetens the bitter cup of death, and makes it delectable to a believer’s relish.

5. In a word, it is a sweet support, in all the troubles and afflictions on this side the grave. Let the assured soul be cast into what condition the Lord pleases; be it upon a bed of sickness; yet this gives his soul such support and comfort, that he shall not say, I am sick. Sin being forgiven, the soul is well, when the body is in pain, Isa. xxxiii. 24. Let him be cast into a prison, here is that which will turn a prison into a paradise, Acts v. 41. Let him be pinched with outward want; this will supply all: “As having nothing, and yet possessing all things,” 2 Cor. vi. 10. Thus you see how desirable it is for its own excellency.

2. And as it is desirable for the sweetness of its own enjoyment, so also from the difficulty of its attainment. All excellencies are locked up under many difficulties; but none like this. It is indeed easy to presume an interest in Christ; and cheat a man’s own soul with a dream and fancy of our own creation; but it is hard, to get a sealed, clear title to Christ and his benefits. And there be, among others, three things that make it difficult.

(1.) The corruptions that remain, and daily work in the best hearts; these are evermore puzzling and scouring the poor soul, with fears and doubts about its condition. Grace teacheth men due severity to themselves; and fear of their own deceitfulness, makes them think no hearts are like their hearts; especially whilst they compare other men’s outside with their own inside, as generally they do. Oh, how do our own corruptions every moment raise mists and clouds, that it is a wonder we ever should have one clear beam of assurance shining into such hearts, as our hearts are!

(2.) The multitudes of mistakes and cheats, that are frequently committed, and found in this matter, makes upright hearts the more suspicious and doubtful of their own condition. O when they read Matth. vii. 22., that many will say to Christ in that day, Lord, we have prophesied in thy name, &c. it scares them, lest they also be deceived.

(3.) The grand importance of the matter, makes poor souls fearful of concluding certainly about it. O when a man con-
Sacramental Meditations.

Consider, that the whole weight of his eternal happiness or misery, depends upon the resolution of these questions, Am I in Christ; or am I not? it will make him tremble to determine. In a word, assurance is not in our power, or at our command. There be many holy, humble, diligent, and longing souls, to whom it is denied: it is arbitrarily dispensed by the pleasure of the Spirit, to whom he will; and such favours are rare, even among true believers; the more therefore it is to be valued and desired by all, as the spouse doth in this place. And so much to the first thing: Upon what account the assurance of Christ's love is so desirable in the eyes of Christians.

2. In the last place, let us consider, how this mercy, which is so desirable, may be obtained: And this is our proper work and business at this time.

You are now come to a sealing ordinance, instituted on purpose for this noble end and use. O that we would pray and plead for it, as the spouse here doth! "Set me as a seal upon thine heart, as a seal upon thine arm: for love is strong as death; jealousy is cruel as the grave," &c. Now, in order to the attainment of this most desirable mercy, take a few necessary hints of your present work and duty, in the following directions.

Direction I. Would you be well secured of Christ's love to you, and that you are set as a seal upon his heart? Then exercise and manifest more love to Christ, and let him be much upon your hearts. If it be clear to you, that you have true love to Jesus Christ, you need not at all to doubt, but you are in his heart, and in his love: I love them that love me, Prov. viii. 17. And surely you have now before you the greatest motive in the world, to inflame your love to Jesus Christ. Behold him as he is here represented to you, wounded for your iniquities; yea, sacrificed to the wrath of God, for your peace, pardon, and salvation! "O what manner of love is this! Behold how he loved thee!" If Christ's love draw forth thine heart, it will so far clear thy interest in his love, as it shall engage thy heart in love to him.

Direction II. But seeing the activity of your love will be according to the activity of your faith; therefore, in the next place, I advise you to make it the main work and business of this hour, to exercise your faith upon Jesus Christ. Set yourselves this day to believe: The more strong the direct acts of your faith shall be, the more clear and comfortable its reflex acts are like to be.

There are three distinct offices, or employments for your faith, at this table, viz.
1. To realize.
2. To apply.
3. To infer, from the sufferings of Jesus Christ.

1. To realize the sufferings of Christ for you, and behold them here represented in a true glass to the eye of faith. See you that bread broken, and that wine poured out? As sure as this is so, Jesus Christ endured the cross, suffered the wrath of the great and terrible God, in his soul, and in his body, upon the cursed tree, for, and in the room of poor condemned sinners. Your faith for the one hath as much, yea, more certainty, than your sense hath for the other. "This is a faithful saying, and worthy of all acceptation, that Jesus Christ came into the world to save sinners," 1 Tim. i. 15. "And without controversy, great is the mystery of godliness; God was manifested in the flesh," 1 Cor. i. 16.

2. Apply the sufferings of Christ this day to thine own soul: Believe all this to be done and suffered in thy room, and for thy sake. He offered not this sacrifice for his own sins, but ours; Isa. lxxiii. 9. Heb. vii. 27. He was incarnate for you, Isa. ix. 6. "For us a child is born; to us a son is given." His death was for you, and in thy stead, Gal. iii. 13. "He was made a curse for us:" and when he arose from the dead, "he rose for our justification," Rom. iv. 25. And now he is in glory, at the right-hand of God, he is there for us, Heb. vii. 25. "He ever lives, to make intercession for us." It was the pride, passion, earthliness, and unbelief of thy heart, which Jesus Christ groaned, bled, and died, to procure a pardon for.

3. Infer from the sufferings of Christ, those conclusions of faith that tend to assurance. As thus: Did Christ die for me, when I was an enemy? Then surely, being reconciled, I shall be saved by his life, Rom. v. 10. Again; Is Christ dead for me? Then I shall never die eternally. Nothing shall "separate me from the love of God; it is Christ that died," Rom. viii. 34.

Direction III. Mourn over all thse sins, that cause the Lord to hide his face from your souls. Have you grieved the Spirit by your sins? O be grieved for it this day at your very hearts; cover the table of the Lord with tears: "Look upon him whom you have pierced, and mourn as for an only son." Though there be no merit, yet there is much mercy in a broken heart for sin; and there is no such advantage to get your hearts broken, as this is, which is now before you. When the shower of repentance is fallen, the heavens over thee may be clear, and the sun shine out in its brightness upon thy soul.

Direction IV. In a word; pour out thy soul to God, in hearty
Sacramental Meditations.

318 Sacramental Meditations.

318 desires, for a sealed and clear interest in his love this day: Tell him, it is a mercy thou valuest above life; thy favour is better than life, Psal. lxii. 3. Tell him, thou art not able to live with the jealousies and suspicions of his love; thou art but a torment to thyself, whilst thy interest in his love abides under a cloud. Beseech him to pity thy poor afflicted soul, which hath lain down and riven so long with these fears and tremblings, and been a stranger to comfort for so many days. Tell him, how weak thy hands have been, and still are, in duties of obedience, for want of this strength and encouragement. Engage thy soul to him this day, to be more active, cheerful, and fruitful, in his service; if it will please him now, to free thee from those fears and doubts, that have clogged thee in all thy former duties. O, cry unto him in the words, and with the deep sense of the spouse in this text; "Set me as a seal upon thy heart, (which hath a most vehement heat,) as a seal upon thine arm: for love is strong as death; jealousy is cruel as the grave; the coals thereof are coals of fire," &c.

THE TWELFTH MEDITATION, ON EPH. iii. 19. — And to know the love of Christ, which passeth knowledge.

The knowledge of Christ, and of his love, is deservedly, in this place, set down among the desiderata Christianorum, the most desirable enjoyments of believers in this world. This love of Christ had centered the apostle's heart; he was swallowed up in the meditation and admiration of it, and would have all hearts inflamed and affected with it, as his was.

Some think the apostle speaks extatically in this place, and knows not how to make the parts of his discourse consistent with each other, when he puts them upon endeavours to know that love of Christ, which himself confesses to pass knowledge. But though his heart was ravished with the love of Christ, yet there is no contradiction or inconsistency in his discourse. He doth earnestly desire for the Ephesians, that they may know the love of Christ; i.e. that they might experimentally know his love, which passeth knowledge: That is, as some expound it, all other kinds of knowledge; yea, and all knowledge of Christ, which is not practical and experimental. Or thus:
Labour to get the clearest and fullest apprehensive knowledge of Christ, and his love, that is attainable in this world, though you cannot arrive to a perfect comprehensive knowledge of either.

Mens humana hoc et capit, et non capit; atque in eo capit, quod rapitur in admirationem; as others reconcile it.

The note from it is,

Doct. That the love of Christ surpasses, and transcends, the knowledge of the most illumined believers.

The love of Christ is too deep for any created understanding to fathom; it is unsearchable love, and it is so in divers respects.

1. It is unsearchable, in respect of its antiquity: No understanding of man can trace it back to its first spring; it flows from one eternity to another. We receive the fruits and effects of it now; but, O how ancient is that root that bears them! He loved us before this world was made, and will continue so to do, when it shall be reduced into ashes. It is said, Prov. viii. 29. 30, 31. “When he gave the sea his decree, when he appointed the foundations of the earth; then was I by him, as one brought up with him; and I was daily his delight, rejoicing always before him: rejoicing in the habitable parts of his earth, and my delights were with the sons of men.”

2. The freeness of the love of Christ passes knowledge. No man knows, nor can any words express, how free the love of Christ to his people is: It is said, Isa. lv. 8. My thoughts are not your thoughts. The meaning is, My grace, mercy, and love to you, is one thing, as it is in my thoughts, and quite another thing when it comes into your thoughts. In my thoughts, it is like itself, free, rich, and unchangeable; but in your thoughts it is limited and narrowed, pinched in within your strait and narrow conceptions; that it is not like itself, but altered according to the model and platform of creatures, according to which you draw it in your minds. Alas! we do but alter and spoil his love, when we think there is any thing in us, or done by us, that can be a motive, inducement, or recompence to it. His love is so free, that it pitched itself upon us, before we had any loveliness in us at all: “When we were in our blood, he said unto us, live;” and that was the time of love. It did not stay till we had our ornaments upon us; but embraced us in our blood, in our most loathsome state; and of all seasons, that is the season of love, the chosen time of love, Ezek. xvi. 7, 8. Christ loved us, not upon the account of any foreseen excellency in us, or upon any expectation of recompence from us: Nay, he loved us not only without, but against our deserts. Nothing in nature is found so free, as the love of Christ is; our thoughts therefore of this love going beyond all examples and instances that are found amongst men, quickly lose themselves in an immense ocean of free grace, where they can find neither bank nor bottom.
Sacramental Meditations.

The bounty and liberality of the love of Christ to his people, passeth knowledge. Who can number, or value the fruits of his love? They are more than the sands upon the sea shore. It would weary the arm of an angel, to write down the thousandth part of the effects of his love, which come to the share of any particular Christian in this world. Who can tell how many sins it pardons? "The free gift is of many offences unto justification;" Rom. v. 18. How many dangers it prevents; or how many wants it supplies? This, we know, that "of his fulness we all receive grace for grace;" John i. 16. But how full of grace Christ is, and how many mercies have flowed, and shall flow to us out of that fountain of love; this is unknown to men, to the best, wisest, and most observant men. O if the records of the mercies of our lives were, or could be gathered and kept, what vast volumes would they swell to? It is true, indeed, you have the total sum given you in 1 Cor. iii. 22. All are yours; but it is such a number, as no man can number.

The constancy of Christ's love to his people passeth knowledge: No length of time, no distance of place; no change of condition, either with him or us, can possibly make any alteration of his affections towards us; "He is the same yesterday, "to-day, and for ever," Heb. xiii. 8. It is noted also by the evangelist, John xiii. 1. "That having loved his own which were in the world, he loved them to the end." It is true, his condition is altered; he is no more in this world conversing with his people, as he did once in the days of his flesh: He is now at the right-hand of God, in the highest glory; but yet his heart is the same that ever it was, for love and tenderness to his people. Our conditions also are often altered in this world; but his love suffers no alteration. Yea, which is much more admirable, we do many things daily, that grieve him, and offend him; yet he takes not away his loving-kindness from us, nor suffers his faithfulness to fail. We pour out so much cold water of unkindness and provocation, as is enough to cool and quench any love in the world, except his love; but notwithstanding all, he continues unchangeable in love to us. This Peter found, notwithstanding that great offence of his: No sooner was the Lord risen from the dead, but he greets him in the Life of his former love and antient respect; Go tell the disciples, and tell Peter.

So then the love of Christ is a love transcending all creature-love, and human understanding. We read in Rom. v. 7, 8, that "peradventure for a good man, some would even dare to " die;" but we never find where any, beside Jesus Christ, would lay down his life for enemies. It is recorded as an unparalleled instance of love in Damon and Pythias, the two Sicilian philosophers, that each had courage enough to die for his friend; one of them being condemned to die by the tyrant; and desiring to give the last farewell to his family; his friend went into prison for him, as his surety to die for him, if he returned not at the appointed time: But he did not die; yea, he had such a confidence in his friend, that he would not suffer him by default to die for him; and if he had, yet he had died for his friend. But such was the love of Christ, that it did not only put him into danger of death, but put him actually unto death, yea, the worst of deaths, and that for his enemies. O what manner of love is this! We read of the love that Jacob had for Rachel, and how he endured both the cold of winter, and heat of summer, for her sake. But what is this to the love of Jesus, who for us endured the heat of God's wrath? Beside, she was beautiful, but we unholy. David wished for Absalom his son, Would God I had died for thee! But it was but a wish; and had it come to the proof, David would have shrunk from death, for all the affection he bare his beautiful son. But Christ actually gave his life for us, and did not only wish he had done it. O love, transcending the love of creatures; yea, and surmounting all creature-knowledge!

The uses follow.

1. Use. If the love of Christ passes knowledge, O then admire it! yea, live and die in the wonder and admiration of the love of Christ! As it is a sign of great weakness, to admire small and common things; so it speaks great stupidity not to be affected with great and unusual things. O Christian! if thou be on that conversest with the thoughts of this love, thou canst not but admire it; and the more thou studiest, the more still wilt thou be astonished at it. And among the many wonders that will appear in the love of Christ, these two will most of all affect thee, viz.

1. That ever it pitched at first on thee.
2. That it is not, by so many sins, quenched towards thee.
3. It is admirable, that ever the love of Christ pitched at first upon thee; for are there not millions in the world, of sweeter temper's, and better constitutions than thyself, whom it hath passed by, and yet embraced thee? " Lord, (said the disciples) how is it, that thou wilt manifest thyself unto us, and " not unto the world?" John xiv. 22. Surely he did not set his love upon thee, nor chuse thee, because thou walt better than others, but because he loved thee.

2. It is admirable, that his love to thee is not extinguished by so many sins, as thou hast committed against him. Lay thy hand, Christian, this day upon thy heart; and bethink thyself, how many have been the provocations, wrongs, and dishonours thou hast been guilty of against thy God, and that since he called thee by his grace, and set his love upon thee. What, and yet love thee still! Yea, notwithstanding all, he is still thy God, and loves thee with an unchangeable love. O, with how many notwithstanding is his love continued to thy soul! All this is just matter of admiration and wonder for ever.

3. Is the love of Christ past knowledge, an unsearchable love? Then learn, whence and why it is, that the souls of believers never are, nor can be tired, in beholding and enjoying Jesus Christ. We use to say, one thing is tiresome; and it is very true, if it be an earthly thing, it will be so, how sweet or excellent ever it seems at first: And the reason is, because the best creature-enjoyment is but a shallow thing, and a few thoughts will found it to the bottom; and there being no supply of new matter, to feed the hungry soul upon, it is quickly fated and cloyed with the repetition of the same thing over and over. But it is far otherwise in Christ: For though he be but one, yet in that one thing all things are virtually and eminently contained; so that every day he seems a new Christ for sweetness, and yet is the same Christ still. And in heaven the redeemed shall view him with as much wonder, and love him with as much ardour, after millions of years, as they did at their first sight of him. O, there is no bottom in the love of Christ; it passeth knowledge.

4. In a word; Bestow your best and chiefest love upon Christ, whose love to you passeth all knowledge. Let no creature be loved equally with Christ; but as his love to you passeth all creature-love, so let yours to him be a matchless love.
Believer; Christ loves thee with an unsearchable love; he loves thee more than the dearest friend, that is as thine own soul, loves thee. He loves thee more than thou lovest thy child, or the wife of thy bosom; more than thy soul loves thy body, with which it is so intimately united: And wilt thou content
A familiar Conference, &c.

thyselt with such poor, narrow, remis affections to Jesus Christ? O look upon him this day in his red garments! Behold him in the strength of his love, breaking through the curse of the law, the wrath of God, the agonies of death, to bring home the fruits of his eternal love to thy soul; and whilst thou art beholding, and musing upon it, let the heart melt, thy eyes drop, and thy very soul cry out, “Behold how he loved me! Blessed be God for Jesus Christ.”

A FAMILIAR CONFERENCE

BETWEEN A MINISTER AND A DOUBTING CHRISTIAN, CONCERNING THE SACRAMENT OF THE LORD’S SUPPER.

Christian.] SIR, If it may be no interruption to your studies, I would be glad to be resolved of several doubts, that arise in my mind, about receiving the blessed sacrament of the Lord’s supper.

Minister.] I shall be very glad to contribute any thing for removing those scruples which may disturb you upon that account; therefore, pray go on.

Christian.] Sir, I have heard many sermons, and read several discourses, which do much urge and declare the necessity of communicating in this blessed ordinance; and yet I durst never presume to join therein.

Minister.] Have you then hitherto lived in the neglect of this important duty.

Christian.] To speak freely, Sir, I never yet did communicate therein all my life; because I have much questioned, whether I were worthy to receive that blessed and holy seal, to the glory of God, and my own edification and comfort; since I never truly understood the institution, nature, administration, and ends of it, nor the qualifications of those who are to be partakers thereof, according to the appointment of Jesus Christ.
A familiar Conference between a Minister.

Well then, I hope, if these things be plainly opened to you, it may much conduce to satisfy your scruples.

Sir, I shall receive your instructions with thankfulness, and, if my heart deceive me not, shall rejoice in the light and knowledge that I may gain thereby.

Let us then, first, enquire into the qualifications of a sincere Christian in general; and, secondly, of the qualifications of such Christians, as are meet to partake of the Lord's supper; for they are distinct, and sometimes separate.

I hope, in doing this, you will much help me to judge of my present state and condition God-ward. And now, in the first place, pray inform me, how I may know if I am a sincere Christian.

All true believers, among other graces, have such a knowledge of God in Christ, as works by love, and stirs up in them an earnest study of the will of God, and a sincere endeavour to live in the faith, knowledge, and practice of it.

Sir, I cannot boast of my knowledge; yet, by the grace of God, those conceptions which I have of God in Christ, have, I hope, so far prevailed upon me, that to live in the knowledge, love, and enjoyment of him, and to have my all devoted to his will and praise, is all the heaven that I desire in this world, and a great part of that which I hope for in the world to come.

These are good signs of a real and renewed change in your soul, and so doubts less have wrought good dispositions in you; of which you have had evidence in your heart, and have made it appear in your life and actions.

I would be loth to flatter myself; but yet I hope, that I find some delight in the word of God, both read and preached: and do seriously meditate thereon, that I may "grow in grace, and in the knowledge of Jesus Christ our Lord." And tho' I am sometimes tempted with vile and vain thoughts, yet I endeavour to stifle them, and my heart rises against them. I thank God, I strive to resist the first motions to sin, and avoid all occasions of evil; and I am never more uneasy, than when I happen into the company of profane and ill people, having an hatred to lying, obscene and filthy discourses, swearing, cursing, and all dishonourable reflections upon God and godliness. I make conscience of taking up a slander against my neighbour; and to be just, and to do good to all, according to my ability, and "to walk in all the commandments of the Lord, blameless."
Minister and a doubting Christian.

Minister. If these be the fruits and effects of your faith, it is not a dead faith; yet we must not rest upon our own works, or righteousness, for justification, merit, or satisfaction; because it will be derogatory to the merits and righteousness of Jesus Christ, and dangerous to our own souls.

Christian. Sir, I know right well, that there is no justification, but by the blood of Jesus; neither dare I trust to my own righteousness, but to his only, for the pardon and remission of my sins. And if by grace I am enabled to bring forth any fruit meet for a gospel faith, repentance, and love; these I bless God for, as a part of my duty and happiness, and desire to look on them as proofs of faith, (if they are worthy to be such) and no otherwise.

Minister. This is well. But do you find your soul always in a good frame and temper, without haltings, slips, or excursions?

Christian. Sir, I dare not say I do: for I must with sorrow acknowledge, that at sometimes my thoughts are polluted, my words are unseasonable, without edification, my actions not adorning the doctrine of the gospel of God my Saviour; but such as I fear may prove a grief and snare to others. My spiritual relish of God's word is very insipid, and its authority not so sensibly powerful; so that I am unready to any thing that is good, even like a dead man, as if my religion had no life nor soul in it.

Minister. Well; but when you thus fall into sin, or fail in your duty, what do you think of yourself and ways?

Christian. When I am in this deplorable condition, my soul is much disturbed, my joy and peace of conscience are gone: but when I am a little roused out of this sinful lethargy, my heart is then melted with sorrow for my folly and miscarriage, and I address myself to God with the greatest fear and shame, humbly imploring him to renew a right Spirit within me.

Minister. Well, friend, if your conscience confirms what your tongue has uttered, you have expressed enough to evidence the sincerest of your obedience to God, and that you are a sound believer, and a sincere convert. And I hope you have faith also in Jesus Christ, the mediator; without a due respect to whom, our faith and good affections will not deserve the name of truly evangelical and saving.

Christian. Through grace, I desire to acknowledge and embrace the Lord Jesus Christ, upon the terms on which he is of-
A familiar Conference between a

Minister. These are very considerable attainments, and include the substance of saving-faith. But are you sensible how you arrived to this good disposition and frame of mind? Do you imagine it was natural to you, or the result of the improvement of your natural reason, powers, or faculties?

Christian. Oh, Sir, I dare by no means ascribe that to nature, which is only the effect of divine grace. If I have any measure of sanctification, it is only by the gift and grace of God; for I have had too much experience, that by nature I am alive to vanity and sin; but dead and lifeless to God, and to all real goodness; that I am darkness; folly possesseth my soul; I am at enmity with God, and altogether unable to will, or to do what is pleasing in his eyes; having a great contrariety in my heart to the way of salvation proposed in the gospel of Christ.

Minister. And have you taken up strong resolutions, that, by the help of God, and the assistance of his blessed Spirit, you will endeavour to persevere in the faith and practice which you have now declared, to your life's end?

Christian. Sir, there is nothing that I more dread than apostatizing, or relaxing in my duty and profession, and that I should have a backsliding heart from the Lord; and I earnestly watch and pray against every symptom and degree thereof.

Minister. Do you think, that by your own strength and ability, you have power to persevere and continue in the faith and obedience of the gospel; against the many temptations and corruptions that assault us, and the lamentable miscarriages of those who seemed pillars in the house of God?

Christian. I have no confidence in my own ability, Sir, I assure you; but do wholly rely on the Rock that is higher than I; even upon him who hath promised, that he will perfect a good work begun to the day of Christ. I rest upon him, who is the author and finisher of our faith; I beg his holy Spirit, to instruct, guide, assist, and comfort me. And I earnestly desire and purpose, (by the grace of God) to expect those aids, in a constant and universal attendance upon God in his ordinances, with an honest, humble, and believing heart.

Minister. These are all plain evidences of the saving grace of God: which I beseech the Lord may always continue, and grew in your heart; that so you may have a full assurance of his love, who hath dealt so graciously with you.

*ChristIan.] The Lord grant, that in the sense of his love to my soul, I may walk worthy of his grace. And now, Sir, by what has been said, do you think I may presume to feed on Jesus Christ at his table, and receive that blessed seal of my Redeemer's love?

Minister.] 'You know I told you, that a man may be a true Christian, and yet may not be fit to partake of this holy ordinance: because he may believe unto salvation, and yet be so ignorant of this mystery, as not to be able to make a due application of it to his own soul.'

*ChristIan.] Ah, Sir, I would willingly be informed, what is necessary to be done by a found believer, in order to the partaking of this blessed ordinance?

Minister.] 'First, He must consider, that the elements and matter of this ordinance, are not common bread and wine after consecration, but set apart to a holy use, and so to be received with an holy understanding and fear. And therefore the Corinthians were blamed by the apostle, for their ignorance and irreverence, 1 Cor. xi. Again, that these elements, so blessed and set apart by Christ's appointment, do represent a crucified Redeemer; and we are to partake of them with love, as a memorial of his death; and with faith, as the seal of the promise, and the means appointed by God, to convey the benefits of Christ crucified to the soul.'

*ChristIan.] Sir, these considerations raise up my desires to come to the Lord's table, which I hope to be a partaker of, with the same sentiments that you have now laid before me; and that I shall feast mine eyes on that lovely object, which is so full of love; and that my eye will so deeply affect my heart toward my holy Redeemer, that I may meet with my blessed Lord in all the ways of his appointment.

Minister.] 'Again; you ought to set your soul upon self-examination, that so you may be sensible of your wants and defects, and come to Christ for a supply of the graces of his holy Spirit; that you may exercise faith, love, repentance, and all other graces, with such warmth and vigour, that Jesus Christ may delight in you, and you in him; and there may be a mutual and joyful renewing of your covenant of love and obedience to your blessed Saviour.'

*ChristIan.] Sir, we cannot suppose that there should be the settings and exercises of grace, where the habits are wanting, no more than there can be motion without life; but it is usually said, that the holy Sacrament is a quickening, cherishing, comforting, and confirming ordinance.

Minister. No doubt but the worthy prepared receivers of this blessed banquet, have by a due participation found their love inflamed, their faith strengthened, their obedience confirmed, their humility increased; so that they have appeared vile in their own sight, and have had an utter detestation of all sin, and an earnest expectation and desire, after the glorious appearance of their blessed Lord and Redeemer.

Christian. Sir, since the benefits and blessings are so great, it makes me the more earnestly long to be a communicant in these sacred mysteries.

Minister. It is the duty of all Christ's ministers, to give the sacramental bread of life, and the cup of consolation, to those who hunger and thirst after Jesus Christ, and his righteous government and kingdom. And now I have told you your duty, I shall be willing to declare to you the nature and the circumstances of this blessed ordinance.

Christian. Sir, I must confess I am not so well instructed herein; and if I may not be too troublesome, would be very glad to understand what this holy ordinance is, and why it is called a sacrament.

Minister. It is a seal of the covenant of God in Christ, wherein, by certain outward signs, instituted by our Saviour, Christ, and all his benefits are signified, conveyed, and sealed to the worthy receiver. The word sacrament hath been anciently used, both to signify baptism and the supper of the Lord; and was taken up by the ancient fathers, from the oath by which the Roman soldiers were sworn to their duty, and were not admitted to be soldiers, until they had solemnly taken that oath or sacrament. It is called by several other names in scripture, namely, breaking of bread, Acts ii. 42. the Lord's table, 1 Cor. x. 21. the communion, 1 Cor. x. 16.

Christian. Pray, Sir, how many sacraments were instituted under the New Testament, and by whose authority were they appointed?

Minister. There are only two, baptism, and the Lord's supper; and they were ordained by the sole and immediate authority of Jesus Christ; and those other five which the Papists have added, and called by that name, as order, or ordaining of priests, penance, marriage, confirmation, and extreme unction, or anointing at the hour of death; all these Were neither immediately instituted by Christ, nor have the proper ends of a sacrament.

Christian. What are the elements to be used in the sacrament of the Lord's supper?

Minister. Bread and wine, and no other, Luke xxii. 19, 20. And all communicants are to receive both of them, notwithstanding the bold and sacrilegious practice of the Papists, who give the people the bread, or wafer only, none but the priest receiving both the bread the wine. And this without any sound reason, or scripture-warrant; and they may as well corrupt, totally abolish, or add to any of the ordinances and institutions of Christ Jesus, as presume to do this.

Christian. What resemblance or congruity is there between bread and wine, the signs, and what is signified by them in the Lord's supper?

Minister. Bread is so necessary, that it is often put for all kind of food, and necessaries; and the least morsel of it is completely bread. Thus Christ is food, and all necessaries to the soul; and every worthy communicant receives a whole and complete Christ: And as corn is not bread, till it be bruised or ground; so Jesus Christ had not been food for us, if he had not been bruised with wounds and sorrow. And as bread is the common food of all people, so is Jesus Christ of all real Christians. Again, as bread being a solid body, may properly denote the body of Christ; so wine, being liquid, may represent his blood: And as wine is pressed from the grape, so the blood of Jesus was forced out by his agony, and the wounds of the cross.

Christian. May not the bread and wine at our common tables signify the same thing?

Minister. No; because this is solemnly set apart, and consacramental use by prayer and blessing, and by ap-applying the words of our dear Redeemer used in the institution of this ordinance.

Christian. Is not the bread and wine after consecration transubstantiated, or transformed from the substance of bread and wine, into the real substance and essence of the body and blood of our Saviour; since Christ's own words are, This is my body, &c. This is my blood, &c.

Minister. No, by no means; this being a Papish error, attended with many absurdities and idolatrous practices. But it is the body and blood of Christ, in the sense that Christ
A familiar Conference between a spoken it; but he did not say, This is no longer bread in substance, but the very substance of my body. And such phrases are often used in scripture, and yet not always to be taken in a strict sense, no more than that "Rock was Christ, and "I am the true vine, the door, the shepherd," &c. More-ever, Christ intended it for a sacrament, that is, a sign of what it represents; now it cannot be the real body of Christ, and the sign of it also. Again, our senses of seeing, smelling, and tasting, assure us that it is bread and wine, and no way substantially changed after the words of consecration. And if we must deny our senses in this, we may as well doubt whether these words, This is my body, &c. be recorded in holy scripture, though we see them there.'

Christian.] If the bread and wine be not the body and blood of Christ really and substantially, how then doth the true believer, in receiving, eating, and drinking, them, receive, eat, and drink the body and blood of Christ?

Minister.] By receiving those elements so consecrated, as signs, seals, and conveyances of Christ and his benefits to the soul; and a true Christian hath them conveyed to him thereby, as really as a writing under hand, seal, and witnesses, can convey lands, or other benefits, which are not really in the writings themselves.

Christian.] What are the actions of the minister, in administering this ordinance?

Minister.] After blessing the bread, he breaks it, and deliers it to the communicants in the words of Jesus Christ, signifying thereby a crucified Jesus, who was wounded for our transgressions. He then pours out the wine in the sight of the congregation, and delivers that to them also, after blessing it in the words of Christ. And hereby is represented to us, our dear Redeemer shedding his blood for us; which is the sacrifice of atonement, whereby we obtain remission of sins. In which action, the minister, standing in Christ's stead, as his minister, (wherein Christ is present, and by his Spirit and authority) doth as really tender and bestow himself and benefits, as if he had spoken the same words in his own visible person.

Christian.] But say some, since our Saviour restrained this ordinance to the time of his coming; he being come in the Spirit, it is now at an end, and abolished.

Minister.] If these enthusiasts mean the coming of the Spirit, in its sanctifying operations; then it seems, that it was appointed only for unbelievers; and that the disciples, who communication with Christ at the institution thereof, had not the Spirit, but were unbelievers; which is false and absurd.

If they mean the extraordinary gifts of the Spirit, or the pouring it forth in an extraordinary measure; the practice of the apostles and the church of God, both at that time, and long after, will abundantly contradict that assertion; Acts ii. 42. 1 Cor. x. 16.

Christian.] What are the benefits that Christ gives, and we receive, in this ordinance?

Minister.] The exercise and increase of every grace; the cleansing our souls from the guilt of sin; healing the wounds which sin hath made in our consciences; a confirmation of the truth and promises of God; an humble and holy delight in Christ, and our fellow Christians; and a more earnest longing for, and expectation of, the blessedness of the life to come: And is an ordinance chiefly intended for confirmation of our faith, love, and increase in grace; so that no person ought to come thereunto, but in faith.

Christian.] What are the necessary preparations for this solemn ordinance?

Minister.] (1.) That a man have the habit of faith. (2.) That he have an hearty disposition and willingness, to receive Christ as his Lord and Redeemer. (3.) That he be in charity with all men; John i. 7. Matth. xv. 26. We must also exercise renewed acts of repentance, and clear up our interest in Christ, and have our souls full of faith and love towards him.

Christian.] Sir, there is one scripture that, I believe, discourages many from partaking of the Lord's table; neither do I indeed well understand it: 1 Cor. xi. 27, 28, 29. Whosoever shall eat this bread, and drink this cup of the Lord unworthily, shall be guilty of the body and blood of the Lord. But let a man examine himself, and so let him eat of that bread, and drink of that cup. For he that eateth and drinketh unworthily, eateth and drinketh damnation (or judgment) to himself, not discerning the Lord's body.

Minister.] I am indeed of the opinion, that the want of right understanding this scripture, has been a stumbling-block to many, and so I shall endeavour briefly to explain it. The apostle here truly represents, and very much aggravates the danger of unworthy receiving this holy sacrament: but he does not deter the Corinthians from it, because they had sometimes come to it without due reverence; but exhorts... them to amend what had been amiss, and to come better prepared and disposed for the future. And therefore, after that terrible declaration, that "Whosoever shall eat this bread, and drink this cup of the Lord," \\
He does not add, therefore let Christians take heed of coming to the Lord's table; but let them come prepared, and with due reverence; not as to a common meal, but to a solemn participation of the body and blood of Christ: "But let him examine himself; and so let him eat of that bread, and drink of that cup." For if this be a good reason to abstain from this ordinance, for fear of performing it in an undue manner; then a wicked man may as well lay aside all other holy duties, as prayer, hearing, and reading the word of God, for fear of the unworthy use of them; since, "The prayer of the wicked, (that is, one that resolves to continue so) is an abomination to the Lord." And Christ says, "Take heed how you hear. And the apostle says, that those who will not believe the gospel, it is the favour of death to them; That is, it is deadly, and damnable to such persons. Now there is as much reason for men to give over praying, or attending on the word of God, as not to receive the sacrament; since he that prays unworthily, that is, without spiritual benefit and advantage, is guilty of great contempt of God, and Jesus Christ, and aggravates his own damnation; as well as he, who by partaking of the Lord's supper unworthily, eats and drinks his own judgment. And when the apostle adds, "But let a man examine himself; and so let him eat of that bread, and drink of that cup;" It seems clear, by the occasion and circumstances of his discourse, that he does not intend we should examine our state of grace, whether we are true believers or no, and sincerely resolved to continue so; but he speaks of the actual fitness and worthiness of the Corinthians at that time, when they came to receive the Lord's supper. And therefore, ver. 20. he sharply reproves their irreverent and unsuitable carriage at the Lord's table; they coming thereunto disorderly, one before another. It was the custom of Christians then, to meet at the feast of charity, in which they did communicate with great sobriety and temperance; and when that was ended, they celebrated the Lord's supper. Now, among the Corinthians, this order was broken: The rich met, and excluded the poor from this common feast; and after an irregular feast, (one after another eating his own supper as he came), they went to the sacrament in great disorder. One was hungry, having eaten nothing at all; others had drank and eat intemperately; and the poor were despised and neglected. This the apostle condemns as a great profanation of that solemn institution, for behaving themselves with as little reverence, as if it were a common supper, or feast: And this he calls, not discerning the Lord's body: making no difference between the sacrament and a common meal; which contemptuous carriage, he calls eating and drinking unworthily; for which he pronounces them guilty of the body and blood of Christ; by which, he tells them, they did incur the judgment of God, which he calls eating and drinking their own judgment; for so the word signifies in the Greek, and not eternal condemnation.
Minister and a doubting Christian.

It is meant of some temporal judgment and chastisement, in order to the preventing of eternal damnation: Which is evident from what follows: "He that eateth and drinketh unworthily, eateth and drinketh judgment to himself." And then he says, "For this cause many are weak and sickly among you, and many sleep." That is, for this irreverence of theirs, God sent among them several diseases, of which many had died. And then he adds, "For if we would judge ourselves, we should not be judged." That is, if we would censor and examine ourselves, so as to be more careful for the future, we should escape the judgment of God in these temporal punishments. "But when we are judged, we are chastened of the Lord, that we should not be condemned with the world." That is, when by neglecting thus to judge ourselves, we provoke God to judge us; he inflicts these temporal judgments upon us, to prevent our eternal damnation.

Christian] Sir, I am much obliged to you for the satisfaction you have given me in these weighty points, referring to the Lord's supper: And now, though in a deep sense of my great unworthiness, yet with humble confidence in my dear Redeemer, who graciously invites all that are heavy laden to come unto him; I do intend, by the blessing of God, to address myself to the Lord's table the next Lord's day; humbly beseeching the assistance of your prayers, that I may not come without the wedding-garment; but may be so qualified, as to obtain those glorious privileges and blessings, which are there represented and sealed to every worthy communicant.
AHYMN

UPON

ROMANS v. 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11.

6. WHEN we were destitute of strength,
   Ourselves to help or save,
   Christ for ungodliness, at length,
   His life a ransom gave.

7. For one that's righteous, we would grudge
   To lay our life at stake;
   And for a good man, it were much
   Such an exchange to make.

8. But God his matchless love commends,
   In that Christ Jesus dies
   For us, when we were not his friends,
   But wretched enemies.

9. Much more, being justify'd, and free,
   Thro' his own blood, from sin;
   From wrath to come we fav'd shall be,
   Ev'n by the life of him.

10. For if, when enemies, for us
    Christ's death did end the strife;
    Much more, when reconciled thus,
    He'll save us by his life.

11. Yea, more than so, we triumph now
    In God with one accord,
    Having receiv'd atonement through Christ Jesus our own Lord.

   Wherefore to him, who is the first Begotten of the dead,
   Who over earthly princes must Be supreme Lord and Head:
   Ev'n unto him who lov'd us so,
   To wash us in his blood,
   And make us kings and priests unto
   His Father and his God:
   To him dominion therefore,
   By us be given, when
   This present world shall be no more;
   To which we say, Amen.
THE REASONABLENESS OF PERSONAL REFORMATION, AND THE NECESSITY OF CONVERSION:

The true methods of making all men happy in this world, and in the world to come.

Seasonably discoursed, and earnestly pressed upon this licentious age.

To all such as are most immediately and particularly concerned in the following treatise, of what rank or quality soever they be.

GENTLEMEN,

TWO of the greatest, faithfulest, and most intimate friends in the world, reason and conscience, command me here, in their names, courteously to salute and invite you in.

They earnestly desire three or four hours serious and private conference with you, about some very important personal concerns of yours, which cannot admit of denial, or long delay. And if you make any trifling excuses, they have commanded and instructed me, here to answer them.

In case of absolute and obstinate refusal to hear them, they order me to tell you; if you will not talk with me now, they will talk with you shortly, whether you will or no. If you say, you are not now at leisure, having other business to do; they both desire you to consider, First, You can have no business in the world of equal importance with theirs. Secondly, That whatever other lawful affairs you are pursuing, their business with you will no way obstruct, but greatly promote it. And, lastly, That a greater person than any of you, lost his life, by pocketing up a letter at night, saying, To-morrow is a new day; and it proved to him indeed dies notissima, his last day; he losing by that neglect the only opportunity of living longer.

If you demand, how your reason came to be bound up in this little book, and say, that which is reason to this author, may be folly and nonsensical to you: I am bid to tell you, you are obliged first to read and compare; else your own reason will presently call it your own folly and nonsensical, so to pronounce. Sound reason is uniform, and like itself alt the world over. It is true, laws and dictates equally oblige one, as another, in like cases and circumstances.

If you say, there have been some jars and digressions between you, and your reasons and consciences; you and they have fallen out so oft, that you have no great fancy to come near them in private, for you expect nothing but harsh and obdurate language from them; and therefore are fain, by continual diversions, and quick successions of business, to maintain your peace, by keeping at as great a distance from them as you can.

It is their desire you should here know, First, That their debates with you will be as calm and friendly, as they are reasonable and necessary. Secondly, That they both profess (and you may believe them) they neither do, nor can design any thing but your good. Thirdly, That that person is certainly in a very bad case, that cannot endure to converse with himself. Fourthly, That you herein deny a civility to your own reasons and confections, which you daily pay to strangers and inferiors. And, in a word, that they desire a reconciliation with you upon as fair and honourable terms as can well be desired: and that this being done, they will both stick faithfully by you in all the troubles and dangers of your lives, and follow you as your inseparable friends, into any thing but sin.

If you say, this is but a wheedle, to draw you into a book, that will make you melancholy, and perhaps mad:

It is their sense and judgment, that of all men living, you have least reason to pretend the one or the other, in this case: for they are very confident, you are now in the most melancholy circumstances, men can ordinarily be in on this side hell. And for madness they desire to know, what you yourselves would call that man, that is running with such post-haste to hell, as will not admit of two or three hours stop upon the read, to prove himself to be no madman, but in his right mind and wits?

Moreover, they command me to inform you, it is their desire, that seeing their debates with you will neither be tiresome nor impertinent, you will please to hear them out what they have to say to you: and then, if you shall find cause to complain, that your pleas and excuses are not fairly drawn, or that you have new matter to furnish a better apology; they are both content you shall have your liberty to amend, or add what you please; and if they be not able to refute them, they will give you no further trouble or interruption in your course.

This, Gentlemen, is what I have in charge to say to you in the porch; and now, if you please, the door is open; you may be as private as you will. They will attend you to your bed-chamber, or closet; and I heartily wish an happy issue to this friendly debate.

JOHN FLAVEL.

CHAP. I.
The introduction, and state of the case.

§ 1. REASON exalts man above all earthly beings; it is his dignity and privilege, that God hath furnished him with abilities of mind, to recollect, animadvert, compare, infer, ponder, and judge his own actions. Hereby he becomes not only capable of moral government by human laws, (which no creature beside him is) but also of spiritual government by divine laws, and the blessed fruition of God in glory, which no other species of creatures (angels only excepted) have a subjected capacity for.

Right reason, by the law of nature, (as an home-born judge) arbitrates and determines all things within its proper province; which province is extended far and wide. All actions, natural, moral, and civil, are weighed at this beam and standard; none are exempted, but matters of supernatural revelation; and yet even these are not wholly, and in every respect, exempt from right reason: for though there be some mysteries in religion above the sphere and flight of reason; yet nothing can be found in religion, that is unreasonable.

VOL. VIII.
The reasonableness of Personal Reformation.

And though these mysteries be not of natural investigation, but of supernatural revelation; yet reason is convinced, nothing can be more reasonable, than that it takes its place at the feet of faith; which is but to suffer itself to become pupil to an omniscient and infallible Instructor. The resolution of our reason into faith, and of faith into God's veracity, are acts highly becoming reasonable beings in such cases as these.

It may not pry too nicely into unrevealed mysteries, demand the reasons, or examine the causes of them as bold and daring Socinians do; but it feels itself obliged to receive all those things, both as possible and true, which God hath revealed, counting his revelation alone to be reason sufficient. For the veracity of God takes out of reason's mouth all objections against the truth of them; and his almighty power silences all its scruples against the possibility of them.

But in all matters properly under the jurisdiction of reason, every man is obliged to account with himself, as well as others, for the reasonableness of his own actions; and that act which will not endure the test of sound reason, it judges not fit for the entertainment of a man. If reason cannot justify it, it is beneath the rank and dignity of a man to do it.

§ 2. The light of reason was at first the bright lamp or candle of the Lord, till sin, like a thief, melted it down to snuff; whereby (comparatively speaking) it is becomes a poor glimmering light in the best of men, and almost quite extinguished in some men. Fallen man is become less than himself, and will never act like himself, till he be fully restored to himself.

Sanctification indeed snuffs and trims the lamp of reason; but there being few sanctified persons among men, a double misery consequently befalls a very great part of mankind; whose conversation speaks them not only destitute of religion, which bereaves them of the blessedness of the world to come; but men almost entirely despoiled of the benefits and blessings of their own reason, which makes them unhappy and miserable in this world: beasts, rather than men, as the sacred scripture stiles them: unreasonable men; men fallen out with their own faculties; who after many a sharp battle with their reason, are now dragging it like a conquered captive, at the chariot wheels of their victorious and triumphant lusts.

§ 3. It is scarce imaginable, that ever sin should prevail so far as it doth, to the very unmanning of men, did they not first delude and bribe their own reason, by close and cunning applications to their bewitched affections; whereby, though
The reasonableness of Personal Reformation.

They cannot make it a party, yet they make it stand by as a silent spectator, or neuter, whilst they act the beast, yea, the devil, rather than the man.

We little know how far unsanctified reason may (this way) be prevailed upon to quit its throne, and resign its sceptre into the hands of lust and appetite; yea, to engage in the defence of their most absurd laws and dictates. It only serves in some men, to invent excuses, pleas, and specious pretences, to justify or extenuate their beast-like actions; the basest servitude it can be condemned to.

If this will not do, sensual lusts have another way to obtain their satisfaction, in despite of reason and conscience; even by stopping their ears to the voices of both, and pushing on with a brutish impetus, they suffer neither to enjoy the opportunity of a calm debate of these matters with them.

§ 4. But let men do what they will, it is next to an impossibility, they shall so far subdue and destroy those inbred principles of reason and conscience, but that they will, at one time or other, give them some checks and oppositions in their profane courses; especially when they shall get the advantage of some eminent distress, or special danger, which disposes them to lend an ear to their voices. And there be few men in the world, but are sometimes providentially cast into such cases and conditions.

So that appeals to the reason of the most profligate wretches, are not altogether vain and useless: for if the case cannot be tried and decided at the bar of reason and conscience at one time, it may with more advantage at another: and haply, appeals to reason may produce a reformation in some men, sooner than appeals to the scriptures, or principles of faith; especially when the world is so notoriously drenched in practical atheism, that serious religion becomes the common subject of drollery amongst multitudes of men.

Yet it were hard and uncharitable, to imagine any man sunk so deep into the mine of beastliness and profaneness, as not still to retain some value and veneration for his own reason, and as much as he abuses it, yet to refuse the whole world in exchange for it; and to account it a greater misery to be utterly deprived of it, than to have the hoofs of an horse given him in exchange for his hands and feet.

§ 5. The scriptures therefore do, in many cases, appeal to the reason of sinners, and design their reformation by such appeals: for it being a most shameful thing, for a man to be
The Reformation of Personal Reformation.

349

Convicted at the bar of his own reason, of acting like a beast rather than a man, every man is presumed to be afraid, and ashamed of such an indictment. Such miscreants are the shame and reproach of humanity itself; they are branded for brutes throughout the sober world; their company declined and shunned by all wise and good men. He that hath no reason to justify his actions, may yet be supposed to be owner of some stock of natural shame; which cannot but afford a blush, upon such a plain conviction. This therefore was the course which the prophet Isaiah took, by divine direction, to reform the idolatrous Israelites; Isa. xlvi. 8. He states the case at the bar of their own reason, and calls for a verdict upon it. The case was this; whether idols, having not power enough to shew themselves gods, those that worship them, must not want wisdom enough to shew themselves men? "Remember this, and shew yourselves men; and bring it again to mind, O ye transgressors!" q. d. For shame, let not men act like brutes, which have no animadversion.

§ 6. When things therefore are brought to such an exigence, that ruin or reformation is the only choice men have to make, and all religious impressions so obliterated and worn out, that men pay no reverence to them; an appeal to the reason of men, seems then to be an hopeful method of prevailing with them, to suffer a reformation rather than a ruin. Not that I imagine the topics of reason able to afford more powerful arguments, than those of religion do; but that they, who by their ignorance and strong prejudices against religion, have made themselves more incapable of conviction that way, may haply feel the force of reason prevailing so far at least, as to put their outrageous lusts under some restraint.

As for the scriptures, and serious religion begotten by them in the souls of men, they are perfect strangers to all, but the names of these things. And even their very names are grown almost ridiculous with them too. But reason may convince and shame them. What force the reason of man hath, even without having grace, to produce civility, sobriety, and other moral virtues, is abundantly evident in the very Heathens; who, by the only light of reason, discovered so much odiousness in vice and immorality, and such an amiable beauty in justice, temperance, and the other moral virtues, that their praises for them are sounded throughout the world.

Now, whatever unthinking men dream, to me it is evident, that when kingdoms and commonwealths are overflowed with unrestrained vice and immoralities; when cursing and swearing becomes the common language, drunkenness and adultery the common practices of the inhabitants; God will either sweep away the filth of those nations, by the benefit of a general reformation, or he will sweep away their inhabitants out of them, with the benefit of destruction. For if we have not excused the notion and belief of a God, and that he animadverts the wickedness of men, (which the very Heathens, by the light of nature, saw and acknowledged), we may thereby easily be led to this conclusion, that such overflowing of abomination do, and must certainly preface our desolation, except speedy and general reformation do prevent it.
The reasonableness of Personal Reformation.

§ 7. Now, the persons, whose reformation I particularly design by this method, being men that exercise more reason than religion, might (methinks) be prevailed with to take up at last, and reform their unreasonable, as well as ungodly courses, could they be once prevailed with to debate these matters with cool, considerative minds, becoming men governed by reason, not wholly swayed like brute-beasts, by lust and appetite.

And is it not highly reasonable, that men should weigh their own actions at the same beam and standard where they weigh other men's actions; and renounce all that with shame and detestation, which they themselves must censure as utterly beneath, and unworthy of a man? Wherefore hath God planted a principle of reason and conscience within us? Is it rational to think, it was planted there for no other end or use, but to scan and censure other men's words or actions by, but not our own? Or to be wholly useful to other men's interests, without any benefit to ourselves? Ask thine own reason, silly man, why God placed it in thy soul? and for what use it was intended? And it will tell thee, it was particularly designed and appointed, to regulate and order thine own life and actions; and next, for the benefit and good of the community. It will tell thee, there is not a single act thou dost, of any weight or moment, but thou oughtest to consult with it, and have its pass or licence before thou do it. But when thou enterest into a serious course of actions, thy consultations with it ought to be very frequent and solemn, because these things are of great importance to thee.

Thy reason will tell thee, sinner, that it is a vile affront to it, to be thrust by thee from the council-table, unworthily dismissed from its office, and discharged from any further attendance upon thy life, and concerns thereof, and brutish lust and appetite consulted in its room; and that it needed not at all to have been implanted in thy soul, if the same principles that govern the beasts of the field, must also be thy governing principles. It stands ready to offer its service to thee, to save thee from, or to receive thee out of those mischiefs thou halt, or mayest run thyself into; if thou wilt but hear, and obey its advice, it tells thee, it is thy privy-counsellor, by God's appointment; and if thou wilt not find leisure among the heats and hurries of thy lufts, to consult it, and hearken to its counsels now; if thou wilt not forfeit the conduct of thine own reason and conscience, which have a right and authority to govern thy words and actions, and follow thy blind and headstrong lufts and passions, thou shalt hear other language from them, when thy lufts have precipitated thee into thine own ruin and destruction; as they speedily and inevitably must, and will do, according to the course they now steer for thee.
The reasonableness of Personal Reformation.

§ 8. And there is yet more ground to hope, that reason may prevail with men living under the gospel, to return to sobriety and temperance, when we consider their reason is assisted by some illuminations from the Christian religion. They live in a land of Bibles and ministers, where they cannot avoid the light; an advantage far beyond whatever the heathens enjoyed; who yet by their single unassisted reason, arrived to an eminency in moral virtues.

Our reason and consciences do not only convince us, (as theirs also did them) that there is a God, and a future life of retribution, wherein every man shall be judged according to his works; but also, that the scriptures are the very word of God, and rule of faith and manners. And if there be any among the debauched crew, that question or deny it; we may be confident, none of them are able, by plain and sound reason, to overthrow those mighty arguments pleaded for the confirmation of that truth: At least, they find in themselves a strong suspicion and fear, that they may prove to be true; which jealousy and suspicion, working together with their own reason and consciences, are no contemptible helps toward their recovery.

For if what reason, conscience, and scripture, with one mouth, pronounce, be true and certain, (as undoubtedly it will be found to be); then it must be plain and obvious to them also, that their brutish lufts have put them into the direct and ready way, both to ruin themselves, and also greatly to hazard the community to which they belong.

§ 9. As for themselves, if they will make a judgment upon their own condition, in the light of reason, conscience, or scripture, (and they very well know, they take their measures in perfect darkness, if they take them not by this direction; then, continuing the same course they now do, they are a lost generation.

All their lawful and faithful guides tell them, with one mouth, they are certainly in the broad way to damnation; and that, how irksome and terrible forever the thoughts and apprehensions of hell are to them, yet thither they must certainly come, if they pursue this course. Their reason plainly tells them, be that chuseth the means, and engageth in the way leading to hell, must, and ought to make account, that hell is the place he is preparing for.

Conscience is as plain and positive with them, that they must either return, or perish. The scripture confirms the testimonies of both, by telling them plainly, That the end of these things is death; Rom. vi. 21.

It is downright folly and madness, by the vote of the whole rational and sober world, for any man to conclude, or hope he shall be happy in the world to come, whose life is drawn through, and finished in all manner of obscenity, filthiness, and profaneness in the present world.

For let the case be brought into the light of your own reason, as dim as it is, and let it freely judge, when you are belching out your black and horrid blasphemies against God, impregnating damnation from him upon your own souls, wallowing in beastly lusts, vomiting and roaring in taverns and ale-houses: ask, I say, your own reason, conscience, or the scripture, whether all, or either of them, will allow you to say or think, ‘Now we are in the right way to eternal blessedness! This is the very course that will bring us to happiness in the world to come: this pleaseth God better, and is a surer path to glory, than repentance or faith, mortification, prayer, or reformation.’ No, no, as blind as your reason is, and as feared as your consciences are, you will never bring them to comprobate, or subscribe such absurd and horrid conclusions as these.

But, on the contrary, they will tell you, that if you will have the pleasure, you must have the pain and torment of sin. That it is madness to say, you are afraid to burn, but not afraid to sin; that you are loth to be damned, and yet challenge the almighty God to his face, to damn you: as much a folly, as to drink a baneful dose of known poison, and think to feel no painful gripes afterwards.

As for the scriptures, they appeal to the reason of men in this case, as a most known and allowed thing, scarce imaginable to lie hid from any man. 1 Cor. vi. 9, 10. ‘Know ye not, that the unrighteous shall not inherit the kingdom of God. But not deceived; neither fornicators, nor idolaters, nor adulterers, nor effeminate, nor abusers of themselves with mankind; nor thieves, nor covetous, nor drunkards, nor revilers, nor extortioners, shall inherit the kingdom of God.
344 The reasonableness of Personal Reformation

It would make the bowels of a compassionate Christian to roll and yawn within him, to behold multitudes of souls of invaluable worth, running greedily on to their eternal ruin, wilfully stopping their ears all the way, to the voices of their own reason and conscience, as well as to the voice of God in his word; not once making a pause, till they fall into that gulf of eternal and intolerable misery, into which, with great precipitation, they are calling themselves.

§ 10. And then, for the community to which they belong; how dangerous, yea, how destructive such persons are to it, cannot possibly be hid from any wise and serious observer. For if one sinner destroys much good; if one Achan trouble the whole camp of Israel; how much more will whole swarms and droves of drunkards, blasphemers, and adulterers, as now fill every place, pull down the judgments of God upon those states and kingdoms wherein they breathe? If our fears and dangers were greater than they are, yet reformation might save us; Jer. v. i. "Run ye to and fro through the streets of Jerusalem, and see now, and know, and seek in the broad place thereof, if you can find a man, (i.e. a public man, a man in authority,) if there be any that executeth judgment, that seeketh the truth, and I will pardon it." And if our hopes and confidences were much higher than they are, yet unrestrained sin would undo us. Kingdoms and commonwealths are not so much endangered by the powers and policies of their enemies without them, as they are by the unreformedness of profligate wretches within, and amongst them. Reformation quickly recovers the ancient glory of kingdoms, and makes them the terror of their enemies.

For though there will be still too much sin privately committed under the best laws, and the most vigorous and impartial execution of them; yet abundance of sin would thereby be prevented, and the sins that are committed would not become national, but personal only; and these would not so much concern and hazard the public weal and tranquility of the state.

Moreover, states and kingdoms are in no small hazard by the public debauchery, and common profaneness of their subjects; forasmuch as in this very sink and puddle of their lots, the manly wisdom, sprightly courage, and true gallantry of their Subjects, are quenched and drowned, their spirits softened and effeminated. It is hard to imagine those men will engage far in the cause of reformation, when reformation itself is the only thing they hate and fear.

Nor need we wonder to find men intimidated, and low-spirited, in times and places of imminent danger, who not only carry about them so much guilt, (which is the fountain of fear) but are wholly addicted to sensual pleasures, which they are loth to hazard upon public accounts and considerations, these being the only heaven they have or hope for: "Whoredom, " and wine, and new wine take away the heart," Hof. iv. xi. It is in the very nature of these sins, to make men sottish, and in the very nature of guilt to make them pusillanimous.

Seneca observes, (and his observation is true) * 'That the conscience of a wicked man is a terrible scourge and torment to him, perpetually lashing him with solicitous thoughts and fears; so that he distrusts all securities, and knows not where to be safe.' Hence it comes to pass, that many men of good extraction, liberal education, and excellent natural endowments, become so useless, yea, so pernicious as they are; who, could they be recovered but to temperance and sobriety, would become both excellently useful, and ornamental to the nation where they had their birth, and to the safety and honour whereof they owe their service.

§ 11. This most desirable recovery and reformation of proflane debauched persons, is not simply and absolutely impossible: And if magistrates and ministers were everywhere exemplary themselves for sobriety and piety, zealous and impartial in the discharge of their respective duties, a general reformation would not be difficult. But when those, whose office it is to suppress wickedness, shall associate themselves with lewd and profligate persons, and vie with them in their profane courses, or discourage more conscientious persons in the discharge of their duties; this makes reformation morally impossible.

If profaneness were once found the general odium of the people, and a bar to all preferments, it might be hoped, things would quickly alter for the better. It was an ancient custom among the Heathens, (as learned and excellent Mr. Hale of Eaton, out of Chrysostom observes), That if a man offered himself to contend in the Olympic games, he was not permitted so to do, till proclamation had been first made, Whether any man knew him to be either a servant, or a man of infamous life?*

Vol. VIII. *Seneca, epist. 97.
The reasonableness of Personal Reformation.

And if any such imputation were proved against him, it was sufficient to keep him back, let his skill be what it would.

What care was here taken, that their vanities should not be discredited? And will neither reason nor religion convince us, that not only equal, but far greater care ought to be taken, to discourage profaneness among Christians, than the blind Heathens ever took, to preserve the reputation of their vain exercises? Let all subordinate ministers of state, and officers in the church, consider how great a part of this blessed reformation is demanded at their hands.

§ 12. Were kingdoms and commonwealths once purged from that spirit of profaneness and debauchery, which thus defiles and overflows them, and the people generally reduced but to civility, sobriety, and temperance; experience would quickly shew them the comfortable effects, and happy fruits thereof.

For though this be much short of what Christianity exacts from all its professors, and insufficient to obtain the happiness of the world to come; yet it is greatly conducive to the civil happiness and flourishing of the kingdoms of this world; and, therefore richly worthy the studies and endeavours of all men, to promote and obtain it.

There is no kingdom or commonwealth in the Christian world, which would not by this means breed and send forth multitudes more than they do, with excellent abilities and qualifications, fitting them to sit at the helm of government, and steer a more prosperous course than they do at present. A wise and steady direction of the arduous and important affairs of kingdoms, can only be expected from those that are able to govern themselves, and their own affairs, with sobriety and discretion.

If the laws of nations take care for the preservation and growth of timber, fit for the building of houses and ships, and everyone sees the usefulness and necessity of such acts; much more ought they to take care for such an education of men, as may render them serviceable members to the state, both in camp and council.

Magistrates are (in a sense) the foundation of kingdoms; the strong shoulders, that bear the burden of government: And reason will tell, that so great a weight and stress, as the affairs and concerns of kingdoms, ought not to be laid on their shoulders, whose legs, through debauchery, are too weak to bear their own reeling and staggering bodies.

Seamen and soldiers are the walls of kingdoms, and (under God) their prudence and courage are the peoples defence and safeguard. Plutarch tells us, there were two virtues in Hannibal, which made him prosperous and successful: There was in him, Plurimum audacia ad capienda pericula, et plurimum conselii inter ipsa pericula: He was bold in attempting, and prud\ent in managing the most difficult services. The former had signified little without the latter. Courage may throw men into the midst of difficulties; but counsel and wisdom helps them to emerge those difficulties; and I am sure, that cannot be ra\tionally expected from men, that daily dethrone their own rea\son by debauchery.
The rea\nable\ness of Per\sonal Reformation.

But when men, not only sober, just, and temperate, but re\ligiously good, are employed in public trusts and services; we cannot but think, the security and prosperity of such a state, are abundantly provided for. And our confidence hereof is not only founded upon the maxims of human reason, but of scripture, wisdom, and authority also.

What a renowned, prosperous, and successful captain of the armies of Israel, was good Jofhua! No man was able to stand before him all the days of his life, Josh. i. 5. But what bred those brave, gallant, and undaunted spirits in the breast of this hero, and crowned his noble designs with such admirable suc\cess? If we look into ver. 8. we shall find it was religion, that gave both the edge and point to his natural courage; "This book of the law shall not depart out of thy mouth, but thou shalt meditate therein day and night, that thou mayest ob\serve to do all that is written therein: for then thou shalt make thy way prosperous, and then thou shalt have good suc\cess."

Hezekiah, this way, became a nonsuch among the kings of Judah; for "he clave to the Lord, and the Lord was with him; and he prospered whithersoever he went forth," 2 Kings xviii: 5, 6, 7. And dying David, from a whole life of experience, recommended this as the only method of prosperity, unto So\lomon his son; "Keep the charge of the Lord thy God, to walk in his ways; that thou mayest prosper in all that thou dost, and whithersoever thou turnest thyself," 1 Kings ii. 3, 4.

How great a lu\stre therefore doth this truth cast about it: that the restraint and reformation of vice, and the due encour\agement of virtue and piety, becomes the very civil interest of kingdoms and nations, by the joint votes and suffrages both of human and divine wisdom? Let any kingdom or state make trial of this method, and from that very time they shall date their prosperity. This will make them become the terrors of their enemies round about them; which is the true level and de\sign of this most necessary and reasonable attempt.
Producing one dilate, or rule of right reason, respecting morality, allowed by mankind; and passing current through the world, without one negative voice, except only from those men, whose reasons are utterly captivated by their lusts.

§ 1. Such is the degeneracy and deep corruption of some men's natures, by ill education, base company, and long custom in sin; that abandoning and casting away the bonds and restraints of right reason, as well as religion, they give the full scope and liberty to their lusts and passions, reckoning their chief happiness to consist in the gratification and satisfaction of their sensitive appetites. They affect a soft, delicate, sense-pleasing life; reckoning it the only real heaven to be desired and sought by them; and any other heaven beside that to be merely notional and fantastic. This is the element they desire to live and sport in, fitly described, Tit. iii. 3. by serving divers lusts and pleasures. Hence it comes to pass, that their bodies serve only to be strainers for meats and drinks, and channels for filthy lusts to stream through. In this stream, their masculine agility melts away, and all public hopes and expectations from them, are totally defeated and disappointed. Appetite is the master, and reason the slave.

These men (if it be fit to call them men) have bid defiance to their own reason, and denounced a war against their own faculties; as if reason had licensed and privileged (which it never did, nor can do) their worse than brutish lusts, to act to the uttermost of their abilities, without any manner of restraint over them.

§ 2. But notwithstanding the present captivity of reason, under usurping and domineering lusts, so long as it hath a permanent and fixed root and principle in their nature, it is possible it may recover its throne and empire over them again; as many an imprisoned king hath done, and probably would do in a very short space, if those prejudices they have conceived against its government, were but once fairly confuted and removed; which certainly is not hard to do.

They are of opinion, that the laws of reason are too severe, strict, and rigorous; that they too much abridge them of their pleasures and delights; and that the government of sensuality being more easy, favourable and indulgent, is for that reason, much more eligible and desirable.

Whereas right reason designs not the abandoning of all plea-
The reasonableness of Personal Redemption:

349

... but only the exchange of them, and that exchange every way to our great advantage. The only hurt or loss, (if this must be accounted so) any man can sustain by the exchange of pleasures made by reason and religion is this; that they design for you the rational, ordinate, and congruous delights, both of a man, and of a Christian; in lieu of the lower, baser, and filthy pleasures of a beast or a devil.

They propose to you rules about pleasures, far more safe and grateful, without any culpable severity, or austerity in them. Reason would only regulate and legitimate your delights, and religion sanctify them; that you might much more purely and sweetly enjoy them, without either shame arising from their turpitude, or fear from their guilt. The rules of both are large and indulgent enough; and, keeping within their lines and limits, men shall find such generous, manly, and agreeable delights, as are no where to be enjoyed without them.

§ 3. To make this evident, I shall postulate and presume but one thing, and that a thing so immediately true and self-evident, that in the first naked proposal of it, it naturally and easily lets itself into every man's understanding, and no sooner asks, but gains the approbation of right reason. And that self-evident principle, which I take for granted, no man of sound intellectual will quarrel or dispute, is this:

That good which compriseth and involveth the true honour, profit, and pleasure of the whole man, which is more congruous to human nature, and preservative of it, is to be preferred in our estimation and choice, to that which only yields a lower degree of pleasure, without profit or honour, to the basest part of man: and that low and transient pleasure it doth yield, attended and followed with many present and future miseries, destructive to the whole man.

The several parts of this complex proposition, cast such a light and glory round about them, that I cannot imagine, but as soon as it shall be propounded to the judgment and censure of sound reason, it must immediately gain both its approbation and applause.

But because reason in many men is so beclouded and disturbed by lusts and passions, that it can neither receive things orderly, nor judge of them truly and impartially; I conceive it needful, to demand the censure and judgment of their reason, upon the particulars comprised in this general complex proposition; that so weighing and examining them one by one, we may try, whether sound reason hath any valuable exception against any part, or member thereof.
§ 4. And, first, I take it for granted, that no man's reason will deny, or demur to this proposition; that good is to be chosen, and evil to be avoided: for the will is naturally carried to that which is good, as to its proper object, and shuns that which is evil. And that is naturally good, which is convenient and agreeable to nature; and that naturally evil, which is inconvenient and hurtful to nature. So that the choice of good rather than evil is the natural choice of the will; and this choice of the will is founded upon the law of self-preservation, without which the creation would quickly disband, and no particular being could be long preserved.

And not only the will of rational creatures chuseth the good, and refuseth the evil; but every sensitive creature is endowed with a natural faculty, to discern the one from the other, in order to the preservation of their beings. You find it in the smallest and most despicable animals; and therefore cannot deny it unto man, the noblest and most excellent being on earth; except only in his non-age, before he hath lived to the years of discretion. Children, indeed, in their infancy, have no knowledge to discern between good and evil; Deut. i. 39. But men, not discerning good from evil, or chusing evil rather than good, are many degrees beneath babes.

Secondly, Nor will reason hesitate at all upon this particular, That there are degrees of goodness found among pleasures and delights; some are better than others. Every life is not alike pleasant and happy. To deny this, is to make the most despicable worm, or fly, equally happy with the most excellent creature upon earth. And beside, for the conviction of such debauched persons as I am here arguing with, it will follow clearly from the denial of that truth, that they really gain nothing to themselves, by all their extravagant and licentious courses; there being altogether as much pleasure and felicity, in a temperate, chaste, and sober life, as there is in that beastly life they live; and their very departure from the way of sobriety, to embrace the ways of debauchery, most clearly evincest to the world, that they do not think all pleasures equal; but that they do confidently expect to find more pleasure and satisfaction in the way that they chuse, than they did in the way of sobriety, which they have left and abandoned.

Thirdly, I cannot be so uncharitable to think, but the relics of reason in the most profligate person, will readily admit and grant, That wherever the good of pleasure, profit, and honour, meet together, and jointly conspire to make the life of a man more comfortable, and more durable upon earth; that is much
The reasonableness of Personal Reformation. rather to be chosen, than a mere transient touch of sensitive pleasure, accompanied with present regret, and followed with the ruin of estate, name, honour, soul, and body. He that thinks otherwise, is more fit for a bedlam, than a rational and sober confutation. These things therefore I take for granted, they being innate and self-evident notions and principles in all men.

§ 5. The wisdom and goodness of God are clearly discernible, in leaving such principles of reason, and common notices of conscience in men after the fall, as prompt them naturally unto justice, chastity, temperance, and sobriety; and do struggle within them, to restrain them from, or recover them out of their immoralities; from which many advantages do result.

For hereby God is acknowledged all the world over; men every where shewing by these things the work of the law written in their hearts; Rom. ii. 15.

Hereby kingdoms and commonwealths are preserved; this being the common bridle, which restrains the outrageous lusts of millions of men, which else would turn the world into confusion; though here and there some have flipt bridle, and run into all excess of riot. We justly admire the providence of God, in butting, bounding, and restraining the boisterous ocean, by mountains, rocks, and sands: and as much is he to be admired, in curbing the infatiable lusts of men, by these innate principles of reason and conscience.

Hereby the way to sin is in some measure barred and shut up; and the further progress of sinners, already entered into it, stopped and denied. For actions done with regret, cannot be supposed to be done so frequently and furiously, as if they were done without any regret; or that the way to sin was smoothed to them, with a full consent and approbation of their whole self.

For most sinners find in themselves what Medea did,

\[\text{Video meliora, proboque, Deteriora sequor}\]

'They both see and approve that which is better, though they follow that which is worse.'

In a word, these relics of reason and conscience in men, are fit handles to catch hold on, for the turning them about from Satan unto God. When Paul reasoned with Felix, about temperance, righteousness, and judgment to come, his words laid hold upon these handles, and gave him such a shake, that the text faith, Felix trembled. And, O! that this might take hold of the reason and conscience of every profane reader, and produce some more excellent and lasting effect upon his soul.

§ 6. These notices and dictates of reason and conscience in men, being so necessary, and many ways beneficial to themselves, as well as to the whole community; it must therefore be a horrid villainy to war against them; and, by violence, to suppress and enslave them to their own lusts.
The reasonableness of Personal Reformation.

This is, as if a company of desperate ruffians, should assault innocent and noble travellers upon the lawful road, bind and gag their guides, whilst they rob and prostitute them. Thus deal brutish lusts, (headed by the devil) with the affections of men, travelling along the lawful road of duty, under the conduct of reason and conscience. For this villainy it was, that the apostle tells us, "The wrath of God was revealed from heaven against the Heathens, who held the truth in unrighteousness," Rom. i. 18. They had the light of natural reason and conscience in them, the inbred notions of good and evil; which raised their hopes or fears, according to the nature and quality of their actions.

* Conscia mens ut cuique sua est, ita concipit intra.

But their headstrong boisterous lusts, rudely and violently brake in upon reason and conscience, imprisoned and bound them; as Zedekiah did the faithful prophet Jeremiah, for the discharge of his duty to him. For this, "the wrath of God was revealed from heaven against them." And indeed, we cannot wonder it should be incensed against them, as it will against all that act like them. For into such a sin as this, many direful aggravations fall in together, to make it a monstrous and prodigious sin. Here we find an high and careless abuse of the noblest natural faculties and powers of a man's own soul. What harm have thy reason and conscience done thee, by stimulating and persuading thee to temperance, chastity, and sobriety; or by struggling and striving with thee, to prevent both thy present and future ruin? Do they lay their faithful and loving hands of restraint upon thee, when they see thee running headlong into destruction? And do they deserve for this, and no worse than this, to be thus trampled under foot, and abused? Ask thyself, man, Whether thou thinkest thy very dog deserves to be hanged, for opening at midnight, and taking that thief by the throat, who came to cut thine? And darest thou use those noble powers within thee, worse than thou wouldst use a dog? Humanity would blush at such an action.

These vile abuses of thy reason and conscience carry also in them an horrid contempt of God; whose patent, officers, and

* As each man's soul of good or ill is conscious.

So hope for good he feels, but fears for vice.
The reasonableness of Personal Reformation.

delegates, thy reason and conscience are. Those certainly sin with an high hand against the Lord, who make nothing to control, kick, and lay in irons, his commission-officers, appointed for no other end, but their present and future felicity. Nay, Such men as these are found in a plain confederacy with the devil, and that in a most unnatural and horrid plot against their own souls and bodies. Their light and their lufts are struggling together. Sin and conscience are combating one with another; the one to destroy, the other to save the man. Darest thou join with thy lufts against thy light, and think not to be brought in as a party and confederate with the devil? The stopping of the mouth of thy conscience, fully proves both thy consent and concealment: and if proved consent and concealment make thee not a party and accessory, it will be very strange.

Plutarch, in his book de Amicitia, relates a story of a Persian, who scuffling in the dark with a magician, against whom he had a grudge; and not being able to conquer him himself, called upon his friend who stood by him with a naked sword ready to strike, but durst not, for fear of killing his friend: the Persian cries out, 'Strike, strike, however thy stroke fall; thrust at an adventure. I care not, so thou kill the magician, though thou kill him through mine own body.'

Much so stands the case here, with a little variation. Thou art furiously set upon the enjoyment of thy lufts; nothing will quiet thee, but their satisfaction. Thy reason and conscience will oppose it, and struggle hard with thee, to withhold thee from them. But thou carest not, in the rage of thine infaatable appetite, thou' thy reason and conscience both fall in the combat, rather than thy lufts should not be satisfied. Oh, what brutes! yea, what monsters, can sin turn men into!

§ 7. If men have not quite extinguished both reason and conscience by debauchery, and divested themselves of humanity; one would think, no motion or address can possibly be made to them more fair, rational, and inoffensive, than this, that they would be pleased but to consult themselves, and hearken to the native and unconstrained voice of their own reason and conscience, before they engage themselves in matters of great concernment, upon which both their present and eternal welfare do depend; or, if they are already engaged, yet at least to lend an ear to what they have to offer for their recovery, before it be too late.

You are not here urged and pressed, to hearken to the voices of your enemies that hate you, or to the counsel and ad-
The reasonableness of Personal Reformation.

vice of mere strangers, who know not your affairs; but to hearken to yourselves, to be your own arbitrators and judges, to draw up the award with your own hand. It is a strange and an hard case indeed, and scarce to be supposed, that men should fall out with themselves at such a rate, that they had rather hear the voice of their mortal enemy the devil, and listen to his advice and counsel, than to the voice of their own reason and conscience.

We all account it madness in Balaam, to beat his innocent ass, and threaten to kill her for shunning the sword of the angel, that opposed his passage in a sinful and dangerous expedition; but how many use both their reason and conscience worse than asses, because they dare not go forward, and depe-radely carry them into the very midst of dangers and miseries, which they plainly foresee, and warn them of?

What injuries have thy reason or conscience done thee, man? What affronts have they given thee; that thou wilt not suffer them to speak, or offer one word, though never so pertinent, reasonable and necessary? There is a civility due from us to mere strangers; yea, to strangers of a lower rank and quality. The least we can do, is to give them a patient hearing, and not interrupt them, whilst they speak no-	hing but what is rational, pertinent, and necessary, especially if it be to their own good and advantage. It is strange, men should not think themselves as much obliged to pay civility and respect to their own reasons and consciences, as they daily pay to mere strangers and inferiors. Give them but a patient hearing, and they will both tell thee;

We are thine appointed guardians, and have our commission from God, to advise, direct, and counsel. We are thy faithful and inward friends; yea, we are thine ownself, and the best and noblest part of thyself too. At our hands God will require thy blood, shouldst thou perish by our silence or treachery. We cannot be both silent and innocent, both are in such hazard. Do not abuse us, and stop our mouths for crying out, stop, stop; when we see thee departing from the paths of honesty, honour, and safety, and taking the direct road to that gulph of misery, in which few (if any) footsteps are found of such as return again, that are far engaged therein.

Suffer us but fairly and friendly to expostulate the matter with thee. What design can we have against thy true in-tereat, whilst thine, and ours, cannot possibly be opposite; or disjunct, but one and the same interest?"
Well then, that which thy reason and conscience offers, being so weighty, fair, and just, and what thine own interest plainly lies in; I will not be so uncharitable, as to suppose thou wilt either refuse to hear, or reject what they have to say, in the following cases and debates.

CHAP. III.

Wherein the true censure and judgment of right reason and conscience, are given upon profane swearing, and blaspheming the name of God: As also their replies to several pleas offered in defence or excuse thereof.

§ 1. GOD bestowed on man the noble faculty of speech, (a peculiar favour and privilege) for two ends and uses. (1.) That by the use of his tongue, he may glorify his Maker, and sound forth the praises of his Redeemer. (2.) That we might thereby be able to communicate our minds one to another, in all our necessary and convenient interests and concernsments, whether civil or religious. This member, (the tongue) tho' small in quantity, is found to be mighty in efficacy; and whilst it is kept under the rule and government of grace, the words that drop from it, are as apples of gold in pictures of silver. Gracious words are bread to feed, and water to refresh the souls of others. A sanctified tongue is as a tree of life. Conversion, edification, and consolation; are the delicious fruits of the lips.

But the tongues of some men break loose from under all the laws and rules both of reason and religion, and serve only to vent the froth and filth, which abound in the heart, as in a fountain of pollution: For out of the abundance of the heart, the mouth speaketh. The tongue moves lightly, but falls heavily; it strikes soft, but wounds deep. It would not spare men of the highest rank and eminence, did not the fear of capital punishments teach them so much wit, to keep their tongues in prison, that they may keep their bodies out of prison. And though, for this reason, they are afraid of making too bold with the names of men; yet having no fear of God at all, they fall upon his great and dreadful name, tossing it to and fro, without any respect or reverence.

Augustus prohibited the common use of his name, lest it should grow too cheap and vile, by the common and needless using of it. The name of Mercurius Trismegistus was very sparingly used, because of the great reverence the people had
The reasonableness of Personal Reformation.

The very Heathens were afraid to pronounce the name of their great God, Demogorgon, as fearing the earth would tremble, when his name was mentioned. How doth the reverence of Heathens to their false gods, expose and aggravate the impudence of professed Christians, in their vile indignities and abuses of the great and terrible name of the true God! Yea, they not only take up his name vainly and rashly into their lips, but audaciously insert it by a profane oath into their common talk, as that which gives the grace, lepor, and ornament to their discourses. Some have not been ashamed to say, what pity is it, that swearing should be a sin; which gives so great a grace and ornament to language?

§ 2. Swearing by the name of God in a righteous cause, when called thereto by due authority, is not only a lawful, but a religious act, founded upon, and directed to the honour of God's omniscience; whereunto there is a solemn appeal made, in every assertory and promissory oath, and a religious acknowledgment made him, of his infallible knowledge of the truth or falsehood of our hearts, and all the secrets of them, so they never so involved and inward things.

The lawful use and end of swearing, is to put an end to all strife, and to maintain both equity and charity among men; the two bonds and ligaments of human society. Now, it being the sovereign right and property of God alone, infallibly to search and try the hearts and reins of men, he thereby becomes the infallible witness to the truth or falsehood of what they speak; so that in every such lawful oath, there is not only a solemn appeal, and in that appeal, an ascription of glory to his sovereign omniscience; but therein (implicitly at least) they put themselves under his wrath and curse, in case they swear falsely, which makes this action most sacred and solemn.

The deep corruption of human nature by the fall, makes these appeals to God under a curse necessary. For it is supposed, though men be false and deceitful, yet there is some reverence of a Deity, and fear of his wrath and curse, left unextinguished in their fallen nature. So that men will rather speak the truth (though to their own shame and loss) than by invoking so glorious a name in vain, put both soul and body under his wrath and curse. By which it appears what an awful and solemn thing an oath is; and that every good man, not only takes a lawful oath with holy fear and trembling, because of the solemnity of the action; but rather ought to choose death, than to swear profanely, because of the horrid malignity of the action.
The reasonableness of Personal Reformation.

§ 3. The contumely and malignity found in profane oaths, appears in that terrible threatening, "The Lord will not hold him guiltlessthat taketh his name in vain:" A threatening, altogether as just and righteous, as it is severe and terrible. This sin admits of degrees of guilt. It is highly sinful to swear by the name of God lightly and vainly in our common discourses, though the oath be clipped, and half suppressed, or disguised in the pronunciation of it; which argues some remains of fear and shame in the sinner.

It is yet worse (and indeed not a jot below blasphemy) to swear by any other name, than the name of God: For in so doing, they attribute to a creature the sovereign and incomunicable property of God, set that creature in the very throne of God, and invest it with the regalities of his omnipotence, to know our hearts, and almighty power, to avenge the wrong upon us, done to himself, as well as to men, by false-swearers.

But to break in rudely and blasphemously upon the sacred and tremendous name of God, with bold and full-mouthed oaths, striking through his sacred name with direct contumelious blasphemies; this argues an heart, from which all fear of God is utterly expelled and banished.

Yet some there are, grown up to that prodigious height of impiety, that they dare assault the very heavens, and discharge whole volleys of blasphemies against the glorious Majesty which dwells there. They are not afraid to bid defiance to him, and challenge the God that made them, to do his worst. They deck and adorn (as they account it) their common discourses with bloody oaths, and horrid imprecations; not reckoning them genteel and modish without them. It consists not with the greatness of their spirits, to be wicked at the common rate. They are willing to let the world know, that they are none of those puny, silly fellows, that are afraid of invisible powers, or so much cowards, as to clip a full-mouthed oath, by suppressing, or whispering the emphatical sounding syllable; but think an horrid blasphemy makes the most sweet and graceful cadency in their hellish rhetoric.

They glory, that they have fully conquered all those troublesome notions of good and evil, virtue and vice, heaven and hell, to that degree, that they can now affront the divine Majesty to his very face, and not fear the worst he threatens in his word against their wickedness.

If there be a God, (which they scarce believe) they are resolved, audaciously to provoke him to give them a convincing evidence of his being. And if he be (as they are told he is) rich in patience and forbearance, they are resolved to try how far his patience will extend, and what load of wickedness it is capable to bear.
The reasonableness of Personal Reformation.

If their damnation be not yet sure enough, they will do their utmost to make it sure, by breaking down the only bridge whereby they can escape damnation: I mean, by trampling under their feet the precious blood and wounds of the Son of God, and imprecating the damnation of hell upon their own souls, as if it slumbered too long, and were too slow-paced in its motions towards them. I am of opinion, there are few Christians to be found on earth, crying so often, Lord, pardon; Lord, save me; as some wretches among us cry, (I tremble to speak it!) God damn me; the devil take me.

Herein they seem to envy the happiness of the devils, and damned wretches in hell, and endeavour (as one speaks) to snatch damnation out of God's hands before the time; as if they could not be soon enough among their roaring and howling companions, in the midst of the everlasting burnings. But, why such haste to be perfectly miserable? The very devils themselves deprecate torments before their time, though you imprecate them. Your misery makes haste enough towards you; you need not quicken it, or thus run to meet it.

I am persuaded, that if the bars of the bottomless pit were broken up, and devils should ascend in human shapes, none among them would be found hastening upon themselves the fulness and completeness of their misery, as you do. It is a truth, though a strange one, that it is much easier to find than imagine men upon earth professing Christian religion, yet in some respect funk below the wickedness of the diabolical nature, by making damnation both the subject of their drollery, and the object of their very wishes and desires. Some greater masters of our language, may more lively and emphatically express the horrid nature of this sin; but excuse me, reader, if I believe, no words or thoughts can measure the height or depth of this monstrous abomination.

§ 4. Such contumelious language as this (especially when grown modish or common) cannot but be a most high and dreadful provocation of God, and such an one as will certainly bring down his desolating vengeance, not only upon the heads of blasphemers themselves, but upon the states and kingdoms that connive at, or tolerate them. We read, Zech. v. 2, 3, 4. of a flying roll, full of curses, the length thereof twenty cubits, and the breadth thereof ten cubits; which shall enter into the house of the swearer, remain in the midst of his house, and confute it with the timber and stones thereof. Blasphemy and profane swearing, are like barrels of gunpowder laid under the foundation of many great and noble families, many of which are already blown up, and laid in ruins by this sin, and many more ready to follow, as soon as the justice of God shall give fire to it.

And (comparatively speaking) it were happy if the mischief ended here; but, alas! it causes God to commence a quarrel with the whole land; Hos. iv. 2, 3. "And because of oaths, the land mourneth." You find in Isa. xxxviii. what it was that brought that unparalleled desolation upon that famous and flourishing city of Jerusalem, and the whole land of Judah; "for Jerusalem is ruined, and Judah is fallen; because their tongues and their doings are against the Lord, to provoke the eyes of his glory."

But, alas! scripture-threatnings signify scarce so much with these men, as the predictions of the weather in an almanack; and, which is strange to consider, the very execution of scripture-threatnings before their eyes, will not terrify them from this inhuman wickedness; even these also are laughed to scorn, or easily forgotten.

Oh! that God would set it home with power, upon the spirits of all that are in power, to take some speedy and effectual course, to remove this accursed thing, this iniquity to be punished by the judge; one (and a chief one too) of those direful provocations of heaven, to which we owe a special part of our national infelicity at this day. We all acknowledge, that all prosperity and success depends upon God; if so, reason will readily own, that it must be therefore the interest of kingdoms and commonwealths, to prevent and restrain those impieties, which so audaciously provoke and incense his wrath. As much is this their duty and interest, as it is the interest of a courtier to avoid offences of his royal master, the king, upon whose favour his honour and preferment depends: Or as it is the duty of the owner, to keep in that ox which is used to goring; or cover that pit into which some have, and others of his family are like to fall; or carefully and speedily to remove that gunpowder, which his enemies have placed under the foundation of his house, to blow it up. Both reason and experience will inform the rulers of this world, that professed rebels to the God of heaven, are never like to make useful subjects in the kingdoms of men.

§ 5. Until public justice lay hold upon such offenders, let us try what close reasoning may effect, for their reformation.
The reasonableness of Personal Reformation.

It is hard to imagine that men of sense should so generally, and so far engage themselves in this course of profane swearing, and have nothing at all to say for themselves.

If they have no reason at all, to offer in justification or excuse of what they do, they act the brutes, not the men, and are self-condemned already.

It is a question with me, whether the soul of man, on this side hell, can sink so deep into the nature of a devil, as to sin because he will sin; or to engage himself in a course of sin, without any respect at all to some carnal interest, either of profit, pleasure, or honour?

The thief hath a visible temptation of gain to allure him, or pinching necessity, to induce him. The liar is drawn in, to commit that second sin, to cover the shame and turpitude of a former. The adulterer promiseth himself pleasure in the satisfaction of his lusts. And though men generally stand amazed to think, what that temptation should be, which prevails upon the swearer; yet doubtless, something there is he hath to plead in excuse and extenuation of his fault. Whatsoever it be, let it be produced, and weighed in the balance of right reason; Valeat quantum valere potest. Let it have its due value and consideration. And could I imagine any thing more likely to be their inducements, than what I shall here mention, I would not conceal them. There are only four things, that can fall within the compass of my imagination, pleadable by them, when seriously charged with the evil of the fact.

1. Some of them will haply tell us, that they would not swear as they do, if they could gain credit to what they say without it; but the incredulity of others, provokes them to add so many oaths to their single affirmations.

2. Others of them will tell us, they only swear in their passion, when provoked by injuries received from others; and if men did not wrong them, they would not wrong God as they do.

3. Some will plead, that swearing is become modish, the badge and character of a gentleman; that it gives them reputation among men of their own rank and quality; and that they shall be looked upon as sneaking fools, unfit for the company of gentlemen, if they could not discourse with them in this dialect.

4. And some will confess the practice is evil; but that they have gotten such an ill habit, and the sin is become so customary with them, that many times they know not whether they swear or no.
The reasonableness of Personal Reformation.

I cannot imagine, nor (I think) they themselves, what else is pleadable in excuse, or extenuation of this horrid sin: Let these that are produced, have a fair trial at the bar of reason; and carry yourselves towards this sin for ever hereafter, according to that righteous verdict yourselves shall be forced to pass upon it.

§ 6. To begin with the first plea. You say, you would not swear as you do, could you gain credit to your words without it. Weigh this question in the upright balance of thine own reason, whether any wise or sober man in the world, will find himself ever the more obliged to believe what you say, by the addition of blasphemous oaths and imprecations, to your plain and simple affirmations or negations. I cannot think, that you yourselves would give the more credit to any man, that should profess his sincerity to you; by finding him, as that his very profession, false and treacherous to his God. Say, reason, dost not thou take this for a sure truth; that he who makes no conscience of being trule to God, will never make much conscience of being false to men? For what is that which gives any man's words reputation among wise and sober men, but the supposition of his integrity, and conscientious fear of his deceit and guile? Take away that, and with it you take away the credibility of all his reports and affirmations.

If I look upon the person that speaks, as a man of integrity and conscientious tenderness, I have a sufficient ordinary security of the truth of what he faith. But if I look upon him as a man of a prostitute and seared conscience, that dares venture upon any sin, a man, in whom there is no awe of God, to produce veracity in his words, then my reason presently concludes, that where there is no truth, there ought to be no trust: For truth is the very ground-work and foundation of trust. Now, what truth can we suppose to be left in that man that sticks not upon any trivial occasion, to break all the obligations of a creature to his Creator; together with all the bonds of kindness, his great and best benefactor hath bound him withal; and without any the least injury he can pretend his God hath done him, to fly in his very face with the most contumelious language? Can we suppose any truth to be in, or any trust to be due to such a man as this?

Good men and bad are thus contradistinguished, Eccl. ix. 2. "Him that sweareth, and he that sweareth an oath." A conscientious man is so afraid of an oath, that he would rather...
The reasonableness of Personal Reformation.

Choose to die, than swear some kind of oaths: And though he be satisfied of the lawfulness of an oath in general, and of the matter of that oath he swareth in particular; yet an holy awe and fear of God fills his heart, when he swears lawfully and necessarily, lest he should fail in the manner of it, by not giving that due reverence to the name of God, which so sacred and solemn an action requires.

But from profane swearing, and blaspheming the name of God, every man's reason may justly and plainly infer this conclusion; that the fear of God, is not in that man's heart. And where there is no fear of God, what truth can be supposed in him; or what trust can be due to his words or oaths? But the more he swears, still the less reason all wise men have to believe him. And I am sure, the credulity of fools adds little reputation to him. This plea therefore, for profane swearing, is altogether shamed, baffled, and cashiered, by the common reason of mankind.

§ 7. Call therefore to the bar of reason the second plea, or apology, for profane swearing.

You say, you swear not, unless provoked by injuries men have done you.

This is so weak a plea for so great a sin, that I wonder men are not ashamed to bring it into the court of reason. This is the true sense, and strength of it: My enemy hath abused me; therefore I will avenge the wrong my enemy hath done me, upon my best friend and benefactor. I challenge you to give but the colour, or shadow of sound reason, why, upon any abuse you have received from men, you should fall so injuriously upon the name of God, who never abused or injured you, since he gave you a being, but hath always done you good. Tell me, man, (if thou have the reason of a man in thee) what wrong hath God done thee? Wherein hath he injured thee, that thou thus wreekest thy revenge upon him? If an enemy have affronted you, reason would tell you, you ought not to take revenge for it, upon your friend, and best benefactor. Have you none but God to abuse, when men abuse and injure you? Can your reason comprobate and allow such an action as this? Satan instigates the corruptions of men to injure you; and you fly in the face of God for it, whose laws severely prohibit such actions, and will avenge the injuries done unto him. Speak no more therefore for ever, in the way of excusing the horrid sinfulness of this fact against God, upon the account of injuries done thee by thy fellow creature.
§ 8. Come we next to your third excuse, or plea; That swearing is become modish, and gives you a great reputation among men of your own rank and quality; and that you shall be looked upon as sneaking fellows, unfit for the society of gentlemen, if you did not discourse with them in their own dialect.

This apology for sin is of no late date: Salvian mentions it as far back as his own time: Profane persons then thus pleaded for themselves, that they were compelled to be evil, lest they should be accounted vile.

Whether there be any weight in this apology for swearing, will quickly appear, now it is to be laid in the balance of true reason.

1. And first of all, let us consider what makes a true gentleman; and whether profane swearing have any place in his true character and description. A gentleman, is one that springs from famous and renowned ancestors, and degenerates not from their probity and honour.

This is the man, whom the Latins call generosus, and we, a gentleman: Because we suppose a man of such an extraction and education, more gentle, affable, and condescending to inferiors, and to keep a stricter government over his tongue and passions, than rude plebians are wont to do. Upon this account, the poet rightly observes,

> Quo major est quisquis, magis est placabilis ira,
> Et facilis motus mens generosa capi.

Men of gentle extraction and education, are persons, whose passions are supposed to move more gently than other mens: And if at any time they be moved disorderly, yet are they more placable, and sooner reduced, than those of sordid and baser spirits are.

It is virtue which raises and ennobles families at first; for omnis sanguis concolor, all human blood is derived from, and equally tainted by Adam. Nobler, and baser blood, is an after-difference, made by virtue and vice among men. And as virtue first ennobled, and raised some families above others, so it will still continue the line of honour in their posterity: And as their virtues shall increase, so will their honour proportionably do.

---

* Mali effe coguntur, ne vilest habeantur.*

† Generosus, nobilis, ex praeclaro geneere ortus, qui a geneere non defellit.
The reasonableness of Personal Reformation.

The case truly and plainly standing thus; it is morally impossible, to make debauchery the proper badge and character of gentility. For men of eminency (above the vulgar) are more obliged than they, to shun all base and forbid actions: And as their honour increases, so do their obligations to temperance and sobriety increase, and strengthen upon them proportionably.

It was therefore a right and rational observation of Hiero; I see nothing desirable in nobility, (faith he) but this; that such men are bound by a certain kind of necessity, not to degenerate from, or stain the glory and honour of their renowned ancestors. And the reason is strong and evident: For virtue being that which first differentiated their blood from others, they are obliged, by all the value they have for the honour of their blood and families, to shun those vices which stain that honour and dignity. And what vice can dishonour and debase them more, than profane swearing? For if the arms of many noble families have been revered, for treason against the king; it is irrational to imagine, that treason against the King of kings, should add a new mark of honour: And what is blasphemy, but treason against God? It is plain then, from the true rise and character of a gentleman, profane swearing neither first raised, nor can preserve and continue, but rather blot and exposes their reputation and honour.

2. Though I am most willing to pay a becoming deference to all persons of noble and gentle extraction, yet, in faithfulness to their true honour, I am here obliged to say, (and in saying it, I can offend no man that hath a true sense of honour) that their natural descent can never give them so much honour, as the vices I am here censuring will reflect ignominy and dishonour upon them. To be a slave of Satan, and your own lusts, is such a mark of infamy, as all the honourable and illustrious titles in the world can never cover. It is better to rise by virtue to honour, from contemptible parents, than by vice and profaneness, to grow contemptible from honourable parents. It is your honour to have many servants at your command, obsequiously attending a nod of your head, or a beck of your finger: But ask your own reason, gentlemen, whether it be not a greater dishonour, for you to attend as obsequiously yourselves upon every beck and nod of Satan, and your own lusts?

Were your natural birth once ennobled by the new birth, you would be more than thrice honourable, grace would make you more illustrious, than your natural extraction doth, or The reasonable ness of Personal Reformation. 385

can do. Or if morality (which is far inferior to that honour, and for which Heathens themselves have been renowned in the Pagan world) did but adorn and beautify your conversations, though it cannot entitle you to heaven, or secure to you the glory of the world to come; yet it would make you shine in the eyes of men in this world, and taking its advantage from your honourable extraction, make you differ from persons of an inferior rank, as stars of a greater magnitude and lustre. I hope, gentlemen valuing themselves upon their honour, will not be offended at a sharper invective than this, against those vices that darken and eclips their honour, both in the eyes of God, as well as in the judgment of all wise and good men.

3. Suppose what you say to be true, that some profane gentlemen should scoff and deride you, for your sober carriage, and decorous language, (things which ought to be inseparable from true gentility) I would in this case appeal to your own reason, why you should not enjoy your own pleasure in as full latitude and liberty, as they do theirs? They delight in the dialect of devils; you, in pure and inoffensive language. If they will drink the puddled waters, and you refuse them for the pure crystal streams, you have, to be sure, as much rea-on (and a thousand times more) to assert your liberty to be virtuous, than they have (or can pretend to have) a privilege to be vicious.

And if they will be offended with you for this, their offence is groundless in themselves, and will be greatly advantageous to you. For you need not doubt but you may find better company than theirs any where on this side hell. I remember that rational and excellent apology, which Tertullian made for the Christians in his time against the Gentiles: 'Wherein (faith he) do we offend you, if we will not partake with you in your delights? If we sustain any damage by such our refusal, the injury can be only our own: We reject your pleasures, and you are not delighted with ours.'

You will shew yourselves true and worthy gentlemen, in abandoning and rejecting (upon so noble an account as this) all further unnecessary society with such gentile-men; for so they deserve to be called, rather than gentlemen. They boast, indeed the honour of their blood, whilst they trample the precious and invaluable blood of Christ, under their feet: They boast their eminency above the vulgar, whilst mean time they labour vilely to degrade him that set them there.

I am sure there is not a devil in hell, but is by nature of a more honourable and illustrious house, than the proudest of blasphemers. They are angels by nature, though devils by practice. They have little reason to boast of their original excellency, which now aggravates their misery. Sin darkened their lustre, degraded them from their natural dignity; and so it will do theirs also, that imitate devils in their blasphemy and malignity against God.
The reasonableness of Personal Reformation.

4. It may as easily be proved as asserted, that to make curling, swearing, and blaspheming, the badges and characteristic marks of a true gentleman, is the foulest blot and mark of infamy, which the malice of their enemies can devise to put into their escutcheons; and such an affront, as ought to be highly refented by all true gentlemen.

Should the most malicious enemy you have in the world, cannot herald to devise a mark of infamy for your coats of arms, to make you ridiculous, and a by-word among the people; he could never dishonour you at that rate, you this way dishonour yourselves.

For if debauchery be both asserted and allowed to be the true badge of gentility, then your own reason will infer, that all the ancient epithets of gentility ought thereupon to be altered. And would those gentlemen, think you, take it well, to have the titles, and epithets of ingenious, worthy, honourable, and noble, changed into curling, swearing, damning, blaspheming gentlemen? You cannot but see the inconsistency of both. If, therefore, you will adopt and wear the latter, you must either cashier and renounce the former, or try to make the former consistent with the latter, which I am sure the most ingenious among you will find an hard task to do.

5. I humbly beg leave to propound one plain blunt question to you, gentlemen. The matter of it is too rational to be rejected, and let that make atonement for the blunt manner of its proposal. And the question is this:

Quest. Whether your reason and conscience be fully satisfied, that when you die (as you know you shortly must), you shall then appear before the judgment-seat of God, in the quality and character of gentlemen? Do you verily think you shall find the more favour there, for the sake of your noble descent, and honourable extraction, or that your gentility shall make an atonement for all your impiety?

I am persuaded, gentlemen, you do not; you cannot think so. You know you must appear before that God, with whom there is no respect of persons; a God that will certainly damn the impenitent blasphemer. The man must assuredly go to Hell, 1 Cor. vi. 9, 10. And if the man be damned, certainly the gentleman is in a bad case.

6. In a word, I am past all doubt, and so may you too, that this genteel mode of swearing, drinking, and whoring, which hath spread so far in this present infamous age, into Protestant states and kingdoms, is the very spirit and strength of a Popish plot, subtly projected, and industriously managed, for their effectual reduction to Popery.

For nothing in the world can reconcile men to Popery; yea, and even endeavor them to it, like debauchery. Under Popery, gentlemen may come up to the rates of costly pardons and indulgences, for their greatest sins. They may give themselves liberty to wallow in profaneness all the days of their life. They may give their lusts the utmost scope and liberty, and yet have a plenary pardon when they die. So that they need not abridge themselves of any sinful liberty, or boggle at the loudest blasphemy, whilst they have that in their pocket to still and quiet something that grumbles in their bosom. Do you not see, gentlemen, the natural tendencies of these things? Does not debauchery look like a shoeing-horn to Popery.

Besides, gentlemen, the devil and the Pope are confederates in a farther design upon you; and if their design hit, they hope to win by power, what they may miss by policy; and that by the very same method of corrupting and debauching persons of eminent rank and quality, in Protestant kingdoms and commonwealths. For (as a * learned man in queen Elizabeth's days, rightly observed) these are the men especially interested in the public affairs of kingdoms. These represent the people in parliaments. These make their laws, administer the government in peace and war. To their hands are committed the great concerns of nations. These are they that fill the seats of public judicature.

* Who manages the reins of government, who is present at, and presides over, both private and public matters, but persons of eminent rank and quality? Who moderates in the Senate, presides in courts, commands at home and abroad? Chief men and nobles surely. Who commands and countermands, acts and overacts, manages and canvasses all affairs, who makes laws and revokes them, who governs the state in time of peace, and commands the forces in time of war; but great men and nobles? No wonder that the management of public affairs be committed to him, who by personal merit and renown of his ancestors hath recommended himself to the good report and esteem of mankind. Humphred on nobility.
The reasonableness of Personal Reformation.

If gentlemen, therefore, by this means be generally corrupted and infected by debauchery, their influence and example is likely to infect the greatest part of the body politic, and either make the people easily pliable to the charms and courtships of Popery, for the reason before-mentioned; or so befoul their excellent parts, and enervate their masculine courage, that they shall fall an easy prey to their (otherwise) weak and despicable enemies.

And certainly, gentlemen, we have all cause to reckon this plot very far advanced, when we shall see debauchery everywhere made the badge of gentility; and chastity, temperance, and sobriety, become the marks and notes of infamy. When civility itself shall be hissed with derision out of some gentlemen's company; and the more temperate and sober any man is, by so much the less fit to be a gentleman's companion.

By this time I hope you are convinced, that true gentility is no enemy to sobriety, nor debauchery the character of gentility; and will at last pardon, if not thank me, for endeavouring this way to secure the true honour at some, whilst I rationally argue down the vices and follies of others. This plea for debauchery, you see, hath the same fate the former had, and deserves never to be mentioned more.

§ 9. There is but one plea more; and that as silly and irrational as any of the former; and that is,

The custom and habit of swearing, which you say is hard to be broken. This sin is become so customary to you, that now you scarce note or observe it in yourselves.

That there may be truth in the matter of this plea, I neither deny nor doubt; but that it is a rational and allowable plea, will never be granted by your own reason. The thing you say may be true; for we sometimes find, that when you are taxed for swearing, you will presently swear that you did not swear; and curse him to his face, that accuses you for cursing.

But pray, gentlemen, make your own reason judge, whether custom be a valid and allowed plea for profane swearing and cursing. Say, reason, wilt thou allow that one of the highest aggravations of sin, is pleadable in thy court for the excuse and extenuation of it? Wilt thou give it under thy hand, that the man, is the less guilty, because the more wicked? Darest thou to warrant it that God will take the less notice of the wrongs men do him, because they are used and accustomed so to wrong and abuse him every hour in the day? If your reason can allow and warrant this, I must say it is different, yea, and opposite to the common reason of mankind.

Say not, I make my own reason the rule and standard of yours, or other men's. For I argue here (as I have done all along before) upon the common topics and maxims of reason, generally allowed all the world over by mankind. If a practice be evil, the oftener it is repeated, the more still it is aggravated.

To be plain and faithful with you, gentlemen, if it be your custom to blaspheme, it is God's custom to damn blasphemers. If you use to be drunk and unclean, God uses to punish drunkards and adulterers (if impenitent and unreformed) with his everlasting wrath.

And when you are cited (as shortly you must be) before the awful tribunal of the great, the just, and the terrible God, ask but yourselves, whether such a plea as this, be like to excite you in whole, or in part, and take off the heinousness of these horrid impieties? Will your profane oaths, and direful execrations and imprecations, be excused in the least degree, by telling him, Lord, I was so accustomed to blaspheme thy name; cursing, swearing, and damning, were so familiar language in my lips from day to day, that I had quite lost the sense of the action, as well as of the evil thereof; and therefore, Lord, pity, spare and have mercy on me: O damn not my soul to thine everlasting wrath. For though I have imprecated it upon myself, yet frequent custom at length extinguished all my sense and conscience of the evil thereof, till at length I could play with a direful imprecation as an harmless thing; nay, thought it an ornament and grace to my speech, a gallant expression, alamode the times and places I lived in.

Is not this as good a plea, and not a jot better than that of a malefactor upon his trial for life and death, when theft or robbery have been evidently and substantially proved upon him, and the judge demandeth, What he hath to say for himself, why sentence of death should not pass upon him? Mercy, my Lord, mercy cries he! for I have been so used and accustomed to filching and thieving from my youth up, that for some years before I was apprehended, every one's goods and cattle seemed to me to look like my own; so that I scarce knew when I stole, and when I did not.

And thus, gentlemen, you have heard a fair trial of the sin of profane swearing, and imprecations of damnation; and you have heard the verdict of your own reason and conscience.
upon the case. The Lord help you to break off and reform that sin, for which there is not one word of apology or excuse now left in your mouths.

Let me close all I have to say upon this head, with one plain question: Do you think you must die, or live here for ever, as you now do? If you are convinced (as all the living are supposed to be) that you must die, do you desire an easy and comfortable, or a painful and terrible death? I presume there is no man living, that is convinced he must die, but desires naturally and rationally an easy and comfortable dissolution as may be. If so, I appeal to your reason, whether profane swearing and blaspheming the name of God, be a proper rational way to obtain peace and comfort at death? With what hope of encouragement can those tongues of yours cry at death, Lord, have mercy upon me, which have profaned that name, and imprecated damnation from him, till you came into your last extremities, which convinced you, you could live no longer.

It is a serious question, and well worth a cool and solemn debate in your own reasons and consciences. Some of you are more immediately exposed to the dangers of death than others, readily to be disbanded by a bullet. If you fall, you must either fall considerately, or inconsiderately. If inconsiderately, and without any sense or conscience of this horrid guilt, you die impenitently, and consequently desperately and miserably. If considerately, and with awakened consciences, I demand, whether such guilt as this will not roar louder than the peals and volleys of those great and small guns do which breathe destruction upon you, and round about you? I have done my message plainly and faithfully to the very face of your reason and conscience; and if for my faithfulness and zeal, both for God's honour and yours, I am rewarded with your curses; yet, if you would forbear to blaspheme and rend in pieces the name of God, I shall not much regard the obloquy and reproach my name shall undergo and suffer upon that account: But I expect from you better fruit than this.
CHAP. IV.

Wherein reason and conscience are again consulted about the practice of drunkenness; and their righteous and impartial censure given upon that case.

§ 1. "T HouH our souls and bodies be of vastly different natures and originals, yet they do clasp and embrace each other with most dear and tender affection. It is marvellous to behold such a spiritual and heavenly creature as the soul in all men, fervently loving, and in most men fondly doting upon a lump of clay, a clod of earth: it sympathizeth tenderly with it. If the meanest member of the body be in pain, the soul is presently concerned for it, and evidences itself to be so, by commanding the eyes both to watch and weep, the tongue to complain and moan, the hands to bind up its wounds with all imaginable tenderness, and carefully defend it from the least injurious touch. But if the whole be in danger, how do its nobler faculties of understanding, memory, and invention, awaken and betir themselves to the utmost for its deliverance and safety.

Whilst the soul lives in union with the body, it is filled with affidious (and too often with exorbitant and distracting) cares, for its necessary support and comfort. And when it must be separated from it by death, what strong aversions to death doth it ordinarily discover? The strong ties and bonds betwixt it and the body, cannot be loosed without much conflict and struggling, evidenced by these emphatical groans it sends forth: groans which other men understand not, nor can be supposed to understand, till they themselves come to feel the parting-pull.

The reason of all which lies in the intimate relation which is betwixt these different natures, which God hath married together in the womb, from which time they have been companions and partners in all the comforts and troubles of life. The body is the soul's house in which it dwells, and still shall dwell, till death dissolve it. It is the soul's garment, that clothes and covers it. It hath worn this garment of flesh from the beginning, and is to wear it still, till sickness hath brought it to sags, and death stript it from the soul.

It is the tool and instrument by which it doth all its works, whilst it is in this state of composition; and therefore the soul cannot but love it fervently. No man ever yet hated his own flesh, but nouriseth and cheriseth it.

§ 2. The case of standing betwixt the soul and body, the wisdom or folly of the soul is plainly discovered in its way and manner of governing the body; as the love and prudence of a husband is in the government of his wife, or the master in ordering the affairs of his house; or the neat breeding of a man, in the comely wearing of his garments; or the skill and care of an artificer, in the brightness, keeness, and sharpness of his tools.

Some husbands give evidence to the world of their governing prudence and ability, in such an allowance of liberty to their wives, as the laws of conjugal love require, and their estates and incomes will conveniently bear, and no more; and in restraining their extravagancies, as well as by encouraging their virtuous courses, in keeping back no due encouragement to virtue, nor giving the least encouragement unto vice.

A well-bred man, that carries with him a becoming sense of his quality, and the decorum he ought accordingly to observe, will wear his garments decently, and becoming his rank; they shall be sure to be neat and clean, and fit fit and comely upon his body. He abhors to wear a garment tumbled in the mire, and go like a beast, without regard to his reputation.

No prudent owner and governor of an house, will let the rain drop through the roof, nor choak up the passage to his door with a nasty dunghill. His house within shall be neat, and not nafty: the rooms clean and comely: and yet abhors to suffer superfluous ornaments, and costly vanities, to swallow up his estate that should maintain it, and bring bailiffs (more odious than a dunghill) to his very doors.

The curious artificer, neither grinds away the substance of his instruments to make them bright and glittering, and set an hedge too fine to hold one minute’s use; nor yet suffers them to be thrown aside in some neglected corner, where rust and flaws shall render them utterly useless, or make him blush at the botches such instruments will cause in his work.

The prudent husbandman will neither break the heart of his ground for want of rest and compost, nor yet overload it with dressings which brings forth nothing but rank and uselesse weeds; he will in a fit season turn in a stream of water to his meadows, like a cordial-draught to fainting spirits; but will not drown it, and rot the very roots of his grans, by letting in too much, or by suffering it to lie under water too long.
He will feed his horse high enough to perform his journey, and carry him through the mire; but will not feed him to such a height, that the rider shall neither be able to sit, nor command him.

In all these cases, the common prudence of every man directs him to that just mediocrity, wherein both his honour and profit do apparently lie. And what we say in such common cases and concerns as these, is as true, and much more excellent in the soul's prudent government of its own body, unto which it was espoused in the womb, and is its dear and constant partner, both in the present and future good or evil. It is the garment it wears, the instrument it useth, and the shield it cultivates. It must neither deny the body those necessary supports and comforts which God and nature allow it, nor yet surfeit and overcharge it with more than it is able to bear. In either of these extremes, the extreme folly of the soul is discovered.

§ 3. Now the dethroning of reason, and frequent oppressions of nature, by the practice of drunkenness, is the highest exaltation of folly in the soul of man; plainly manifesting its ignorance and inability to order and govern the body, to which it is married by a vital union.

Here is a foolish soul by misgovernment, dishonouring and destroying its vigorous and comely body, under a pretence of love and kindness to it. We account it one of the greatest outward infelicities in this world, incident to a discreet and virtuous woman, to be headed and governed by a foppish fool, neither able to govern himself, or her, nor give a reason of his own actions or commands. A man whose folly shall make her blush in all sober companies he comes into, and forces her upon such a course of life as she perfectly abhors, and will bring speedy ruin upon her; all men pity such a case as this. And this is the very case of many a comely, vigorous body.

Only such a woman hath two reliefs under her bondage, which the body of a drunkard wants. She can sometimes withdraw and retire from his company, and enjoy the relief of her solitude, which the wretched body of a drunkard cannot do till death; but is tied day and night to the company of its foolish soul, which is frequently abusing it, and imposing upon it.

Besides, such a woman may haply overlive her vicious abusive husband, and spend many a comfortable year in the world with a more discreet, sober and religious partner of her life, whose sobriety, discretion, piety, and love, shall make full compensation for all those years of misery and slavery she endured before. But the case before us admits no such relief: for as long as ever the body lives and breathes, the soul is, and must be with it, and in it. And though death will for a time separate and divorce them, yet the body's second marriage at the resurrection, can be with no other but the same soul which oppressed and ruined it in this world. And this second marriage will be far worse than the first; for though it were the fottish soul's slave and drudge in this world, and suffered many a sickness, shame, and loss by its folly; yet in the world to come, it must be its partner and companion in hell-torments for evermore, inasmuch as it was the instrument the soul used in most of those sins committed by it in this world. And this is the case of all bodies married to, and governed by souls that have neither reason nor religion enough prudently and soberly to order and govern their own bodies.

§ 4. Sad and doleful, therefore, are the lamentations and complaints of the bodies of drunkards, against the folly and tyranny of their souls; and as just as sad. Let me here therefore act the part of an advocate for your bodies, which is a part of yourselves, and to which, by the law of nature, you owe love, care, and honour; or, rather by a prosopopoeia, let me bring in the body sighing out its own complaints in the ears of its own soul, and thus bemoaning itself to it.

"Oh, my soul! I have cause to lament the day that ever I was married to such a sottish fool as thou art, who are destitute both of wisdom and love to rule and govern me. I may justly resume Job's lamentation upon thy account, and say with him: "Let the day perish wherein I was born, and the night wherein it was said, there is a man-child conceived. Why died I not from the womb? Why did I not give up the ghost when I came out of the belly? For now should I have lien still, and been quiet, I should have slept; then had I been at rest."

"I have been a perfect slave and drudge to thy unreasonable lusts and impositions. I was once an active, vigorous, comely body, and hadst thou been wise and sober, I had been happy. But thou hast been a cruel tyrant to me, oppressing and loading me with more than I was able to stand under. Thou hast plunged me many times into those puddles of excess, wherein thou hast drowned thy own reason, and my health. My well-mixed beauty is now turned into the colour of flaming fire; my hands and legs shake, my tongue falters, my natural crasis and temperament is destroyed. Thou hast made me miserable in this world, and intendest to make me more wretched in the world to come.
The reasonableness of Personal Reformation. 375

Sober nature gave me my stint and measure. I knew when it was enough, and gave thee sufficient items and intimations (amidst thy foolish frolics), that I could neither with honour or safety bear one glass more. But thou wast deaf to all my moans, and shewedst more mercy to thy horse than me. Sick or well, able or unable, live or die, I must take in the full number of cups and bottles thou enjoinedst me to take. Like another Pharaoh, thou hast required of me the full tale, whether I had strength to perform it or no. Yea, like another devil, thou hast sometimes cast me into fiery fevers, and watery dropsies; and will next cast me, if thou continue this course, into hell-fire itself.

Other souls have set thee a better pattern in their more sober and prudent government of their bodies. They give their bodies the true pleasure of the creature, by keeping them to that happy mediocrity in which it consists. They devote their bodies to the service of God; thou hast devoted me to the immediate service of the devil. A majestic beauty sits upon their faces; fottishness and folly upon mine. Their knees are daily bowed in prayer to God; mine shake and tremble in the service of the devil. They enjoy pure and sanctified pleasures every day; but I am denied the sober pleasures of a beast. Their bodies will be happy with their souls in the world to come; but I must suffer eternally with thee, and for thee. Thou hast both consumed me, and thy estate given to support me; and now I am like to suffer as much by want, as I have done by excess; and all this thro' thy misgovernment. These feet (if thou hadst pleased to command them) would as readily have carried thee to thy closet, or the assemblies of God's people, as to an ale-house or tavern. These fingers would have served to open and turn the bleffed pages, which contain the oracles of God, as to cog a dye, or have shuffled and dealt a pack of cards. This tongue might have been melodiously employed in singing the praises of God among his people, as well as in swearing, roaring, and singing among drunken sots and fools, if thou hadst been endued with governing wisdom.

Thou knowest I could do nothing without thee. Thou haft a despotical power over all my members. They are at thy beck, and thou at the devil's. Better had it been for me, had I been the body of a contemptible worm or fly, than a body animated and governed by such a fottish soul as thou art,
The reasonableness of Personal Reformation.

And now, my soul, what hast thou to say for thyself? What tolerable account canst thou give to God or me, of these thy vile abuses of both?

§ 5. Now let us hear what the soul of the drunkard hath to plead, in its own excuse and defence, for all his wrongs against God, mischief to itself, ruin to his health, name, and estate. They have various excuses, though not one sound or rational one among them all. Such as they are, let them be tried by the rule of reason, if any reason be yet left in them, who daily dethrone it by this worse than brutish practice.

That which they say for themselves, is this:

1. That their bodies are strongly constituted, more capacious to receive, and able to bear greater quantities of wine and strong-drink, than others are; and therefore, why should they not drink down, and glory over those that vie with them?

2. Others say, they would not take the course they do, but that when they are sober and solitary, they are so pressed with the thoughts of their debts and incumbrances in the world, that they are upon a perfect rack, and they find nothing like good-fellowship in a tavern or ale-house, so effectually relieving against the cares and anxieties of their minds.

3. Some will tell us, they are drawn into it by the snare of pleasure; nothing being so grateful to their palate, as their full load of generous wine, or strong drink. And seeing it is so pleasant and delightful to them, why should they deny and abridge themselves of their pleasures?

4. Others will profess, they had never taken this course, which they find upon many accounts pernicious to them; but that they are not able in civility to deny their intimate friends and companions, especially such with whom they have concerns in trade and business; and they must drink as they do, or suffer loss in their trade; and beside that, be stigmatized for fanatics.

5. They will also say, they are obliged in point of loyalty, to pledge him that consecrates (as they catechetically call it) the first glass to the king, or persons of quality and honour.

6. And, lastly, Some will tell us, they have plentiful estates, that will bear such expenses; and since their pockets are full, why should not their heads and stomachs be so too?

Besides these six apologies for drunkenness, nothing falls into my imagination, pleasurable for this sin. We will weigh these that are pleaded, in the common balance of the reason of mankind, and try the validity of them one by one. And for

Excuse I. And, first, To what you say of the capacities of
The reasonableness of Personal Reformation.

Your bodies, strength and ability of your constitutions, to receive and bear greater quantities of wine and strong drink, than others can; and therefore, why should you not give proof of it, when challenged, and get reputation to yourselves, by drinking down, and glorying over such a vice with you?

To this I reply three things, which must be laid in the counter-balance; and let the balance be held in the upright hand of your own reason.

1. A strong and vigorous constitution will be readily acknowledged to be so great an external blessing and mercy, that no man of sound intellects ought to do any thing to destroy it; but is obliged to use all proper methods for the preservation of it. If therefore temperance shall be found to preserve it, and excess to impair and destroy it; let your own reason judge, which of these two courses you are obliged to take. Consult either the best physicians, or your own and other mens experience; and they will tell you, That apoplexies, palsies, gout, and innumerable other diseases are bred by such excesses, in the soundest and strongest constitutions, and death itself hastened by such intemperate courses; whereas temperance and sobriety might have made your lives more comfortable and durable. As strong as you are, frequent drunkenness will bring Cain's curse upon your vigorous bodies, and make you go shaking and trembling (as he did) about the world.

2. Let it be demanded of your own reason, whether it do really judge that God bestowed more strength and vigour upon your bodies, than he hath upon others, to arm a stronger enemy, than others are; to fight more vigorously against him, than others do, or can do? Or, whether it were not designed by him for greater use and service to his glory in the world, than others of his people (how willing soever they be) can do, for want of that strength you have? I am confident, no man of sound intellects will dare to assert the former, or deny the latter.

3. And, lastly; For your glorying in drinking down, and conquering others; you will certainly put your own reason to a blush, by offering such a plea as this to it. You are not yet arrived to impudence enough, to deny drunkenness to be a sin; and your reason is yet found enough, easily and naturally to infer, that by how much the more any man exceeds and goes beyond others in sin, by so much the greater sinner that man is.

And as for the honour and glory you talk of, in exceeding...
378 The reasonableness of Personal Reformation.

others in your abilities to drink; your reason will quickly make you ashamed of that glory; and prove, as well as assert it to be a mark of basest infamy.

Do you think, that Lombard was really honoured, or stigmatized, whom Tiberius Caesar dubbed a knight, for drinking off three gallons of wine at one draught, and sirnamed him Triconius, that is to say, the three gallon knight, which story Pliny, in his Natural History, relates to the perpetual infamy of them both? Or think you, it added to the glory of Tiberius himself, who knighted this three gallon (not thrice gallant) knight, to have his name changed among the people, from Tiberius into Biberius; as afterward they did the name of that monster Nero, into Mero?

Gentlemen, I appeal to your own reason, if the vast continent you have within you for wine and strong drink, be really your honour; whether the butt or hoghead, whence you have it, be not, for the same reason, much more honourable than you? Your reason will plainly give the conclusion.

But, oh! consider not only what reason faith, but what God, the fountain of that reason, faith in Isa. v. 22. “Wo to them that are mighty to drink wine, and men of strength to mingle strong drink.” Methinks it should make you sit in as little ease upon the tavern, or ale-house bench, as that court parasite fat at a rich banquet furnished with variety of dainties, and all sorts of generous wine; over whose head, Dionysius caused an heavy sword to be hanged, with the point downward, by a single hair every moment ready to drop perpendicularly upon it.

Excuse II. As for those that throw themselves into these excesses, on purpose to delude those anxious cares and thoughts, which cruciate and oppress them, whenever they are sober and solitary: I shall only propound three plain questions to the small remainders of reason in them, which yet I presume sufficient to determine rightly upon them.

Quest. 1. Whether they think that which greatly increaseth want and poverty, be a rational cure and proper remedy of it? And whether a jar of oil be not as fit to quench a flame, as tavern and ale-house scores and reckonings are to buoy up a sinking trade, and keep bailiffs from mens doors? Certainly none but a sottish fool can think it to be otherwise. Your own improvidence, or God's afflictive providence, have brought you into other mens books; and certainly you cannot think, if you be in your wits, that chamberlains bills for so many bottles of wine, and flaggons of beer, will be accepted by your creditors for good bills, to quit your scores with them. Were you sober, frugal, and industrious, you would put yourselves thereby into a better way to obtain a blessing from God, and respects and forbearance from men, than in the course you now take.

Quest. 2. Nor can you, without manifest impudence, pro-pound such a question as this to your own reason, whether the addition of injustice to profaneness, be a rational plea or excuse for it? And is not that the very case here? Whose money is that you so lavishly and prodigally waste, out of your confuming estates? It is either your creditors, or the small remains of your own. Whether the one or the other, methinks that wine and drink should not go down very pleasantly, which must be mingled with manifest injustice, or with the tears, and (in a sense) the blood of your wives and children. If your reasons can allow these things for lawful excuses, then you are excused, else self-condemned.

Quest. 3. I shall trouble your reason with the decision but of one question more, and it is briefly and plainly this:

Whether the addition of far greater troubles, or causes of troubles to the inner man, be a proper expedient to alleviate and ease the loads and burdens of your outward troubles already grown almost too heavy for you to bear.

I dare venture all that I am worth, upon sound reason's side, that it will never allow, or comprobate such an absurdity, as the affirmative part of this question draws along with it.

Believe it, sirs, all the outward necessities, cares and fears, which now oppress you upon the score of worldly affairs, (which frame not to your minds) are much more tolerable, and comparatively light and easy, to the stings, wounds, and lashes of a guilty conscience: But when all these inward troubles shall be superadded to your outward troubles, they will,
in conjunction, make a burden too heavy for man to bear.

Whatever cares or troubles providence involves any good man in, in the honest and painful pursuit of his civil calling, he may in a great measure relieve his burdened spirit under them, by the comfortable testimony of his own conscience, and his free addresses to God in prayer. These will sweetly support him under his other entanglements and perplexities in the world. But the course you take, does not only strike away these props from under your minds; but doubles and

B b b 2
The reasonableness of Personal Reformation.

trebles the burden upon them. Were men but once acquisitely with that relief and cheeriness of spirit, which a good conscience, and a spiritual address to God in prayer, afford in the midst of troubles, they would run to their closets, rather than to taverns and ale-houses, to divert and cure their troubles. I leave it therefore before your own reason to consider, what weight or validity there is in this second excuse for drunkenness.

Excuse III. Others plead they are drawn into this sin by pleasure and delight, whose charms are too strong for them to resist.

In this, as in all the former, I resolve to make you your own judges. Give me leave but to state the questions right, and let your own reason freely determine them. And what fairer dealing can men that exercise reason expect? And let the first question be this:

Quest. I. Whether the pleasures of temperance do not far excel those of intemperance? If they do, then this your plea is vain and irrational: For you foolishly chuse a lesser pleasure, and refuse a greater and sweeter one. And that you do so in this case, no wise man can deny or doubt.

For temperate drinking refrethes the body, and no way burdens it, as excessive drinking doth: And that which burdens nature, can never be equally pleasant with that, which yields nothing but due refreshment. Temperance doth not vitiate; but raiseth the pure and ordinate appetite of nature to its just pitch and height; in which temper, and at which height, it is most capable of the sweetest pleasure from the creature. As the strings of a lute give us the sweetest and most delicious notes, when they are not let down too low, but are all fixed at their due height.

Temperance gives us the most pleasing enjoyment of the good things of this life, still leaving the mind free, and fit for the more spiritual and sweet enjoyments of a better and more excellent life; which excess never did nor can do.

Moreover, temperance maintains the manly grace and majesty of the countenance, but excess totally disguises it. It draws the lines of drunkards faces into a form much like those ridiculous Dutch pictures, which some set upon their chimney-pieces, to move laughter in those that behold them.

Now, by the vote of universal reason, that pleasure which refrethes the body, but no way burdens it, which raises the ordinate and unvitiated appetites of nature, to its just pitch and due height, which gives nature the sweetest refreshment, leaving it always fitter and fitter for higher and better pleasures, which maintains the manly grace and majesty of the countenance, and makes not a wise man look like a fool or an antic, must needs be better than the lower and flatter pleasures of a burdened body, and vitiated palate, which draw after them to great a train of present mischiefs (which temperance avoids), besides far heavier, and more durable ones in the life to come.

Quest. 2. But if the present pleasures of temperance were in some respect inferior to those of excess, (which I have proved they neither are, nor can be); I demand, in the second place, whether the loss of your honour and health, your time and estate, your present peace and future hopes, do not make such sensitive pleasures base and inferior, compared with those of temperance and sobriety? Do you, in good earnest, think a glass or two above what satisfies and refreshes nature, can recompense for all that shame, sickness, poverty, and guilt that follows it? If you think so, sin hath turned you into brutes, and made you utterly uncapable of all arguments and manly considerations, to reduce and recover you.

Excuse IV. You say, you would not haunt taverns and alehouses as you do, but that you are drawn in by company and business, which you cannot well resist or avoid, and should you do so, it would be to your loss; and besides that, you should be branded for fanatics.

I deny not, but there is a snare in vain company; yet give me leave to propound a few plain and easy questions to your reason.

Quest. 1. Why must the importunity of good fellows (as you call them) be an irresistible temptation to you, and deprive you of all power to deny them, whilst you discern the snares and mischiefs they draw you into? This seems to be a thing unaccountable to reason. Suppose you were allowed to spend the longest summer's day in the highest gratifications of all your senses together, or successively one after another, upon condition that you would endure the torments of the rack till that day twelvemonth came about again; do you think the importunity of all your intimates in the world, would prevail with you to accept the pleasures of a day under such a condition as this? And yet what are the torments of a year upon the rack, to the torments of hell for ever and ever? Or to come lower: Suppose one of those lewd companions not worth a great, if every man had his own, should request you to lend him an hundred pound upon his own security, could you find
The reasonableness of Personal Reformation.

No power (think you) to deny him, especially if the loss of that hundred pound would certainly ruin you? If you would deny him (as I doubt not but in such a case you would) tell me then, why you should not find power to deny him, when he asks a far greater matter than an hundred pound, even the peace, purity, and safety of your souls, as well as the health of your bodies, and honour of your names? Why then should you be so easy and flexible when they ask the latter, and so stiff and unpersuadable to the former?

Ques. 2. You say, you have business, and concerns in trade, to dispatch in such places and companies, and this draws you into the snares of excess. I will not deny but men may lawfully transact their business in such places, and there may be a conveniency, and sometimes a necessity for it: But that is not the case. The question referred to the determination of your reason, is this, Why drunkenness must accompany business? And whether a man be not more fit to transact his business, and drive bargains of the greatest value, whilst his body, and mind are cool, sober, and temperate, than when his reason is beclouded and depoed by drunkenness? How many men have undone themselves, their wives and children, by drunken bargains?

Besides, I must tell you, that in all such drunken meetings, the devil comes to drive his bargain with you, as well as your other customers. He bids for your souls, and offers you such pleasures as you there find in exchange for them, and is content to make your dying day the time of your delivering them into his possession. How do you like such trading as this, gentlemen?

Ques. 3. You say, should you refuse to accompany them, and do as they do, you should be branded for fanatics. I would fain know, whether such a plea for drunkenness as this, doth not justly cast the greatest reproach of fanaticism upon yourselves, and set a mark of true honour upon those men whom the world unjustly stigmatizes with that title? Gentlemen, I do assure you, the fanatics (as you call them) have reason to thank you for the honour and justice you have done them, in acknowledging them to be none of the members of your hellish society, but persons of a more sober and honourable character. And I appeal to your reason, whether it would not be more for your honour, to wear the unjust title of a fanatic, than the just cenfure of a drunken sot.

Excuse V. You say, you are obliged in point of loyalty
The reasonableness of Personal Reformation.

383
to pledge him that consecrates the first glass to the health of the king, or any person of eminency. I leave it still to your reason to be judge,

1. Whether the king have cause to account the manifest breach of the laws by which he governs, to be a signal expression of his subjects loyalty to him? Is not his royal authority, his honour and safety in his laws? And is he not finely honoured, think you, by such drunken loyalty as this? Gentlemen, you have a king over you of sounder intellects, and more exemplary temperance and sobriety than to be thus imposed upon.

2. Can you think he reckons his health in the least degree advanced or secured by the ruin and subversion of his subjects health? No, no; did the genteel drunkards in England enquire, they would quickly find, it would more please him if they would consult their own health better, and pray for his more sincerely and fervently than they do.

Excise VI. Your last excuse is, that you have plentiful estates that will bear it; and since your pockets are full, why should your heads or stomachs be empty.

Quest. The only question I would here state, and leave your own reason to determine, is this, whether you think the experience of the redundancy and over-plus of your estates in excess and drunkenness, be the very end and design God aimed at, in bestowing those things with such a bountiful hand upon you? And whether the expence of it in this way, will please him as well, as if you clothed the naked, and fed the hungry with it, and brought the blessings of them that are ready to perish, upon you and your families? Ah, gentlemen, you must come to a day of reckoning. Your reasons and consciences can never tell you, you can make up as comfortable an account with God, by setting down so many hundred pounds in wine and strong drink, more than was necessary or beneficial: Item, So many thousand pounds lost in play: So much upon whores; as if you set down so much to seed and cloath the naked and hungry. So that all your excuses for this sin are baffled by your own reason; and it was easy to conclude, that such a traitor to reason as drunkenness is, which hath so often dethroned it, could not possibly receive a more favourable judgment and sentence than this now given upon it.

Let all drunkards henceforth consider, what a voluntary madness the sin of drunkenness is, how it unmans them, and sets of Personal Reformation.

them below the very brutes. A grave * father calls it rightly,

"A distemper of the head, a subversion of the senses, a tempest in the tongue, the storm of the body, the shipwreck of virtue, the loss of time, a wilful madness, a pleasant evil, a sugared poison, a sweet sin, which he that hath, hath not himself; and he that commits it, doth not only commit sin, but himself is altogether sin."

It is a sin at which the most sober Heathens blushed. The polity of the Spartans was more commendable than their piety in making men drunk, that their children might gaze upon them as a monster, and be scared for ever from such an horrid practice. He that is mastered by drunkenness, can never be master of his own counsels. Both reason and religion condemn this course. Make a pause therefore where you are, and rather throw that wine or beer upon the ground; which else will cast thy body upon the ground, and thy soul and body into hell.

C H A P. V.

Containing the result, and issue of the third consultation with reason, upon the case of uncleanness; and the true report of the determination of every man's reason, with respect thereunto.

§ 1. THE bountiful and indulgent God hath made more abundant provision for the pleasure and delight of rational, than of brutal beings: And his wise and righteous laws order and limit their pleasures to their great advantage; his allowance under those restrictions being large and full enough. Both reason and experience assure us, that the truest pleasures are most freely and honourably to be enjoyed within the pale and boundary of his laws; and that there are none fit for the enjoyment of a man or Christian, to be found without, or beyond them.

That prudent owner provides best for his cattle, who put

* Turbatio capitis, subversio sensus, tempestat lingua, procella corporis, naufragium virtutis, amissio temporis, insania voluntaria, blandae daemon, dulce venenum, suave peccatum, quam qui habet, seipsum non habet, quam qui facit, peccatum non tantum facit, sed ipse totum est peccatum.
The reasonableness of Personal Reformation.

them into inclosed fragrant fields, where they have plenty of proper and pleasant food, sweet and pure springs of water, the pleasant covert of shady trees, and all that is either necessary or convenient for them; altho' those fields be so inclosed within pales or walls, that they cannot stray without those boundaries, into other men's grounds, to be by them impounded, and brought back lank, tired, and dirty, to their owner; or by straying into wastes and wildernesses, fall a prey (as stragglers use to do) to wolves and lions.

God envies not any true, rational, and proper pleasure to men or women; when he bounds them in by his command, within the allowance whereof, sufficient provision is made for the benefit and delight of propagation. And though it be all men's duty to tremble at the awful solemnity, yet it would be any man's sin to repine and murmur at the strictness and severity of his command, delivered with thunder and lightning from mount Sinai, Thou shalt not commit adultery. Man's honourable liberty, and God's wise and just restraint and limitation thereof, are both set together before our eyes, in that one scripture, Heb. xiii. 4. "Marriage is honourable in all, and the bed undefiled; but whoremongers and adulterers God will judge." Here is a liberal allowance granted, and a severe punishment threatened for the inordinacies and exorbitancies of boundless and ungovernable lusts. God will judge with temporal judgments in this world; and upon impenitent persistent, with eternal judgments in the world to come.

§ 2. Such is the corruption of man's nature by the fall, that it hates inclosures, restraints, and limitations. These things which were intended to regulate, serve only to sharpen and enrage their sensuous appetite. No fruit so sweet to corrupt nature, as forbidden fruit. Nihil omninum semper, cupimusque negata. The very restraint of evil, makes it look like a pleasant and desirable good. Sons of Belial can endure no yoke of restraint. There is a great truth in that observation of the divine Herbert, That if God had laid all common, man himself would have been the incloser. For his reason and experience would have plainly informed him of the great and manifold advantages of distinction and propriety. How many quarrels and barbarous murders have been occasioned by whores! which by keeping within God's bounds and rules, had been both honestly and honourably prevented.

Were men left to that liberty brutes are, to scatter their lusts promiscuously, fathers would not know their own children, Vol. VIII.
The reasonableness of Personal Reformation.

nor children their fathers; whereby both their duties and comforts would be prescinded together. Such mischiefs as these, would make men glad of that inclosure, which the laws of God have made for them. But behold with admiration the perverse wickedness of corrupt nature, manifested in this, that because God hath inclosed and secured their relations to them by his laws, (which inclosure is every way to their advantage); yet this makes their lusts the more head-strong and outrageous, and they cannot take that comfort in their own, because their own, that they think to find in another's, because another's.

Remarkable to this purpose is that relation of Mr. Firming's, which he received from his near relation, who was minister to the company of English merchants in Prussia. The confoul, or governor of that company, being a married man, and that to a very proper and comely woman, was yet enslaved to others, not to be compared with his own wife for comeliness. This minister dealt with him about it. One argument he urged, was this: That of all men he had the least temptation, having a wife so comely, that few women were like her. He answered, yea, were she not my wife, I could love her. Had she been his whore, he could have loved her; he thought none like her; but because she was his wife, hedged in by God, he cared not for her. O what hearts have men, that they should ever think that to be best for them which is most crost to God! Why should stolen waters be sweeter than those of our own fountains?

§ 3. God's choice must needs be far better for us, than our own. Ordinate and lawful pleasures and enjoyments, are far better and sweeter, than exorbitant and forbidden ones. And the reason is evident and undeniable: For amongst all the operations of the mind, its reflex acts are the acts that best realize pleasure. And indeed, without self-reflection, a man cannot tell whether he delights or no. All sense of pleasure implies some reflection of the mind: And those pleasures of a man must needs be the sweetest, which afford the sweetest reflections upon them afterward; and those the basest pleasures, which are accompanied and followed with present regret, or the stinging and cutting reflections of the conscience upon them afterwards.

1. Lawful and ordinate enjoyments, are as honey without the sting. Forbidden pleasures, are embittered and extinguished by these regrets and reflections of the conscience. They are like those pleasant fruits, which the Spainiards found in
The reasonableness of Personal Reformation.

The Indies, which were sweet to the taste, but so environed, and armed on every side with dangerous briars and thorns, that they tore not only their cloaths off their backs, but the skin off their flesh, to come at them; and therefore they called them comfits in hell. And such are all forbidden, and unlawful pleasures.

A merchant (faith the fore-named author) dining with the friars at Dantzick, his entertainment was very noble. After he had dined, and seen all, the merchant fell to commending their pleasant life. 'Yea, said one of the friars to him, we live gallantly indeed, if we had any body to go to hell for us when we die.' You see what mingles with mens sensual and sinful lusts.

2. Your honour is secured, by keeping within God's bounds and limits: Marriage is honourable in all. Here guilt can neither wrong your consciences, nor infamy your reputations. Fornicators and adulterers go up and down the world, as men burnt in the hand: Their conscience lathes them within; and men point at them abroad. They are a terror to themselves, and a scorn to men.

3. The health of the body is secured by chaste and regular enjoyments, but exposed to destruction the other way. God hath plagued the inordinacy of mens lusts, with most strange and horrid diseases. That Morbus Gallicus, Sudor Anglicus, and Plica Polonica, were judgments sent immediately by God's own hand, as the witnesses of his high displeasure, against the bold and daring contemners of his sacred and awful command. Thus, as Prov. v. 11. "They mourn at last, when their flesh and body are consumed." Other sins are committed in the body; but this against it, as well as in it.

4. The blast and waste of our estates (which is the usual consequence of uncleanness) is prevented and avoided, by keeping within God's rules. The truth of what the scripture tells us, Prov. x. 5. is often exemplified before our eyes; that, "by reasof a whorish woman, a man is brought to a mor-" fel of bread." Adultery gives a man rags for his livery; it lodgeth his substantce in the house of strangers, and entails wants and curses on him and his.

5. In a word, continence, or lawful marriage, exposes not the soul to the eternal wrath of God, as uncleanness doth; 1 Cor. vi. 9, 10. This sin does not only shut a man out of his † Real Christian p. 63.

own house, and the hearts of good men, but out of heaven itself, without thorough repentance and reformation.

§ 4. The case standing thus; it is matter of just admiration, how the sin of uncleanness should grow so epidemical and common as it doth, seeing such as live in this filthy course, must needs counter-act and oppose their own reason and in-teresst together. For they forfake God's way, which gives them as much liberty as can be reasonably desired; and cast themselves into a course of life, clogged with all manner of temporal and eternal miseries, of soul and body, honour and estate.

The plain rule and dictate of common reason, which I laid down before, being applied to this particular case, manifestly condemns it. For seeing honesty and chastity comprize the true pleasure, profit, and honour of the whole man; are more congruous to human nature, and preservative of it; it ought, therefore, to be preferred in the estimation and choice of all men, to unlawful adulterous pleasures, which (for the reasons above) are inferior in themselves to chaste, conjugal enjoyments; and besides that, are attended and followed with such a train of present and future miseries, destructive to the whole man.

And yet for all this, to the amazement of all serious obserers, never was any age more infamous for this sin, than the present age is; and that under the clear shining light of the gospel,

What the special causes and inducements, to the overflowing and abounding of this sin, are in the present age, will be well worth the enquiring and sifting at this time,

§ 5. Inducement 1.

It is highly probable, the influencing examples of great men, have had no small hand in the spreading of this abominable and crying sin, amongst all inferior ranks and orders of men.

Great men's ill examples, like a bag of poison in the fountain, corrupt and infect multitudes. The vulgar think they are privileged, or, at the least, very much excused, when they do but follow the precedents and examples of great and eminent persons.

But this will be found a weak and foolish plea, for uncleanness; which will never be able to endure the test of your own reason: For the inbred notions of a God, and of a future life of retribution, being so firmly sealed and engraven upon human nature, they can never be utterly eradicated; your own reason will argue from those inbred notions in this manner, and how you will be able to reject the argument, and escape conviction and self-condemnation, quite surmounts my imagination, whatever it do yours. And thus it will dispute, and dilemma you, do what you can.

That God, before whom greater and lesser, honourable and baser sinners shall appear in judgment, will be either partial or impartial, in his judgments upon them. There is, or there is not respect of persons with him. If there be, (which both his nature and word utterly deny;) then those great and honourable adulterers, or fornicators, whose examples you follow, may haply be excused for their eminency and honour's fake, but you, that have no such eminency and honour in the world, as they have, must be condemned, though you thought to escape as well as they.

But if there be no partiality, or respect of persons with God, (as most assuredly there is none), then both greater and lesser, honourable and baser adulterers, must be condemned together, to the same common and intolerable misery.

So that to take any (though the least) encouragement to sin, from the precedents and examples of great ones, is a most senseless and irrational thing, utterly unworthy of one that believeth there is a just and impartial God; and he is worse than a devil, that believes it not: For the devils themselves believe and tremble.

§ 6. Inducement 2.

But others would persuade us, they are drawn into this sin by a kind of inevitable necessity, they being neither able to contain, nor marry.

They are not yet arrived to an estate sufficient to maintain a family with reputation: But when they have gotten enough by trade, or by the fall of their paternal estates, to live in equal reputation with their neighbours; then they design to alter their course of life, and abandon these follies.

But, reader, if this be thy plea for uncleanness, thou shalt have as fair a trial, for a foul fact, as thine own heart can desire: be still thine own judge; and let thine own reason give a fair answer to these three pertinent questions.

Quest. 1. Whether whoredom be as likely and promising a way to engage God’s blessing upon your trades and employments, as continence or conjugal chastity are? That is to say plainly, Whether obedience and disobedience to the law of God, be all one, and please him alike? You know, your success in business it is not in your own hand, it is God that giveth thee power to get wealth: His blessing maketh rich.
The reasonableness of Personal Reformation.

And is sin as likely a way to engage his blessing, as duty and obedience is? I am confident, your own reason will never give it.

Object. If you say, such persons prosper in the world as well as others, for ought you see.

Sol. The contrary is evident in the common observation of mankind: By reason of whoredom, multitudes are brought to a piece of bread. And though God suffer some unclean persons to prosper in the world; yet chastity with poverty, is infinitely preferable to such accursed prosperity.

Quest. 2. Whether the course of sin you are now driving and accustoming yourselves to, will not, in all probability, so infatuate and bewitch you, that when you come into a married estate, you shall still be under the power of this sin; and, to ruin the person you marry, as well as yourself? If the word of God signify any thing with you, it signifieth this; That there is a witchcraft in whoredom; and, comparatively speaking, "None that go to her return again, neither take they hold of the paths of life;" Prov. ii. 18, 19.

Object. If to invalidate this testimony, you shall say that he that spake this, did himself go after strange women.

Sol. It is true, he did so. But then withal, you must remember, that he hath warned you by his own sad experience, that you never follow him in those his footsteps: Eccles. vii. 26. "I find (faith he) more bitter than death, the woman whose heart is snares and nets, and her hands as bands. Whoso pleaseth God, shall escape from her; but the sinner shall be taken by her."

Quest. 3. And, lastly, I demand of your reason, whether it can, or will, allow any place to this plea of necessity; before you have tried and used all God’s appointed remedies, which are sufficient to prevent that necessity you plead?

There are lawful remedies enough, sufficient, with God’s blessing, to keep you from such a necessity to sin; such as temperance, and more abstemiousness in meats and drinks; avoiding lascivious books, play-houses, and filthy company; laborious diligence in your lawful callings, and fervent prayer, for mortifying and preventing grace: And if temptations shall stir amidst all these preventives; then casting yourselves upon the directions and supply of providence, in the honourable estate of marriage. Never plead necessity, whilst all these preventives might, but have not been used.
§ 7. Inducement 3.

Others plead the absence of their lawful remedies, and presence of tempting objects. This is the case of our soldiers and seamen. But though this be the most colourable pretence of all the rest, yet your own reason and conscience will, even in this case, so dilemma and non-plus you, that if you will adventure upon the sin, you shall never have their leave and consent with you: For they have a special and peculiar consideration of you, as persons more eminently and immediately exposed to the dangers of death than other men. And thus (would you but give them a fair hearing) they will expostulate and reason out the matter with you.

Either thou shalt escape, or not escape, the hazard of this voyage, or battle. If thou fall (as to be sure many will) will this be an honourable, safe, and comfortable close, and winding up of thy life? What, from a whore to thy grave! God forbid. From burning lusts, to everlasting burnings! Better thou hadst never been born.

Or if thou do escape, and return again to thy family; how canst thou look her in the face, with whom thou hast so basely broken thy marriage-vow and covenant? Whatever else thou bring home with thee, to be sure thou shalt bring home guilt with thee, a blot never to be wiped away.

Object. If you say, you are not such fools to publish your own shame; you will follow Caesar's advice to the young adulterer, Si non caste, tamen caute, If I act not chastly, I will act cautiously.

Sol. Your reason and conscience will both deride the weakness and folly of this pretence: For they both very well know, no man sins so secretly, but he sins before two infallible witnesses, viz. God, and his own conscience; and that the last, and least of these, is more than a thousand witnesses. That God usually detects it in this world, carry it as closely as you will; but to be sure, it shall be published as upon the house-top, before men and angels in the great day.

Another inducement to this sin, (and the last I shall mention), is the commonness of it, which abates the shame of it.

What need they trouble themselves so much, or be so thy of that which is practised by thousands, which is so frequently acted in every place, and little made of it?

But if either your reason or conscience will admit this plea for good and lawful, the devil hath utterly blinded or infatuated the one or other; as will evidently appear by the following reasons. For,
Reason 1. If the thing be evil, (as you cannot deny but it is) then, by how much the commoner, by so much the worse it must needs be. Indeed, if a thing be good, by how much the commoner, so much the better: but to attribute this essential property of good unto evil, is to confound and destroy the difference between them, and make good and evil both alike.

Reason 2. If the commonness of uncleanness will excuse you, it will more excuse all others that shall commit this sin after you: and still by how much more the numbers of adulterers and fornicators are increased, still the less scruple men need make to commit it; and so the whole community shall in a little time be so infected and defiled, that Christian kingdoms shall quickly become like Sodom, and God provoked to deal with them, as he did by that wretched city.

Reason 3. If the commonness of the sin be an excuse and plea for it; suppose the roads should be more infested than they are with highwaymen, so that every month you should see whole cart-loads of them drawn to Tyburn; would your reason infer from thence, that because hanging is grown so common, you need not scruple so much as you were wont to do, to take a purse, or pistol an honest innocent traveller upon the road?

Object. If you shall say, uncleanness is not so costly a sin as robbery is: there is a great deal of difference between Tyburn, and a whore-house punishment.

Sol. There is a great difference indeed, even as much as is betwixt Tyburn and hell, or a small mulct in the courts of men, and the eternal wrath of a sin-revengeing God: so great will the difference betwixt the punishments of all sins by God, and by men, be found.

Thus you see, gentlemen, the common pleas for uncleanness over-ruled by your own reason and consciences.

We live in a plentiful land, abounding with all the comforts of this life, and with thousands of full-fed wantons; of whom the Lord complains this day, as he did of the Jews, whom that flowing land vomited out, Jer. v. 7. "When I had fed them " to the full, they committed adultery, and assembled them" selves by troops in the harlots houses. They were as "horses in the morning; every one neighed after his neigh-" bor's wife." How many such stallions are thus neighing in the fat pastures of this good land!

Nor do I wonder at all to see the growth of Atheism, in a land swarmed and over-run with so many thousands of blasphemers, drunkards, and adulterers. It was a grave observatiof that gallant moralist, Plutarch: 'If Epicurus (faith he) should but grant a God in his full perfections, he must change his life presently, he must be a swine no longer.'
The reasonableness of Personal Reformation.

The Lord purge out this crying abomination also, with Atheism and drunkenness, the inlets of it, which darken our glory, and threaten to make us desolate.

C H A P. VI.

Wherein reason and conscience are once more consulted, about that bitter and implacable enmity found in thousands this day against all serious piety, and the strict professors thereof, who differ from them in some external modes, and rites of worship; and their determinations, upon that case, impartially reported.

§ 1. MAN is naturally a sociable creature, delighting in company and converse. He that affects to live by, and to himself, must be (faith the philosopher) εαυτης, εαυτω; either a God that is self-sufficient, and stands in need of none; or a wild beast, so savage and fierce, that it can endure nothing but itself.

This natural quality of sociableness is diversly improved. Sometimes sinfully, in wicked combinations to do mischief; like the herding together of wolves and tygers: such was the confederation of Simeon and Levi, brethren in iniquity; Gen. xlix. 56. Sometimes it is improved civilly, for the more orderly and prosperous management of human affairs. Thus all civilized countries have improved it, for the common security and benefit. And sometimes religiously, for the better promoting of each other's spiritual and eternal good.

Now the more firmly any civil or religious societies are knit together by love, and coalesce in unity, by so much the better they are secured against their common enemies and dangers, and become still the more prosperous and flourishing within and among themselves. For when every man finds his particular interest involved in the public safety and security, (as every private cabin and passenger is in the safety of the ship), every particular person will then stand ready to contribute his uttermost assistance, for the public interest, both in peace and war. United force, we all know, is more than single; and,
The reasonableness of Personal Reformation.

In this sense, we say, Unus homo, nullus homo: one man, is no man, that is, considered disjunctively, and alone; when yet that single person, standing in a proper place of service in the body, may, by his prudence and courage, signify very much to the public weal of his country; as Fabius did to the Roman state, of whom the poet truly observed,

Unis homo nobis cunctando restituit rem;

That one man, by his prudent delay and conduct, hath saved the whole commonwealth.

§ 2. It is therefore the undoubted interest of Christian states and churches, to make every individual person as useful as may be to the whole, and to enjoy the services of all their subjects and members, one way or other, according to their different capacities; that it may be said of them, (as the historian speaks of the land of Canaan) that there was in it, Nihil in fructus, nihil sterile; not a shrub but bare some fruit.

No prudent kingdom, or church, will deprive themselves of the benefits they may enjoy by the services of any considerable number of men, (especially if they be able and good men) without a plain, inevitable necessity. No man, without such a necessity, will part with the use and service of the least finger or toe, much less with a leg or arm: but would reckon himself half undone, if a paralytic disease should strike one half of the body, and render it utterly useless to defend and succour the other part in time of danger.

§ 3. Much stands the case with churches and kingdoms, when the causeless and eructen enmity of one part prevails so far against the other, as to deprive that state, or church, of the use and service of multitudes of good and faithful members.

It is folly, in its highest exaltation, for one part of a nation, out of bitter enmity to the other, not only to seek all ways and means to suppress and ruin it, whilst a common danger hangs over the whole; but to rejoice in the miseries of their brethren, as the principal thing which they fancy would contribute to the great advantage of their cause. What but a general punishment, (if that will do it) can work men's hearts into a more general compassion?

The histories of those times sufficiently inform us, that the great feuds and factions in the western church, not only immediately preceded, but opened the way to the terrible inundations of the Goths and Vandals. Whilst the suffering part cries out, cruelty, cruelty; those that inflict it, cry as loud, justice, justice. Whatever rational apologies, or methods of peace, come from the oppressed party, are censured by the other as murmur and mutiny. All men commend unity, and assert it to be the interest of kingdoms and churches. They wish all men were of one mind; but what mind must that be? To be sure, none but their own.

The more cool, prudent, and moderate spirits of each party, may strive to the utmost, to allay these unnatural feuds and animosities. The wisdom of the governing part, may take the instruments of cruelty out of their hand; but it is God alone, that can pluck up the roots of enmity out of their hearts.

And what is the matter, when all is sifted and examined? Why the matter is this: some will be more serious, strict, and conscientious, than others think it necessary for them to be. They dare not curse, swear, whore, and be drunk, as others do. They scruple to comply with what God hath not commanded, and the very imposers confess to be indifferent, antecedently to their command. They reverently mention the name of God, without an oath, and the solemn matters of religion, without a jest in their company. They will assume as much liberty to reprobe sin, as others do to commit it. They take more pleasure in heavenly duties, and holy conferences, than in ranting and roaring in taverns and ale-houses. That is, in a word, they live up to the principles of religion, which all pretend to; and this is their unpardonable crime, a fault never to be expiated by any less punishment than their destruction.

And are not people (think you) come to a sinepase; when the strictest obedience to the laws of God, shall be accounted more criminal, than the most open and profane violation of them? Nay, though they reprove the other party's sin no other way, but by their most serious and religious lives; yet this alone shall be sufficient to make them culpable and obnoxious.

§ 4. If the party thus generally hated and maligned, be (for the generality of them) serious and godly Christians; or if the strictness and holiness of their lives, and tenderness of their consciences, be the true ground and reason of our hatred of them; such an hatred, when it becomes general, is a direful preface of some common calamity and misery hastening upon such a people: Hof. ix. 7. "The days of visitation are come; the days of recompence are come; Israel shall know it. The prophet is a fool; the spiritual man is mad; for the multitude of thine iniquity, and the great hatred."

And our own reason will give us this conclusion, as well as
The reasonableness of Personal Reformation.

Scripture: for whatsoever brings sin to its full maturity, must needs hasten judgments. And what can heighten and accent the sins of a people, more than such a cruel hatred of good men, upon the score and account before given? All hatred of godliness hath a tang of devilishness. It is a desperate flying in the very face of God, whose image holiness is. Sin can scarce be graduated a peg higher.

Reason tells the husbandman, it is time to mow and reap his corn, when it is full ripe. And it may convince you, that God's time of reaping down a sinful people is near, when their sins are grown to such full maturity as this: "Put ye in the sickle, for the harvest is ripe; come, get ye down, for the press is full, the fatsoverflow, for their wickedness is great," Joel iii. 1.

§ 5. The true cause and rise of this great and fixed hatred among professed Christians, (whatever may be pretended to false reputation) is the contrariety and repugnancy of the natures, and principles, by which the godly and ungodly are governed. There is an enmity betwixt the two seeds, Gen. iii. 25. And this enmity runs down in a blood, more or less, in all ages, and places; Gal. iv. 29. "As then, he that was born after the flesh, persecuted him that was born after the Spirit; even so it is now." So it was, and so it is, and so it will be, till conversion changeth the heart and principle. This enmity cannot die, whilst Satan lives, and rules in the hearts of children of disobedience.

And the enmity is mutual: "An unjust man is an abomination to the just; and he that is upright in the way, is an abomination to the wicked," Prov. xxix. 27. Only with this difference; the good man hates, non virum sed vitium; not the person, but his sin. The wicked man hates both the person of the godly, and his godliness too; yea, the person for his godliness fake.

This hatred of the godly, secretly and habitually lurks in the nature of a wicked man; as rapaciousness doth in a young wolf, that never saw a lamb. It extends itself universally to the whole kind, and reaches those, whose lives are most obligingly sweet: yea, those that are bound to them in the strictest bonds of nature: as we may see, in that most unnatural instance of Cain's murdering his own brother Abel. It discovers itself, in seeking the destruction of them they hate upon a religious account, and in rejoicing at any evil that befalls them. Nothing is more grateful to them, than any occasion to disgrace, and expose them with contempt to the world.
§ 6. But though the strictness and holiness of good men, causing the consciences of wicked men privately to condemn, and inwardly to gaul and grate them for their looseness, and profaneness, be the true and real ground and cause of the grudge and hatred; yet they think it fit, for reputation-fake, that this be wholly suppressed and silenced, and something else pretended for the cause and reason of it, else it would look too like the devil himself. And therefore, amongst other plausible pretensions, for their malignity to those that are better than themselves, these three are principally insisted on, and pleaded

1. That it is not their piety, but their hypocrisy, which they hate: not because they have indeed more piety than others, but because they make more vain shew and ostentation of it than themselves do; who, setting aside their ridiculous grimaces, and affected fantastic words and actions, are every whit as good as themselves.

2. Because, under a pretence of greater strictness in religion, they do but hatch and carry on sedition and rebellion; and that the world will never be quiet, whilst such vipers are suffered in the bowels of it.

3. That both the former have been made sufficiently evident and apparent, in several former, and more recent instances, of the hypocrisy and seditious designs of as high pretenders to religion and reformation, as those are, whom they truly hate, and would not suffer them to live, if their power were answerable to their hatred.

As to this first plea, viz. their hypocrisy; it will quickly be found to be too thin and weak to endure the test of your own reason and consciences. For how will you answer them, when they shall thus argue and expostulate the matter with you?

"You that thus censure, and those that are cenfured for hypocrisy by you, do both profess one and the same religion. Your profane lives are notoriously contrary to all the principles of this religion. You swear, drink, whore, revile, and persecute the others, only because you fancy their tones, gestures, &c. to be some way or other indecent. You cannot deny, but they live soberly and godly: they attend upon all the duties of religion strictly and conscientiously. Your malice against them can find nothing to carp at, but some little trifles, with which the essence of religion is not concerned. Did they run into the same excess of riot with you, greater matters than these would be overlooked, yea, and applauded too."
The reasonableness of Personal Reformation.

Now let reason and conscience say, Who is most likely to be the hypocrite; the man that calls himself a Christian, and under that profession wallows in all profaneness, not once censuring himself for it; or he that lives soberly and godly, against whom malice itself can produce nothing but such incon siderable trifles as these? Is not this the very case, which Christ hath determined to our hands, and made such censurers, the hypocrites? Matth. vii. 3. "And why beholdest thou the mote that is in thy brother's eye, but considerest not the beam that is in thine own eye?" Is was but one blemish, and that a very small one too, but a mote; however this you can quickly spy, and as rashly censure. But mean while there is a beam, an horrid flagitious wickedness in yourselves; but it is too near your own eyes, to be discerned by you. Which of these two (think you) is the hypocrite?

2. But what if this mote that you discern, be but a fancy, a mere imagination of your own; how will that aggravate your sin, and evince both your malice and hypocrisy together? You say, their tones and gestures in religious duties, are ridiculous, and scenical. This you take up lightly against some few of them, and as unjustly apply unto the aspersing of the whole party; which your own reason must, and will immediately condemn. For there are multitudes of that party, whose countenances, tones and gestures, are as decorous, grave, and becoming the presence of that God with whom they have to do, as any men in the world.

4. And as for those few whom you thus blemish for their indecent tones and gestures; what if these tones you speak of, amount to no more but natural defects, and unavoidable infirmities, which they would, but cannot help? Do they for this, and no worse than this, deserve to be censured, and condemned for hypocrites? Or, what if they be insensible actions, occasioned by the greater intention of their spirits in the service of God? May not these very things, which you profanely flout, censure, and scoff at, either not at all be noted as blemishes to their devotion by the eye of God, or noted with approbation and delight, as the effects of spiritual fervency in his service? Certainly, gentlemen, you are no good mark; that neither draw the right arrow, nor level at the true mark.

4. And were not this a vain and empty pretence, to cover your own malice against godliness; how comes it to pass, that more scenical habits, words, and gestures, should pass as ornaments in others, whom you affect? Whether this be not
The reasonableness of Personal Reformation, partiality unworthy of a man, let reason and conscience freely judge.

In a word; What commission or authority can you produce, thus to ascend the throne of God, and draw your bitterest censures through the very hearts of God’s people, for such pitiful trifles as these; first condemning them as hypocrites, which is a most unwarrantable presumption; and then persecute them as far as you can, for their presumed hypocrisy? Have a care what you do; be not mockers, lest your bands be made strong. This is a sin which hastens national desolation; 2 Chron. xxxvi. 16, 17. “They mocked the messengers of God, and despised his word, and misused his prophets; until the wrath of the Lord arose against his people, till there was no remedy.” Therefore he brought upon them the king of the Chaldees, who slew their young men with the sword,” &c.

Plea 2. You say, It is not godliness you hate, and would persecute; but they are a sort of persons, who under a pretence of zeal for religion and reformation, design nothing else but sedition and rebellion, that the nation will never be quiet, whilst such vipers are suffered to live in it: And to fortify this plea, you add, that both their hypocrisy and sedition have been made sufficiently evident to the world in many instances.

Zeal for the laws, and security of the government, if rightly tempered and qualified, is highly commendable; and wherever sincerity animates, and prudence governs it, it ought by no means to be discouraged. But there are too many grounds and causes of suspicion, that both these will be found wholly wanting, or extremely defective, in many high pretenders to it, when it comes to be sifted to its bottom principles, and weighed in the just balance of sound reason.

For if you be inflamed with a pure zeal for the laws and government you live under; then you will find yourselves obliged, for your own vindication, to satisfy the just expectation of your own, and other men’s reasons and consciences, in the following particulars:

Expectation 1. First, Reason and conscience, in yourselves and others, will expect it from you, that you, of all men living, should be most precisely and punctually obedient to all those just and good laws you live under; since your zeal burns so hot against those that comply not punctually with them. For those that make so much conscience (as you seem to do, of other men’s offences against the laws, must be presumed (if your profession be sincere) to make at least as much conscience of breaking any of them in your own persons; else neither reason nor conscience will ever admit this plea of yours for found and good.
The reasonableness of Personal Reformation.

Now the laws sometimes appoint punishments for nonconformity to the rites and ceremonies, affixed to the public national worship; and so they do always for convicted swearing, drunkenness, and adultery. All these laws have the very fame sanction, by the authority we live under. They forbid, and punish, the one as well as the other. And if there be any difference, it lies in this, that these latter are expressly forbidden and threatened by God, antecedently to the magistrate's prohibition of them, which hath no small weight in the matter under consideration.

Now, if any man shall pretend zeal and conscience, against dissent in judgment or practice, from the church, but makes no conscience at all to curse and swear, be drunk or unclean; he will find it a difficult task to persuade his own, or other men's reasons or consciences, that this his zeal, for the laws and government, is sincere and pure. For were it so, it could never allow him to live in the notorious violation of the laws himself, which he is so fierce and bitter against others for.

Expectation 2. Secondly, If your zeal be sincere, it will contain itself within the bounds and limits of the offence, and not lay hold upon the innocent, as well as upon the guilty; and make you hate and persecute them that were never turbulent and seditious, equally with the greatest criminals. If you will hug this principle as things stand now, reason will tell you, it is as just at all other times, as it is at this.

Would you not think it an unreasonable and most injurious thing, to be plucked out of your shops, or houses, and hurried away to the goal; because two or three dissolute fellows in the city or town where you live, have been riotous or seditious, though you possibly know not the men, nor can be so much as justly suspected of any confederacy with them? True zeal for the laws and government, is content to wait, and suspend its revenge, till a fair conviction have passed upon the guilty. And when it falls upon them, it is careful that it touch none besides them: but suffers a man to retain, in the very height of it, due love and honour for all that are innocent.

If Christians be first denominated by general titles and terms of distinction, which they cannot help, and then the crimes of any particular person, that the world pleases to denominate as one of the same party, must be charged and imputed to the whole; what must the consequence of this be, but that the whole community become obnoxious to punishment, and the very government itself thereupon be dissolved?

For I take it to be past denial or doubt, that some of each denomination have been, are, or may be guilty of seditious practices. Some hypocrites will lurk among those vast bodies of people, under the most strict and watchful government; but God forbid their guilt should affect the whole body, under whose names they shelter themselves. God, reason, and conscience, do all command the hottest zeal, to make its pause and just distinction here. Let the guilty be brought to condign punishment, upon fair trial and conviction. This discourse designs no favour for such. But let not those who abhor their wickedness, and are as pure from their crimes as yourselves, suffer with them, or for them: For then your reason will tell you, yourselves are as liable to sufferings as they; and that your zeal is not kindled by love to justice, but the hatred of a party.

It is not in the body politic, as in the body natural: If the hand steal, the feet are justly laid in irons, and the neck put into an halter; because all the members of the body natural are animated, and governed but by one soul. But in the body politic, every individual hath a distinct soul of his own; and therefore that member only that offends ought to be punished, and all the rest to enjoy their full liberty and honour as before. Away therefore forever with this church and state destroying synecdoche.

Expectation 3. Thirdly, If there be a change made upon the laws, and they shall at any time tolerate and protect that party and practice which once they made criminal; then your reason, and every man's else, will expect from you (if your zeal for the laws and government be sincere and unfeigned) that your countenance and carriage to that people be changed and altered, according to the different aspect of the laws and government upon them: That your envy and hatred cease with the offence; and that you be as ready to assist and encourage them, when they act according to law, as you formerly were to inflict and prosecute them for acting contrary to law: Else, pretend what you will, it is plain enough, that it was not zeal for the laws and government, but somewhat else, (which every body may guess at) that inflamed your rage against them.

For whensoever the wisdom of the government finds it necessary, by toleration, to take away the crime and offence, it must necessarily take away this very plea for hatred and persecution with it: Otherwife it would be all one, to act for law, and against law; to punish them that are offenders, and them that offend no more than yourselves; to turn the edge of your rage and fury, against those that undermine the government, and those that are as zealous as yourselves, to support and defend it, by their persons and purses.
The reasonableness of Personal Reformation.

Expectation 4. Fourthly; Your reason will justly expect it from you, that when, or wheresoever you shall see eminent piety meeting with punctual conformity in one man, that man shall be your very darling; and that both these qualifications should recommend him to your dearest affection, the more strictly godly he is, the more conformable he is to the laws of God; as well as by his punctual compliance with enjoined rules and rites of worship, to the laws of men. If he be a man of catholic charity to all of every persuasion, whom he judges to fear God, and be truly conscientious; if he boldly and impartially reprovethisin, wherever he finds it, though it be in his own patron, or men of his own profession; you will still love him the more for that. For if sincerity and conformity (as you pretend) be the very things which you make such a noise and buffle for in the world, here you have them both in conjunction. This is the man you seem to seek (by these pleas of yours) for a pattern and standard to reduce other men to.

And is it really so, gentlemen, with you? Do you heartily affect and prize a strict and serious conformist, that fears not to expose the odious shamefulness and wickedness of profane swearing, cursing, drunkenness and uncleanness, without respect of persons, both in his pulpit and private conversations? Do you love him the better, for his plain dealing with your consciences, in detecting the grand cheat of formality in religion; for his close cutting convictions of the insufficiency of mere civility to your salvation, and the indispenSible necessity of regeneration? Do you heartily love and honour him, for thundering you out of ale-houses and taverns, unto your family and closet-duties? For telling you plainly, your love must not be confined to your own party, but extended to all that fear God, however they be externally distinguished among men? Nay, for convincing you plainly, that religion lies not in external modes and rites, in standing, kneeling, or responses? That the name and cry of the church, the church, will as little avail to your salvation, as the cry of the superstitious and profane Jews. The temple of the Lord,
The reasonableness of Personal Reformation. 403.

* * *

* The temple of the Lord are these? That true religion is an * inward, serious, spiritual thing, consisting in an evidencing * itself by the mortification of your sins, and real devotedness: * of your hearts to the Lord? *

If such a man as this will please, and delight your very hearts; then my reason is bound to conclude, there may be reality in what you pretend. But if you shall hate and loath such a man as this equally with a professed dissenter; you must excuse me, and all the rational world with me, if we shall conclude, that it is not true zeal for the laws, for the church, or for the sincerity and peaceable lives of its professors; but an inward rooted enmity at religion itself, that sets you on work, under the feigned pretences of other things.

Expectation Fifthly, Your reason will expect, and exact it from you, that whensoever you shall be convinced, that all these stirrs and bustles that have been in the world, all this fining, imprisoning, and impoverishing your Protestant brethren and neighbours for their conscience sake, hath done the church no good, but given a great and real advantage to our common enemy, to ruin us together; that we may distinguish ourselves how we please in our folly; but they will never distinguish us in their fury; for we are all known to them, by one common name of Heretics.

In this case, your reason exacts it from you, and so doth the common reason of mankind, that a sense of common interest, and common danger, now quiet those feuds, and extinguish those fires, which our own lusts first kindled, and the devil and our common enemies have incensed, to the great damage and hazard of the whole Protestant cause.

Such a reasonable and becoming sense as this, were in itself sufficient to cool a wise man's heats, if penal laws were left standing in their full force and vigour: But when the wisdom and reason of the state shall plainly discern both the usefulness and necessity of liberty, and thereupon take away (as they have now most prudently and seasonably done) the further occasions of mischiefs to the whole, by relaxing the yoke that bound some (and those a very great body of truly loyal and useful subjects) leaving the rest in the quiet possession of their own liberties and properties; what shall we call that fire, which still continues burning and increasing, not only after, but by all this, but an unquenchable hell-fire.

If chimera's, and self-created jealousies, are indulged, that some carnal interests of ours are not so well secured to us under liberty, as they were under persecution and tyranny; this will be the right way to perpetuate dissensions and persecutions to the end of the world.

And now, gentlemen, I hope I may say, without being vain or opinionative, our reason hath fairly disarmed you of these pleas and excuses, by which you have hitherto defended yourselves in your most sinful practices of profane cursing and swearing, drunkenness, uncleanness, and bitter enmity against your Protestant brethren, for things that touch not the essence of Christianity.

And believe it, sirs, it is truly genteel and glorious, to suffer yourselves to be subdued and conquered by the plain convictions of your own reason and conscience. It is ten thousand times more honourable and glorious to lay down your arms at the feet of these, than to lay down both reason and conscience at the feet of Satan and your lusts, and continue fighting obstinately against God, your own souls, bodies, estates, reputations; yea, your very reasons and consciences, your innocent brethren, and the peace of church and state, under Satan's banner.

In all this discourse, I have not designed to exasperate, but assuage and restrain your lusts and passions, by laying the loving and gentle hands of your own reasons and consciences upon them. I have not given the least injurious touch to your honour, but all along pleaded for the recovery, or security of it. I have exposed no man by any particular mark, or indignation.

But now I have done with you; if your own consciences shall begin to make a rounder and more particular application of these general reasonings and arguments, and say to you, as Nathan to David, thou art the man; I am not accountable to God for that. But be confident of it, you are accountable to God for all those plain convictions, and faithful endeavours used with you, and tried upon you, to save you from all those miseries your headstrong lusts, with furious precipitation, are manifestly running you into.

If you can substantially and solidly refer those arguments against, and vindicate those pleas for sin, which reason and conscience have urged and censured above; and can produce stronger and clearer arguments, to defend and justify the courses here censured and condemned; or if you can obtain a writ of error, to remove these causes to another lawful court of judicature, where you shall obtain a more favourable verdict, your complaint of severe dealing with you here, will not want some ground or colour; but if you cannot, (as you know you cannot) then never blame your own reasons nor mine, for dealing rigorously or injuriously with you.
The Possibility and Necessity of Conversion.

I am willing to hope, and persuade myself, that I shall at least obtain a reformation of life from many of you. I have strove hard for it with you here: I will strive harder with God in prayer, to obtain it for you. But yet, gentlemen, I must tell you in the close, that though an external reformation of these evil courses may make your lives more healthy, happy, and durable in this world, and will greatly conduce to the public as well as your personal and private interest; yet if you expect complete and perfect happiness in the world to come, you must advance one step further beyond reformation, unto sound conversion. The first makes you comparatively happy here; but the second will make you perfectly happy and blessed for ever hereafter. The first frees you from many temporal miseries upon earth; but the second, from eternal miseries in hell. And this brings you to the other blessed step, by conversion, which is the second part.

THE SECOND PART:

EVINCING THE POSSIBILITY, NECESSITY, AND EXCELLENCY OF CONVERSION TO GOD;

The only Thing that makes Men truly happy, and perfectly blessed, in the World to come.

§ I. Conviction supposed, and grace admired.

REASON and conscience having been shaming men out of their profaneness, in the former part of this discourse, free grace invites them to the life of holiness, and thereby to the life of blessedness, in this second part.

There you see what it is to live like beasts; here you may see what it is to live like Christians.
My charity commands me to suppose, that some readers stand, by this time, convicted in their own consciences, both of the extreme wickedness, and the immediate danger of that profane course they have hitherto pursued, and perished in; and that by this time they begin to interrogate them in the apostle's close and cutting language, Rom. vi. 21. "What fruit had ye then in those things, whereof ye are now ashamed? For the end of these things is death." It is hard to imagine, that so many close debates and reasonings, as you have heard in the former part, should not leave many of you under conviction and trouble of spirit. You see, your own reasons and consciences have condemned you: "And if our heart condemn us, (faith the apostle) God is greater than our heart, and knoweth all things;" 1 John iii. 20. It is folly to imagine, you shall be acquitted at God's immediate bar, who are already cast and condemned at your own privy sessions.

If this be the happy effect, as I hope it is, of all the former close and solemn debates with your consciences, it will naturally and immediately cast thy soul, reader, into great admiration of, and astonishment at, the patience and long-suffering of God, that hath borne with thee, under a life of prodigious and reiterated provocations until this day. And his goodness will be as admirable to thee, as his patience; in that he hath not only suffered thee to live till this day, but made it the day of thy conviction, the first necessary step towards thy conversion; and the very first things he entertains thy convinced and troubled soul with, to be the possibility and probability of thy conversion to God.

The greatness of his patience shews his almighty power, Rom. ix. 22. Nahum i. 3. but his willingness to pass by all the wrongs you have done him, and to be at peace with you, discovers the immense riches of his grace, Tit. iii. 3, 4.

That God should be so quick in the executions of his wrath upon your companions in sin, and so patient and long-suffering towards you, that have out-finned them all; is such a comparative consideration of his bounty, as should even overwhelm the man that beholds it. Rom. xi. 22. "Behold the goodness and severity of God! on them that fell, severity; but towards thee, goodness."

If thou be that very man, who in the past course of thy life hast been a profane swearer, a beastly drunkard, a lascivious person, an hater and persecutor of good men; and after all this, the Lord hath brought an offer of mercy to thy soul, and shall convince thee it is not come too late, but that the door of hope stands yet open to thee; my advice to thee is, that thou cast thyself down at the feet of mercy, and after this manner pour forth thy laments and desires before the Lord.

And is there yet a possibility of mercy, O Lord God, for such a vile wretch as I have been! can the arms of free grace yet open themselves to embrace such a monster of wickedness as I am? Who then is a God like unto thee? And what patience, mercy, and goodness, is like thine? I have far exceeded others in sin; I have lived the life of a beast, yea, of a devil. I have dared thy dreadful, and glorious name, with thousands of horrid blasphemies; trampled all thy glorious attributes under my feet, challenged thee, to thy very face, to do thy worst, even to damn me to the pit of hell: I have yielded up this soul, with all its noble faculties and powers, as instruments of sin unto the devil; and made this body, which should have been the hallowed temple of thy Spirit, to be the noisome sink (or common-sewer) for all unclean and abominable lusts, to run and settle in. I have hated, reviled, and persecuted those that lived more strictly, soberly, and godly, than myself; because their convincing examples disquieted, checked, and convicted my conscience, in the eager pursuit of my lusts and pleasures.

I have lived in the profane neglect of prayer, meditation, self-reflection, and all other spiritual Christian duties; thinking to make an atonement for all, by a few hypocritical, external formalities.

To accommodate my carnal interest in the world, I have come reeking hot out of an ale-house, or whore-house, to the table of the Lord; where, with unhallowed hands, and a more unhallowed heart, I have crucified again the Lord of glory, and given the vilest affront and despite to that most sacred and precious blood, which now must save me, or I am lost for ever. Thus have I done; and "because thou keepest silent, I thought thee to be altogether such an one as myself: but this day haft thou reproved me, and set mine abominations in order before me."

I have tempted and seduced many others into the same impieties with me, of whom, some are already gone down to the dead, and others so fixed, and fully engaged in the pursuit of their lusts, that there appear no signs of repentance, or recovery in them.

Thy wrath, Lord, soon brake forth against the angels that sinned in heaven; yet hitherto haft thou forborn and spared me, who have been highly provoking thee ever since I was born, by a life of unparalleled wickedness upon earth. Vile wretch that I am! I have despised the riches of thy goodness, forbearance, and long-suffering; not knowing that the goodness of God leadeth me to repentance. And after all, here I am told, that there is yet a possibility of pardon, mercy and salvation for me. The news is so great and so good, that that I am zealously concerned to examine the grounds and evidences of it. And if it shall appear to be as true, as it is astonishingly strange, and ravishingly sweet; I hope, it shall effectually lead me to repentance, and dissolve for ever the strongest ties betwixt me and my lusts.'
The Possibility and Necessity of Conversion.

§ II. Conversion of the vilest sinner possible.

THAT it is possible for the greatest and most infamous sinner to be recovered by repentance and conversion, and thereupon to find mercy and forgiveness with God; is a truth as sure and firm as it is sweet and comfortable. Three things will give full evidence of it.

1. That their sins do not exceed the power and sufficiency of the causes of remission.
2. That such sinners are within the calls and invitations of the gospel.
3. That such sinners are found among the instances and examples of pardoning mercy, recorded in the scriptures.

And if the causes of pardon be sufficient, and able to produce it; if the gospel-invitations do take them in, and such sinners as these, every way as vile and wicked, have not been shut out, but received to mercy; then it is beyond all doubt that there is (at least) a possibility of mercy for such sinners as you are.

I. It is past rational doubt, that the causes of remission are every way sufficient, and able to produce the forgiveness of such sins as yours are. For consider with yourselves,

The power of

1. The impulsive cause.
2. The meritorious cause.
3. The applying cause.

1. The sufficiency and ability of the impulsive cause of pardon, which is none other but the free grace of God, the immense riches and treasures whereof, do infinitely exceed the accoupts and computations both of angels and men. Exod. xxxiv. 6, 7. "And the Lord passed by before him, and proclaimed, The Lord, the Lord God, merciful and gracious, long-suffering, and abundant in goodness and truth: keeping mercy for thousands, forgiving iniquity, and trans-
The Possibility and Necessity of Conversion.

1. The Possibility of Conversion.

The Possibility and Necessity of Conversion.

"greffion, and sin." Mic. vii. 18, 19. "Who is a God like unto thee, that pardonneth iniquity, and passeth by the transgressions of the remnant of his heritage? He retaineth no his anger for ever, because he delighteth in mercy. He will turn again, he will have compassion upon us; he will subdue our iniquities, and thou wilt cast all our sins into the depths of the sea." Once more, Rom. v. 20. "Where sin abounded, grace did much more abound." So that whatever thy sins have been, they do not, they cannot exceed the ability and power of the grace of God, the all-sufficient, impulsive cause of remission! That infinite abyss, or sea of mercy, can swallow up, and cover such mountains of guilt, as thine have been.

2. Nor do thy sins exceed the ability and power of the meritorious cause of remission, namely, the blood of the Lord Jesus Christ; for that blood is the blood of God, Acts xx. 28. He is the Lamb of God, whose blood is sufficient to take away the sins of the world, John i. 29. There is but one sin in the world exempt from remission by this blood, and if thy heart be now wounded with the sense of sin, (as I here suppose it to be) that is none of thy sin, how heinoussoever thy other sins be.

3. Nor do thy sins exceed the ability and power of the applying cause of pardon, namely, the Spirit of God. For though I should suppose thy mind to be clouded, and overshadowed with grossest ignorance, thy heart to be as hard as an adamant, or nether-milstone, thy will stiff and obstinate, thy affections enchanted and bewitched with the pleasures of sin; yet this Spirit of God, in a moment, can make a convincing beam of light to dart into thy dark mind, make thy hard heart relent, thy stubborn will to bow, and all the affections of thy soul to comply, and open obediently to Christ. John xvi. 9, 10. "The Spirit when he cometh, he shall convince the world of sin," &c.

Thus you see, whatever your guilt be, it does not exceed the abilities of the causes of remission. O what an encouragement is this?

II. And there is yet further encouragement in this, that if you will open your Bibles, you may find yourselves within the calls and invitations of the gospel. And no man can say, that man is without hope, that is within a gospel-invitation. Consider Isa. lv. 7, 8. "Let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts; and let him return unto the Vol. VIII. F f f
The Possibility and Necessity of Conversion.

II. And to make the possibility of remission yet clearer, know, for your encouragement, that as vile, infamous, and prodigious sinners as yourselves, are recorded, and found amongst the instances and examples of forgiven sinners in scripture. Paul was once a fierce and cruel persecutor and blasphemer, yet he obtained mercy, 1 Tim. i. 13, 14. That sinful woman, recorded, Luke vii. 37, 38. was an infamous, and a notorious sinner; yet her sins which were many, were forgiven her, ver. 47. Manasseh was a monster of wickedness, as you may read, 2 Chron. xxxiii. yet found mercy. And if you view that catalogue of sinners, given in 1 Cor. vi. 9, 10. you will seem to find among them the very forlorn hope of desperate sinners, advanced nearest to hell of any men upon earth; yet see, ver. 11. what is said of some of them: “And such were some of you; but ye are washed, but ye are justified.”

All these things plainly shew (I say not the certainty that you shall be, but) the possibility that you may be pardoned; which is a mercy and encouragement unspeakable.

§ III. The conversion of profane ones highly probable.

And because Satan labours to discourage them that are gone in sin so far as you are, by cutting off all hopes of mercy from them, and bringing them to this desperate conclusion; damned we know we shall, and must be; and therefore as good be damned for more, as less. If we had lived sober, and civil lives, we might have had some hope; but because we have no hope, it is as good for us to take our full swing in sin, as to think of returning by repentance and conversion, so late in the day as this is.
The Possibility and Necessity of Conversion.

To obviate this deadly snare of Satan, I shall here further add, That there is not only a possibility of your recovery, but, in some respect, a stronger possibility, that such as you may be converted and saved, than there is for those who have led a smoother, and more civil life in the world, and wholly trust to their own civility for their salvation, instead of the imputed righteousness of Christ.

This plainly appears, by that convictive expression of Christ to the Scribes and Pharisees, Matth. xxi. 31. "Verily, I say unto you, that the publicans and harlots go into the kingdom of heaven before you." Publicans, the most infamous among men; and harlots, the worst of women; yet these are sooner wrought over to Christ by faith and repentance, than the more civil, and self-righteous Scribes and Pharisees.

And indeed, it is far easier to come at the consciences of such sinners by conviction, than at the others; they having nothing to ward off the stroke of conviction, it must fall directly, and immediately upon their consciences. The most smooth, and civil part of the world, trust to their own righteousness; and this self-confidence, like armour of proof, resists all attempts to bring them to Christ for righteousness. Nothing fixes men in a state of evil, more than a strong conceit that their condition is good.

But such as you are, whose whole lives have been polluted with profaneness, and all impiety, your consciences will more easily receive convictions of your present danger, and of the necessity of a speedy, and thorough change. You cannot think, as others do, that you need no repentance, or reformation. In this respect, therefore, you lie nearer the door of hope and mercy, than other sinners do.

If therefore it shall please the Lord, (whose grace is rich and free to the vilest of sinners) to pluck out such as you, as brands out of the burning, by thorough conversion to Christ; you will not only become real Christians, (as all true converts are) but the most excellent, useful, and zealous amongst all Christians. As you will be most eminent instances of his grace, so you will be the most eminent instruments for his glory. As you have gone beyond other sinners in wickedness, so you will strive to exceed them all in your love to Christ. Luke vii. 47. "She loved much, for much was forgiven her." You will never think you can do enough for him, who hath done such great things for you.

Who more fierce, and vile, before conversion, than Paul, who was a blasphemer, a persecutor, and injurious? 1 Tim. i. 13. and who, among all the servants of Christ, loved or laboured for him more than he? How did he rather fly, than travel up and down the world, in a flame of zeal for Christ? As you have been ringeiders in sin, so you will not endure to come behind any in zeal and love to the Lord Jesus: Yet not thinking this way to make him a requital for the injuries you have done him; (that would be the most injurious act of all the rest) but to testify this way the deep sense you have of the riches and transcendency of his goodness and mercy to you, above all others.
The Possibility and Necessity of Conversion.

§ IV. Conversion frequently and fatally mistaken.

But here I must warn you of some common, but most dangerous mistakes, committed in the world, with respect to conversion unto God: Except these be seasonably prevented, or removed, none of you will ever stir, or move further than you are towards Christ. Amongst others, be ware especially of these three following fatal mistakes; that of,

1. Baptismal regeneration.
2. Common profession of Christianity.
3. Formality in religious duties.

1. There is a notion spread among men, and almost everywhere obtaining, that the scriptures mean nothing else by conversion, but to be baptized in our infancy into the visible church; and that this ordinance having passed upon them long ago, they are sufficiently converted already; and that men make but a needless stir and baffle in the world, about any other, or further conversion.

But, sirs, I beseech you, consider how dangerous a thing it is, to take your own shadow for a bridge; and venturing upon it, drown yourselves. If baptism be conversion enough, why doth Christ say, Mark xvi. 16. "He that believeth, and is baptized, shall be saved; but he that believeth not, shall be damned?" Baptism, without faith, signifies nothing to salvation; but faith, without baptism, (where it cannot be had) secures salvation. And why doth the apostle say, Gal. vi. 25. "Neither circumcision, nor uncircumcision availeth anything, but a new creature." Or what needed Christ to have pressed and inculcated the indispensible necessity of regeneration upon Nicodemus, as he doth, John iii. 3, 5, 7. who had been many years a circumcised Jew? This your dangerous dependance upon your baptismal regeneration, is what hath given such deep offence, and prejudice to many (though without just
The Possibility and Necessity of Conversion.

I lament it as much as they, that men should turn it into such a deadly snare to their own souls, yet will still honour Christ's abused ordinance.

2. Some think, the common profession of Christianity makes men Christians enough; they are no Heathens, Mahometans, or idolatrous Papists; but Protestants, within the pale of the true church; that is, professed reformed Christians.

But, friends, I beg you to consider that convictive text, 1 Cor. iv. 20. "The kingdom of God is not in word, but in power." Many there be, that in words confess Christ, but in works they deny him. And why were the foolish virgins (that, is professed reformed Christians) shut out of the kingdom of God; if the lamp of verbal profession, without the oil of internal godliness, were enough for our salvation? Mat. xxv. 3, 12. Believe it, sirs, many will claim acquaintance with Christ upon this account, and expect favour from him in the great day, of whom he will profess he never knew them, Mat. vii. 22. Christ need not have put men upon striving, as in an agony, to enter in at the strait gate; if baptism in our infancy, or verbal profession of Christianity, were all the difficulties men had to encounter in the way to heaven.

3. Formality in external duties of religion, is another fatal mistake of conversion. Have not these been the inward thoughts of your hearts? As bad as we are, though we take liberty to swear, be drunk, and unclean sometimes; yet we say our prayers, keep our church, and hope for heaven and salvation, as well as those that are more precise.

But tell me, gentlemen, seriously, what do you say, or plead for yourselves more in all this, than those convicted hypocrites did, Isa. lviii. 2. "Yet they seek me daily, and delight to know my ways, as a nation that did righteousness, and forsought not the ordinances of their God: They ask of me the ordinances of justice, they take delight in approaching to God." Or to come nearer yet to your case, and cut off, at one stroke, for ever this vain plea of yours, read and ponder God's own censure of it, in Jer. vii. 8, 9, 10, 11, 12. "Behold, ye trust in lying words, that cannot profit. Will ye steal, murder, commit adultery, and swear falsely, &c. and come and stand before me in this house, which is called by my name, and say, We are delivered to do all these abominations? Is this house, which is called by my name, become a den of robbers in your eyes? Behold, even I have seen it, faith the Lord; but go ye now to my place, which was in Shiloh, where I set my name at the first, and see what I did to it, for the wickedness of my people Israel.
The Possibility and Necessity of Conversion.

§ V. Of the nature of true conversion.

You have heard, that conversion does not consist in these external things; at your eternal peril be it, if you trust in them: But true conversion is the turning of the whole man to God, Acts xxvi. 18. it is nothing less, than the total change of the inward temper, and frame of the heart, and the external course of the life, Isa. lv. 8. It is not the cool confession, but the real forsaking of sin, in which we shall find mercy, Prov. xxviii. 13. Thy heart and will, love and delight, must turn sin out, and take Christ in, or thou art no gospel-convert. A true convert loaths every sin, and himself for sin, Ezek. xxxvi. 31. but general confessions of sin are consistent with the full dominion of sin. Moreover, in all true conversion there is a positive turning unto God, a whole heart-choice of him, for your supreme and ultimate happiness and portion, Psal. lxxxiii. 25. and of the Lord Jesus Christ, as your Prince and Saviour, Acts v. 31. And answerably, it will devote your whole life to his service and glory, Phil. i. 21. And thus it brings forth the new man, and the whole frame of your heart and life is marvellously changed and altered, 2 Cor. v. 17.

"Old things are passed away, behold, all things are become new."

It may be, you will think such a change as this impossible to be made upon you. And so it is indeed, until the day of God's power come, Psal. cx. 3. What! to forfake with loathing your old companions, and courses, which you have so long lived with and delighted in; and to embrace with highest pleasure, strict godliness, which you have so loathed, and ridiculed! This would be a strange alteration indeed: But as strange as it seems to be, it will be effected in a moment, when God fulfils that gracious promise (as I hope he is now doing) to you, Ezek. xxxvi. 26. "A new heart also will I give you, and a new spirit will I put within you." Operations follow nature: When the heart of a beast was given to that great king Nebuchadnezzar, Dan. v. 21, his dwelling was with the wild asses; they fed him with grass, like oxen. But let the spirit of a man return to him again, and he'll blush to think of his brutish company, and way of life; and so will you of yours also. As marvellous a change as this, has passed upon as eminent and notorious sinners as yourselves, Gal. i. 22. the God of the spirits of all flesh can with ease and speed produce all this by that Almighty Power, whereby he is able to subdue all things to himself.

§ VI. Of the hazards attending conversion.

If the Lord shall, in his rich grace and mercy to your souls, stir up in them the thoughts and resolutions of a change of your course; great care ought to be taken, in the time of this change, lest they miscarry in their remove from one state to another; multitudes miscarry betwixt a state of profaneness, and true godliness. To continue in the state of profaneness, is to be certainly lost; and so it is to take up short of Christ, in mere civility and formality in religion. This middle state takes up multitudes by the way, who do but change the open road, for a more private way to hell.

Mere civilized nature is unregenerated nature still; "They return, but not to the most High; they are like a deceitful bow," faith the prophet, Hosea vii. 16. They seem to aim at Christ, and salvation; but, as an arrow from a weak bow, it goes not home; or, as from a deceitful bow, it flants aside, and misses the mark. It is true, they are not openly profane, as they were before; but they take up, and settle in an unregenerate state still: Their condition is the same, though their company be not.

This is excellently set forth by our Saviour, Matth. xii. 43, 44, 45. the devil may be cast out as a profane devil, and yet keep his propriety still as a formal devil. The sense of that text is well expressed by one, in this note upon it: That a restraint by formality, keepeth the devil's propriety, and disposeth the soul to final apostacy. You are as far from Christ and salvation, under the power of formality, as you were before. He that is cured of a fever, hath no great cause to rejoice, if his fever has left him under a consumption, which will kill him as surely, though it may be less violently, or speedily.

§ VII. Of the absolute necessity of a thorough change.

Whatsoever the difficulties and hazards are, that attend this change by conversion unto God, the change itself is absolutely and indispenibly necessary to every man's salvation. The door of salvation can never be opened, without the key of regeneration. Christ assures civil and formal Nicodemus, "That except he be born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God," John iii. 3. Think not conversion to be the attainment of some singular and extraordinary Christians, for it is the very point upon which every man's eternal happiness or misery depends. There is one law for all the world; they must be changed, or damned: No restitutions or reformations, no common gifts or abilities, no religious duties or services, can save any man from hell, without a change by thorough conversion. Rom. viii. 8. "They that are in the flesh, can not please God."

Satisfy and please not yourselves with this: Though we live in sin, yet God is a merciful God. We will confess our sins to him, say our prayers, keep our church; and no doubt but God will be merciful to us, as well as others. Consider it, man, that this merciful God is also a God of truth; and this God of truth hath plainly assured thee, that all these external things signify nothing to thy salvation, unless thou become a new creature, Gal. vi. 15. and that thou must be born again, John iii. 3. Say not, without this you will hope in God: If you hope in God, you must hope in his word, Psalm cxix. 81. Now where will you find that word in the Bible, that warrants the hope of salvation in the unregenerate person? All scriptural hope is of a purifying nature, and evermore productive of an holy life, 1 John iii. 3.

If you say, Christ died for the greatest of sinners, and you trust to be saved through him; it is true, he did so, but conversion is his only method of salvation, Tit. ii. 14. and those that are not washed by sanctification, have no part in him, or in his blood, John xiii. 8. He came not to save men continuing in their sins, but to save his people from their sins, Matth. i. 21. His way is to lead you through sanctification unto salvation, 2 Thes. ii. 13. If you have a mind to see whom, and how he saves; you have it before your eyes, Tit. ii. 14. "Who gave himself for us, that he might redeem us from all iniquity, and purify unto himself a peculiar people, zealous of good works." Those only are saved by him, that "denying ungodliness, and worldly lusts, live not only soberly and righteously, but godly in this present world."

And this is the change I am here pressing you to; and until this change be made, you cannot find yourselves within the compass of any covenant-promise, Eph. ii. 12. but if you will turn to Heb. xii. 14. you may, the very next minute, find yourselves barred out of heaven by a scripture threatening. Let no man, therefore, impose so great a cheat upon his own soul, as once to imagine, that any thing short of
The Possibility and Necessity of Conversion.

§ VIII. Every man might do more than he doth, towards his own conversion.

It is not in any man's power to convert himself; but yet because every man might do more towards it than he doth do, and doth it not, he is justly chargeable with his own damnation. We are bid, and bound to strive to enter in at the strait gate, Luke xiii. 24. It is true, a man, in his natural state, can do nothing that is spiritually, or supernaturally good; yet he can do, and forbear to do many things, the doing or forbearing of which, have a true (though remoter) tendency to his conversion; and not doing, or forbearing of them, his destruction is of and from himself.

You can, if you will, forbear to sweat, and blaspheme the name of God. Who can, or does compel, or force your tongues to it? The devil can tempt, but not compel them: you can, if you will stop, when nature is duly refreshed. Your wicked companions can provoke, but not force you. You can, if you please, shun lascivious books, and company, and keep your bodies chaste, at least from the external acts of uncleanness.

And why cannot you (if you please) perform, as well as neglect, the external acts of religious duties? The same feet that carry you to a tavern, can carry you to your closets, if you please to have them do so. Nor do I know any reason why you cannot compose yourselves, when engaged in God's public or private worship, to a close and serious attendance to those duties. The application of the mind to what is spoken is of great concernment to you; and if an unsanctified minister can apply his thoughts to compose a sermon, and preach it; I see no reason why an unsanctified hearer may not also compose, and apply his mind to hear it. And I am past all doubt, that something may be done beyond all this. You have some power certainly to reflect upon, and consider what concernment you have in the things you read or hear; and how they agree, or disagree with your experience.

Now, if men would but do this, (which certainly they have a power to do) though they cannot convert themselves, yet hereby they would lie in the hopeful way of converting grace; which is more than they could ever yet be persuaded to do. And though there be no positive certainty, or assurance, that...
The Possibility and Necessity of Conversion.

Conversion and salvation shall follow these acts; yet hope and probability are engagements enough. Hope sets all the world on work, without assurance. The ploughman ploughs in hope, and the merchant ventures in hope. Do but as much for your souls, as these do for their bodies.

§ IX. Temptations and discouragements in the way of conversion.

But here I expect to be encountered by all the policy and power of hell. Satan, and your own lusts, are in confederacy, to turn away your minds from such counsel and persuasions as these. They will tell you, this is no proper season to mind your conversion; it is either too soon, or too late; You have not yet had pleasure enough in sin, or so much as hath put you beyond all hopes of mercy: That religion is a melancholy thing, and if once you look that way, you will never have a merry day, or hour more; with a thousand such damps and discouragements.

But pray, gentlemen, do so much, at least for your souls, before you turn away your ear from the instructions of life, as to hear these matters examined: If they are not worth that, they are worth nothing.

I will suppose you in the flower and vigour of your youth, and this dangerous season now nicked with a more dangerous temptation; that it is too soon to mind such serious matters now: You have not yet had your full pleasure out of sin.

Need it to spend a word, to refute and baffle such a temptation as this? I doubt not, but you yourselves can easily do it. Ask yourselves, Sirs, if sentence of death were passed upon you by men, (as it is by God, John iii. 18. "He that believeth not, is condemned already,") would you think a pardon could come too soon? Be assured, every bit of bread you eat, is the bread of the condemned; you are in danger of hell every day, and hour: There wants nothing but a sword, a bullet, a shipwreck, or disease, (of which multitudes wait on you every day) to put you beyond mercy, and all hopes of mercy. And can you get too soon (think you) out of this danger and misery? O why do you linger any longer? The danger is too great and imminent, to admit one hour's longer delay.

And it is as strange and strong a delusion on the other side, to fancy it is now too late: The vanity and groundlessness of this, hath been evinced in the second section, to which I refer you for full satisfaction.

And for the loss of your pleasures, by conversion to God,
The Possibility and Necessity of Conversion.

The Possibility and Necessity of Conversion. 419

That is the thinnest and silliest pretence of all the rest: That is the same thing, as to imagine it is to a thirsty man's loss, to leave the puddle waters of a broken cistern, to enjoy the crystal streams of a flowing fountain; for the pleasures of an alehouse, playhouse, or whorehouse, to be sweeter than the light of God's countenance, the comforts of his pardon, or the lively hopes of glory with him in heaven; of which you read, 1 Pet. i. 8.

Poor men! O that you did but once know what the life of holiness, and dedication to God is! what the seals, earnest, and first-fruits of his Spirit are! How willingly and joyfully would you trample all the sordid pleasures of sin under your feet, to enjoy them!

§ X. Motives and considerations persuading to conversion.

This short discourse shall wind up itself in motives and considerations, to prevail with you, not only to make the first step out of profaneness to civility; but the other necessary and happy step too, for the Lord's sake, gentlemen, that blessed step beyond mere civility, to serious godliness.

O that I knew what words to choose, and what arguments to urge, that might possibly prevail with you! My witness is in heaven, I would do any thing within my power, to procure your temporal and eternal happiness. I beg you, in the bowels of Christ Jesus, as if I were upon my bended knees before your feet, turn not away your eye nor ear from these discourses: Ponder and consider, once and again, what hath been rationally debated in the first part, about your reformation, and what hath and shall be offered, in this second part.

O my God! thou that hast counted me faithful, and put me into the ministry; thou that hast inclined my heart to make this attempt, and encouraged me with hope, that it shall not be in vain to all them that read it, if it must be so to some; I beseech thee, lay the hand of thy Spirit upon the heart and hand of thy servant; strengthen and guide him in drawing the bow of the gospel, and directing the arrows, that they may strike the mark he aims at, even the conviction and conversion of lewd and dissolute sinners. Command these considerations to stay and settle in their hearts, till they bring them fully over to thyself in Christ.

Consideration 1. And first, O that you would consider how the whole of your life past hath been cast away in vain, as to the great-end and business you came into the world for.
The Possibility and Necessity of Conversion.

have breathed many years, but not lived one day to God. Your consciences could never yet prevail with you to get out of the noise and hurry of the world, and go along with it into some private retiring-place, to debate the state of your souls, and think close (but for one hour) on such awful subjects as God, foul, Christ, and eternity, heaven, hell, death, and judgment. Do you think, gentlemen, that you came into this world to do nothing else but to eat and drink, sport and play, sleep and die? Ask yourselves, I beseech you, whether the life you have hitherto lived, has looked to your own eyes like an earnest flight from hell, and a serious pursuit of heaven and salvation? How much nearer are you got to Christ now, than you were when in your cradles? The sweetest, and fittest part of your life, is passed away in vanity, and there is no calling one day, or hour of it, back again.

Consideration 2. Consider, gentlemen, for Christ Jesus sake, you have yet an opportunity to be eternally happy, if you will flight and neglect opportunities of salvation no longer; the door of mercy is not yet finally shut up: The Lord Jesus yet waits to be gracious to you. Such is his astonishing grace and mercy, he will pardon and pass by all that you have done against him, if now, after all, you will but come unto him, that you may have life, Turn ye, turn ye; for why will ye die? Your swearing, and blaspheming, your drunkenness, uncleanness, and enmity at godliness, shall never be mentioned, if you will yet repent and return. Ezek. xviii. 21, 22. "If the wicked will turn from all his sins that he hath committed, and keep all my statutes, and do that which is lawful and right; he shall surely live, he shall not die. All his transgressions that he hath committed, they shall not be mention-ed unto him."

If you say, these are hard and impossible terms to nature, it is true, they are so, and God's end in urging them here upon you, is to convince you of your natural impotence, and drive you to Christ; that by union with him, the righteousness of the law might be fulfilled in you.

Consideration 3. Let it be thoroughly considered, it is no less than salvation, and your own salvation too, which depends upon your conversion. How diligent was Christ in purchasing salvation! how negligent and remiss are we in applying it! O what compositions of sloth and stupidity are unconverted sinners! how do they sit with folded arms, as if it were easy to perish? Is this your running and striving to obtain the palms and crowns of immortal glory? Work out (faith the a-
The Possibility and Necessity of Conversion. 421

Phil. ii. 12, 13. you own salvation with fear and trembling. It is for salvation, and nothing less, you are here pressed to strive: And what care, paine, or solicitude of ours, can be equal and proportionate to so great a thing as salvation? If every thought of the heart were relieved from all other concerns, and the mind stand continually fixed with utmost attention upon this subject, surely such a subject deserves it all, and much more.

But when you consider it is not another's, but your own salvation you are striving for; how powerful should the principle of self-preservation awaken and invigorate your utmost endeavours after it! The law of charity, and bowels of mercy, would compel us to do much to save the body, and much more the soul of another; And will they move us to do nothing for our salvation?

Say not, if I should be careless and neglective, yet God is good, and gracious; if this season be neglected, there are more to come: Alas! that is more than you know. It is possible your eternal happiness may depend upon the improvement of this present opportunity; there is much of time in a short opportunity.

Consideration 4. Do you think your hearts would be in such a dead, careless, and unconcerned frame, about this great and awful matter of your conversion and salvation; if those things were now before your eyes, which certainly and shortly must be before them!

How rational and necessary is it, for you now to suppose those very things as present before you, which you know to be near you, and a few days or hours will make present? Here let me make a few suppositions, so rational, because certainly future and near, that no wise man will, or dare to fling them, as fictions or chimera's.

Supposition 1. Suppose yourselves now upon your death-beds, your hearts and breaths failing, your eyes and heart-strings breaking, all earthly comforts failing, and shrinking from you; these things you know, are unavoidable, and must shortly befall you, Eccl. viii. 8. Suppose also, in these your last extremities, your consciences should awake (as probably they will, there being now no more charms of pleasure, and sinful companions, to divert or stupify them) what a case will you find yourselves in! what a cold sweat will then lie upon your panting bosoms! what a pale horror will appear in your countenances? Will you not then wish, O that the time I have spent in vanity had been spent in the duties of serious piety! O that I had been as careful of my soul, as I was of my body! What are the pains of mortification, which I was so afraid of, to the pains of damnation, which I begin to scent, and apprehend! I thought it hard to pray, mourn, and deny myself; but I shall find it harder to grapple with the wrath of an incensed God to all eternity.

Supposition 2. Suppose yourselves now to be at the judgment-seat of God, where you know you must be immediately after death; or, that you did behold the process, and awful solemnity of the general judgment of the great day! both which appearances are indisputably sure, and certain, Heb. ix. 27. 2 Cor. v. 10. Suppose you saw all Adam's posterity there assembled, and convened, even multitudes, multitudes which no man can number; all these separated into two grand divisions; Christ, the supreme and final Judge, upon the judgment-seat; the Christless, and unregenerate world, quivering at the bar; the last sentence pronouncing on them; the executioners standing ready to take them away: Will you not then (think you) be ready to tear yourselves with indignation, for this your supine and sottish carelessness? A voice from the throne, like the voice of a trumpet, sounds a loud alarm to all careless, negligent, and trifling sinners: And this is the voice, if you will not be in the same case with the miserable, condemned world. Put to it heartily, then, in the use of all means with God and men, for converting and regenerating grace now, which is the only thing that differences your state from those miserable wretches then.

Supposition 3. Suppose God did but give you a foretaste, or foretaste in the terrors of your consciences, of that damnation you have jested at, and so often imprecated upon yourselves: Did you but lie one night in that plight poor Spira, and many others beside him have done, with the terrors of the Lord upon your spirits, under horror, and remorse of conscience, which are the first niblings and bitings of that worm which shall never die:

—Tum pallida mens est

Criminibus, tacita judant praecordia culpa. *

Paleness and horror, fear and trembling, upon the outward and inward man, whilst God is making the immediate impressions of his wrath upon the conscience; seeming to want some one to let out that miserable, wretched soul, that is weary to

* The mind now conscious of its guilt, Feels hell within: the self's a horrid sight.
stay any longer in the body, and yet afraid to be dislodged, lest its condition be made worse by the exchange: do you think you would ever implicate damnation any more? And yet all these terrors and horrors upon the conscience, are but as the sweating of marble-stone, before the great rains fall.

But what if God should give you a vision of hell itself, and of the unconceivable, and inexpressible misery of those desperate, and forlorn wretches, that lie there sweltering, and groaning under the heavy pressures of the wrath of a great and terrible God, immediately, and everlastingly transfixed upon their souls? Would you ever jest with damnation any more, as with an harmless thing? Nay, would you not strive to the uttermost, to flee from this wrath to come? Do you not seem to hear, in this rational and just supposition, and doleful cry coming from hell, and the state of the damned, with this very sound and sense? 'Good souls, if ever you expect to be delivered from this state, and place of torments, strive, to the utmost, strive while you have opportunity, strive whilst breath and strength do last, to flee from, and escape, by a sound conversion, this doleful state of eternal damnation.'

Supposition 4. Lastly, and in a word, suppose you had a vision of heaven, as Stephen and Paul had in the body; suppose you saw the glory of God, and Jesus standing at his right hand, surrounded with the triumphant myriads of palm-bearing saints, singing Hosanna's and Hallelujahs to God, and the Lamb for ever; and blessing, praising, and admiring him that gave them another spirit, vastly different from that which governs such as you: Blessing the Lord, that enabled them to be praying and praising, whilst others were cursing and swearing; to be sighing and groaning for sin in secret, whilst others were shouting and singing in taverns and ale-houses; to beat down their bodies, and keep them under, whilst others were pleasing and gratifying their lusts; would you still drive that course you do? Well, sirs, if ever you expect to come where these blessed ones are, you must take the course they did. Let this be your endeavour, and it shall be my fervent, and hearty prayer.
Go forth, ye daughters of Zion, and behold king Solomon, with the crown wherewith his mother crowned him in the day of his espousals, and in the day of the gladness of his heart.

A Crown is the top of earthly glory, the culminating point of human dignity. Psalm xxi. 2, 3. "Thou hast given him his heart's desire; thou hast set a crown of pure gold upon his head." The ambition of the many, moves in various spheres below it; the ambition of none aspires above it, except it be that anomalous monster, the man of sin, who affects to sit in the very throne of God, and exalts himself above all that is called God, 2 Thes. ii. 4.

When God puts a crown upon the head, and a sceptre into the hand of a man, he engraves upon that man (in a qualified sense) both his name, and the lively characters of his Majesty and authority, Psalm lxxxii. 6. "I have said, ye are gods, and all of you the children of the Most High." But yet, in all the grants and conveyances of Heaven, there is always a reservation and salvo to the divine prerogative, to displace it at pleasure, and set it upon what head he shall please, Ezek. xxi. 26. "Thus saith the Lord God, Remove the diadem, and take off the crown: This shall not be the same: Exalt him that is low, and abase him that is high."

Though dominion be not founded in grace, yet grace both embellishes, and secures the dominion of men. The princes of the earth owe fealty and homage to Jesus Christ; and had some of them been more subject to his laws, their kingdoms had flourished, and their government been more auspicious.

* The Lord dethrones kings, disposes of kingdoms.

The coronation-day of a king, is, in a sense, the marriage-day betwixt him and his people, and is accordingly solemnized with all the signs and demonstrations of joy and gladness: For the ascent of a king is among them. Thus when the crown of Israel was set upon the head of Solomon, the scripture represents their exuberant joy, in an elegant, and lofty hyperbole: 1 Kings i. 40. "And all the people came up after him; and the people piped with pipes, and rejoiced with great joy, so that the earth rent with the sound of them."

Carnal men rejoice carnally, and spiritual men should rejoice spiritually: The most glorious part of the solemnity of such a day, consists in,

1. Praises and prayers for him that wears the crown.
2. In a spiritual improvement of the action to ourselves.

1. In praises and prayers for the king, whom God hath set over us. Your prayers and praises reflect more glory upon the crown, than all the jewels and sparkling stones with which it shines: And so I am persuaded our king will account it; according to Zech. xii. 5. "The governors of Judah shall say in their hearts, The inhabitants of Jerusalem shall be my strength in the Lord of Hosts their God."

Praise thy God, O England! for setting thy crown this day upon the head of a Protestant prince; who accounted not his treasures, or blood, dear unto him, to redeem the interest of Christ out of the dangers that were ready to swallow it up.

Pray fervently for your king this day: The concerns of the people of God are so great in him, as that they exact from all the saints the utmost importunity in prayer.

1. That God would cleanse and wash the crown of England from all that guilt and pollution it hath contracted under former governments, that the sins of the crown may not descend with it.

2. That the royal head on which it shall be set this day, may be filled with the wisdom of God, and matched with an holy heart, inflamed with love to God, and zeal for his glory.

3. That as soon as men have set the crown upon his head, he may cheerfully take it off again, and cast it at the feet of Jesus Christ, as the twenty-four elders did, Rev. iv. 10. "And the twenty-four elders fell down before him that sat on the throne, and worshipped him that liveth for ever and ever, and cast their crowns before the throne," &c.

Vol. VIII.
That God would make the crown sit easy, and long upon his royal head. Easy, because crowns are usually lined with thorny cares; and long, for the church's peace and tranquillity.

Secondly, The next thing belonging to the due solemnity of this day, will be the spiritual improvement of the whole scene of actions, to your own instruction and spiritual advantage; and this will be much more glorious, than all the triumphant arches, royal robes, thundering guns, and loud acclamations of the people. To this purpose, I have chosen this text, for the direction, and spiritualizing of the duties of the day. "Go forth, ye daughters of Zion, and behold king Solomon, with the crown wherewith his mother crowned him, in the day of his espousals, and in the day of the gladness of his heart."

This book of the Canticles, is a spiritual epitphalamium, sung in parts, betwixt the heavenly Bridegroom, and the bride. The matter of it is most spiritual and weighty, the stile of it rapturous and lofty, the intimate union and communion of Christ and the church, is elegantly illustrated in an allegory of marriage: But nothing is found here light, or obscene.

It is a crystal stream of pure spiritual love, sliding sweetly betwixt two pleasant banks, Christ and the church.

In the ninth and tenth verses you have the description of a triumphant chariot, prepared by king Solomon for the daughters of Jerusalem: "The pillars thereof of silver, the bottom of gold, the covering of purple, and the midst thereof paved with love." A chariot is an instrument framed for easy, safe, and honourable conveyance: This chariot is the covenant of grace, fitted by Christ for the safe and honourable transporting of his bride, the church, through this world, to her stately pavilion, or glorious mansion in the highest heavens.

But how stately and magnificent forever this royal chariot be, he that contrived and framed it is much more glorious to behold: And therefore, in the next words, which are my text, believers are summmoned, and invited to behold and contemplate Christ, that framed it: "Go forth, ye daughters of Zion, and behold king Solomon, with his crown," &c. In which words we have,

1. The spectators summmoned, or invited.

Hence, far hence what e'er's profane:
There's nought to feed your unachalte flame,
2. The spectacle they are invited to see.

1. The spectators invited; the daughters of Zion. By Zion, understand the church; and by the daughters of Zion, the members of the church, or every particular believer: These are here invited, or summoned to go forth, i.e., of their entangling, diverting temptations; and to behold, viz. by the eye of faith, this most glorious, and heart-ravishing object.

2. The spectacle they are invited to behold and contemplate; king Solomon, with his crown, &c. the most illustrious, glorious, and ravishing sight that ever the eyes of men did, or shall behold. By king Solomon, understand Christ; of whom Solomon in this book, is the figure, or shadow; yet one to whom Solomon, in all his glory was but a depainted sun on a signpost, to the sun in the mid-heavens, shining in all his glory.

And by his crown, understand not any material crown, as that of Solomon's was; but the glory and honour that is put upon Christ, the king of Zion, of which glory a crown is the emblem.

What crown is here meant, interpreters are not all agreed about it; some would have it to be understood of our human nature, which he was crowned withal by his mother Mary, of whom he took it: But though this assumption of our nature, put such a crown of glory upon it as it never had before, yet it was rather an obscuring of Christ's glory, than any addition of glory to him.

Others interpret it of the crown of thorns, with which his mother (the Jewish church, or synagogue) crowned him in the day of his passion at Jerusalem: But this seems to be as hard and foreign a sense as the former.

The most judicious expositors are agreed in a third sense, viz. That, by the crown on Christ's head, we are to understand that glory and honour, which believers give unto, or put upon Christ, when in the day of their espousals to him by faith, renouncing Satan, sin, and all that had exercised dominion over them before, with all trust and dependance on any righteousness of their own, they give their deliberate, full, and hearty consent, that Christ alone shall reign over them for ever and ever; saying, "The Lord is our King, the Lord is our Judge, the Lord is our Lawgiver." Christ is "the Lord our righteousness," and in all things we will obey him. This Christ esteems as a crown of glory put upon his head, in the day of his espousals, and in the day of the gladness of his heart. There is no such honour, no such pleasure a poor sinner can give to Christ, as to believe in him; this is as the putting of a crown of glory upon his head. It is true, it adds no glory to him, but it is the greatest manifestation of his glory, we are capable to make.

Objection. But then it will be objected, in what sense believers can be tolerably said his mother? For the text tells us, it was the crown his mother put upon him.

Answer. They may be so styled in a double respect:

(1.) Because Christ is formed in every believer, he is (in a spiritual sense) conceived and formed in their souls, as the child is formed in its mother's womb. So the apostle speaks, Gal. iv. 19. "My little children, of whom I travail again in a birth, till Christ be formed in you."

(2.) In respect of the dear affection Christ bears to every soul that believeth in him. No man loves his brother, sister, or mother, as Christ esteemeth and loves believers, Mark iii. 34. when he was told, his mother and brethren were without seeking him; he said, "Behold my mother, and my brethren: For whosoever shall do the will of God, the same is my brother, and sister, and mother." The day of a sinner's content to come under Christ's government, is the day of his espousals, 2 Cor. xi. 2, and the day of a sinner's espousals to Christ, is the day of the gladness of his heart, Luke xv. 32. Thus you have the parts and sense of the text. The point from it is this:

Doct. That the day of a believer's espousals to Christ by faith, is to Christ as the day of a king's coronation is to him, even the day of the gladness of his heart.

It is very remarkable, what we find in Luke x. 21. where the Spirit hath carefully recorded one hour of joy in the life of Christ; for he had not many, being a man of sorrows, and acquainted with grief. "In that hour, Jesus rejoiced in spirit," faith the text: And what hour was that? Why, it was the same hour in which the seventy returned with these joyful tidings to him; "Lord, even the devils are subject to us through thy name," ver. 17. The hour when Christ saw Satan falling as lightning from heaven," ver. 18. his kingdom tottering, his forces routed by the gospel, his subjects running away to Christ, from under his cruel bondage, and made willing to come under his government: "In that hour, " Jesus rejoiced in spirit." This was joyful news to Christ, it was the day of the gladness of his heart: He had now got a new throne in the souls of poor sinners, over whom the devil and sin had reigned; this was a crown of glory to Christ.

In opening this point, I shall discourse these three things:
In what respect a sinner's espousals to Christ resembles the day of a king's coronation over his subjects.

Wherein these two days differ each from other.

On what accounts it is the day of the gladness of Christ's heart, as the text calls it.

And then apply it.

Let me shew the resemblances and agreements which are betwixt the day of a king's coronation, and the day of a sinner's espousals to Christ by faith. And this will appear in six respects:

1. A king that is duly crowned over his subjects, hath a lawful right to govern them, either by lineal descent, conquest, or compact. Solomon had his right and title to the kingdom by descent from his royal father David, who, by his last will and testament, constituted and appointed him to be his immediate successor upon the throne of Israel, 1 Kings i. 35. The Roman Caesar's title to that kingdom, was by conquest, and this title was legitimated not only by the Jews acknowledgment of it, but also by Christ's express owning it, and submission to it. The people said, "We have no king but Caesar," John xix. 15. And Christ owned it, Luke xx. 25. when he had paid tribute, saying, "Give unto Caesar, the things that are Caesar's." But David had his title by compact with, and voluntary election of the people: Abner confers with the elders of Israel about it, and they meet David at Hebron, and there choose him king, in the room of Saul, 2 Sam. v. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5. and that in consideration of the eminent service he had performed for that kingdom, in delivering them from their mortal enemies the Philistines, enemies to their religion, and civil liberties. And certainly, the crown of Israel was not a reward above the merit of such a performance. "Then came all the tribes of Israel to David unto Hebron, and said, Behold we are thy bone, and thy flesh. Also in time past, when Saul was king over us, thou wert he that leddest out, and broughtest in Israel: And the Lord said to thee, Thou shalt feed my people Israel; and thou shalt be a captain over Israel. So all the elders of Israel came to the king to Hebron, and king David made a league with them in Hebron, before the Lord: And they anointed David king over Israel."

But Christ hath right to reign over our souls, by all these titles and claims: The throne of our souls, by his Father's constitution and decree, Psalm ii. 6. "Yet have I set my king upon my holy hill of Zion," by conquest, for he wins it by the sword of his Spirit, before he possessed it. 2 Cor. i. 4.
A Coronation-Sermon, preached at Dartmouth.

He casts down by spiritual weapons all that opposeth, and bringeth every thought into obedience to him. And he hath right also, by consent and compact, Psalm cx. 3. "The people shall be willing in the day of thy power." Of which more anon.

(2.) On the coronation-day, kings appear in all their royal robes, glittering jewels, and all the luftre that can be put upon them; they shine in the eyes of the people more gloriously than all that are about them. Velut luna, inter minora sidera; There is none like him, in the beauty of his ornaments. Much more doth Christ excel all others in beauty and glory, in the eyes of those that chuse him for their Lord and King. 1 Pet. ii. 7. "To you that believe, he is precious." Honour itself. Col. i. 17. "He is before all things;" not only in time, or in order, but in real dignity, and solid glory and excellency. So his spouse pronounceth him, Psalm xlv. 2. "Thou art fairer than the children of men; grace is poured into thy lips." And Cant. v. 10. "My beloved is white and ruddy; the chieftest among ten thousand." Examine and mark all the creatures in both worlds, angels and men, and they bear no more proportion to Christ in glory, than a glow-worm to the sun.

(3.) On the coronation-day, the consent of the people is demanded, and given. Consent was demanded by Abner, in the behalf of David, 2 Sam. iii. 17, 18. and freely given by them, in order to David's coronation, 2 Sam. v. 1, 2, 3, 4. Thus at the coronation of our kings, the consent of the nobles and commonality is demanded on the public theatre, in these words:

"I Here present you such an one, (naming the king) the rightful inheritor of the crown of this realm: Are you willing to do your homage, service, and do bounden duty to him?"

And they say,

"We are willing; or signify they are so, by their loud and joyful acclamations."

So it is, when Christ is crowned King over the soul; his right is asserted, and their consent demanded by his ambassadors; the believer manifests his hearty consent, Psalm cx. 3. "Thy people shall be willing in the day of thy power." And over all that are made truly willing to receive him, he reigns, and invests them with all the privileges of his kingdom, John i. 12. The unbeliever is not willing to come under Christ's government. John v. 4. You will not come to me,

&c. And the issue of their unwillingness, is their eternal ruin, Luke xix. 27. "But those mine enemies, that would not that I should reign over them; bring them hither, and slay them before me." Now to make a soul truly willing to accept Christ's government, and give his consent to him, four things must be done upon, and by such a soul: (1.) He must be convinced of his sin and misery; no man will be willing to change his Lord, whilst he finds no matter of complaint. (2.) He must know, and deliberate upon the terms of Christ; for an ignorant person cannot be said to consent; Non consentit, qui non sentit. Christ will have all the world to know his terms, and will not hide the worst and hardest things from them, whether they like them or not: No man shall say afterwards, I was surprized, or imposed upon; had I known this, I had never consented to be a Christian. Therefore the hardest terms of Christianity are plainly propounded, Luke xiv. 26. and that to cut off all after-pleas and pretences for resiling from Christ, John xvi. 1. "These things have I spoken to you, that ye should not be offended in me." (3.) Upon deliberation, there must appear to the soul that chufeth Christ, and consents to his government, a preponderating good; that Christ, with all his reproaches and sufferings, is better than sin, with all its honours and pleasures: No man will change for no advantage, much less to his loss. Thus Moses saw more glory and excellency in the very reproaches of Christ, than in all the treasures of Egypt, or pleasures of sin, Heb. xi. 25, 26. O! faith the soul, though there be hard and bitter sufferings in the way of godliness, yet it is infinitely better for me to endure them for Christ, than to be damned. And upon balancing the gains and losses, the conveniences and inconveniences of Christianity, the odds appear so great, that the soul pronounceth they are not worthy to be compared, Rom. viii. 18. (4.) When all is done, there must be a divine Almighty influence upon the will; without which, men will never heartily consent to Christ's terms. "No man (faith Christ) can come unto me, except my Father, which hath sent me, draw him," John vi. 44. This influence of God upon the will, is in a way suitable to its nature, Hos. xi. 4. and produceth a consent without coaction. If the Lord shew any man the infinite advantages that come and accrue to his soul by Christ, this very discovery doth, as it were, compel that man to come in to Christ; as that expression is used, Luke xiv. 23. a scripture vilely abused in our times. Christ compels none into his kingdom, as the Spaniards did the poor Indians to baptize, or as others have been compelled to the Lord's table: He will reign over a willing people, or not reign at all.

(4.) On the coronation-day, a champion appears on the king's behalf, to challenge any that shall deny his right, or by allurements or threatenings attempt to draw his subjects from their duty and allegiance: He throws down the gauntlet, and defies the proudest enemy the king hath.

So when Christ is crowned King over the souls of his people, there is a public defiance bid, a formal challenge given, to all the enemies of Christ and his people; as you may read at large, Rom. viii. 33, 34, 35. “Who shall lay any thing to the charge of God's elect? Who is he that condemneth? Who shall separate us from the love of Christ?” Devils and men are defined to do their worst. Christ must reign, till all his enemies are put under his feet: Sin shall not have dominion over his people, for they are not under the law, but under grace. Come, Gebal, Ammon, and Amalek; come Satan, and all his infernal powers; they are all deciphered in the name of Christ. Believers are his own subjects, and none shall pluck them out of his hand.

(5.) At, or about, the coronation-day, an act of indemnity, pardon and oblivion, is past and published, pardoning the o"fences the subjects had committed unto that day. Thus it is at the day of Christ's coronation over the believer's soul, and its espousals to him by faith; all his sins are pardoned, new and old, great and small. And of this, proclamation is openly made in the gospel, Acts x. 43. “To him give all the prophets witness, that through his name, whatsoever believeth in him, shall receive remission of sins.” O glorious pardon! free without purchase; full without exception, and final without revocation. Now there is a goal-delivery, the prison-doors are open, liberty proclaimed to the captives, Isa. lxi. 1, 2. The King of Sion is a merciful King, and his subjects shall find him so: They have gladdened his heart, by accepting his government; and he will glad theirs, by his pardons: The Son hath made them free, and they are free indeed.

(6.) In a word, a coronation-day is a day of gladness, a day of joy and triumph; joy displays itself in the faces of all loyal subjects; those only that had rather be under another government, hang the head, and bite the lip.

So it is here; all that are loyal subjects to Jesus Christ, rejoice exceedingly in his government; and it must needs be so, because his kingdom consists in joy in the Holy Ghost, Rom. xiv. 17. When Zaccheus came under this King, he came down joyfully, Luke xix. 6, 9; when the eunuch received him for his Lord and King, he went home rejoicing, Acts viii. 39. when Samaria submitted to his sceptre, there was great joy in that city, Acts viii. 5, 6, 7. and let the joy be what it will, the causes of joy are greater than the joy itself. But those that belong to Satan's kingdom, that love to be under the dominion of sin, and hate the strictness and severities of religion; these are the only malecontents; these fret to see Christ's kingdom enlarged, and secretly plot to destroy it. Thus we see the agreement betwixt the day of a king's coronation over his subjects, and Christ's coronation over believers.

But though they harmonize in these particulars, and divers others that may be named; yet, 1stly, There are as many remarkable differences and dissimilarities betwixt them, but none to the believers loss or disadvantage; for they all fall on his side: As, ex. gr.

1. It is not the privilege of every subject, no, not of one among many thousands, to see the king who is crowned over them, to hear his voice, or give their explicit consent in his presence; but every subject in Christ's kingdom doth see Christ by the eye of faith. John vi. 40. "He that seeth the Son, and believeth on him." Seeing, and believing, are terms convertible; they do all hear his voice, and give their explicit consent to take him for their King. Union with Christ is not a work to be done by a proxy, or representative; but it is the result of a solemn debate betwixt Christ and the soul.

2. Kings are crowned over many that love them not, but are filled with prejudice against their persons and government. But it cannot be so in the kingdom of Christ; To them that believe, he is precious, 1 Pet. ii. 7. All Christ's subjects love him above father or mother, wife or children, yea, above their own lives; otherwise they cannot be his subjects, Luke xiv. 26. They also delight in his government, and nothing would be more pleasant to their souls, than to find every thought of their heart brought into subjection to him, 2 Cor. x. 4, 5. They dare not confederate with his enemies, and will chuse rather to die, than forfake him: They will esteem it a glorious thing, though their right arm should be severed from their shoulder-blade, for their regular endeavours to defend and support the crown upon the head of their royal Master.

3. The relation betwixt a king and his subjects, may, and must be dissolved by death: death fears not to arrest the most potent monarch upon his throne, and translate his crown to another head.
But our King, Christ, lives for ever; death hath no dominion over him: his kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and his dominion that which shall have no end, Dan. vii. 13, 14. Death is so far from separating Christ, and his subjects, that it brings them nearer together than ever they were before; it brings them into his immediate presence, to his facial vision, 1 Cor. xiii. 12. and fixes them there for ever, 1 Thess. iv. 17.

(4.) Kings may degenerate unto tyrants, and subjects into rebels; they may undermine the laws, liberties, and religion of their people: they that rule over the people, may make them to howl, Isa. lii. 5. The world is too full of such instances and examples; but Christ can never oppress his subjects. “The sceptre of his kingdom is a right sceptre,” Psal. xlv. 6. “His yoke is easy, and his burden is light,” Matth. xi. 29. And his true subjects can never shake off their allegiance to him; they shall rather die, than do it.

(5.) Kings will not permit their greatest favourites to sit in their thrones; it is their peculiar honour, and not communicable to any. Gen. xli. 40. “Only in the throne, I will be greater than thou,” said Pharaoh to his Joseph.

But Christ permits, and appoints all his subjects to sit with him upon his throne, Rev. iii. 21. The glory which God gave him, he hath given to them, John xvii. 22. What king is like Christ?

(6.) To conclude: the joy and triumph at a king’s coronation, is only among men, in this lower world; but the joy and triumph at Christ’s coronation, is among angels in heaven, Luke xv. 7. The city of God holds a solemn triumph at the conversion of a particular sinner; what are the shouts of men, to the jubilations of angels?

Thus you have six particulars wherein they agree, and as many in which they differ.

We come, in the next place, to enquire into,

3dly. The reasons why Christ’s coronation over believers, is the day of the gladness of his heart. And it must be so,

(1.) Because it is Christ’s marriage-day, at least the day of his espousals; and the day of marriage, or espousals, is a day of joy and gladness. Christ hath now a new spouse, a soul, in which he never dwelt before; and as a bridegroom rejoiceth over the bride, so doth Christ over believers, Isa. lxii. 5. Here is a new relation entered, and that with the King of kings; the angels of God rejoice exceedingly in it, but much more Christ, the blessed Bridegroom.

(2.) It is Christ’s day of conquest and victory over Satan, the day in which he hath deposed him from his throne, Matth.
A Coronation-Sermon, preached at Dartmouth.

xii. 29. delivered a soul, of invaluable worth in his eyes, out of the power of darkness, and translated it into his own kingdom, Col. i. 13. and the day of conquest is a day of extraordinary joy and triumph, Isa. ix. 3.

(3.) It is the day in which he receives the fruit and reward of his bloody travels, and bitter agonies: there is now a son, or daughter, born to God, an heir born to the heavenly inheritance. Now it is most pleasant and joyful to Jesus Christ, to see of the travail of his soul, Isa. liii. 11. no satisfaction in this world comparable to it. When a young heir is born to the kingdom and crown of heaven, it defers a triumph.

(4.) It is the day in which Christ finds a soul that was lost, Luke xv. 5, 6. What joy was it to the Father of the prodigal, when he had found his lost son? Luke xv. 20. there was mirth and music, feasting and rejoicing: "This my Son was lost," "and is found; was dead, and is alive."

Poor sinners are lost creatures by nature, they have lost their God, and therein themselves too. God hath lost, and the devil found, every unregenerate sinner: all strays from God fall to his share. But this loss is not irrecoverable; the errand and end for which Christ came into the world, was to seek and to save that which was lost, Matth. xviii. 11. and when the sinner that was lost comes home to him by repentance and faith, he obtains the end of his incarnation, life, and death, upon that soul; which cannot but be the day of the gladness of his heart.

If then the day of a king's espousals, or marriage, be a day of joy and gladness to his soul; if a day of conquest, and dividing the spoils, be a day of joy to the conqueror, after a sharp and bloody fight; if it be a joy to a mother, after long and fore travail, to embrace her in her arms, and kiss the child, for whom she endured so many bitter throws; if it be a joy to a father to find and recover a child that was lost, and as dead to him: in a word, if it be high delight and satisfaction to see a great design, on which the heart is intently set, brought at last, by orderly conduct, to the desired happy issue; then let us allow the day of a sinner's coming into Christ by conversion, to be as a coronation-day to a king, the day of his espousals, and of the gladness of his heart.

Use I. This point, like a fruitful root, sends forth many branches, and all laden with diversity of fruits. The first is for information, in several inferences from it.

Inference 1. Be informed from hence, what is the true cause... and reason of Satan's rage and spite against the gospel, and the most painful, able, and successful preachers of it in the world. The great design of the gospel, and of all that sincerely preach it, is to win and persuade Satan's subjects to forswear his cruel, unjust, and tyrannical government, and submit to the kingdom and sceptre of the Lord Jesus. What is the preaching of the gospel, but the sounding of a trumpet in the devil's kingdom, to win his subjects from their allegiance to him, to proclaim another king in his territories? Every faithful minister's business is, to gather those wretched vassals of Satan together, and set before them the miserable captivity and bondage they are in, under that tyrant that rules over them, (whose laws, like Draco's, are written in the blood of their souls), to exaggerate their sin and misery, and so let them know how willing Christ is to receive and save them, if they will renounce and abandon Satan's government. To set before them the blessed freedom, and glorious privileges of the subjects of Christ; to beseech and persuade them, to break away from their old cruel master, and come over to Christ: to answer all their pleas and objections against it, and to denounce the wrath of God against all the refusers of Christ's gracious proclamation. Now Satan is not ignorant of all this; he esteemeth the loss of one, much more the revolt of many, a greater mischief, than a king reckons the loss of a kingdom: and to see them break away from him, and be lifted to sight against him; O how it grieves that envious spirit, and sharpens his malice against the instruments and agents in this work! This, as a late worthy speaks, torments the foul spirit, to see himself forsaken of his old friends and servants, and this new Lord to come and take away his subjects from him. Hence come persecutions, slanders, &c. in showers, upon Christ's faithful ministers. He knows his kingdom of darkness must vanish, as the light of the gospel rises, and spreads itself. You read, Rev. xiv. 6, 7. of "an angel flying in the midst of heaven, having the everlasting gospel to preach to them that dwell on the earth." And in ver. 8. you have another angel following him, saying, Babylon is fallen, is fallen, that great city! No sooner is the two-edged sword of the gospel drawn, but the next voice is, Victory! Victory! He knows every home-charge made by the gospel, will issue in a rout of his infernal legions. Now ministers coming forth against him as heralds, to proclaim Christ's right, and as captains of the army of Christ, their general; he owes them a particular grudge, and seeks every way to stop their mouths, and destroy their persons. And surely he hath pulled hard at them, and made desperate attempts against them, in our days. No doubt but it was reckoned a great service done him, so shut up the mouths of so many at once; but the time draws nigh, that Babylon must fall, and those that could not lately show their faces on earth, must fly in the midst of heaven, with the everlasting gospel. The dead witnesses of Christ shall hear shortly a great voice from heaven, saying, Come up hither; and they shall ascend in a cloud, their enemies beholding, but not able any more to hinder them.

* Spiritual Sermon, preached at Dartmouth.

Gurnall's First Part, p. 59.

Inference 2. How causeless, and altogether groundless, are the discouragements and fears of humbled and convinced sinners, that Jesus Christ will reject them, and shut the door of mercy against them, if they should go to him, and cast their poor sinful soul upon him by faith?

Certainly such persons fear, where no fear is. That which is the command of Christ, the earnest desire of his soul, that act which makes his heart glad, as the text speaks; can never meet with such a repulse as you fear. Was ever any king unwilling to have the crown set upon his head? Do they use to frown upon their subjects that are upon the knee, tendering their homage and allegiance to them? No, no; it is the day of the gladness of their hearts. Renounce thy old master Satan, give a bill of divorce to those lusts which have reigned over thy soul, ponder well Christ's terms, and heartily consent to them, and try whether he will not quickly confute these vain fears of thine, and fully make good his gracious, sweet, and most encouraging word, John vi. 37. “Him that cometh unto me, I will in no wise cast out.” A sweet encouragement to a coming soul! And because sense of guilt and unworthiness usually doubles their fears, Christ hath caused a double negative to be put into that text, on purpose to obviate their fears, and discouragements; *οὐ μὴν ἀπαγάγω ἃ ἐγὼ: I will not, no, I will not: or, as we render, “I will in no wise cast him out.” Acts of delight flow freely, and easily, and so doth this.

Inf. 3. What an high and honourable relation doth faith bring the soul of a sinner into! The day of conversion is the day of that soul's espousals to Christ.

A king from heaven makes suit for a poor sinner's heart, woo's for union with sinful creatures, rejoices exceedingly, when he wins their consent, and espouses them for ever to himself, when he obtains it; for *contrafrus is nothing else, but *consensus explicatus: a contract is consent explained, in affirmative plain words, *de praefenti. I do disclaim, and for ever renounce all others; and willingly yield up my heart and life to Jesus Christ. Now, ex contractu oritur vinculum, an obligation results from this contract with Christ, and a most honourable mystical union with him. "He that is joined to " the Lord, is one spirit," 1 Cor. vi. 17. The greatest honour that was ever put upon the human nature, was by its assumption into union with the Son of God, hypostatically; and the greatest honour that can be done to our persons, is by our union with Christ, mystically; hereby we become "Members " of his body, of his flesh, and of his bones," Eph. v. 30.
the spouse of Christ. O what a preserment is this! What foul feels not itself lifted up far above all earthly honours, in such a relation to Christ as this? The nobles and barons of the kingdoms, think it a preferment to serve the queen; and the angels of heaven do not think themselves degraded, by performing service to the bride, the Lamb's wife. Well might great Constantine prefer the honour of being a member of the church, to that of being head of an empire.

Let all the saints understand their dignity and privileges, by this their honourable union with Christ; and with it let them balance all the reproaches, scorns, and contempts, this vile world loads them with for his sake.

Inference 4. Be informed hence, of the dreadful and damning nature of the sin of unbelief; a sin that questions, yea, denies Christ's right to rule over the soul; blinds the mind, hardens the heart, stiffens the will, and makes the soul obdurate and inflexible to all the gracious tenders of Christ in the gospel.

Unbelief is the poisonous breath of Satan, whispering jeaalousies, surmises, and dangerous prejudices against Christ into the ear of the soul, and all tending to this mischievous design and purpose, viz. to hinder or break the treaty of the spiritual marriage betwixt Christ and the soul. Now it will be digging at the very root and foundation of the assenting act, and thus it whispers, how canst thou be sure of the reality of the things reported in the gospel? Is it not possible they may be deviled fables, the cunning artifices of men, to keep the world in awe? Thou never sawest Christ, for whose sake thou art so earnestly solicited to renounce all thy real, sweet, and present comforts and enjoyments. Then it dilates rhetorically upon these severer terms of the gospel, advises the soul to think sadly, how hard, grievous, and unreasonable the demands of Christ are, Luke xiv. 26. "If any man come to me, and hate
" not his father and mother, wife and children, brethren and " sisters, yea, and his own life also, he cannot be my disciple."
How likest thou this, soul? Here are all thy principal comforts, thy most dear and desirable things in the world, both personal and relative, to be forsworn, yea, hated for Christ's sake: the terms are set so high, that a man must lose his brains and bowels too, faith unbelieving, before he can be wrought up to them. Canst thou endure to see all thy labours of thy life to become a prey to thine enemies? That which hath cost thee so much study and toil, scattered and destroyed in a day, when it is yet in the power of thine hand to save all; thy habitation to cast thee out, thy pleasant fields possessed by strangers: *Impious has segetes; hast thou hardiness enough to encounter beggary? to fight with hunger, thirst, and nakedness? to lie in a nasty goal, to endure a parting pull with nearest relatives, which are as thine own soul? But yet there are harder trials than these. Canst thou endure a tormenting death, by cruel barbarous enemies? Canst thou stand quietly at a stake, and endure the exquisite torments of the fire, and that in the fulness of thy time, whilst thou art in the flower of thine age, fulness of thy senses, and hast so fair a prospect of many pleasant years before thee; and all this for an unseen glory in another world? These are the feeling arguments urged by infidelity, against embracing Christ's overtures in the gospel, or coming under the sceptre of this new Lord: and with how many do they prevail; thus Satan fixes his subjects, and makes them secure to himself.

But sinner, if God have any intention of saving mercy to thy soul, thou shalt feel the more potent principles of divine faith and love over-powering and subduing these carnal reasonings within thy soul. It is admirable to behold the Almighty influences of grace upon nature; how the drawings of the Spirit, his omnipotent pull at the heart, makes the strongest ties this world hath upon it, to give way, and easily to loose. Mark x. 28. “Lord, we have left all, and followed thee.” If not, but thou be fixedly resolved not to change Satan's government for Christ's; if thou say in thy heart, and stand to that saying, I will never consent to such hard conditions; then hear thy sentence, read thy mittimus, Luke xix. 27. “But those mine enemies, that would not that I should reign over them; bring hither, and slay them before me.” The sentence is dreadful, the execution sure; thy unbelief will as surely damn thee, as a millstone about thy neck, in the midst of the sea, will drown thee, Mark xiv. 16. “He that believeth not, shall be damned.” Thou hast cast the vilest dishonour upon Christ, thou hast rejected the only way of salvation; and what can the issue of thy final unbelief be, but ruin and destruction?

Use It. My next work will be persuasive work, to gain the consent of the souls to come under the sceptre and government of Christ; to make his heart glad, and yourselves happy for ever, by your espousals to him: And O that I could this day so represent this king in his glory, so discover the miserable thraldom you are in under Satan, and your lusts; so clear up the reasonableness and easiness of Christ's terms and demands, that there might be as cheerful and hearty (though not so loud and audible) an applause, and acclamations returned to demand of your consent to Christ, as this day are, or ever were at the coronation of any king.

1. And to this end, first consider the glory and dignity of the person of Christ; he is the Son of God by nature, the brightness of his glory, and the express image of his person, Heb. i.3. “He is the Prince of the kings of the earth,” Rev.
i.5. The most glorious monarch that ever swayed a sceptre over men, is but as a worm of the earth, or a despicable insect in the air, compared with Solomon in his glory; the most perfected beauty in the creatures, beneath or above, is blackness and deformity, in comparison with Christ: the beauty of roses, lilies, sun, stars, angels, is not worthy to be mentioned in comparison with Christ: “Thou art fairer (faith his spouse) than the sons of men.” None ever saw him savingly by the eye of faith, but were charmed into his bosom by love. The facial vision of Christ is the feast of blessed souls above.

This king of glory makes suit for your hearts this day; he woo's for your consent; he passed by apostate angels, not once making them a tender of reconciliation or union, but comes to you in his red garments, glorious in his apparel: he shed his invaluable blood to redeem you to God; he loved you, and gave himself for you: if there be a drop of love in your hearts, methinks the excellency of Christ should extract and engage it. Write that man a beast, a senseless stock, that hath no love for Christ.

2. Consider, What a blessed state, abounding with glorious and invaluable privileges, your consent to be Christ's is introdjec-tive to: it opens to all privileges, mercies, and blessings, desfirable in the eyes of men; it opens into freedom and liberty, from the vassalage of Satan, the servitude of sin, the curse of the law, the danger of wrath to come. John viii. 36. “If ' the Son, therefore, make you free, then are ye free indeed.”
It opens the door into rest and peace; peace with God, peace in your own consciences, Rom. v. 1, 2, 3. The deliciousness of peace you never yet tasted, who are strangers to Christ; nor ever shall, till you consent to be his, Rev. ii. 17. This shall be your support, amidst all the confusions and distractions, hurries and tumults, of this restless and unquiet world. Mic. v. 5. "This man shall be the peace when the Assyrian cometh into our land, and when he shall tread in our palaces." Christ hath pitched his standard in the gospel; repair unto it, come under his banner, and lift yourselves among his faithful subjects, and the glory of the world to come is yours, if you overcome, and be faithful unto death, Rev. iii. 21. The subjects of Christ, in this kingdom of grace, are shortly to be all translated into the kingdom of glory, Rom. vii. 36.

3. Consider the miserable bondage you are now in, over whom Satan rules, and how your condition still grows worse and worse, till it shall not be capable of any further addition of misery, to make it more absolutely and completely miserable.

You are now without God, without a promise, without peace, without the pardon of one sin, Eph. ii. 12. You have no communion with God, nor title to heaven; slaves to your fordid lusts, Tit. iii. 3. You are under the curse, Gal. iii. 10. condemned already, John iii. 18. and whenever you die out of Christ, you shall die in your sins, John viii. 24. He that was your ruler in the world, is to be both your companion and tormentor in the world to come, Matth. xxv. 41.

Is this a condition to be satisfied in? Can you sleep quietly in your chains? O methinks the poor prisoners of Satan should sigh and cry, through the grates of the prison, especially when they are informed of deliverance at the door.

You have no reason to scarce at the terms and conditions propounded to you by Christ; they are equal, necessary, and easy, Matth. xi. 29. "Come unto me; my yoke is easy, and my burden is light. His commands are not grievous," 1 John v. 3. "All his ways are pleasantness, and all his paths are peace," Prov. iii. 17. "The joy of the Lord shall be your strength," Nehemiah viii. 10. If there be repenting work, believing work, sin-mortifying work, or suffering work for you; there is also a suitable provision of divine assistance, to enable and carry you through it all. 2 Cor. xii. 9. "My grace is sufficient for thee." If men cast you out, God will receive you, 2 Cor. vi. 17, 18. If any sharp trial befal you, there is a door of escape prepared for your outlet, 1 Cor. x. 13. If you meet with trouble in the world, you shall not fail of peace in Christ.
A Coronation Sermon, preached at Dartmouth.

John xvi. 33. If you lose any outward enjoyment for Christ's sake, it shall be recompenced an hundred-fold in this world, besides the reward of heaven hereafter, Matth. xix. 29. If you be cast in prison for Christ, the Comforter shall come from heaven, and rest upon you there, 1 Pet. iv. 13, 14. If you suffer with him, you shall reign with him, 2 Tim. ii. 12.

What think ye, brethren, of Christ's terms now? What is there here, for men to scare and fright at? Can you mend yourselves elsewhere? O when shall the match be made? When will you come to Christ, and say, 'Lord, I heartily consent to take thee for my King: I am pleased with the hardest condition required in thy word?'

Lastly, Be convinced of the unreasonableness of all that you can pretend against this great duty. If you say, 'The pains of mortification are hard, you must in reason yield, that the pains of damnation are harder, and that it is better for you to enter into life, halt and maimed, than having two eyes or hands, to be cast into hell; where the worm dies not, and where the fire is not quenched,' Matth. v. 29. If you say, you have no power to come to Christ, your consciences will presently tell you, that you never yet put forth the uttermost power that you have, in striving for your own salvation: It will also tell you, that you suppose you have such a power; else why have you so long delayed repentance and conversion upon this pretence, that you will seriously perform them hereafter? Besides, though your endeavours do not oblige God to do that for you, you cannot do of yourselves; yet it is more probable he will do so, when you strive to your utmost, than when you carelessly neglect those duties, and give yourselves up to the contrary courses. If you say, you would strive, if you were assured of success, and that you should be received and accepted by Christ, if you came unto him, and did cast your poor souls upon him; you can answer yourselves, if you will, that you daily spend your time, pains, and studies, upon lesser things, having no assurance at all of success. The husbandman toils all day at plough, yet is not assured of a good harvest; his corn may die in the seed, or be blasted in the ear. The mariner ventures his estate on the sea, yet hath no assurance of a good return; the ship may miscarry. The miner will dig into the bowels of the earth, and try here and there; yet hath no assurance he shall find that rich vein of ore, that shall recompence his cost and pains. Now if men will labour so hard, and adventure so much upon uncertainties, for a little of the world; doth not your own reason conclude, you ought to do more, and adventure further than any of them, to obtain Christ, and eternal salvation? O strive, strive to make your escape out of Satan's kingdom, to Christ: Sit not with folded hands on the seats of sloth, saying, It is to no purpose.

Suppose yourselves now upon your death-bed, all earthly comforts insipid things to you; conscience presaging the wrath to come, time and hope ending together; would you not then wish, O that we had been ruled and governed by Christ's laws and Spirit, and not by Satan, and our own lusts! Had we been the servants of Christ, we had now been going to Christ; had he governed, he would have saved us: but his servants we are to whom we obey: We have served our lusts, and the wages of sin is death.

Or suppose you saw the glory of heaven, or the horrors of hell; that you heard the hallelujahs of the palm-bearing multitude, or the shrieks of damned cast-aways; would it be indifferent a thing to you, whether you obey Christ's call, or no? Believe it, these are no devised fables, but do really exist, whether you mind them, or not. And why should you not suppose, and forethink things so sure, and so nigh? A sweet voice comes from heaven this day, saying, let all that expect to enjoy the glory that is here, see that they submit heartily to Christ's sceptre; for he saves no more than he rules: And the whole number of the glorified in heaven is made up of such as heartily closed with Christ's terms on earth. A dreadful voice comes up from hell, crying (as it were) in your ears; as ever you expect to escape the miseries and torments that are here, do not reject Christ's yoke and government as we did: Our yielding up of ourselves to the sway and government of our lusts, was our ruin.

Use III. To conclude: Let all men try their own estates, and examine to what king they do indeed belong, and whose subjects in truth they are, Christ's or Satan's; for these two kingdoms divide the whole world. God hath furnished us with self-reflecting powers; we are able to retire out of the confused noises of the world, and sit retired in the innermost closet of our own souls, where none but God and our consciences shall be privy to our debates; and there solemnly demand of our conscience, and charge it to make plain and faithful answers to such questions and enquires as these:

Quest. 1. To whom do I yield the most prompt, cheerful and constant obedience? To the commands of Christ, or to the solicitations of Satan and my own lusts? He that hath my obedience, the same is my Lord and King, Rom. vi. 16. "To whom ye yield yourselves servants to obey, his servants ye "are to whom ye obey." When God and conscience calls me to pray, and the world calls me off to attend its ensnaring pleasures, and unnecessary employments; which of these calls do I pay obedience to?

Quest. 2. Who governs the secret and unseen part of my life? That every man is, in the account of God, which he is in secret, Rom. ii. 28, 29. Now who is king in the closet? And what rules do my thoughts move by? If Christ bring my thoughts into obedience, so that I dare not indulge to myself a sinful liberty to enjoy the speculative pleasure of the sins I have acted, or would act, had I opportunity for it; And if I am in the fear of God when alone, and make conscience of my secret, as well as public duties; then I am under Christ's government, and he is king of my soul, 2 Cor. x. 5. Matth. vi. 6. But if I make an external shew of obedience to Christ, and secretly obey my lusts; I am really the servant of sin, and belong to another king. O my conscience! what sayest thou to these things?

Quest. 3. Whom do I follow, or heartily resolve to follow, when it comes to a parting-point between Christ and the world; when I must cleave to the one, and forswear the other? Matth. vi. 24. Do I with full purpose of heart cleave to the Lord? Acts xi. 23. Is it my sincere resolution to follow the Lamb whithersoever he goeth? Rev. xiv. 4. Or have I secret reserves to quit Christ's service, and give religion the slip, when it comes to real distress and difficulty? These are sounding questions, and will discover whose government we are under.

The CONCLUSION.

Thus I have endeavoured to spiritualize and improve the great and solemn actions of this good day; a day for which (I hope) the children yet unborn shall praise the Lord. How happy will our king and queen be, if they reign over a people that Christ reigneth over; and will conscientiously pay them obedience in, and for the Lord! I believe it will be a greater joy to their souls, to see you set the crown upon Christ's head, in your subjection to his laws, than to see the imperial crown of England set upon their own heads. Religion breeds the best subjects.

Let England praise the Lord for such a day as this! how many sad years are run out, since it saw the crown upon the heads of a Protestant king and queen at once! Let faithful magistrates rejoice they shall never more be put upon the odious and dangerous drudgery of persecuting good men, under such a government as this.
Let ministers rejoice, yea, let them rejoice with double joy to others! they shall no more be driven into corners, nor put to silence, (a silence as bitter as death), whilst the royal sceptre is swayed by such hands, wherein God hath now placed it.

Let all the people rejoice, for these their rulers shall be to them as the light of the morning, and as the clear shining after rain, 2 Sam. xiii. 3, 4. And let us all say, Isa. xxv. 9. “Lo, this is our God; we have waited for him, and he will save us; This is the Lord, we have waited for him; we will rejoice and be glad in his salvation.

THE CHARACTER OF A COMPLETE EVANGELICAL PASTOR, DRAWN BY CHRIST.

MAT. xxiv. 45, 46, 47.

Who then is a faithful and wise servant, whom his Lord hath made ruler over his household, to give them meat in due season? Blessed is that servant, whom his Lord, when he cometh, shall find so doing. Verily, I say unto you, that he shall make him ruler over all his goods.

This great and solemn assembly, (met upon a greater and more solemn account,) brings to my mind those words, and with the words, a very sensible touch of the same affection, with which the church uttered them, Isa. xlix. 20, 21. “Children, which thou shalt have after thou hast lost the other, shall say again in thine ears, The place is too strait for me: Give place to me, that I may dwell. Then shalt thou say in thine heart, Who hath begotten me these, seeing I have lost my children, and am desolate; a captive, and removing to and fro? And who hath brought up these? Behold, I was left alone: These, where had they been?”
446. The Character of a true Evangelical Pastor.

Words, big with holy admiration and wonderment, at her strange and sudden increase and multiplication, after such a waiting time as these seventy sad years had been to her. This was a miraculous and surprizing work of God, in their eyes.

We have had our wasting time, as well as they; multitudes of faithful and prudent ministers have been swept into their graves by ejections, banishments, imprisonments, and heart-breaking silencings. Whence then are all these which our eyes behold this day! Who hath begotten us, and brought up these? These, where had they been; and out of what secret recesses are they come?

Many thought the days of our prosperity, and opportunities of our service, had been numbered and finished, and that God had no more work (except suffering work) for us; when lo, above and beyond the desponding thoughts, and unbelieving fears of our hearts, we are here this day in a numerous assembly, with peace and liberty, to consult the affairs of Christ's kingdom.

Yea, to the joy of our souls, we see the plummets and lines, once more in the hands of our Zerubbabels; Zech. iv. 10. "Who hath despised the day of small things? For they shall rejoice, and shall see the plummets in the hand of Zerubbabel, with those seven; they are the eyes of the Lord, which run to and fro through the whole earth." Our prudent repairers, co-working with the divine providence, expressed emblematically by the seven eyes, will bring weak and contemptible beginnings, to happy and blessed results and issues. What shall one now answer the messengers of the churches? That God hath founded Sion; and the poor of his people shall trust in it.

We are met this day in all hearty loyalty to the government, and peaceableness to the national church-establishment, to review and consider the cases of our respective congregations; which I doubt we shall find too like that description, Prov. xxiv. 31. all over-grown with thorns and nettles, and the stone-wall broke down.

Thus ignorance and error have over-spread the people, and the wall of discipline greatly decayed. Our business is to cleanse our churches, and repair their walls; that so they may become gardens of delight, and beds of spices, for Christ to walk and take pleasure in.

You have ordered this meeting to be opened with a sermon, and demanded that work to my hand, by your earnest and unanimous call. I wish the work may not suffer by your choice.

When I considered the quality and occasion of this assembly, my thoughts quickly centered themselves in those words of our Lord, which I have read unto you: "Who then is a faithful and a wise servant, whom his Lord hath made ruler over his household, to give them meat in due season?"

Here we find ourselves in a parable. A parable is the veil of some divine truth: whilst we are embodied and veiled with flesh, truth must embody and veil herself too, in order to our freer converses with it. There is much truth and reason in that observation of the ancient Cabbalists: "* The supreme light never descends without a covering." Yea, faith Dionysius, the supposed Areopagite, "† It is impossible that a divine beam should otherwise shine to us, except it be covered with variety of sacred veils, and umbrages."

Not to spend much time about the order and relation of the text; Christ had been solemnly warning the disciples, and all the Christian world, of his most certain (though secret) coming to judgment; and therefore to beware of luxury, idleness, and security, the sins of the world; and that all be found, at his coming, watchful and diligent in their proper places of duty. This exhortation he infers, from what common prudence would teach any servant, especially any steward of an house to do, to whom his Lord hath committed the care of his family. It is agreed by all, that the words have a special and immediate respect to gospel-ministers, the stewards of Christ's house, or church, to whom Christ, the Lord of the family, hath trusted the care and dispensation of the affairs thereof. And in them we find,

I. An evangelical pastor described.

II. The reward of such as answer that description, propounded.

1. Christ's description of an evangelical pastor, ver. 45. which he doth by two excellent and essential properties, or qualifications, πίστις καὶ σοφία, faith and wisdom; both which make up the character of a complete gospel-minister: for if he be faithful, he deceives not others; and if wise, or prudent, he is not apt to be deceived himself: his prudence suffers not deceivers easily to impose upon him; and his faithfulness will not suffer him knowingly to impose upon his people. His prudence will enable him to discern, and his faithfulness oblige him to distribute wholesome food to his flock. These two therefore meeting

* Lumen supremum nunquam descendit sine indumento.
† Impossibile est nobis aliter lucere radium divinum, nisi varietate fæctorum velaminum circumvelatum. Caelest. Hier. cap. 1.
The Character of a true Evangelical Pastor.

448 together, make a pastor after God's own heart, according to Jer. iii. 15.

Both these are found in an interrogative form of speech in the text, but it is agreed, that \( \text{is} \) is put conditionally for \( \text{or} \), and is rather hypothetical, than interrogatory: but in this form of speech it innitates the rarity and difficulty of finding such a servant. He is \( \text{rare} \), as Theophylact glosseth it. And Chrysostom, by way of admiration, Quam rari, et praestantissimae sunt tales! i.e. 'How rare and excellent would such servants be?' These are their properties.

2. The reward of those that answer these characters, is pronounced,

1. In proper,
2. In metaphorical terms.

1. In proper terms; Blessed is that servant, ver. 46. he is certainly blessed of God, whatever his usage be from men. If he be faithful, all his prudence will not secure him from the hatred and persecution of men, but it is enough that Christ calls and counts him blessed; and those whom he blesseth, are truly and eternally blessed.

2. In metaphorical terms; ver. 47. “Verily, I say unto you, that he shall make him ruler over all his goods.” In allusion to the custom of great kings and generals, who use to prefer and advance discreet and faithful servants to places of eminent trust, profit, and honour; as Daniel and Joseph were. The sense thus cleared, runs naturally and easily into this,

Doct. That our Lord Jesus Christ will amply reward the faithful and prudent stewards of his house, in the day of their account.

This point will open itself to you in these three doctrinal branches.

1. That ministers, in a special sense, are the stewards of Christ's house.
2. Faithfulness and prudence are the necessary qualifications of Christ's stewards.
3. Wherever these are found, Christ will abundantly reward them.

1. Ministers, in a special sense, are the stewards, or chief servants of Christ's house. So speaks the apostle, 1 Cor. iv. 1. “Let a man account of us as the ministers of Christ, and stewards of the mysteries of God.” To them he hath committed the dispensation of the word and sacraments, which contain the great mysteries of the kingdom of God.

Every private person, who hath received any talent from God,
The Character of a true Evangelical Pastor: 449

(aid to be sure the meanest among us hath one talent at least,) as a steward; and will be called to an account for the employment, or non-employment of that talent in the audit-day. But ministers are stewards in the strict and special sense: Christ distinguishes them from the others, as porters from the rest of the servants; Mark xiii. 34. Nor may any assume that office, but by order from Christ, the Master of the family. But this is too obvious to stay longer upon it.

2. We will therefore immediately take into consideration, the properties or qualifications of the stewards of Christ: which are,

1. Faithfulness.
2. Prudence.
And consider them,
1. Distinctly.
2. Conjunctly.

1. Faithfulness is an essential requisite to a steward, 1 Cor. iv. 2. It is required in stewards, that a man be found faithful. What ground is there for trust, where there is no truth? Hence is that solemn charge, 2 Tim. H. 2. to commit that great trust of the ministry to faithful men. And Paul blesseth God, 1 Tim. i. 11, 12, who had accounted him faithful, and put him into the ministry. This faithfulness, as it respects God, ourselves, and the flocks committed to us, includes,

1. Pure and spiritual aims and intentions.
2. Sincerity and integrity of heart.
3. Diligence in the discharge of duty.
4. Impartiality in the administration of Christ's house.
5. And unshaken constancy and perseverance to the end.

1. Ministerial faithfulness includes pure and spiritual aims and intentions for God. A servant is his steward; it is not his own, but his master's honour, and interest, he must design and aim at. Fidelity will not endure self-ends, disguised with a pretence of zeal for Christ. It is said of the master workmen of the temple, 2 Kings xxii. 7. that there was no reckoning made with them of the money collected for that use, because they dealt faithfully, i.e. they had given sufficient proof that they appropriated not a farthing to themselves, but truly applied it to the public, sacred end and use, to which it was given. O let us be all such faithful master-builders of the house of our God! Let us say, not our interest, but Christ's; not our glory, but his. Pure ends in our service, will give us abundant comfort at the end of our service. Have a care, brethren, of all artifices and designs, to accommodate carnal interests, under a show of devotion to God.

Vol. VIII. L 11
The Character of a true Evangelical Pastor.

Timothy is our pattern in this, of whom Paul faith, Phil. ii. 20, 21. "I have no man like-minded, who will naturally care for your state; for all seek their own, not the things that are Jesus Christ's." Where the word naturally is not opposed to spiritually, but to artificially. Others had the art to cloak self-ends under Christ's honour; but Timothy was ignorant of such unfaithful tricks and artifices.

2. Ministerial faithfulness imports personal sincerity. So the word signifies, where it is said of Abraham, that God found his heart faithful; that is, sincere before him. A faithful minister is a sincere-hearted minister. And herein, brethren, O wherein, or in nothing, let us approve ourselves the ministers of Christ: Let this be our rejoicing, that in all sincerity, and godly simplicity, we have had our conversations in this world, 2 Cor. i. 12. And the rather let us be careful in this, because no sin is more apt to insinuate itself into our hearts, and duties, than hypocrisy. We, of all men, are most in danger to be deceived by it: For our employment lying in, and about spiritual things, we are, on that account, stiled spiritual men, Hof. ix. 7. But it is plain, from that very place, that a man may be objectively a spiritual, and all the while subjectively a carnal man. Believe it, brethren, it is easier to declaim, like an orator, against a thousand sins of others, than it is to mortify one sin, like Christians, in ourselves; to be more industrious in our pulpits, than in our closets; to preach twenty sermons to our people, than one to our own hearts.

Believe it, first, all our reading, studying, and preaching, is but trifling hypocrisy, till the things read, studied, and preached, be felt in some degree upon our own hearts. We tell our people (the Lord help us to tell the same to our own hearts) that there are similar, as well as saving works of the Spirit, by which their (and why not our own) souls may be loft?

3. Ministerial faithfulness includes ministerial diligence. A slothful cannot be a faithful servant. Matth. xxv. 21. "His Lord said unto him, Well done, thou good and faithful servant," &c. And ver. 26. "His Lord answered, and said unto him, Thou wicked and slothful servant," &c. I may say to him that snatched at the ministry, as Henry IV. did to his son, that hastily snatched at the crown, He little knows what
The Character of a true Evangelical Pastor.

An heap of cares and toils he snatcheth at. * "The labours of the ministry will exhaust the very marrow from your bones; hasten old age and death." They are fitly compared to the toil of men in harvest, to the labours of a woman in travail, and to the agonies of soldiers in the extremity of a battle. We must watch when others sleep.

And indeed it is not so much the expense of our labours, as the loss of them, that kills us. It is not with us, as with other labourers: They find their work as they leave it, so do not we. Sin and Satan unravel almost all we do, the impressions we make on our people's souls in one sermon, vanish before the next. How many truths have we to study! how many wiles of Satan, and mysteries of corruption, to detect! how many cases of conscience to resolve! Yea, we must fight in defence of the truths we preach, as well as study them to paleness, and preach them unto faintness: But well-spent head, heart, lungs, and all; welcome pained breasts, aching backs, and trembling legs; if we can by all but approve ourselves Christ's faithful servants, and hear that joyful voice from his mouth, "Well done, good and faithful servants."

4. Ministerial faithfulness includes our impartiality in all the administrations of Christ's house. He that is partial, cannot be faithful. O with what extraordinary solemnity doth Paul set on this exhortation upon Timothy! "I charge thee before God, and the Lord Jesus Christ, and the elect angels, that thou observe these things, without preferring one before another, doing nothing by partiality," 1 Tim. v. 21.

Brethren, you will shortly appear before an impartial God, see that ye be impartial stewards; take the same care, manifest the same love, attend with the same diligence, the poorest and weakest souls that are committed to your care, as you do the rich, the great, and honourable.

Remember all souls are rated at one value in your Master's book, and your Redeemer paid as much for the one as for the other. Civil differences must be civilly acknowledged, but these have no place in our spiritual administrations.

5. Lastly, Ministerial faithfulness includes constancy and steadiness: Not a backsliding, or flinching servant, Rev. ii. 10. "Be thou faithful, (i.e. fixed and constant) to the death, and I will give thee a crown of life." We look for happiness.

* Labores ecclesiastici succum exauriunt ab imis medullis, senium, mortemque accelerant. Luther.

L 1 1 2
as long as God is in heaven; and he expects constancy, as long as we are on earth.

Many of us have cause to bless the Lord, and greatly to rejoice in his goodness this day, who enabled us to be steadfast and unmoveable in the trials that have passed over us; and when the great earthquake shook down our liberties, our estates, and made our hearts to shake, yet your resolutions for God and his truth, stood firm and unshaken; our hearts turned not back, nor did our steps decline, though we were broken in the place of dragons, and covered with the shadow of death. This we wholly owe to him that holds the stars in his right-hand, but our warfare is not yet ended. Our faithfulness is not yet faithfulness to the death; we hope it will shortly be called so, whilst it thus involves our self-denial, sincerity, diligence, impartiality, and constancy.

These are the principal things included in the first qualification of ministerial faithfulness. In the next place let us weigh and value,

2. The second qualification in the text, viz. ministerial prudence.

The Lord's servant must not only be meek, faithful; but prudent, discreet, and wise. Fidelity and honesty make a good Christian; but the addition of prudence, to fidelity, makes a good steward. Faithfulness will fix the eye upon the right end; but it is prudence must direct to the proper means of attaining it.

If we look into Rev. iv. 6, 7. we shall there find a stately emblem of true gospel-ministers. They are λευκοὶ ἐφίλτροι, Men full of eyes. They have eyes looking before them to God for direction, behind them to the flocks they lead, and within them to their own hearts; lest after they have preached to others, themselves become cast-aways. They have also six wings; with two they cover their faces, manifesting their deep reverence of God; with two their feet, manifesting the humble sense of their infirmities; and with two they fly with cheerful expedition in the service of God. They have not only the courage of the lion, the strength of the ox, the loftiness of the eagle, but the face of a man, i. e. prudence and discretion.

The use of prudence to a minister of Christ, is unspeakably great: It not only gives cleanliness and perspicacity to the mind, by freeing it from passions and corporeal impressions, enabling it thereby to apprehend what is best to be done; but enables it in its deliberations, about the means, to make choice of the most apt and proper; and directs the application of them in
The Character of a true Evangelical Pastor.

The fittest season, without precipitation, by too much haste; or hazard, by too tedious delay. And judge you, brethren, by this, what an interest the affairs of Christ's kingdom have in this second qualification.

I know there is a carnal policy, an unworthy pusillanimity, that often shrewd themselves under the name of prudence; I have nothing to do with mock-graces here: My business is to show you, in what particulars true ministerial prudence is highly serviceable to the affairs of Christ's house, or kingdom. And this I will briefly discourse in two respects.

The eye of prudence must look,

1. To our own proper personal work, to see that be well done.

2. To others who work,
   1. With us as friends, that we may have assistance from them.
   2. Or against us as enemies, that our work be not ruined by them.

1. Prudence will direct the servants of Christ, in their own proper ministerial work, that it be well done. And in order thereto, it will guide them in their deliberations to the six following proper means, and excellent expedients.

1st, Prudential expedient.

And 1st, prudence will direct us, to lay a good foundation of knowledge in our peoples souls, by catechizing and instructing them in the principles of Christianity, without which we labour in vain.

Except you have a knowing people, you are not like to have a gracious people. St. Paul's prudentials lay much in this, 1 Cor. iii. 10. "As a wife master-builder, I have laid the "foundation." And indeed this is the master piece of a master-builder. All your excellent sermons will be dashed to pieces, upon the rock of your peoples ignorance. You can never pitch upon a better project, to promote and secure the success of your labours, than catechizing.

What age of Christianity ever produced more lively and steadfast Christians, than the first ages? And then the care of this duty most eminently flourished in the churches. Clemens Alexandrinus, Origen, Optatus, Basil, Austin, and Ambrose, were all catechists: And it is the opinion, both of Chemnitius and Zanchy, that that exercise, which Christ honoured with his presence in his youth, was a catechetical exercise.

We that live in this age, have as much obligation as they, and God hath furnished to our hands the best help for it, that ever any age since Christ enjoyed. As chymists extract the spirits of herbs and minerals into some rare elixir, so have our venerable assembly (lately sitting at Westminster, now in glory) composed for us the most judicious and compendious system, that ever blessed this age. And to make it yet more useful, divers worthy hands have been employed, some in one method, some in another, to make those compendious answers more intelligible to the people. And yet I am of opinion, somewhat may be further done to advance that great design, in a third method, that shall not only make those points more intelligible, than in answering by yea and no: or drawing out the subservient answers to such a length, as too much charges the peoples memory, but withal to intermix the most useful practical matter with what is doctrinal. If such a course might obtain in all our congregations, I think it would greatly discover our prudence, and turn richly to the account of our peoples profit.

2d Prudentia expedient.

Ministerial prudence discovers itself in the choice of such subjects, as the needs of our peoples souls do most require, and call for.

A prudent minister will study the souls of his people, more than the best human books in his library; and not chuse what is easiest for him, but what is most necessary for them. Ministers that are acquainted with the state of their flocks, as they ought to be, will be seldom at a loss in the choice of the next subject: Their peoples wants will chuse their text, from time to time, for them.

The greatest part of our congregations are poor, ignorant, and unregenerated people, that know neither their misery nor their remedy. This will direct us to the great doctrines of conviction, regeneration, and faith; and make us to sit with solicitous minds in our studies, pondering thus in our hearts: 'Lord, what course shall we take, and what words shall we chuse, that may best convey the sense of their sin and danger, with the fulness and necessity of Christ, into their hearts?'

Others are withering and decaying in their affections, or staggering and floating in their judgments: Prudence will enable the man of God to give to every one his proper food, or physic, in due season. This will make us spend more hours in our studies, and set to it with all our might and skill, that thereby we may both save ourselves, and them that hear us.

3d Prudentia expedient.

This ministerial wisdom, will not only direct us thus in the choice of our subjects, but of the language too, in which we dress and deliver them to our people.

It will tell you, a crucified style best suits the preachers of a crucified Christ. A grave and proper style becomes the lips of Christ's ambassadors. Prudence will neither allow us to be rude, nor affectedly gaudy, in our expressions. * " Tertullian " checks those preachers, whose sermons dress up Christianity in philosophical, rather than evangelical terms." Prudence will choose words that are solid, rather than florid: As a merchant will a ship by a sound bottom, and capacious hold, rather than a gilded head and stern. Words are but servants to matter. An iron key, fitted to the wards of the lock, is more useful than a golden one, that will not open the door to the treasure.

Some of Christ's ministers excel in a neat and pleasing plainness of language. For this Austin was so affected with the style of Ambrose: † " With his sweet words, which I loved, came into my mind the duties which I neglected." And Zanchy faith of Viret, ‡ " I admired his eloquence, and the force it had in moving the affections."

Prudence will cast away a thousand fine words, for one that is apt to penetrate the conscience, and reach the heart. This made Basil look upon the famed allegories of his time, with a compassionate smile, saying, || " We take them for pretty wit- ticisms, but things of little use or value in the ministry."

Who, in the last age, was ever honoured with more success in his ministry, than blessed Mr. Burroughs? And whoever excelled him in skill, to bring down the sublime mysteries of the gospel to the meanest capacity?

4. Prudential expedient.

Ministerial prudence will shew us, of what great use our own affections are, for the moving of others; and will therefore advise us, That, as ever we expect the truths we preach should operate upon the hearts of others, we first labour to work them in upon our own hearts. Such a preacher was St. Paul; he preached with tears accompanying his words, Phil. iii. 18. An hot iron, though blunt, will pierce sooner than a cold one, though sharper.

And why, my brethren, do we think, God hath commis- * Qui Platonicum Christianissimum proovdent Christianis.
† Veniebant in animum meum simul cum verbis, quae diligebam, etiam res ; quas negligebam.
‡ Singularem eloquentiam, et in commovendis effectibus efficacitatem admirabatur.
|| Ο ψυχή μου προσενέχθη μεν τον λογον απεδέχθη.
456 The Character of a true Evangelical Pastor.

founded us, rather than angels, to be his ambassadors? Was it not, among other reasons, for this? Because we having been under the same condemnation and misery ourselves, and felt both the terrors and consolations of the Spirit, (which angels experimentally know not), might thereby be enabled to treat with sinners more feelingly, and affectionately, in a way more accommodate to them, and therefore more apt to move and win them.

5. Prudential expedient.

Ministerial prudence will direct the servants of Christ (who highly value, and earnestly long for the success of their labour) to be careful, by the strictness and gravity of their deportment, to maintain their esteem in the consciences of their people.

In your pulpits, you are carrying on a treaty of peace betwixt God and them; and therefore it will not allow you to do any thing out of your pulpits, to make the breach wider, or hinder the happy close between him and them. The fowler that spreads his net to take the birds, will not leave a feather, or make the least noise, to scare the bird he intends to take. Let not them who aim no higher than a bird, be more prudent and cautious, than you that are set to catch immortal souls. Remember that of Solomon, Prov. xi. 30. "He that winneth a soul is wise." Prudence will not allow the ministers of Christ to intermix themselves with vain company, and take the same liberty they do in vain jests, and idle stories. Nor will it allow, on the other side, a morose reservedness, and discouraging austerity; but temper gravity with condescending affability.

To you that are juniors and candidates for the ministry, I will assume the boldness to address you with one seasonable word of advice; and it is this: Have a care of that light and airy spirit, which so much obtains everywhere in this unfebrile age. It was the charge of God against some ministers of old, that they were light persons, Rev. iii. 4. and yet I cannot but think, comparatively speaking, with some of our times, they might pass for grave and serious. The people have eyes to see how we walk, as well as ears to hear what we say. It will be our wisdom and great advantage, to be able to say, as St. Paul did, Phil. iv. 9. "The things which you have both heard and seen in me, do."

6. Prudential expedient.

Ministerial prudence will send you often to your knees, to seek a blessing from God upon your studies and labours, as fionated us, rather than angels, to be his ambassadors? Was it not, among other reasons, for this? Because we having been under the same condemnation and misery ourselves, and felt both the terrors and consolations of the Spirit, (which angels experimentally know not), might thereby be enabled to treat with sinners more feelingly, and affectionately, in a way more accommodate to them, and therefore more apt to move and win them.

5. Prudential expedient.

Ministerial prudence will direct the servants of Christ (who highly value, and earnestly long for the success of their labour) to be careful, by the strictness and gravity of their deportment, to maintain their esteem in the confidence of their people.

In your pulpits, you are carrying on a treaty of peace between God and them; and therefore it will not allow you to do anything out of your pulpits, to make the breach wider, or hinder the happy close between him and them. The fowler that spreads his net to take the birds, will not leave a feather, or make the least noise, to scare the bird he intends to take. Let not them who aim no higher than a bird, be more prudent and cautious, than you that are set to catch immortal souls. Remember that of Solomon, Prov. xi. 30. “He that winneth souls is wise.” Prudence will not allow the ministers of Christ to intermingle themselves with vain company, and take the same liberty they do in vain jeers, and idle stories. Nor will it allow, on the other side, a morose reservedness, and discouraging austerity; but temper gravity with condescending affability.

To you that are juniors and candidates for the ministry, I will assume the boldness to address you with one seasonable word of advice; and it is this: Have a care of that light and airy spirit, which so much obtains everywhere in this unserious age. It was the charge of God against some ministers of old, that they were light persons, Rev. iii. 4. and yet I cannot but think, comparatively speaking, with some of our times, they might pass for grave and serious. The people have eyes to see how we walk, as well as ears to hear what we say. It will be our wisdom and great advantage, to be able to say, as St. Paul did, Phil. iv. 9. “The things which you have both heard and seen in me, do.”

6. Prudential expedient.

Ministerial prudence will send you often to your knees, to seek a blessing from God upon your studies and labours, as Knowing all your ministerial success entirely depends thereupon,
1 Cor. iii. 7.

Those are the best sermons, that are obtained by prayer. Blessed Bradford studied upon his knees. Luther obtained more this way, than by all his studies. If an honest husbandman could tell his neighbour, that the reason why his corn prospered better than his, was, because he steeped the seed in prayer, before he sowed it in the field; we may blush to think, how much more precious seed we have sown dry, and unsteeped in prayer, and by this neglect have frustrated our own expectation. Thus laying our foundations in the knowledge of principles, chusing our subjects by the people's necessities; handling them in apt language; working them first upon our own affections, enforcing them by strict conversation, and steeping this holy seed in prayer; we shall approve ourselves the prudent ministers of Christ.

2dly, Having said thus much of prudence, with respect to our single personal concernment in the work of the ministry; I come next to shew its great usefulness with respect to others, who are concerned either,

1. With us, as friendly assistants in our work.

2. Or against us, as enemies, who labour to obstruct and frustrate our work.

3. As to our brethren and fellow-workers in the Lord, prudence will dictate and enjoin it upon us, that by the firmest union with them, we make their gifts and graces as useful as is possible, for the furtherance and advancement of our great and difficult work. We cannot be ignorant how much Satan hath gained, and Christ's interest hath sensibly lost, by those unhappy divisions and alienations amongst brethren, and fellow-labourers in the work of the Lord. Christ hath shed down variety of glorious ascension-gifts upon them, which are not capable of a full improvement, but in union and conjunction with each other. Gifts are improved in us by prayer and study, but the benefits of those gifts are shared among us by love and unity. Love and union bring every man's gifts and graces into the common bank, and instead of monopolies, they drive a free and open trade, to the great enriching of the church.

There is not a greater, or more pleasant variety of qualities, smells, and colours, among the herbs and flowers with which the earth is variegated and decked, for the delight and service of man, than there is in the gifts and abilities of ministers.
for the use and service of the church. One hath quickness of parts, but not so deep and solid a judgment: Another is grave and solid, but not so ready and presential. One is wary and reserved, another open and plain: One is melancholy and timorous, another cheerful and courageous. When these different gifts and qualities shine together in the church, heavens, what a glorious constellation do they make! and what sweet benign influences do they shed down upon the Lord's heritage! All these ministerial gifts and graces are improveable for Christ.

1. More privately,

1. More privately. When God casts the lot of two, or more, fellow-labourers in the gospel, upon the same city, town, or neighbourhood; what a blessed advantage have they beyond solitary ministers, to carry on the work of the Lord cheerfully, vigorously, and successfully! Whilst love causes their hearts to clasp and close, how must their work be facilitated, sweetened, and prospered in their hands? But if once jars and jealousies get in amongst them; if pride, envy, or carnal interest dissolve the bond of brotherly love; if instead of planting for Christ, they once begin to supplant one another; no words are able to shew what a train of mischief and sins will now break in amongst them, to the great dishonour of Christ, and obstruction of the gospel.

I do therefore, in the name of Christ, as upon my bended knees, earnestly intreat and beseech my brethren, by all the regard they have to the honour of Christ, the souls of their people, their own comfort, or the success of their labours; that no envyings, or strifes, no supplantings, or detractions, be once admitted, or named among them. Methinks it is scarce imaginable, that those who have so lately and severely smarted, should fall again into the same follies, for which God hath chastised them.

2. And as prudence directs us into the way of our profit and comfort, by this more private improvement of our gifts and graces, so into a more excellent way, by a general union and coalition with all our brethren, farther distant in place from us. It calls upon us to bury, and forget henceforth the factious names of distinction, growing out of our different apprehensions about smaller disciplinary points. How many fervent prayers have been poured out! how many excellent irenicums have been written by those excellent ministers, that are now at perfect unity in heaven! Though they did not, yet I hope we and our children shall reap the blessed fruits of those pious endeavours. God hath spoken with a strong hand to our pious and prudent brethren, in and about the great city of this kingdom: They have most wisely and seasonably projected this great and glorious design: They have followed it close with unwearied diligence, admirable patience, Christian humility, and condescension; and, by the good hand of the Lord with them, have brought it at last to a comfortable issue.

The happy result of their fervent prayers, and frequent brotherly consults, (all praise to the God of love and peace for it!) are now in our hands, in those blessed sheets, called Heads of agreement: Wherein God hath signally helped them to evidence their wisdom in the choice of words, and their humility and charity, in mutual and necessary concessions. They have, by the mouth of an eminent brother, (whose praise is in the gospel, and whose hand hath eminently assisted in this service), cheerfully offered up their praises to Jehovah-Shalom, for making the two sticks of Judah and Ephraim to become one stick in his own hand.

And now, brethren, they wait, yea, give me leave to say, Christ waits as well as they, for our explicit consent, and cheerful suffrages. We have heard the joyful sound of our brethren's praises: Shall we not echo to it, and say, Hallelujah, and again, Hallelujah? Ephraim shall no more envy Judah, nor Judah vex Ephraim: Our swords are turned into plow-shares, and our spears into pruning-hooks: The Lord hath this day rolled away our reproach. Thus prudence will direct us to carry it with love and unity towards our brethren, that labour in the work with us.

2. Let us next see, what direction it gives us, with respect to our enemies, who endeavour to obstruct and hinder the work of the Lord in our hands. If we be heartily engaged in the service of Christ, we must expect many adversaries, and strong oppositions; men that will raise clouds of reproaches, to darken our reputation among the people; men, that will represent us to them as ignorant and unlearned, factious and seditious, erroneous and enthusiastical. Prudence, in this case, will restrain us from rendering reproach for reproach; and propound to us the best project in the world, for the vindication of our names, and success of our labours; and that is, that we so preach the gospel, that the people may feel the power of Christ in our doctrine; and so live, that they may see the beauty of Christ in our conversations; and so preaching and living, we shall bear down all the prejudices of the world before us. Such doctrine, seconded with such a conversation, like the sun in the heavens, will not only break up and scatter all clouds of reproach, but shed down their enlightening and enlivening influences upon the hearts of the people.

I neither do, nor dare suggest and insinuate anything in this discourse, against any party or body of men; being convinced, that amongst those who differ from us, there are many learned, pious, and peaceable men, who can heartily rejoice to see the work of Christ carried on by those that follow not them. But some there are, almost in every place, who are more concerned for a ceremony, than for the substance of religion; for a tile upon the roof, than a stone in the foundation: Whose envy, if it cannot reach others by imitation, will be restless till it meet them by calumny. In this case, ministerial prudence will carefully shun all occasions of exasperation; and if that care be not sufficient to avoid them, it will furnish us with that patience and constancy which will be sufficient to bear them.

Thus we see the necessity and excellency of ministerial faithfulness and prudence, distinctly considered. Let us, next,

3. View them conjunctly in some special parts of our work, whereinto they shed down their joint and commixed influences. And these, among some others, are the duties of,

1. Defending truth against error.
2. Reproving offenders.
3. Dealing with distressed consciences.

1. There is great need of faithfulness and prudence, in defending the truths of Christ, against the errors of the times. Our faithfulness indeed will oblige us to do it; but prudence must direct us how to do it. The establishment of our people in the truth, is one special end of the institution of the ministry, Eph. iv. 11. but without the assistance of both these graces, that end is never like to be attained. A faithful minister dares not be silent, where the souls of his people are concerned; yet all his endeavours to secure them, will be to little purpose, if prudence be wanting in the management of that design. Prudence must both time our contentions, and regulate the manner of them. It will never suffer us to appear too soon, nor too late: Not too soon, because errors are sometimes best cured by neglect; and in a little time grow weary of themselves; not too late, lest they get head, and be past retrieve: Hasty contenders, like young falconers, let fly the hawk with her hood on. Upon the other side, if friendship, or relation to
The Character of a true Evangelical Pastor.

Seducers, stop our mouths too long, we may in a few days be entertained by them, (as Thyestes was by his brother Atreus) with the limbs of our own (spiritual) children. Prudence will not suffer our pulpits to ring with invectives against seducers, till the more private and gentle methods have been tried in vain; and then neither prudence nor faithfulness will admit of longer delay. But yet when they both advise us to engage, prudence must regulate the manner of the contention, and commands us to urge hard arguments, with mild and soft language.

Errorists are usually hot and passionate, proud and daring persons. Most true is that of Nazianzen, Error. Error. Error! he says; hot and haughty spirits are the causes of troubles and distractions in the church: Hot to hot will never do well. These heights and beats are best taken down, and cooled by strong and mild reasonings: "The wrath of man worketh not the righteousness of God."

2. The joint commixed influences of both these graces, must be found in all our ministerial reproofs. Reprove we must, or we cannot be faithful; and prudently too, or we cannot be successful. He that is silent, cannot be innocent; and yet it is a measuring cast, whether cowardly silence be more prejudicial to the reprover, than indiscreet zeal may be to the reproved. Faithfulness is loath to lose the soul of another for want of reproof: Prudence is jealous of losing it by the ill management of the reproof. Faithfulness faith, it is better to lose the smiles, than the souls of men: Prudence faith, to save both is best. Reprehension is chirurgery of the passions; and cutting-work is no easy or pleasant work. Sick and pained men are wayward, and pettish; but prudence will cast setters upon their passions, and make them lie quiet, whilst faithfulness probes and searches their wounds to the bottom. Prudence can sometimes convey a reproof so effectually and inoffensively, that the conscience of the reproved shall sensibly feel it; and yet his passions not; be awakened by the least injurious touch. Faithfulness considers, and urges the necessity of the duty; prudence considers the quality of the person, time, and manner of application. It will reach the sin, and yet (if possible) avoid the offence of the sinner. It sometimes directs us to convict an offender, by transferring the offence by way of supposition to ourselves; sometimes by relating a suitable history, or folding down a remarkable scripture threatening or example, as it were accidentally, to meet them. How prudently did Nathan prepare David, before he came to touch the quick, with, Thou art the m in? Above all, prudence adviseth us to keep ourselves pure from those sins we reprove in others; and when we must apply the precious oil of reproof to them, that we work it in with the warm, soft, gentle hand of love and compassion; and then the reproof is like to do good, and the reprover receive thanks for his kindness. "Let the righteous smite me, it shall be a kindness: Let him reprove me, it shall be an excellent oil, which shall not break mine head,". Psal. cxli. 5.

3. Once more; their joint influences must also meet in all our dealings with distressed consciences.

Conscience is a very tender thing, and when sick and distressed, needs to be handled both judiciously and tenderly. The wound must be searched, faith faithfulness; it must be searched skilfully, faith prudence: He that can so search and cure it, deserves that excellent encomium, One among a thousand, Job xxxiii. 23. What expert and dextrous persons at this work, were our Greenham, Crook, Dod, Ball, and Burroughs! Every empiric can skin over a wound, but a faithful minister will search it thoroughly, and a prudent minister will heal it warily;

Ne vulnus in antiquum redate, male firma cicatrix; left it scab at the bottom, and break out again with greater danger. It requires a great measure of both these graces, to bring general confused troubles to settle upon the right bottom; to direct a sin-sick soul to Christ, in the true gospel-method; to furnish the tempted Christian with proper weapons against Satan's assaults, and teach him how to manage them; to dissolve the doubts, and remove the scruples which arise almost in every step of his way to Christ; and so to settle the fluctuating soul in a sweet and sure dependance upon him by faith. These things, I say, require much faithful prudence, and prudent faithfulness.

And thus we see the manifold usefulness of both these graces in the servants and stewards of Christ. Of such I may say, as Christ in the text, Who then is a faithful and wise servant? Hic nuncii (inquit Piscator) rari sunt, ita ut ex mille hominibus vix unus reperitur, qui minere illo recte fungit, i.e. These servants (faith Piscator) are so rare, that out of a thousand scarce one man may be found that discharges that office aright. Christ hath not many such servants, yet, blessed be God, some such there are. And,

3. Whoever, or where-ever such faithful and wise servants are, Christ will abundantly reward them in the day of their ac-
The Character of a true Evangelical Pastor.

The character of a true Evangelical Pastor, which casts me upon the third and last doctrinal head. I promised to speak to. The glory prepared for, and promised to such servants of Christ, is elegantly laid out, in shining terms, by the prophet Daniel, Dan. xii. 3. "And they that be wise, shall shine as the brightness of the firmament; and they that turn many to righteousness, as the stars for ever and ever." A promise which points directly to faithful and wise ministers. What a beautiful sight is the azure canopy of heaven, when it is about to shut its beautiful eye-lids in a serene evening! and much more, when it is about to open them with a smile, or blush, in the dawning of the ruddy morning! And how is that beauty again outvied by the glory of the stars, where the pellant light sports and twinkles! how doth one star excel another in glory! Yet thus, and more than thus, even above the brightness of the sun itself, shall the servants of Christ shine; who, by their faithfulness and prudence, have instrumentally turned many unto righteousness!

The question about degrees of glory in heaven is not necessary, but problematical. We reject with abhorrence the popish doctrine of diversity of glories, as founded in the diversity of merits: Nor is it questioned, among the orthodox, whether there be an equality of glory, as to the essentials; but only in respect to the accidentals, and concomitants: Amongst which, they place the additional glory and joy of such ministers, whose faithful and prudent labours God hath blessed, and crowned with the conversion and edification of many souls. And of this the apostle speaks, 1 Thess. ii. 19, 20. "For what is our hope, or joy, or crown of rejoicing? Are not even ye, in the presence of our Lord Jesus Christ at his coming? For ye are our glory and joy." Where we find a very remarkable gradation. He calls his Thessalonian converts, "his hope, his joy, nay, his crown of rejoicing." His hope, that is, the matter of his hope, that they should be saved. His joy, as they had already given him abundant cause of joy, in their conversion to Christ by his ministry. And the "crown of his rejoicing in the presence of Christ, at his coming." This is an high strain indeed! The meaning, I suppose, is, that the fruit and success of his ministry among them, would add to his crown, and redound to his glory in the day of Christ.

O brethren! who would not study and pray, spend and be spent, in the service of such a bountiful Master! Is it not worth all our labours and sufferings, to come with all those souls we instrumentally begat to Christ; and all that we edified, reduced, confirmed, and comforted in the way to heaven; and say,
Lord, here am I, and the children thou hast given me! To hear one spiritual child say, Lord, this is the minister, by whom I believed: Another, this is he, by whom I was edified, established, and comforted. This is the man that resolved my doubts, quickened my dying affections, reduced my soul, when wandering from the truth! O blessed be thy name, that I ever saw his face, and heard his voice! What think we of this, brethren? But far beyond this; what will it be to hear Christ, the prince of pastors, say in that day, “Well done good and faithful servant; thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things: Enter thou into the joy of thy Lord,” Mat. xxv. 21. O sirs! we serve a good Master, who is not unrighteous to forget our work, and labour of love for his name's sake. He keeps an exact account of all your fervent prayers, of all your instructive and persuasive sermons, and all your sights, groans, and pantings, with every tear and drop of sweat, are placed like marginal notes against your labours in his book, in order to a full reward.

But I have far out-run my own intention, and I doubt your patience too, in the doctrinal part. I consider to whom I speak, and shall be the shorter in the application; which I shall dispatch apace, in three uses.

1. For Information.
2. For Reprehension.
3. For Exhortation.

Use I. And first for our information, briefly, in two or three conlectaries.

Confectary 1. By this it appears, Christ hath established an order and government in his house, which none must vias late. The church is a well-ordered family, or household, whereof Christ is the Head, Christians members, ministers stewards, the ordinances food to be dispensed by them in season. Every one is to keep his own place and station. Pastors must faithfully feed and govern the flocks of Christ, Acts xx. 28. People must know, honour, and obey those that are over them in the Lord, 1 Thess. v. 12. Heb. xiii. 17. the one must not impose, nor the other usurp; but each walk according to the rule of Christ, with a right foot, orderly and comely.

This order is the church's beauty, Col. ii. 5. and truly we may expect so much of Christ's presence, as we have of his rules and order amongst us, and no more. That the rules and orders of his house were better known, and observed! then ministers and people would clearly understand, what they are to expect from each other in the way of duty, and each person keep his proper station. Ministers would not invade the civil callings of the people, nor the people the sacred calling of the ministry; but all things would move ordinately, secundum, sub et supra. The pleasure of such a sight, would as much transport gracious souls with joy and pleasure, as the order of Solomon's house did the queen of the South.
The Character of a true Evangelical Pastor. 465

Consectary 2. In the light of this truth, we may also read our duty, how we ought to govern ourselves in the ordination of men to the ministerial office. This office is to be committed unto faithful and able men, 2 Tim. ii. 2. not to novices, 1 Tim. iii. 6. I know the necessities of the churches are great, but no more haste (I beseech you) to supply their wants, than good speed. Satis celeriter fit, quicquid commode geritur: That is soon enough, that is well enough. It is a less hazard, to put an ignorant rustic into an apothecary's shop, to compound and prepare medicines for men's bodies, than to trust a man, destitute both of faithfulness and prudence, with the dispensation of Christ's ordinances to men's souls.

Some men are moved by pitiful low ends. 1 Sam. ii, 36. "Put me into the priest's office, that I may eat a piece of bread." Some by ambition, conceiting themselves as able and holy as the best, Numb. xvi. 3. What men's secret ends are, we cannot know; but their qualifications for that work we may, and ought to know. We are solemnly charged, to "lay hands suddenly upon no man," 1 Tim. v. 22. In Solomon's time, the Jews were exceeding careful and wary in admitting proselites, because they were then a flourishing and prosperous state; not so cautious in time of adversity, as Josephus observes. I would discourage none that appear to have pious inclinations, matched with competent qualifications. Many be useful, that cannot be excellent. Weaker gifts, rooted in a gracious heart, will grow by using; but nothing grows without a root. I think the plainest men have done the greatest service in the church of Christ: as tender-eyed Leah brought forth more children than beautiful Rachel. But still fidelity and prudence are indispensible qualifications.

Consectary 3. If there be such rewards, in the hand of Christ, for all his faithful and wise servants; Then we have no just cause or reason to repent of our choice of this office, whatever sufferings and reproaches it hath, or yet may expose us to. I believe none of us ever yet felt such straits, endured such miseries, or sustained such labours, as the apostle mentions to have befallen...
The Character of a true Evangelical Pastor.

him, 2 Cor. xi. 23, 24, 25, 26, 27. and yet he heartily thanks the Lord Jesus Christ, (for all that) who had counted him faithful, and put him into the ministry.

Brethren, we have served a good Master, and have cause to admire his care over us, and bounty to us; and whatever we have suffered, we may say to them that shall succeed us, as Toffsanus did to his children and kindred, in his last will and testament: * "I charge you, my dear children and relations, "That ye never be ashamed of the evangelical truth, either for the sake of offences arising from within the church, or of persecutions from without it. Truth may labour, but cannot be suppressed: And I have often found by experience, "the Lord to be wonderfully present with them, that walk "before him diligently and uprightly." O he hath been a good God to us! he hath covered us in days of danger, made provision for us and ours, and yet his best rewards are behind. Let none fear at the reproaches and persecutions that attend the gospel.

Use II. This point casts an ireful countenance upon all unfaithful and imprudent ministers, who give their people the chaff for the wheat, and stones for bread; who glory in the title, and live upon the profits, but neither feed the flock, nor mind the account. They preach, they pray, because they must do so; but none are the better for their prayers, or preaching. They seem to labour an hour or two in a week, but their labours turn to no account; nor can be expected to turn to any good account, whilst they are neither animated by faithfulness, nor guided by prudence.

Athicola, writing de animantibus subterraneis, tells us of a certain kind of spirits that converse with minerals, and much infest those that work in them. They seem to busy themselves according to the custom of workmen; they will dig and cleanse, melt and sever the metals, yet when they are gone, the workmen do not find that there is any thing done. I came not hither (I confess) to deal with this sort of men; and therefore shall leave them to consider the words immediately following.

The Character of a true Evangelical Pastor. My text, which, like a thunder-clap from the mouth of Christ, discharges woes and threatenings upon them; ver. 48. to the end: “If that evil servant shall say in his heart, My Lord delayeth his coming; and shall begin to smite his fellow-servants, and to eat and drink with the drunkens: The Lord of that servant shall come in a day that he looketh not for him, and in an hour that he is not aware of; and shall cut him asunder, and appoint him his portion with hypocrites. There shall be weeping, and gnashing of teeth.” Who can aggravate their misery more, than these words of Christ have done?

But I am principally concerned at this time about our own defects, both in faithfulness, and in prudence; though neither of these (I hope) be totally wanting in us, yet our defects and short-comings may, and must greatly humble us. Our vain expence of much precious time, our shuffling haste in so weighty a study as the salvation of our people is; our sinful silence, when conscience faith, reprove; our coldness and dead-heartedness; our unserious and unprofitable converses; our pride and ostentation of gifts; our neglect of personal conferences: All these evidently discover, that both our brains and bowels need more strength and tenderness. I will not insist here upon these particulars, (let us do that in our studies) but hasten to the exhortation, and therein to the close of this discourse.

USE III.

Are faithfulness and prudence the essentail requisites of the servants and stewards of Christ’s house? And will he so amply reward them in whomsoever he finds them? Then let it be: our care and study to approve ourselves to him, such as he here describes and encourages.

But who am I, to manage such a work as this, among men every way above me! However, you have called me to this service, and Christ hath directed me to this subject: And should I now silently pass over this part of my work, how shall I approve myself, either a faithful, or a wise servant to him that sent me? I despair of ever having such another opportunity; I see many faces in this assembly, whom I shall never see any more in this world. I speak to the ministers of Christ, the guides and pastors of so many flocks. May I be in the least instrumental to quicken them in their duties, their respective numerous congregations will reap the benefit of it.

My brethren, this is the day I have often wished for, when in the sad and silent years that are past, I have been searching my own heart, and enquiring into the causes of God's indig nation (as I doubt not you also have done); I have bewailed the forementioned defects before the Lord, and engaged my soul by solemn promise to him, that if he would once more o pen the door of liberty, I would (through his grace) labour to reform, and do my utmost to persuade all my brethren to exer cise more ministerial faithfulness and prudence.

And now I am where my soul hath long desired to be, and the vows of God are upon me; suffer therefore (dear brethren), yea, suffer from unworthy me, This word of exhortation: Take heed to your ministr,y, that you fulfil it: Take heed to yourselves, and to the flocks over which the Holy Ghost hath made you overseers. Let us so study and preach, let us so pray and converse among our people, that we may both save ourselves, and them that hear us; let us frugally and industriously husband our time and talents for Christ; let us prudently contrive, zealously and unanimously execute our holy contrivances, for the advancement of his kingdom and interest in the world: These are plotting times, wicked men are everywhere plotting to disturb the civil peace; let us have our plot too, an honest plot, how to advance the interest of Christ in the souls of our people; wherein we shall also promote and secure the civil peace of that happy government we live under. Let us learn prudence from our past follies, and constancy from our past experiences. I look upon you that are aged ministers, as seaford timber, that hath lain out near thirty years in the weather, yet neither warped, rained, nor rotten. I confess, in all this time, the fun hath not much tried the force of his in fluence upon us, though the storms have. I suspect our greatest danger will be in the sunshine of liberty. If we hold it now, and manage this trial by liberty, with eminent faithfulness and prudence, humility and peaceableness, zeal and diligence; Christ may account us fit materials to build his house. Let us now redeem our many silent Sabbaths, by double and triple improvements of those we enjoy: Let none of us dare to bring our old sins into our new pulpits. Then will the Prince of pastors delight in us here, and crown our prudent faithfulness with a full reward hereafter. In order whereunto, give me leave to hint (for I can do no more than hint) these three things by way of motive, which are worth thinking on:

We have a solemn charge given us by Christ.
We have a solemn account to pass shortly with Christ.
We have now a great opportunity to improve for Christ.
1. We have a solemn charge given us by Christ, 2 Tim. iv. 1, 2. "I charge thee therefore before God, and the Lord Jesus Christ, who shall judge the quick and the dead at his  appearing, and his kingdom; preach the word, be instant  in season, and out of season; reprove, rebuke, exhort with  all long-suffering and doctrine." It must be a powerful opiate indeed, that can so benumb and stupify the conscience of a minister, as that he shall not feel the awful authority of such a charge.

The precious and immortal souls of men are committed to us, souls, about which God hath concerned his thoughts from eternity; for the purchase of which Christ hath shed his own blood; for the winning and espousing of which to himself, he hath put you into this office; at whose hands he will also require an account of them in the great day.

2. We have a solemn account at that day to pass with Chrift.

Heb. xiii. 17. "We watch for their souls, as those that muft  give account." And what can more powerfully excite to faithful diligence in the discharge of duty, than the consideration of that day! Which the apostle had mentioned, in 2 Cor.

v. 10. this awful appearance before the judgment-seat of Chrift; he immediately infers, ver. 11. "Knowing therefore the terror of the Lord, we persuade men."

O brethren! let us beware of committing, or of neglecting any thing, that may bring us within the compass of the terrors of that day. Let our painfulness and faithfulnefs, our constancy and seriousness, compel a testimony from our congregations, as the apostle did from his, Acts xxviii. 26. "That we are pure from the blood of all men."

3. We have a great opportunity to improve for Chrift; which if we do, we shall fulfil his charge, and escape the terrors of his judgment in that great day.

We have now (if I mistake not) the fairest season we ever enjoyed, since we first preached Chrift; if this be lost, I question whether we may ever expect the like. There is great odds between our present circumstances at our return to our flocks, and our past circumstances when we left them, and that both upon our own account, and upon theirs.

1. Upon our own account: We were then young, and (comparatively) unexperienced ministers to what we are now. Tho’

we have too many defects and weaknesses still to lament, yet

I am persuaded we have not spent so many years among trials, fears, and sufferings in vain. These things, I am persuaded, have greatly improved our acquaintance with God, and our

The Character of a true Evangelical Pastor.

It will be as sad as strange, if they have not. God hath been training us up in faith, humility, patience, and self-denial in this school of affliction. When we could not preach the doctrine of faith, we were reduced, by a blessed necessity, to live the life of faith. The rules of patience, humility, and satisfaction in the will of God, we were wont to prescribe from our pulpits to the people, we were necessitated to practice and apply to ourselves in our sad solitudes, and various distresses, through which the Lord hath led us. So that now we come better furnished to the work, than ever before. And I hope I have ground for you, brethren, to say, as the apostle, of his coming to the Romans, that you come among them "in the fulness of the blessing of the gospel of Christ."

2. There is great odds upon the people's account: Many of them were full-fed, and wanton, when we left them; they are hungry, and sharp set, at our return to them. An hungry appetite appears in the people in many places, not without great cause and reason. They are willing to take any pains: your words now drop upon them as the clouds upon the clefted earth. O what an opportunity doth this give to accomplish the great ends of our ministry among them!

Lift up your eyes, and behold the fields, are they not even white unto the harvest? Let husbandmen rather lose their seed-time and harvest, than we lose so precious a season, so great, so rich an opportunity as this.

I have finished what concerneth you, my reverend and dear brethren, and fellow labourers in the Lord's harvest: A word or two remains to be spoken to the people, and I have done.

You have heard what a variety of duty lies upon us, and what difficulty in every part thereof; yet all our labours would be light, and our pains pleasant, might we see more fruits, and success of them amongst you.

Your barrenness and unpersuadableness, your divisions and instability cost us more, than all our other pains in our studies and pulpits. How easily and sweetly would the plough go, would you but set both your hands of prayer and obedience to assist us in that work.

You have now as blessed an opportunity as your souls can desire, yea, that very season of mercy some of you have a long time anxiously desired. You have confessed to God, that you once sinned us out of our pulpits; God forbid you should next sin us into our graves.

If you be wanton children at a full table, our enemies are not so far off, but God can quickly call them in to cure your wantonness, by taking away the cloth.

The stewards of Christ provide choice dishes for you, even feasts of fat things full of marrow; and serve it into your souls upon the knee of prayer in due season: have a care of despising it, if at any time the dishes be not garnished as you expect, with curious figures, and flowers of rhetoric.

The Lord give you hungry appetites, sound digestions, and thriving souls; then shall ye be our crown of rejoicing, and we yours in the day of our Lord Jesus Christ: To the word of whose grace I commend you all, which is able to build you up, and give you an inheritance among them that are sanctified.

A double Scheme, or Table.

A double Scheme, or Table.

Containing, in the first Column,

The SINS most incident to the Members of particular Churches, plainly forbidden in the Word, and for which God sets Marks of his Displeasure on them.

And, in the second,

The DUTIES enjoined on them in the Scripture, in the conscientious Discharge whereof, they receive signal Fruits of his Favour.

I. Sin. The first, and more general sin of church members, is, a defect in their care and circumspec- tion, to prevent all just offences to them that are without; forbidden, Col. iv. 5. "Walk in wisdom towards them which are without." By a careless disregard of this rule, we harden the wicked in their sins, bring guilt upon our selves, and reproach upon the name and ways of God.

I. Duty. Their first duty is, to be often together in acts of Christian communion. Mal. iii. 16. "Then they that feared the Lord, spake often one to another." Such meetings for prayer, repetition of sermons, and Christian conference, greatly conduce to mutual edification, which is the principal intention of Christian fellowship, Eph. iv. 16.
II. Sin. The second, and more particular sin of some church-members, is idleness, and neglect of their civil callings; against the express rule, 2 Thess. iii. 10, 12. "There are some which walk among you disorderly, working not at all: Such we command and exhort by our Lord Jesus Christ, that with quietness they work, and eat their own bread." This brings poverty on themselves, and scandal on religion.

III. Sin. The third sin is tale-bearing, and revealing the secrets of families, and persons; whence many strifes arise, to the cooling and quenching of mutual love; expressly forbidden, Lev. xix. 16. "Thou shalt not go up and down as a tale-bearer among thy people." And 1 Tim. v. 13. "Not only idle, but tattlers also, and busy-bodies, speaking things which they ought not."

IV. Sin. The fourth sin is an easy credulity of private whispers, and rash censures thereupon. This we ought not to do against the meanest member. 2 Cor. xii. 20. "Left there be debates, envyings, wraths, strifes, backbitings, whisperings," &c. Much less against church-officers; 1 Tim. v. 19. "Against an elder receive not an accusation, but before two or three witnesses." This strikes at the bond of peace.

II. Duty. Their second duty is, to follow and back the great design of the gospel in the world, and therein assist the public ministry, by their private and prudent helping on the conversion of the carnal and careless world. Phil. iv. 3. "Help those women that boured with me in the gospel, &c. For the Lord Jesus Christ's fake, and for the love of the Spirit, strive together with me," Rom. xv. 30.

III. Duty. Their third duty is humble condescension to the infirmities of their weaker brethren, and denying themselves in what they can, without sin, that they give them no offence. Rom. xv. 1. "We then that are strong, ought to bear the infirmities of the weak, and not to please ourselves." And ver. 2. "Let every one of us please his neighbour, for his good, to edification."

IV. Duty. Their fourth duty is to be exceeding tender of the church's unity, both in judgment, love, and practice; avoiding (as much as may be, and as far as the gospel rule allows) all causes and occasions of division and separation. Rom. xvi. 17. "Mark them which cause divisions and offences, and avoid them." And Phil. ii. 1, 2. "If there be any consolation in Christ, &c. be ye like minded."
V. Sin. Their fifth sin is in their neglect of God's ordinances upon slight diversions, when they are neither disabled by works of necessity, or mercy, contrary to Heb. x. 25. "Not forsaking the assembling of ourselves together, as the manner of some is." Trivial occasions should divert no Christian from attending upon God's ordinances.

VI. Sin. The sixth sin is a defect in zeal for God's ordinances, manifested in their dilatory attendance; contrary to Psal. cxxii. 1. "I was glad when they said unto me, let us go into the house of the Lord." And unsuitable to their first practice, Gal. iv. 5. "Where is then the blessed-nefs?" &c.

VII. Sin. The seventh sin is irreverence, and want of seriousness under ordinances; contrary to Psal. lxxxix. 7 "God is greatly to be feared in the assembly of the saints; and to be had in reverence of all that are round about him." And this is manifest in vain attires; 1 Cor xi. 10. "The woman ought to have power on her head, because of the angels." And unseemly postures and gestures; Eccl. v. 1. "Keep thy foot when thou goest to the house of God; and be more ready to hear, than to give the sacrifice of fools."

V. Duty. Their fifth duty is a respectful carriage towards the meanest Christian, and to have higher esteem of others than themselves. External things make no difference with Christ; Rom. xii. 10. "In honour preferring one another." Gal. iii. 28. "Ye are all one in Christ Jesus." Yet a decorum is to be kept suitable to civil differences; Eph. v. 21. "Submitting yourselves to one another in the fear of God."

VI. Duty. Their sixth duty is, meekly to receive reproofs from each other for their sins, especially when the matter is just, and the manner of delivering it regular; Psal. cxli. 5. "Let the righteous smite me, it shall be a kindness: And let him reprove me, it shall be an excellent oil," &c.

VII. Duty. Their seventh duty is, to communicate their spiritual flock of gifts, graces, and experiences, not interfering with public officers, nor by sinful partiality including some, and excluding many others (to whom it is as due, and who may have more need) from the benefit thereof; 1 Pet. iv. 10. "As every man hath received the gift, even so minister the same one to another." 1 Tim. v. 21. "Observe these things, without preferring one before another, doing nothing by partiality."
VIII. Sin. The eighth sin reproveable in them, is, the neglect of giving and taking due reproofs from each other; contrary to Lev. xix. 17. “Thou shalt in any wise rebuke thy neighbour, and not suffer sin upon him.” And Christ’s own rule, Matth. xviii. 15. “Go, and tell him his fault between thee and him alone.” And so for taking reproofs, see Psalm cxli. 5. “Let the righteous smite me,” &c.

IX. Sin. The ninth sin is, mutual strifes and animosities, not seasonably and prudently composed among themselves, but scandalously exposed to the view of the world; contrary to the apostle’s rule, 1 Cor. vi. 5, 6. “Is there not a wise man among you, &c. But brother goeth to law with brother, and that before the unbelievers? Now therefore, there is utterly a fault among you.”

X. Sin. The tenth sin is, the privateness of their spirits, centering too much in their own concerns; expressly condemned, Phil. ii. 21. “All seek their own, not the things that are Jesus Christ’s.” And contrary to scripture example, 2 Cor. xi. 29. “Who is

VIII. Duty. Their eighth duty is, cheerfully to communicate their outward good things for the relief of their brethren; Heb. xiii. 16. “To do good, and to communicate: cate, forget not.” And the better to enable them henceto, to be diligent in their callings; Eph. iv. 28. “Working with his hands, that he may have to give to him that needeth.” And especially to make comfortable provision for their ministers, not by way of courtesy, but duty; 1 Cor. ix. 14. “Even so hath God ordained, That they which preach the gospel should live of the gospel,”

IX. Duty. Their ninth duty is, not only to relieve the distressed members of Christ, but to seek out, and visit them; to know their spiritual and temporal wants, in order to a full discharge of that duty; James i. 27. “Pure religion, and undefiled before God and the Father, is this, To visit the fatherless and widows in their affliction,” &c.

X. Duty. Their tenth duty is, to put charitable constructions upon doubtful words and actions; and if either will admit a double sense, always to take it in the fairest, according to the law of charity; 1 Cor. xiii. 7. “Charity beareth all things, believeth all things, hopeth Six Benefits of walking by the foregoing Rules.

I. Benefit. Strict and heedful attendance to these rules, will put a lustre upon religion before the world, and make it glorious in the eyes of such as now despise it. Tit. ii. 10. "Adorn the doctrine of God our Saviour in all things." Which he here speaks, to encourage all to ordinate walking.

II. Benefit. This will allure and win the world over to Christ, and wonderfully prosper and further the design of the gospel. Phil. ii. 15, 16. "That ye may be blameless and harmless, the sons of God without rebuke, in the midst of a crooked and perverse nation, &c. That I may rejoice in the day of Christ, that I have not run in vain, neither laboured in vain."

III. Benefit. This will effectually stop the mouths of all the detracting and blaspheming enemies of religion. 1 Pet. ii. 15. "For so is the will of God, that with well-doing, ye may put to silence the ignorance of foolish men."

IV. Benefit. This will eminently glorify God, which is the ultimate end of our beings. Matth. v. 16. "Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven."

V. Benefit. This will fill the people of God (by way of evidence) with much inward peace. Gal. vi. 16. "And as many as walk according to this rule, peace be on them, and mercy upon the Israel of God."

VI. Benefit. This will secure the presence of God with, and among us; whence results both the efficacy of ordinances, and the stability and glory of the churches: For Christ walks among the golden candlesticks, and threatens the churches, in case of defection from gospel rules, "to remove the candlestick out of his place, except they repent," Rev. ii. 1, 5.

FINIS.

GOOD
An Alphabetical Table of the principal Matters contained in the Whole.

VOLUME I.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>A Basement of Christ, several instances of its incarnation</th>
<th>Pag.</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Vid. Humiliation.</td>
<td>240</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Abilities of men to use the means of grace, how to be improved</th>
<th>Pag.</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Adoption, wherein that which is sacred agrees with, and differs from that which is civil</td>
<td>159</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Adrian (the emperor), his lamentable cry when dying</th>
<th>Pag.</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Relations, the melting of them, from a sense of Christ's sufferings, is no infallible sign of grace</td>
<td>282</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>What care we should take of being deceived by the workings of them</th>
<th>Pag.</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>A believing meditation on Christ's sufferings, is of great force to melt them</td>
<td>284</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Agony (of Christ) in the garden described</th>
<th>Pag.</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Useful inferences from the consideration of it</td>
<td>301</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Amyntas, a remarkable story of his interceding for his brother</th>
<th>Pag.</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Anathema Maranatha, the meaning of this expression</td>
<td>181</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Antinomians, some of their vile opinions detected</th>
<th>Pag.</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Apology; Final rejecters of gospel-grace can make none for themselves</td>
<td>74</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Apostacy of Christ's disciples in his sufferings</th>
<th>Pag.</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Vid. Disciples.</td>
<td>307</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Assumption of our nature by the Son of God</th>
<th>Pag.</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Vid. Incarnation.</td>
<td>76</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>B Believers, the safety of their condition in Christ</th>
<th>Pag.</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Ought when dying to commit their souls to God</td>
<td>478</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>What things are implied in their committing their departing spirits to God</th>
<th>Pag.</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Their encouragements to commend their spirits to God's hands</td>
<td>479</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Should commit all their concerns into God's hand</th>
<th>Pag.</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Bernard (faint), an observ'able remark of his concerning Christ's incarnation</td>
<td>478</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
An Alphabetical Table for the first Volume

Blindness of mind, The terribleness of this judgment 148
Blood of Christ, one drop of it not sufficient to redeem the world 168

Whence the preciousness of it rises 355
Body of Christ, was extraordinarily fitted for being sensible of pain 454

Bosom of God, what is signified by Christ's being there 46
Breach, what a woful one sin has made between God and us 117
Buried, The reasons of Christ's being buried
Vid. Funeral.

Children, Their duty to their parents shown in six particulars

How Christ's example enforces their duties upon them 418
Their disobedience to their parents, a sign of their being without Christ 419

Serious queries proposed to them

The danger of their insatisfaction to their parents, shown in six things 420
Directions for their carriage towards either godly or ungodly parents 422

Christ, How said to be the only object of St. Paul's knowledge

Several excellent properties of the knowledge of him, as crucified 35
The sufficiency of his doctrine to make men wise to salvation 38

His excellency to believers

His glory and pleasure with the Father before his incarnation 39
The nature of his delight in his pre-existent state, shown in several ways 44

The wonderfulness of his love in our redemption 46
The great danger of rejecting him 50
What encouragement his dearness to the Father gives Christians 55
His work and reward described 55

How wonderfully the love of God shines forth in giving him 66
What is implied in God's giving him 68
How the gift of him yields us hope for all good things 72
An Alphabetical Table for the first Volume.

Page 478

Table of Contents

- Christ, The horrible wickedness of despising him 74
- The necessity of our union with him 85
- What his being sealed implies, Vide Sealed. 93
- What obligations we are under to devote ourselves to him 107
- The great evil of using his blood as a common thing 110
- The nature of his mediation explained, Vide Mediator. 114
- The necessity of our being interested in him as Mediator 117
- The danger of joining other mediators with him 123
- What reason Christians have to be thankful to him ibid. 124
- The safety of believers in him 125
- His prophetical office explained, Vide Prophet. 126
- The nature and necessity of his priesthood 155
- Vide Priesthood.
- How he obtains the throne in the hearts of men 216
- Six ways of his ruling in the souls of men 218
- The privileges of the subjects of his spiritual kingdom 222
- His providential kingdom explained, Vide Providence.
- How we should honour him in consideration of his abasement 250
- How many ways he was humbled in his life 253
- How he prepared himself for his death 265
- His fatherly care discovered in his last prayer 267
- Vide Prayer.
- The mercies he requested for his disciples when dying 268
- The special arguments pleaded in his last prayer 269
- The last reasons of his praying for his disciples at his death 273
- How his love and care was manifested in instituting his supper 279
- His dignity was proclaimed by his enemies 360
- Remarks on the title put upon his cross, Vide Title.
- How he is called God's fellow 371
- His silence in his sufferings, how it is to be understood 385
- The greatness of his burdens, and his patience under them 387
- His last words to be most seriously considered 398
- His tender care of his mother when he was dying 412
- Vide Mother.
- His doleful complaint upon the cross explained and applied 438
- How he breathed out his spirit to his Father 477
Christian religion, the excellency of it above all others

Christians, whence it is they sometimes differ from themselves at other times

Circumcision of Christ, how he was humbled in it

City of God, the excellency of its place and company

Committing our souls to God at death, several things implied in it, 479. Vide Soul; vide Death.

Condemnation of Christ, the great injustice of it shewn in seven particulars

Useful lessons to be learned from it

The wickedness of Pilate in giving it against him

Several useful inferences concerning it

Covenant of redemption, the general nature of it shewn

The persons transacting, the business transacted, and the manner of transacting it

The promises made to our Saviour therein

What the Redeemer stipulated in it

How punctually the articles of it were performed on both parts

The eternity and security of it

Useful inferences from it

Cross, the death upon it shewn to be of the worst kind

Why Christ died upon it, rather than any other death

Useful inferences from our Saviour's enduring it

What encouragement believers have to bear theirs for Christ.

Crucifixion, the worst kind of death

Cup, a portion of sufferings so called

How Christ prayed that his might pass from him

D

Arius (king of Persia) declared filthy waters was sweet to him, in his great thirst.

Death, Christ prepared himself for it, by praying for his disciples, 266. By instituting his last supper, 279

And, by praying for himself

It immediately brings believers into a state of happiness

Useful inferences concerning the immediate consequence of it to believers

Preparations for it not ordinarily to be expected at the time of it

How much all, and particularly young people, are concerned to prepare for it
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Topic</th>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Death, how believers are encouraged therein, to commit their souls to God</td>
<td>482</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Useful deductions from the encouragement of believers in it</td>
<td>486</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>That of Christ was, in general, designed for four excellent ends</td>
<td>492</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Debauchery, vide Profaneness.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Delight, how Christ was such to his Father before his incarnation</td>
<td>45</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The nature of that of Christ in the Father described</td>
<td>46</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Desertion, Christ’s complaint of it upon the cross</td>
<td>439</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The nature of that which Christ endured, explained negatively and positively</td>
<td>440, &amp;c.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The ends for which Christ was exposed to it by the Father</td>
<td>443</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>It is the greatest misery of God’s children</td>
<td>446</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Comfort to sincere Christians when under it</td>
<td>447</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rules to be observed by believers when exercised with it</td>
<td>450</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Devils, their sin not so much aggravated as ours in rejecting Christ</td>
<td>88</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Dignity of Christ was proclaimed by his judge</td>
<td>360</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Disciples (of Christ), how they left their Lord in his sufferings. Vide Sheep.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Doctrines, how to make a right judgment of them</td>
<td>136</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Drop of Christ’s blood; how unreasonable it is to say, one only was sufficient to redeem the whole world</td>
<td>168</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Faith in Christ, the necessity of it to salvation</td>
<td>161</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>How useful it is to God’s people both living and dying</td>
<td>478</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Fellow to God, How Christ is said to be so, 371. Vide Christ.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Finished, (It is) The comprehensiveness of these words, as used by our Saviour</td>
<td>464</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>How Christ finished the work of redemption on the cross</td>
<td>467</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>What assurance we have of the work of redemption being so</td>
<td>469</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Several useful inferences concerning this</td>
<td>470, &amp;c.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>How we should imitate our Saviour herein</td>
<td>473</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>How much it concerns us to have our work so, when death comes</td>
<td>475</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Flavel (Mr. John), his life and epistles</td>
<td>1—33</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Flesh, put for the whole human nature</td>
<td>77</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>How the word was said to be made flesh</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Forgiveness (a privilege) the greatness of this mercy</td>
<td>398</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
An Alphabetical Table for the first Volume.

Forgiveness, The nature of it opened
What ground ignorant opposers of Christ have to expect it Forgiveness (a duty) the nature of it shewn, negatively and positively
The excellency of it, and our obligation to it
Several useful inferences concerning it
Funeral, several remarkable things in that of Christ
Four reasons why our Saviour had one, notwithstanding the small time of his death
The impossibility of making an oration on that of Christ, worthy of him Peculiar properties of that of our Lord
To have a decent one, is laudable among Christians
How that of our Saviour encourages believers against fearing the grave
How that of sincere Christians is rendered comfortable by their union with Christ Future state, the reality of one after this life proved Souls pass immediately into it at the time of death
God may, but seldom does, prepare men for it at the hour of death

G

Garden, That where Christ was in his agony described Gospel, seems to be epitomized (in Isa. liii.)
The inexcusableness of those who perish under it
How it makes the best husbands and wives, parents and children, &c.
Gospel-ordinances, the great efficacy of them when duly administered Grave, How it is rendered a place of rest to believers
How sincere Christians are encouraged against the fears of it by Christ's funeral Grecians, How strangely they were affected with deliverance from bondage

H

Appinens (of saints) explained, as objective, subjective, and formal Honour, In what instances we should give it to Christ
Human nature wonderfully advanced in the person of Christ
Humiliation of Christ several instances of it in his life
Several very useful inferences from it

Vol. VIII.
482  An Alphabetical Table for the first Volume.

Hypospherical union in Christ, the nature and effects of it Vid. Incarnation.

I

Ignorance of the gospel, the misery of being under the power of it
— Of the Jews concerning Christ, the nature and causes of it
— Of Christ, how it occasions enmity against him
There is forgiveness with God for such as labour under it Imaginations, what is meant by them, (2 Cor. x. 5) How the gospel calls them down Incarnation of Christ explained in five particulars
Several effects resulting from it
Some designs of it mentioned
How the love of the Father and of the Son shines forth in it
Several useful inferences concerning it
Christ's wonderful abasement in it, shewn in six things
Several improvements we should make of the doctrine of it
Infidelity, the unreasonableness of it
Inheritance of believers, comprehends temporal, spiritual, and eternal good things
How much we are concerned to clear up our interest in it Inscription put upon the cross of Christ, explained
Vid. Title.

Intercession of Christ, the nature of it opened in several things
The efficacy of it with the Father
Profitable inferences from the doctrine of it
It gives manifold encouragement to sincere Christians
Judas (the traitor) his eminency among the apostles
The aggravations of his sin in betraying his Lord
The motives and issue of his wickedness
Warnings to professors, from his dismal example
Justice of God, the inflexible severity of it

King, The necessity of Christ's being so, as well as prophet and priest
Signs of Christ being our king
Kingdom of Christ, spiritual and providential
How Christ obtains it, and manages it in mens hearts
The privileges of the subjects thereof
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>An Alphabetical Table for the first Volume.</th>
<th>483</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Kingdom of Christ, Five characters of the subjects of it</td>
<td>225</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>An explication of it, as providentially executed</td>
<td>227</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Vid. Providence.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Knowledge, Wherein that of Christ crucified excels all other</td>
<td>33</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Of Christ, greatly wanting among men</td>
<td>39</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>What encouragement we have to apply to Christ for saving knowledge</td>
<td>140</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Means for attaining that which is saving</td>
<td>150</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Differences between common and saving knowledge</td>
<td>181</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>L</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>East word, syllable, or letter, sometimes of great force in divinity</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Light, the excellent nature of that which Christ gives</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Aye (or word) why Christ is so called</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Lord's-Supper, when instituted by our Lord</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>How fitly bread and wine are made the symbols in it</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>How Christ is to be remembered in it, and what is included in remembering him</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>What aptitude there is in it to bring Christ to remembrance</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>How Christ's love and care appears in instituting it</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The advantages of rightly attending it</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Love to saints, The strong obligations we have to it</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Love of Christ, clearly manifested in his satisfaction</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Love of God, how manifested by giving Christ for our redemption</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>How wonderfully that of the Father and Son appears in Christ's incarnation</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>How it is displayed in Christ's being sealed by the Father</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>How it shines forth in our Saviour's extreme sufferings</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>M</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Means of grace, the insufficiency of them without the Spirit's agency</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>What ability men have to use them</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mediator, What this word signifies</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>How Christ performs this office</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Five things implied in Christ's being Mediator</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>How it appears that Christ only is so between God and man</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>In what capacity our Saviour performs this office</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Several useful inferences from the doctrine of Christ's being the only one</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Moritorious, Whence Christ's death came to be so | 203 |
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Topic</th>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Meritorious, How the purchase made by our Saviour was so</td>
<td>206</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ministers, By what we should judge of their excellency</td>
<td>40</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>How they should preach Christ</td>
<td>41</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>How people should improve under their ministry</td>
<td>43</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The great evil of despising them</td>
<td>98</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>In what things Christ was a pattern to them</td>
<td>137</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ministry, The great evil of intruding into it without a due call</td>
<td>99</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The necessity of a standing one in Christ's church</td>
<td>134</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mother (of Christ) how our Saviour's tender care of her</td>
<td>412</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>O</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Oration (of Christ) how the excellency of it appears</td>
<td>165</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Offering (of Christ) the nature and excellency of it shown in several things</td>
<td>167</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The persons for whom, and the end for which it was offered</td>
<td>171</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The comfort flowing to believers from it</td>
<td>174</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>How the inflexible severity of divine justice appears in it</td>
<td>176</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ordinances of the gospel, whence the efficacy of them proceeds</td>
<td>100</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>P</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Patience, (of Christ) the nature and eminency of it</td>
<td>387</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Directions for our imitation of Christ in it</td>
<td>389</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Paul, (the apostle) the plainness of his preaching vindicated</td>
<td>393</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>How he made Christ, as crucified, his principal subject</td>
<td>34</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Peace, (of kingdoms) the Christian religion the best friend to it</td>
<td>410</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Philanthropos, (a lover of man) God so called; but never</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Philangelos, (a lover of angels)</td>
<td>67</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Pilate, his great injustice in condemning our Saviour</td>
<td>322</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Prayer, (Christ's last) how Christ evidenced the care of his disciples in it</td>
<td>266</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>How the saints perseverance is secured by it</td>
<td>268</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Argumentative prayer recommended by it</td>
<td>269</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>How dying parents, &amp;c. are directed by it</td>
<td>277</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Prayer, (of Christ in the garden) Christ's last preparative for his death</td>
<td>292</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>How we should imitate our Saviour in it</td>
<td>295</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The matter about which he pleads with his Father in it</td>
<td>387</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>An Alphabetical Table for the first Volume.</td>
<td>Pag.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-----------------------------------------------</td>
<td>---------</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Prayer, The manner of it noted in four particulars</td>
<td>298</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Useful inferences from the consideration of it</td>
<td>301</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Price, how Christ was such in his death</td>
<td>197</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Priesthood, (of Christ) what is implied in it</td>
<td>155</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The necessity of it proved and vindicated</td>
<td>157</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Useful inferences from the doctrine of it</td>
<td>160</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The virtue and fruits of it, how express by divines</td>
<td>210</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Prophet, Christ described in this office</td>
<td>126</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>What things are implied in Christ's being so to the church</td>
<td>129</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>How excellently our Saviour executed this office on earth</td>
<td>131</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The great usefulness of the doctrine of this office of Christ</td>
<td>134</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Providence, How Christ rules and orders the kingdom of it</td>
<td>228</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The instruments whereby our Lord exercises it</td>
<td>232</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Excellent properties of it as exercised by our Saviour</td>
<td>233</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Several profitable inferences from the doctrine of it</td>
<td>235</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Vid. Kingdom.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Purj2hase, How Christ's death is to be considered as such</td>
<td>206</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Vid. Meritorious.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>R</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Redemption, the wonderful love of God and Christ therein</td>
<td>54</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>What things are implied in it</td>
<td>192</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Revelation, of God's will, how excellently Christ hath discovered it; 132. Vid. Prophet.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Roman senator, a courageous answer of one to Vespasian</td>
<td>380</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>S</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sacrifice, the excellency and efficacy of Christ</td>
<td>166</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Vid. Offering.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sanctification, how necessary it is for Christians</td>
<td>107</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sanctify myself, how, and why Christ did this</td>
<td>102</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Seven things implied in Christ's doing this</td>
<td>103</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>How Christ did it for our sakes</td>
<td>106</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Several useful inferences from our Saviour's doing it</td>
<td>107</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Satisfaction of Christ, what it signifies</td>
<td>192</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The truth of it proved and vindicated</td>
<td>196</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Useful inferences from the doctrine of it</td>
<td>198</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The impossibility of our making it for ourselves</td>
<td>200</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Whence a surplusage of merit in it arises ibid.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Saviour, How the Grecians were affected with the mention of a temporal one</td>
<td>251</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Scattered, how Christ's disciples were so. 372. Vid. Sheep.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sealed, why God's committing authority to Christ is expressed by it</td>
<td>91</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The office to which Christ was sealed by the Father</td>
<td>92</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Four things implied in our Saviour's being so</td>
<td>93</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
An Alphabetical Table for the first Volume.

Sealed, How God the Father sealed Jesus Christ 95
The necessity of Christ's being so 97
Several useful inferences from our Lord's being so ibid.
How we should endeavour to have the comfort of Christ's being thus 101
Self-confidence, the best are in danger of it 377
Self-denial, Christ the most eminent pattern of it 247
Sentence (against Christ), the great evil of it, shewn in six particulars 326
With what meekness our Saviour received his unjust one 328
Useful inferences concerning it ibid.
Sheep of Christ, who of them were scattered from him 372
Eight arguments of their forsaking Christ in his sufferings 373
The occasions of their being scattered from Christ 375
The tenderness of their shepherd toward them 377
Several useful instructions from their forsaking Christ 383
Sin, How the exceeding evil of it is discovered 198
Solitude of Christ in his sufferings, considered and improved, 370. Vid. Sheep.
Soul, (of man) the preciousness of it appears from the price of its redemption 74
How Christ commended his to his Father when dying 477
What is implied in a believer's commending it to God at death 479
The encouragements believers have to commend theirs to God 482
Useful inferences from the encouragements of commending it to God 485
Spirit of man, to be commended to God at death 479
Vid. Soul.
Sufferings of Christ, the greatness of those in his body 454
The peculiar extremity of those he endured in his soul 455
Supercription on Christ's cross, explained and applied 359, &c.
Vid. Title.
Sweetness of the Christian religion inferred from Christ's incarnation 87
Sword, (of God's justice) how said to be awakened against Christ 371
What we learn from its being drawn against Christ alone 381
Teacher, Christ is so to the church in the most supreme sense 126
An Alphabetical Table for the second Volume.

Thirst, The afflictiveness of it when violent 452
How that of Christ was occasioned by his extreme sufferings 454
Several useful inferences from that of our Saviour 458, &c.

Throne, How Christ obtains one in mens hearts 216

Time, The precipufhess of that which is present 428

Title, (on the crofs of Christ) the nature of it explained 359, &c.
How divine providence appeared in it 363
Useful inferences from the circumstances attending it 364

Trial of Christ, The injustice of it manifested 320

Unbelievers, How dismal their state is at death 486
Understanding, How Christ is said to open it 140
What things are implied in Christ's opening it 143
In what way our Saviour opens it 146
Useful lessons from the doctrine of Christ's opening it 147, &c.

Weeping, How Christ forbade it upon his own account 332
Why our Saviour required it of the Jews for themselves 333
Wisdom, The different notions of it in the book of Proverbs 44
Wisdom of God, How it shines forth in Christ's incarnation 87
Wonderful, How fitly Christ is so called 106
Word, Why Christ is so called 77
World, How little regard is to be had of its esteem or contempt 264
Work of Christ, how it was finished on the crofs 461
Vid. Finished.

Working, The necessity of it in religion 473
We should imitate Christ therein ibid.

Z
Zaleucus, A noted instance of his tempering justice with mercy 199

VOLUME II.

Acceptance with God, how believers have it through Christ 369
How Christ procures it for believers 374
How the consideration of it should be improved 375, &c.
An Alphabetical Table for the Second Volume.

Admiral, vid. Lord High-Admiral. Pag: 328
Advocate, what an excellent one Christ is 328
Ambassadors (of Christ). ministers so called 145
What God's treating with sinners by them implies 146
The great concern about which they treat with sinners 149
What qualifications they should be endowed with 106
Annihilation, not the worst of evils 473
Application (of Christ's benefits) the general nature of it explained 110
The nature and necessity of it more particularly expressed in eight propositions 111—118
Several useful inferences concerning it 119
Articles of peace with God, what they are, 11. Vid. Peace.
Ascension of Christ proved, and several circumstances of it explained 40
The remarkable manner of it shewn in several particulars 42
A sixfold proof of the necessity of it 45
Several useful inferences concerning it 47
Assent of faith, doubts concerning it answered 226

B
Benefits of Christ, how well they are suited to the case of sinners 18
Blood of Christ, The principal ends of shedding it 2
Vid. Death.
Body of Christ, How it was raised from the dead, shewn in several particulars 25
Bodies of believers, How joyful the resurrection of them will be to their souls 31
How they should be governed and employed 34, &c.
Bridegroom, what an incomparable one Christ is 326
Bringing us to God, What this phrase imports 390
The happiness of being interested in it 392
What influence Christ's sufferings have upon it 393
Useful deductions from Christ's being the author of it 394
Burden of sin, The greatness of it discovered 260
Whence a soul is supported under it 266
Why God causes it to press hard upon some sinners 270
Useful inferences from the consideration of it 272
Proper advices to them who are under the weight of it 273
Vid. Heavy laden.

C
Christ, His sitting at the right-hand of God explained and applied, 45. Vid. Right-hand.
An Alphabetical Table for the second Volume.

Christ, The reference due to him from Christians
It is honourable to suffer reproach for him
How believers have communion with him

Vid. Communion.

What it is to come to him, 276. Vid. Comm.
What an excellent physician he is, 281. Vid. Physician.
How he is called the promised mercy, 308. Vid. Mercy.
How he is altogether lovely, 326. Vid. Lovely.
How he is the desire of all nations, 332. Vid. Desiré.
How he is the Lord of glory, 344. Vid. Lord.
How he is the Consolation of Israel, 351. Vid. Consolation.

Coming to Christ, what is implied and included therein
How Christ invites sinners to it
Why only sin-burdened souls are invited to it
Discouragements from it recited and answered
It is the immediate duty and happiness of heavy laden sinners

Communion, how all believers have it with Christ
The things wherein Christians have it not with Christ
Those things wherein Christ and believers have it
By what means Christians come to have it with our Saviour

The great dignity of our having it, shewn in six particulars
Several useful inferences from the doctrine of it
Signs of having communion with Christ

Consortion (of Israel) Christ is so called
The nature of consolation opened
How Christ only is so to believers
None but believers are interested in it, and why
Whence believers themselves are sometimes without it
Several useful inferences from Christ's being so

Crucifixion (of the flesh) what it is, shewn negatively and positively
Why the mortification of sin is expressed by it
The necessity of it to evidence our being in Christ
The sanctifying spirit is the only principle of it
How it evinces a soul's interest in Christ

D

Dead, how all unregenerate sinners are not, and how they are so

Vol. VII.
490 An Alphabetical Table for the second Volume.

Dead, The deplorableness of being so, in a spiritual sense 200
Vid. Death spiritual.

Death, That of Christ was, in general, designed for four excellent ends 2

Death spiritual, the nature of it described in several particulars 183
The certainty of Christless fools being under it, proved 494.

Desire of all nations, how Christ is so called 332
Five things implied in Christ's being thus stiled 333
The reasons of Christ's being esteemed as such 336
Several useful improvements of Christ's being so 337, &c.

Desires after Christ, Characters of the truth of them 338
The blessedness of them 339
Directions for kindling and increasing of them 341

Diseases, the spiritual ones which Christ cures 283, &c.

Drawing (of sinners to Christ) what implied in the Father's doing it 166

The wonderful way wherein God does it 167
The impossibility of coming to Christ without it 173
Useful inferences from the consideration of it 177

Emassadors, Ministers so called in scripture 144
Vid. Ambassadors.

Eternity, how eminently a gentlewoman was affected with seeing this word 66

Exaltation of Christ, the necessity of it to our salvation 145
What abundant comfort it yields to sincere Christians 24
The several steps of it at large considered and improved 40

Faith, The saving act of it expressed by receiving Christ 203
Arguments against its being the matter of justification 214
Arguments against the imputation of it for righteousness 219
Its justifying, as a condition, argued against 220
Many sound believers doubt their want of it, upon undue grounds 225
The least degree of that which is saving, a very valuable mercy 228
The danger of being without the means of it 229
It is to be examined by the antecedents, the concomitants, and consequents of it 231

Fellowship, (with Christ) explained at large, and applied 243
Vid. Communion.
An Alphabetical Table for the second Volume.

Flesh, A discourse concerning the crucifying of it Vid. Mortification.

Freedom of Christians; the nature and excellency of it opened and applied, 379. Vid. Liberty.

Friend, what an incomparable one Christ is Gifts, the valuable ones which Christ gave at his ascension

What care we should take not to abuse them

Heavy laden, How some are so with the burdensome sense of sin
The difficulty of bearing up under it
Whence any souls are kept from sinking under it
Why God suffers sinners to be so
Useful inferences concerning it
Several advices to them that are in this case
Why such only are invited by our Saviour to come to him

Holiness is the glory of God, and the beauty of souls
Vid. Sanctification.
It is the great scope of the doctrine of redemption
The strong obligations Christians are laid under to it by the Father, 69; and by the Son, 73; and by the Spirit
What strong engagements Christians are under to it from themselves
We are strongly obliged to it, upon the account of others
Christians have far greater advantage for practicing of it than others
It is exceeding useful to win souls, honour religion, and encourage ministers
The serious practice of it awes sinners now, and will convince them in the judgment

Holy Spirit, Reasons why we should take heed of grieving him

Honour, How great that of Christ is in heaven
That which will be conferred upon the saints above

Hope, how groundless that of unregenerate sinners is

Interest of Christ, the security of it
Judgment (the last) the subject, object, and fountain of it
The certainty of it proved from Scripture and reason

Q q 2
Judgment, The awfulness, and other properties of it
How it will make for the honour of Christ
What ground believers have to hope for an absolution in it
The miserable case of Christ's souls in it
What sins are especially to be avoided, from the consideration of it

Knowledge, How much that which is experimental excels all other

Liberty of believers, wherein it does not consist Wherein it does consist
The different kinds and properties of it
Several useful inferences concerning it
Life (spiritual) The nature and properties of it
In what manner it is wrought in the soul
God's end in giving it
Arguments to prove the production of it wholly supernatural
The previous necessity of it to saving faith in Christ
Symptoms of its being in the soul
Life of the unregenerate, wherein it consists
What maintains the groundless security of it
Signs of its being too common in the world
The danger of the false hope thereof
Useful inferences from the groundless security of it

Lord of Glory, That, and how Christ is so Profitable improvements of Christ's being such a one Lovely, How Christ is said to be altogether so Christ is so, both in his person and offices
Several useful inferences from Christ's being so

Mercy (the promised) Christ emphatically so called Why Christ is so called Twelve properties of Christ considered as such How God performed it in Christ
None that is saving to be obtained out of Christ
We should not satisfy ourselves with any without Christ
What encouragement humbled sinners have to hope for Mortification, the nature of it explained in several particulars

Why it is expressed by crucifying the flesh
Mortification, the necessity of it proved by seven arguments

How the Spirit of God is the only principle of it

How it evidences the soul's interest in Christ

New Creature, why the regenerating work of the Spirit is expressed by it

In what respects every one in Christ is made so

The properties of it shewn in ten particulars

The necessity of our becoming such

How being so, is an infallible proof of being interested in Christ

The miserable state of those who are not so

The happiness of being, and the hope of becoming such

The greatness of the change wrought in those who are so

How people may be deceived in thinking themselves such Signs for trial of ourselves, whether we are so or not

What reason such have to be cheerful and thankful

Peace, (with God) the articles or terms of it

The excellency of it, and deplorableness of being without it

Physician, (of souls) how Christ was constituted so by the Father

How he cures the diseases of sin

How he heals the diseases of sorrow

Nine things wherein Christ is the only physician of souls

Several useful instructions from Christ's being so Prayers, the force of them when united

Quickenings, (spiritual) is the peculiar work of God's Spirit

Is previously necessary to union with Christ

It is partly in, and partly subsequent to regeneration

Its previous necessity to union with Christ vindicated

Vid. Life.

Receiving of Christ, necessary to salvation

The several things included and implied in it

How this answers the offers of the gospel, shewn in several particulars

Arguments to prove this is the saving act of faith

What excellency this act puts upon faith

Motives to persuade sinners to it
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Topic</th>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Receiving of Christ, Directions for doing it aright</td>
<td>241</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Reconciliation, (with God) what it signifies</td>
<td>9</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Why, and how it is obtained by the death of Christ</td>
<td>11</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The conditions upon which it is offered in the gospel</td>
<td>12</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The excellency of it, and usefulness of the doctrine concerning it</td>
<td>15</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Making it, is the design of preaching the gospel</td>
<td>145</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The wonderfulness of it set forth in several particulars</td>
<td>149</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Whence preaching the gospel is an effectual means of it</td>
<td>152</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Useful inferences from preaching, being the means of it</td>
<td>154</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Evidences of not being interested in it</td>
<td>158</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>How ministers should prosecute this great work</td>
<td>160</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Exhortations to sinners who are not, and to such as are interested in it</td>
<td>162</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Remission of sin, the nature of it explained</td>
<td>360</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>It is the privilege of believers only</td>
<td>362</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>It is the purchase of Christ's blood, and the fruit of rich grace</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Five useful inferences from the doctrine of it</td>
<td>365</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rest, that of saints is chiefly reserved for heaven</td>
<td>53</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>It is promised to those that come to Christ</td>
<td>286</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Three cautions premised for preventing mistakes about it</td>
<td>287</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>How it results from coming to Christ</td>
<td>288</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Five useful inferences from its being in Christ</td>
<td>291</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Resurrection, of Christ, the certainty and necessity of it</td>
<td>23</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Five excellent properties, shewing the manner of it</td>
<td>25</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>How it secures the resurrection of saints</td>
<td>28</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>How it was the pattern of that of believers</td>
<td>29</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>How death is overcome by it</td>
<td>32</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Resurrection, that of the saints will be very joyful on several accounts</td>
<td>31</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>How we may insure to ourselves a blessed one</td>
<td>35</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Right-hand, of God, what it signifies in scripture</td>
<td>45</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>What things are implied in Christ's sitting at it</td>
<td>46</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Several useful inferences from our Saviour's session there</td>
<td>50</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rogers, (Mr. Daniel) a remark concerning his natural temper</td>
<td>199</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sanctification, it was one end of Christ's death</td>
<td>13</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Four excellent properties of this benefit</td>
<td>14</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Spirit of God, how he is given to believers</td>
<td>440</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>How the gift of him proves an interest in Christ</td>
<td>443</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rules for understanding the nature of his workings</td>
<td>446</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Evidences of his dwelling in the soul</td>
<td>448</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
An Alphabetical Table for the second Volume.

Spirit of God, Doubts answered, in reference to his working 495

Sufferings of Christ, how vastly they exceeded what any suffer for him 493

Teaching, (of God) how it is not to be understood 419
It consists in the holy Spirit's sanctifying impressions, and gracious assistances 420

Twelve lessons peculiarly taught by this divine teacher 421
Eight excellent properties of it 430
What influence it has in bringing souls to Christ 431
The impossibility of coming to Christ without it 433
Several useful inferences concerning it 434
Signs, whereby it is distinguished from all other teachings 437

Testament of Christ, confirmed by his blood 15
What he bequeaths therein to his friends 16
The probat of it; or, how we may prove our interest in it 17

Touch, In what sense Christ prohibited Mary to touch him 38
Travail of Christ's soul, Why his sufferings are expressed by it 1
The fruits of it are deliverance from wrath to come, 15;
Peace with God, 10; sanctification, 14; and confirmation of the gospel-covenant 15

Trouble of mind, how intolerable a burden it is 297

Unbelief, deprives of all the benefits purchased by Christ 239
Union between Christ and believers, shadowed forth by four similitudes 128
Its reality proved by several things 129
The nature of it opened 131
Useful inferences from the consideration of it 136
The bands of it are the Spirit and faith 182
It is assuredly known by the in-dwelling of the Spirit 440
Our interest in it is proved by our being new-creatures 455
Between the two natures in Christ. Vid. Hypothetical.

Upton, (John Esq;) The author's epistle to him 95

Word of God, shewn to have a mighty efficacy on men's souls 405
Wherein the efficacy of it consists 407
Whence the efficacy of it flows 408
Useful inferences from the efficacy of it 411
Considerations to promote the efficacy of it 412
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Topic</th>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Word of God, Advices to those who feel the power of it</td>
<td>415</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Wrath, in what sense it is said to be to come</td>
<td>3</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>How eminently Christ delivered us from it by his death</td>
<td>4</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Good evidence of being delivered from it</td>
<td>5</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Young people, How much it concerns them to be seriously religious betimes</td>
<td>155</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>---------------------------------------------------------------------</td>
<td>------</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>VOLUME III.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Angels, employed in transferring the souls of the righteous to blessedness</td>
<td>276</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Whence we are now terrified at them</td>
<td>278</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Atheism, an unusual cause of eternal destruction</td>
<td>461</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Vid. Unbelief.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>B</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Blindness of mind, Wherein it consists, shewn</td>
<td>79</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>That many are under it, proved</td>
<td>80</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The policies which Satan uses to procure and promote it</td>
<td>83</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The dreadfulness of this judgment set forth in divers particulars</td>
<td>89</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Several very useful inferences concerning it</td>
<td>93</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Body of man, The fool is strongly inclined to it</td>
<td>224</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Wherein the soul discovers her love to it</td>
<td>225</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Reasons of the soul's love to it</td>
<td>229</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Wherein our love to it may be defective</td>
<td>238</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Wherein the soul's love to it may be excessive</td>
<td>240</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>How we should rightly express our love to it</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Why it is called a tabernacle</td>
<td>246</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>It is necessary for the soul to be separated from it by death</td>
<td>248</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The reasons of its dissolution</td>
<td>250</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Breath (of our nostrils,) This feeble band ties the soul and body together</td>
<td>173</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Several useful inferences concerning it</td>
<td>176</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>C</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ares of this world, bereave many of salvation</td>
<td>454</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Five considerations to prevent our being destroyed by them</td>
<td>455</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Christ, Two sermons concerning our imitation of him</td>
<td>18—45</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Vid. Imitation.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>An Alphabetical Table for the third Volume:</td>
<td>Pag.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-------------------------------------------</td>
<td>------</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ehrist, What abundant reason we have to esteem him precious</td>
<td>219</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Civility, How dependance upó it is destructive to souls</td>
<td>474</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Considerations to prevent a soul-ruining dependance upon it</td>
<td>475</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Crucifixion of the flesh, several useful inferences concerning it</td>
<td>1—6</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Custom in sin, is a very usual cause of ruin</td>
<td>449</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Means to prevent the danger of a wicked one</td>
<td>458</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Death, How we may sweeten it to ourselves</td>
<td>254</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Signs of being prepared for it</td>
<td>256</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Holy persons should not be terrified at the approach of it</td>
<td>347</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The necessity of union with Christ before it comes</td>
<td>348</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>How prejudicial it is to be distracted about earthly things in it</td>
<td>349</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>How good Christians may argue themselves into a desire of it</td>
<td>353</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The great and happy change it makes in the state of believers</td>
<td>346</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Why Christians are too often unwilling to submit to it</td>
<td>358</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>What poor comfort a great estate yields a guilty sinner in it</td>
<td>433</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The terrible change it makes in the state of wicked people</td>
<td>435</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Death Spiritual, several useful inferences concerning it</td>
<td>1—6</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Education, a bad one is the high-way to destruction</td>
<td>342</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Three directions to prevent the mischief of a wicked one</td>
<td>441</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Examples, following those which are bad, an usual cause of perdition</td>
<td>447</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Three considerations to prevent the malignity of evil ones</td>
<td>448</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Excuse, vid. Apology:</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Fomal hypocrisy, a great ruin to souls</td>
<td>472</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Means to prevent the destructive effects of it</td>
<td>473</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>God, the various ways of seeing him</td>
<td>293</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Guilt, for sinners to be secure under it, is a deplorable case</td>
<td>458</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
An Alphabetical Table for the third Volume.

H

Habitation, who are prepared for the heavenly one Heaven, There are comparatively but few in the way to it
Striving is necessary to obtain it
What foretastes of it have been enjoyed
Hell, the dreadfulness of it
Several names of it, with the reason of them
Why it is called a prison
The terribleness of it shown in six propositions
Twelve ways to it discovered, and methods proposed for escaping them
A bad education, one usual way to it barred up Affected ignorance leads to it. This way shut up Means to prevent evil examples from leading to it Preservatives from being brought to it by ill customs
The way to it, by sinful pleasures, shut up
The passage to it, by distracting cares, barred up
The way to it, by groundless presumption, shut up
The way to it by principles of atheism, barred
The way of profaneness leading to it, barred up
The way to it, by prejudices against godliness closed up
The passage to it, by formal hypocrisy barred up
The way of depending upon moral honesty, barred by three considerations

I

Ignorance, of the evil and danger of sin, one of the causes of men not coming to Christ
When affected it is the high-way to destruction
Means to prevent the dangerous effects of it

Imitation of Christ, what is supposed and included in it
It denotes our conformity to him in holiness
How it consists in being like him in obedience
It comprehends our resembling him in delighting in God, and inoffensiveness toward men
The necessity of it evinced in two things
Several useful inferences concerning it

Immortality (of man's soul) proved from its nature
Argued from the promises and threatenings of God's word
It is attested by all nations in all ages
Proved from the soul's eternal habits
It appears from the consideration of man's dignity
It is evidenced by the soul's desire of immortality
Proved from its sometimes returning into the body after death
An Alphabetical Table for the third Volume.

Immortality. Denying it, subverts the whole Christian religion Objections against it answered
Useful inferences from the consideration of it
Vid. Soul.

Light. How it aggravates sin, shewn in six particulars
Why sins against it have the greater condemnation
Several useful inferences concerning it

Moral honesty, how it comes short of saving grace
Vid. Civility.
Mortality. The necessity of it shews the difficulty of the Christian life
Several useful inferences from the doctrine of it ibid.
Evidences of the truth, and of the strength of it
Five comforting considerations flowing from it

Pardon, what an invaluable mercy it is Vid. Remission.
Pleasures. Those of sin are very dear bought Multitudes perish through the bait of sensual ones
Considerations to prevent the danger of sensual ones
Prejudices, against religion, a great cause of damnation
Vid. Professors.
Prison, why hell is so called
The wide difference between that of God, and that of men, 383. Vid. Hell.
Presumption, how it is a great cause of losing the soul
Five considerations to awaken from it
Profaneness, a most notorious and assured way to hell
Considerations to prevent the ruin of those who are guilty of it
Professors, Scandals given by them, one cause of souls being lost Considerations to prevent the danger of being scandalized by ill ones

Redeeming the time, what this means

Seal, the first five apocalyptic seals briefly described Seas ons (of salvation) are of two sorts

Page numbers are not listed for each entry.
An Alphabetical Table for the third Volume.

Seasons (of salvation), what things are necessary to render any time so Five special ones instanced in Several arguments to engage our improvement of them
Ten considerations to awaken us to take hold of the present one
Self-tormentors, that, and how, the souls of wicked men are so in hell

Sin, the pleasures of it are very dear bought
The evil and danger of it argued from its punishment
It is wisdom to endure any thing, rather than commit it

Soul, The essence of it unknown by philosophers
The nature and original of it, learned from scripture
Proved to be a vital and spiritual substance
Shewn to be an immortal and understanding substance
It is endued with liberty and dominion
It is furnished with various affections and passions
It is naturally inclined to the body
Various opinions concerning its original Proved to be created of God
Objections against its immediate infusion answered
The nature of it more clearly explained
It makes the death of man very different from that of other creatures
It is capable of blessedness when separated from the body
How that of any man is naturally of equal dignity with all others
Whence one excels another
How the evil of sin appears, by considering the excellency of it
How the consideration of it should influence parents
Necessity of its being quickened with a spiritual principle
No acceptable service can be performed to God without it
Useful inferences concerning it
It is knit to the body by the breath of our nostrils

Vid. Breath.
Its immortality proved from the very nature of it

Vid. Immortality.
It is tenderly affected towards the body wherein it dwells
Several ways whereby it expresses its love to the body
How fitly it is called a spirit, after its separation from the body
Its separation from the body mental or real
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Topic</th>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Soul, Its actual separation considered, in fere, and in facto esse</td>
<td>272</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The wonderful change made by its separation from the body</td>
<td>273</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>That of the godly received at death by the angels</td>
<td>276</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>It thinks and acts out of the body</td>
<td>279</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>After death, that of the righteous is complete in holiness,</td>
<td>281</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Is advanced into heaven, And filled with delight</td>
<td>286</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>It then easily advances in knowledge</td>
<td>292</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>And is in a more excellent way of communion with God</td>
<td>295</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>How we may conceive of it when separate from the body</td>
<td>307</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Its value above the whole world, proved in twelve particulars</td>
<td>409</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>How grossly it is abused by serving fleshly lusts</td>
<td>423</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Salvation, securing it, is the greatest business of life</td>
<td>425</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>It is the special care of heaven</td>
<td>427</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>How valuable are the means of its salvation</td>
<td>428</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Why it cannot live upon earthly things</td>
<td>433</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>It is wisdom to venture the loss of all things for preserving it</td>
<td>434</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>How great and irreversible the eternal loss of it</td>
<td>438</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Twelve ways of losing it, with means to prevent it</td>
<td>439</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Time, Five considerations against the presuming upon that which is to come</td>
<td>459</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>What reasons we have diligently to improve it</td>
<td>255</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The shortness of it should wean us from the world</td>
<td>260</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
502 An Alphabetical Table for the fourth Volume.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Time, What St. Paul means by it, and by redeeming of it</th>
<th>484</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>VIlson, Several excellent properties of the beatific one</td>
<td>371</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Unbelief, The nature of it opened</td>
<td>57</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The misery and danger of it</td>
<td>60</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Several useful inferences concerning it</td>
<td>61</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The aggravations of it, when against light</td>
<td>64</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>It is a sure way to hell</td>
<td>461</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Six weighty considerations to prevent the danger of it</td>
<td>462</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Unregenerate, How little reason such have to boast of their thriving in the world</td>
<td>478</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Z

Zeal, When about externals in religion, is hurtful to souls, 473. Vid. Formal hypocrisy.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>VOLUME IV.</th>
<th>Pag.</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>A</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Abraham, The covenant made with him, not that of innocence made with Adam</td>
<td>275</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Theses to prove the warrantableness of infant baptism, from the covenant made with him</td>
<td>322, &amp;c.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Antinomianism, abundantly fenced against in the scripture</td>
<td>333</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The probable occasions of the rise of it</td>
<td>334</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Several of the chief doctrines of it enumerated</td>
<td>338</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A general confutation of the principal errors of it</td>
<td>341</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The error about justification from eternity confuted</td>
<td>342</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The false notion of it about justifying faith detected</td>
<td>348</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>That we ought not to question our faith, shewn to be a dangerous error in it</td>
<td>351</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The notion that men ought not to confess their sins, refuted</td>
<td>353</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The error, that God sees no sin in his people, detected</td>
<td>356</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The notion, that God smites not his people for their sins, disproved</td>
<td>358</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>That Christ was as sinful as we, and believers as righteous as Christ, another gross error of it, confuted</td>
<td>363, 366</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>That sin cannot hurt the elect, another dangerous notion of it</td>
<td>369</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>That saints must do no duty for their own good, shewn to be a corrupt branch of it</td>
<td>371</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
An Alphabetical Table for the fourth Volume. 503

Antinomians, The error, that the covenant of grace is not made with us, but with Christ, refuted 373
Denying sanctification to be an evidence of justification, another error of it, disproved 375

Baptism of infants, grounded on the Abrahamic covenant 274
These to prove the validity of it from the covenant of circumcision 322, &c.
Bars, those which shut up the hearts of sinners against Christ 438
The strength of those which bar up sinners hearts 439
How gloriously grace appears in removing them from the heart 445

Care of God towards his people, proved from scripture-emblems, 114. From scripture promises, 119. And from scripture instances 120
How, and why, it is exercised peculiarly in calamitous times 127
How variously this is expressed in scripture 156
Six reasons of it 157
It extends to the bodies, the souls, and all the concerns of believers 159
Several excellent properties of it enumerated 160
How it is engaged by the divine promises 162
How it is exercised in the divine providence 163
Cary (Philip) a refutation of his notion concerning the covenants 273

Chambers of security for God's people, what is meant by them 91
The divine power is one of them in the most distressing times 121
How God's wisdom is represented under this notion 125
How the divine faithfulness is another chamber of refuge 133
The unchangeableness of God opened, as another chamber of rest 145
The Divine care opened, as another chamber for securing God's people 155
The love of God represented to us under this figure 164
None but God's people are admitted into them, and why 170, 172
Chambers of security for God's people, The misery of being excluded from them 173
What grounds Christians have to take comfort in them 175
Satan's projects to keep believers out of them 178
How we should get into them, and keep in them 179
Signs of our being in them 185

Circumcision, The covenant of it not the same with that of innocency, 286. Vid. Covenant.
Committing ourselves to God, what is included in it 57
What encouragement believers have to it 60
A remarkable instance of a mother's doing it in reference to her child 59

Conditional, how the covenant of grace is so explained 305
Five arguments proving the covenant of grace to be so 316
Vid. Covenant.

Conversion, a glorious work of grace 445
The necessity of it to salvation shewn 448
What sinners themselves may do towards it 448

Covenant of circumcision, four arguments to prove it not the same with Adam's covenant of works 293

Covenant of grace, the question stated about its conditionality 305
The nature of its condition explained 306
The conditionality of it proved and vindicated 316
Seven Theses concerning the interest of infants in it 322-329
Covenant of Sinai, the absurdity of making this the same with that of innocency 277
Wherein it differed from that made with Adam before the fall 278
How it is said not to be of faith 294

Courage, some eminent examples of it 64-68
Creature, vid. New Creature.
Crisp (Dr.) the author's preface concerning his works 187

Death, How much better than life it is to a good Christian, especially if suffer'd for Christ 68
Doors, what shutting them means, in (Isa. xxvi. 20.) 94

England, its duty after eminent deliverances, largely shewn 398, &c.
Errors (mental); several Hebrew words explained, by which they are expressed 198
They bind the conscience, as well as truth 204
An Alphabetical Table for the fourth Volume.

Errors; The exceeding danger of the mind's being affected with them

The specious pretences often made for defending them

Providence has in every age prepared some to oppose them

One usually draws into another

They commonly spring up, and thrive most in a time of liberty

A weak defence of truth tends to increase them

Not to be cured by force, but rational conviction

When pertinaciously held by Christians, they prove a great stumbling-block

They always, in the end, bring loss and shame to their authors and abettors

Means to prevent God's permitting us to fall into them

Five rules to prevent them, under pretence of the obscurity of scripture

Abuse of Christian liberty, an occasion of them

Means to prevent them, by a right use of Christian liberty

Slothfulness an usual cause of them

How to prevent them by a diligent search of scripture

Instability of mind, a frequent cause of them

Four rules to prevent them, by fixing the mind

An over eager desire of peace of conscience sometimes occasions them

Means to prevent them, by a right method of peace

Rules to prevent their springing from over great credulity

A prevention of them from vain curiosity

Remedies against them, when springing from the arrogancy of human reason

Defensatives against them, when rising from rash zeal

The principal impulsive cause of them is Satan

Four rules to prevent Satan's leading us into them

False teachers, the devil's instruments in propagating of them

Means to secure us from being led into them by false teachers

Means to prevent their springing from the abuse of ordinances

Rules to prevent their arising from an irregular liberty of prophesying

Vol. VIII.
| Error, Means to prevent their promotion by enthusiasm | 261 |
| Directions to secure young Christians from being infected with them | 264 |
| Over hasty determinations about disputable matters an occasion of them | 265 |
| Five remedies against their springing from hasty resolutions | 267 |
| Six useful confessaries concerning them | 268 |

| Faithfulness of God, what it is, considered absolutely | 134 |
| Five evidences of it | 135 |
| The assured grounds we have to believe it | 136 |
| A view of it, as it relates to the divine promises | 137 |
| A short view of it, as exerted in God's providences | 138 |
| This is one chamber of security, in which believers should enter | 141 |

| Fear, that which is natural is common to all men | 8 |
| Several things which render it sinful | 10 |
| A description of that which is holy | 15 |
| The usefulness of natural fear | 16 |
| The good use which God makes of sinful fear | 18 |
| Three excellent uses of religious fear | 20 |

| Fear, (sinful) springs from ignorance, from guilt upon the conscience, from unbelief, from observing the promiscuousness of providence, and from an immoderate love of life | 32 |
| It causes distractions in duty. Occasions hypocrisy, strengthens temptations, produces cowardliness, is the root of apostacy, and puts under great bondage of spirit | 42 |
| None but good Christians may in this life be released from it, nor they perfectly | 46 |
| Remedies against it, are studying the covenant of grace | 47 |

| Considering the mischiefs of it | 51 |
| Being prepared for sufferings | 54 |
| Trust in God | 57 |
| Having our affections mortified to the world | 61 |
| Observing the examples of eminent sufferers | 64 |
| A comfortable sense of pardoning mercy | 68 |
| A good conscience | 71 |
| Recorded experiences of God's care and faithfulness | 74 |
| Consideration of Christ's providential kingdom | 75 |
| Subjecting our reasonings to faith | 77 |
| The fear of God ruling in the heart | 78 |
An Alphabetical Table for the fourth Volume.

Flavel (Mr. John) His preface concerning Adam's and Abraham's covenants 192
Flood of sin, a preface of an inundation of sufferings 108

G

Gospel, it is too much wanting in many sermons 409
The tenors of it are recorded, and will be witnessed in the great day 413
Grace, the wonderful effects of it in conversion 444
Vid. Conversion.

H

Hearts of men are naturally barred up against Christ 436
Several bars which hinder Christ's entrance into them 438
God's special grace necessary to open them 445
What sinners may do towards opening them to Christ 447
Signs of their being opened to the Lord Jesus 449
The great advantages of opening them to Christ 454
Six motives to open them to the Lord Jesus 503

I

Ignorance, how it is a great hinderance to conversion 438
Indignation of God, why sometimes poured out upon the world 96
God's own people are concerned in the time of it 99
How we should be affected when it breaks forth 100
God usually gives warning before he pours it out 103
Signs of its likelihood to break forth 109
Infants, the baptizing of them vindicated 273
Vid. Baptism.

Judgments, Why God usually gives warning before he inflicts them 108
Unsensibleness of their approach, to be lamented 113
Vid. Indignation.

Judgment, (the last) witnesses for or against sinners in it 413
Several things which will be attested therein 415
Reasons why God will have witnesses produced in it 416
Several useful inferences concerning it 417
How much it concerns people to prepare for it 420

K

Nock, at what doors Christ is said to do this 486
What is implied in our Saviour's doing it 488
By what instruments Christ performs this work 492
In what manner our Lord does it, shewn in ten particulars 497
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Alphabetical Table for the fourth Volume.</th>
</tr>
</thead>
</table>

Knock, Several useful inferences from Christ's doing it
392

Liberty, of Protestant dissenters, how to be improved by them, shewn in an epistle 398

A good improvement of it the best way to have it continued
405

Lach's, enumeration of several which fasten up the heart against Christ, 438. Vid. Bars.

Long-suffering of God, the nature and evidences of it, Vid. Patience.

Lord High Admiral, God allusively so-called 4

Lord of Hosts, a name of God, encouraging to his people
6

Love of God, How fully it is esteemed a chamber of safety to the faithful 164

Six excellent properties of it 165

Motives to clear up our interest in it 167

How believers should endeavour to secure themselves in it 168

Name (of God) compared to several things
95

Neck, what is meant by reaching to it, (Isa. viii. 8.)
4

Opening the heart to Christ, marks whereby it may be known
439

Ordinances of the gospel, evidences and advantages of Christ's presence in them
425

The necessity of Christ's presence in them
429

Useful inferences concerning our Saviour's presence in them 431

Patience of God, the nature of it explained
459

The glorious manifestations of it towards sinners
461

Several reasons of its being exercised 465

Divers useful inferences concerning it 468

What obligations we have to imitate it 474

The great danger of abusing it
476

The happiness of rightly improving it
484

People of God, a negative and positive description of them
171

Why none but these have a hiding-place in the time of trouble
172

The shiftless condition of those who are not so 173

They ought not to droop like others under trouble
175

Their safety, by having their refuge in God
177
An Alphabetical Table for the Fourth Volume.

Power of God, a security to the saints in trouble
- It is omnipotent, sovereign, and everlasting 115, 116
- It works beyond creature-power, creature-expectation, and human probability 117
- Considered in relation to his promises, 119, and providences 120
- Encouragements to trust in it under difficulties 121
- Preservation, (in danger) not extended to all saints, nor to them only 106
- Why it is usually granted to some good men ibid.
- Prejudices against holiness, a great hindrance to conversion 442
- Presence of Christ, the various kinds of it 425
- The advantage and necessity of it in gospel-ordinances 428
  Vid. Ordinances.
- Presumption, how it resists Christ's entrance into the soul 441
- Pride, how it hinders sinners from receiving Christ 440
- Promises, several kinds of them enumerated 139

Records are kept of the offers of grace made to us 415
- What things are registered in those of heaven ibid.
- Reasons of them, and inferences from the consideration of them 416
- Serious reflections concerning them 420—424
- Redemption, the application of the benefits of it largely considered, 227, &c. 227, &c.
  Vid Application.
- Refuge, the folly of making anything short of God 176
- Regeneration, how it differs from vocation, sanctification, and conversion (Prop. 1.) 231, &c.
- Reward, an ignorant mistake of this word noted 223
- Resignation of God, the nature of it shewn in several particulars 181
- What encouragements God's people have to it 183
- Ruin, (of a people) tokens of its approach 109

Security of sinners, some causes of that which is groundless 503
- Slavish fear, (of sufferings) a plea for it, from the strangeness of suffering for religion, answered 80
- What is pleaded for it from the weakness of constitution answered 82
- A plea from experience of fainting under former trials answered 84
- Replies to the plea for it from a melancholy temper ibid.
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Slavish fear. That which springs from a dread of God's hiding his face encouraged against The plea from the length and sharpness of religion replied to Sleep, sin has cast the souls of sinners into a deep one Vid. Security.</th>
<th>Pag.</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>86</td>
<td>87</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

| Truth is the proper object of the understanding Things less, and more necessary to the knowledge of it Error, under the appearance of it, binds the conscience | 200 | 202 | 204 |

| Unchangeableness of God discovered, and confirmed three ways Several things wherein this attribute is ascribed to God. A view of it, as displayed in the divine promises and providences How we should shut ourselves into this as a chamber of refuge | 146 | 147 | 149 | 152 |

| Unity (Gospel) A sermon recommending it to Christians The nature of it opened The necessity and desirableness of it evinced Six motives exciting to press after it Seven directions for attaining and promoting of it | 377 | 378 | 382 | 385 | 390 |

| Wisdom, It may be called the council-chamber of heaven The general nature, and excellent properties of it How it is displayed with reference to the divine promises How it is exerted in the providence of God Instances of its exercise in the troubles of his people How believers should repose themselves in it Witnesses for or against sinners in the last judgment Vid. the words Judgment and Record. | 125 | 126 | 127 | 128 | 129 | 131 | 413 |

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>B Edford (William duke of) the author's epistle to him Believing in Christ, a wonderful work of grace Birth, how providence appears in the place and time of it Britain, the excellency of it beyond other nations</th>
<th>Pag.</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>238</td>
<td>238</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
An Alphabetical Table for the fifth Volume.

Britain, What reason we have to bless God for being born in it 271

Calling, vid. Effectual calling.

Callings, (civil) how the wisdom of providence appears in ordering them 293

Children, how much it concerns them to improve a religious education 280

Christ, his earnestness in suiting to sinners 1. Vid. Earnestness.

The wonderful condescension of his grace towards sinners 15

The great advantages gained by receiving him 21

Directions for closing with him in the gospel way 27-33

What is implied and included in a willingness to receive him 34, &c.

His willingness to receive the vilest sinners demonstrated 39, &c.

How his voice opens the hearts of sinners, 61. Vid. Voice.

His coming in, not hindered by the unworthiness of penitent sinners 106

What blessings he brings with him into the soul 109

Why he brings his entertainment with him 118

Church, the prosperity of it very desirable 212

The best saints may be denied a sight of its outward glory 213

Civilized people, a serious application to them 58

Comfort, none that is real to be had without serious religion 121

Directions for continuing and increasing of it 128

Commandments, vid. Ten Commandments.

Coming in (of Christ) what was intended by it 106

Believers unworthiness is no hindrance to it 107

The blessings which are consequent upon it 109

Communion (with Christ) the reality of it asserted 132

Several kinds of it enumerated 133

What it is not 134

What is presupposed in it 135

(With God) consists in contemplating his attributes 137

And in exercising of grace under divine providences 142

Ten evidences proving the reality of it 143, &c.

Twenty several excellencies of it enumerated 147, &c.

Several useful inferences from the doctrine of it 158

Directions for attaining the highest degree of it 161

Conscience, the nature of it explained 170

What the light of it is 171

How it urges the soul to obedience 173

How it is hindered in its work by mens corruptions 174
Conscience, Shame and pride are great restraints upon it 178
How its convictions of ungodliness are imprisoned 178
How its convictions of unrighteousness are restrained 179
How its convictions of uncleanness are sometimes silenced 182
How its convictions of sin for not reproving others are rendered ineffectual 185
How its convictions of uncharitableness are restrained 186
How its convictions of mis-spending time are too often mastered 187
Why stifling its convictions are highly provoking to God 188
The valableness of a tender one 191
Improvements of the doctrine concerning it 190, &c.
Motives to close in with the convictions 195—199
Serious questions propounded for the awakening of it 199
Directions for making it our friend 201

Contentment, arguments to persuade both the unregenerate, and the regenerate to it, under all providences 340

Conversion, How God’s providence appears in ordering the means of it 289

Conviction of sin, how to be improved 178
General ones concerning men’s estate 179
More particular ones concerning ungodliness and unrighteousness 182
Of conscience, the danger of stifling them 194
Vid. Conscience.

Deliverance, what things render it truly great 214
What sense it becomes us to have of it 219
Useful instructions from ours at the revolution 223
The beginnings of one, yield arguments in prayer for completing it 228
What further mercies it gives ground to hope for 228
How it encourages the prayers of God’s people 229
The wickedness of those who murmur at it 233
Directions for the due improvement of it 234, &c.

Deliverances, a relation of some remarkable ones at sea 411—429
Despair, a remarkable providence towards one in it 287
Difficulties of religion are usually greatest at the beginning 122
Doubtful providences, how we may know our way in them 337

E

Earnest of the Spirit, the nature and excellency of it opened 516
An Alphabetical Table for the fifth Volume.

Earnestness of Christ, in desiring the salvation of sinners, evidenced

Several useful inferences drawn from it

England, the danger of Popery prevailing in it

Enjoyment of the gospel, a great mercy. Vid. Gospel.

Eye, of the many guards it has to secure it in the margin

F

Faith (in Christ) a wonderful work of grace

Three things which evidence the difficulty of it

The excellent properties of it, when true

False-worship, the evil and danger of it

Vid. Idolatry, vid. Superstition.

Family, what a special mercy it is to be brought forth in a religious one

How we should endeavour to promote religion in our own

G

Goodly mountain, what Moses meant by it in his prayer

Gospel, The enjoyment of it is an invaluable mercy

The removal of it is a terrible judgment

H

Hearts of men, The great benefits of Christ's coming into them

Their not opening to Christ, an argument of their woful hardness

Hearing the Scribes and Pharisees, in what sense it was lawful

Heavenly-mindedness, is a duty under all providences

Honey-wood (Mrs.) a remarkable providence concerning her

I

Idolatry, an earnest dissuasive from it

The nature, and several kinds of it

Arguments to engage our care for avoiding it

Joy in God, why, and how, this should be maintained under faddest providences

Joys in heaven, how much they exceed the greatest joys of religion here

L

Life (spiritual), six signs by which it is discovered in the souls of men

M

Ministers, some evident providences relating to them

Things necessary to the call of them

How those of our nation are called and ordained

Vol. VIII.
Ministry, a faithful one is a great blessing
The danger of attending that which leads to superstition and idolatry
Mortification of sin, how it is helped forward by divine providence
Moses, his earnest prayer for admission into Canaan
How his prayer, for what God had before refused to give, is to be understood Mystery, what is imported in this word, being written on the whore's forehead

N
Neighbourhood, how, and when, we should especially endeavour to promote religion in it

O
Opening the heart to Christ, The difficulty of this work
The principal and subordinate instruments of it
It is the great design carried on in the gospel
What men too often erroneously mistake for it Motives to persuade people to it
Advices to those who have experienced it
Ordinances of the gospel, the great dignity of them

P
Pardon, shewn to be the sweetest of all mercies
Parents, what a mercy it is to be born of good ones
How much it concerns them to take care of their children's souls
Peace with God, the excellency of it shewn in three things
Perseverance of saints, an earnest persuasion to it under greatest trials
Peter Martyr, his remarkable saying upon hearing a bell ring to mass
Pharisees, in what sense Christ allowed his disciples to hear them
Popery, something of the danger of it in England
Predictions of an inundation of it
Advances made towards the introduction of it
The ceremonies of its being used, a token of its prevailing
The persecutions and divisions of Protestants, give advantage to it Abuse of mercies, lays us open to it
Addresses to the king, the parliament, &c. concerning the danger of it
An Alphabetical Table for the fifth Volume.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Topic</th>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Popery, Arguments of proving it to be a false religion</td>
<td>494</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>It is a bloody, a blasphemous, an uncomfortable, and a damnable religion</td>
<td>493</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Means to secure the nation against it</td>
<td>501</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Preservation from dangers, how eminently providence sometimes appears in it</td>
<td>309</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Providence of God, best viewed, as the fulfilling of God’s word</td>
<td>241</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The contemplation of it very pleasant</td>
<td>249</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Good men, especially in straits, should recollect the workings of it</td>
<td>250</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The difference between the views of it now and in heaven</td>
<td>251</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The affairs of saints are conducted by a special one</td>
<td>253</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Why the Epicureans denied it</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Eight demands to convince the government of it</td>
<td>254, &amp;c.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>How it works in our formation and protection in the womb</td>
<td>266</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>How it orders the time and place of our birth</td>
<td>269</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>How it determines the stock we spring from</td>
<td>275</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Remarkable instances of it in the conversion of sinners</td>
<td>281</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>And in carrying on the work of conversion</td>
<td>283, &amp;c.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>How the wisdom of it shines forth in mens civil callings</td>
<td>293</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Eminent appearances of it sometimes in our relations</td>
<td>298</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Remarkable instances of it in providing for persons and families</td>
<td>301</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>How we should depend upon it for provision</td>
<td>304</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Eminent displays of it in preserving from sin</td>
<td>305</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>How it appears in outward preservations</td>
<td>309</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The aid it gives to God's people, in the work of mortification</td>
<td>312</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>What reason we have to admire God's condescension in it</td>
<td>318</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>How we are obliged to observe it, especially in times of trouble</td>
<td>321</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>As thorough a knowledge of it as possible, should be endeavoured after</td>
<td>324</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>We should consider how the scripture is fulfilled in it</td>
<td>327</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>How we should eye God's perfection in it</td>
<td>314</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Wherein we should endeavour to suit our minds to it</td>
<td>337</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Why both sinners and saints should be content with its disposals</td>
<td>349</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Providence, We should not despair under the seeming delays of it

- We must not pry too curiously into the secrets of it
- We may maintain sweet communion with God in it
- The pleasures of life must consist in observing it
- Observing it is an excellent antidote against atheism
- Remembering the gracious workings of it supports faith in future exigencies
- The recognition of it yields continual matter of praise to God

The due observance of it endears Christ to our souls

- Observing it tends to melt the heart before God
- Remembering it will settle the heart under changes
- The study of it will be of singular use in a dying hour
- It should be acknowledged in every thing that befalls us
- Six useful corollaries concerning it

How we may discover our duty under the darkness of it

- It sometimes delays to give mercies prayed for
- Whence the spirits of good men are apt to sink under the delays of it
- Considerations to support under the delays of it

How we may know when an afflictive one is sanctified

- Signs that a prosperous one is not sanctified
- Symptoms of a favourable one being sanctified to us
- Its contrary aspects on good men, usually cause disorder in their spirits

How the mind may be kept, even under the contrary workings of it

- Helps to resign our wills to God, when a sad one is approaching

Providences, should be recorded, when peculiarly remarkable

- It is very useful to keep a written journal of them
- Two narratives of eminently favourable ones at sea

Provisons, how divine providence sometimes appears in making them

R

- Relations, eminent providences of God in reference to them
- Revolution, a sermon on the happy one (in 1688)
- Rome, a remark upon its being called Babylon and Egypt
An Alphabetical Table for the fifth Volume.

S
Satan, why he makes great opposition to the gospel 98
Scribes and Pharisees, in what sense it was lawful to hear them 452
Scripture, its truth appears from the effects of it 80
Sea, an account of remarkable preservations on it 411, &c.
Sealing of the Spirit, the excellency of it 114
Sins, the heinousness of them should not hinder believing in Christ 47
Several sorts and aggravations of them 54
Sinners, the more heinous encouraged, and the more civilized excited to come to Christ 33
Sion, how we should be affected with the miseries of it 433
Southerland. (George earl of) Mr. Flavel's epistle to him 268
Superstition, the nature of it opened 437
Five arguments to dissuade from it 444
T
Temptations, how eminently providence sometimes appears in preventing them 305
Truth, how many ways it is held in unrighteousness 182
Trials, how we should prepare for them in prosperity 470
U
Unbelief, whence the damning nature of it springs 99
Voice of Christ, the nature and several kinds of it 62
The properties of it 64, &c.
The most usual objects of it 71
The remarkable effects of it 74
That many hear it not, who hear the word, is matter of lamentation 79
Having heard it, is a great encouragement to come to Christ 80
Several sorts of people exhorted to hear it 84
W
Ill-worship, is a kind of idolatry 438
Womb, how providence appears in our formation and protection therein 266
Works of God, what renders them truly great 212
Vid. Deliverance.
World, how we may keep ourselves pure from its corruptions 461
Y
Young people, a serious address to them concerning their danger 85
An Alphabetical Table for the sixth Volume.

VOLUME VI.

A

Dultery, the great evil and danger of it
Vid. Uncleanliness.

Afar-off, how God understands our thoughts so

Arable-ground, soul-improving meditations upon it

Autumn, soul-profiting meditations upon gathering fruits in it, 166. Vid. Fruits.

B

Ad-ground, edifying meditations upon the improvement of it
The improvement of it spiritualized in a poem
An awakening meditation on the incurableness of some such Barren-ground, a soul-wakening meditation concerning it ibid.

Barrenness, (spiritual) the dreadful nesse of this judgment

Beasts, meditations upon clogging of them when they go astray

Believers, how far true grace may prevail in them

Birds, meditations upon the early singing of them
Meditation on their being caught with an hair ibid.

Bird-nests, a useful meditation on the curious frame of some

C

Allings, God sometimes blasts mens greatest industry in them

Why providence frequently disappoints people in them

Canute, (king of England) a remarkable story of him

Cattle, a meditation on the husbandman's care of them
Thoughts on the hard labour, and cruel usage of some of them
Meditation upon seeking them when lost
Observations and reflections on fattening them
A poem on preparing them for slaughter

Chaff, how the wicked are compared to it

Compass, the necessity of it in navigation spiritualized
Vid. Mariner's Compass.

Concealment, many encourage themselves in sin, by the hope of it
The vanity of hoping for it, in sinning against God Vid. Secrecy.

Conscience, how it is represented by the helm of a ship
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Alphabetical Table for the sixth Volume</th>
<th>Pag.</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Contentment, Why good men have it</td>
<td>44</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Queries to excite good men to abound in it</td>
<td>49</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Corn, the danger of it between sowing and harvest, spiritualized</td>
<td>109</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Corn-land, meditations upon the plowing of it</td>
<td>66</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Earth, (through want of rain) the terribleness of this judgment</td>
<td>89</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Meditation, and a poem upon the dreadfulness of it, in a spiritual sense, 94, 96. Vid. Famine.</td>
<td>52</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Decays of faithfulness, may be great in a Christian</td>
<td>56</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Encouragements to endeavour a recovery from them</td>
<td>66</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Deeds, (written) meditations upon mens care to prove and preserve them, 197. Vid. Husbandmen.</td>
<td>216</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Deer, a meditation on the hunting of one</td>
<td>377</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Delays, the danger of making them in religion</td>
<td>377</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Vid. Repentance.</td>
<td>214</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Delight, (in spiritual duties) when it is of the right kind</td>
<td>40</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>It is very reasonable, and the want of it to be lamented</td>
<td>42</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Disappointments, (in mens callings) several causes of them mentioned and explained</td>
<td>447</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Divers sins which sometimes are the procuring cause of them</td>
<td>449</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Several considerations to quiet our minds under them</td>
<td>453</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>We should especially take heed of eternal ones</td>
<td>457</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Discontent, considerations to fortify the mind against it</td>
<td>49</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Dog, meditation on his love to his master</td>
<td>214</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Drunkenness, an elegant description of it from St. Anfin</td>
<td>332</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>It was odious to many of the heathens</td>
<td>332</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The exceeding evil and danger of it shewn in ten particulars</td>
<td>332</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>State, Meditation on mens care for securing their temporal one</td>
<td>197</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Famine, of God's word, the nature and dreadfulness of it</td>
<td>89</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Finch, a meditation upon the singing of a blind one</td>
<td>210</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Finches, meditation on shooting two of them when fighting in the air</td>
<td>209</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Fishes, God's providence to be observed in the plenty and variety of them</td>
<td>296</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The greater devouring the lesser, is an emblem of oppressors</td>
<td>303</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
An Alphabetical Table for the Sixth Volume.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Fishermen, their art is an emblem of Satan's subtilities</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Flavel, (the author) his epistle to Robert and William Sa-very, Esqrs.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Poems to him on his Husbandry Spiritualized</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>His epistle to the country reader</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>His poem to the reader</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Flowers, a meditation on the sudden withering of them</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Meditation on the tenderness of some choice ones</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Fornication, the great evil and danger of it</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Vid. Uncleannesss.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Frederick (Sir John) the author's epistle to him, &amp;c.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Fruit-trees, a meditation on the ingrafting of them</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Vid. Ingraffing.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Fruits, a meditation on gathering them in</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>G</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Garden, meditation on the new modelling of one</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A meditation on a heedless tread in a curious one</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Goldfinches and sparrows, a meditation on their mixing to-gether</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Graff, a spiritual improvement of its union with the flock</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>H</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Harvest, a meditation on the patient expectation of it</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The season of it spiritualized in several instances</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Meditation on the joy occasioned by it</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Helm of a ship, an emblem of conscience, 256. Vid. Ship.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Hind, the hunting of it, an emblem of Christ's suffering</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Horse, a meditation concerning one in a fat pasture</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Husbandman, his industry, a lively emblem of the Chris-tian life</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The advantages of his diligence is an encouragement to a Christian's hope</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>His cheerfulness, how teachable to a Christian</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>His patient waiting for harvest spiritualized</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Vid. Harvest.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A meditation upon his care for posterity</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>His diligence in proving and preserving his deeds, spiritu-ally improved</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Husbandry, how fitly the church is called God's, shewn in twenty-six propositions</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Useful inferences from God's church being his husbandry</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>How we may spiritualize the several parts of it</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
An Alphabetical Table for the Sixth Volume.

I

I Die words, the evil of indulging ourselves in using them 342
Rules for avoiding them 349

Impotency, the unreasonablenes of pleading it for the neglect of duty 380

Ingraffing of fruit-trees, a spiritual improvement of it 156

K

Knowledge of God, proved to extend to all secrets 417
Several useful inferences from the perfection of it 425

L

Labour, God sometimes blasts those of men in their callings 446

Launching of a ship, an emblem both of the natural and spiritual birth 241

Lack, meditation on the pulling up of one 221

Lusts, of men, are represented by the monstrous things in the sea 249

M

Magnanimity, the necessity and nature of it shewn 294
Vid. Fortitude.

Manton (Dr.) a remarkable citation from him 320

Mariner’s Compass, how it is an emblem of God’s word 283

Maturity of grace, three signs of it mentioned 123

Of sin, six tokens which give evidence of it 124

Useful reflections upon that of grace and sin 126

Mediocrity, is the most desirable state, in reference to worldly things 44

Mirth, excess in it represented by too much fail in a storm 306

Misty ground, represents the incurable state of many souls 59

N

Navigating, the excellency of that which is spiritual 232

Motives pressd to the serious study of that which is spiritual 236

Trading by it is an emblem of Christian communion 267

O

Oaths, the evil and danger of profane ones 243

Have an imprecation expressed or implied in them 344
Vid. Swearing.

Ocean, how it is an emblem of God’s mercy and eternity 245

The monstrous things in it, render it an emblem of man’s corrupt heart 249

Rocks in it are an emblem of God’s church 270

Vol. VIII.
An Alphabetical Table for the Sixth Volume

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Ocean</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Pilot, his skill most peculiarly discovered in a storm</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Pleasures of sin, considerations to prevent the power of them</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Posterity, a spiritual improvement of the husbandman's care for it</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Prayer, what influences it has in the obtaining of mercies</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Presence of God, what is included in it</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Prosperity not to be ascribed to our own abilities, but God's blessings</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Providence, the evil of those who depend upon means in the neglecting of it</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rain, the necessity of it to the earth</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rams, how professors are resembled by two fighting</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Reaping, the same we sow, how to be spiritually improved</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Topic</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>An Alphabetical Table for the sixth Volume.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Resurrection of the dead, how represented by the springing of seed.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Serious reflections on the certainty of it</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ripeness of corn, a useful meditation upon it Vid. Maturity.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rocks in the sea, how an emblem of the church in this world</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rose, how an emblem of creature-enjoyments</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sails, too much spread, how an emblem of carnal mirth</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Salvian, a remarkable expression of this antient writer</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Satan, how the fisherman's skill is an emblem of his subtlety</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sea, its purging itself, an emblem of the regenerate The ebbing and flowing of it represents the world's uncertainty The waves of it should awaken sinners to repentance How Christ's silling its waves is a comfortable consideration The riches gained from it, call for great thankfulness Vid. Ocean.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Seamen, two serious epistles to them Their watchfulness teachable to us Their dangers discover God's power and goodness Their prudence in shifting their falls teachable Their care not to lose their wind, spiritually improved How the dangers they run are instructive to us Their chief danger near land considered and improved Their coming safe to shore, an emblem of saints getting to heaven A catechism for them A serious address to them What mercies they should chiefly pray for when going a voyage Reproved for neglecting prayer at their going to sea Especially rebuked for their oaths and blasphemies Motives exciting them to begin their voyages with prayer Their preservation in storms is a wonderful providence Sharply reproved for forgetting and neglecting God's wonderful mercies Useful instructions to them Some account of their privilege and duty</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
An Alphabetical Table for the Sixth Volume.

Seamen, When and how they are peculiarly obliged to be thankful to God 415
Secrecy, People often induced to sin from the hope of it 419
The vanity of hoping for it, in sinning 421
The non-expectation of it improved against temptations 425
The wickedness of those who sin without regarding it 427
Security, The vanity of hoping for it in sinning against God 417
Seed-corn, principles of grace compared to it 73
Reflection, a poem concerning it 73
Its corruption and springing, an emblem of the death and resurrection of saints 98
Seed-time, meditations on springing-weather after it 81
Vid. Rain.
Seest the sins of men, how God does it 417
Vid. Knowledge.
Ship, launching of it an emblem of the first and second birth 241
The helm of it an emblem of conscience 256
Meditation upon the means used to preserve it in a storm 291
Spreading its sails unseasonably, an emblem of carnal mirth 306
A neglected leak in it represents the danger of indulged sin 308
Shore, the danger of a ship near it spiritually improved 320
Joy of making it, represents that of the saints coming to heaven 322
It was usual for the ancient Christians to pray there 386
Sin, the nature and evil of it explained and improved 428
Sins, Indulged ones represented by leaks in a ship 308
Sinners, the vanity of those who hope to conceal themselves 425
The impudence of open ones 427
Sparrows, meditation on their mixing with goldfinches 207
Storms at sea, an emblem of worldly troubles 309
How God's power and goodness is manifested in them 259
Are sometimes executioners of God's threatenings 289
The principal and instrumental causes of them 404
How God's wonderful providence appears in them 406
Lessons to be learned from them, and from preservation in them 413
Success in our affairs, to be ascribed to God's blessing 435
Vid. Prosperity.
Swearing profanely, the great evil and danger of it 343
An Alphabetical Table for the Sixth Volume.

T

Tares, their likeness to wheat, considered and improved

Thankfulness due to God for recovery from dangerous sickness

For preservation of life in dangers

Motives to it

What things are included in this duty

The reasonableness of it

Five arguments to excite to it

Threshing of corn, how an emblem of God's affecting his people

Tongue, a serious caution against the sins of it

An observable remark concerning the numerous sins of it

It is compared in scripture to a tree

Rules to prevent the sins of it

Trade, the badness of it chiefly caused by sin

By sea, how it is an emblem of communion

Sins which peculiarly blast the success of it

Vid. Calling.

Trade-unid, how the saints always have it in their way to heaven

Trees, how barren ones represent useless professors

Serious reflections upon cutting them down

Occasional meditations on several sorts of them

Vegetables, meditations upon the strange means of preserving them

Uncleanness, directions for avoiding it

Unthankfulness to God, the exceeding evil and danger of it

Vows, the nature of them

The great evil and danger of breaking them

W

Heat, a spiritual improvement of its being represented by tares, 104. Vid. Tares.

How good men are compared to it

Will of God, a remarkable example of submission to it

Winds, the mariner's skill in improving them, spiritualized

The danger of losing them spiritually improved

The principal cause of them is God's will Wings of the morning, what is signified by this phrase

Winnowing of corn, how it represents God's judgments

Serious reflections upon it

Winter, the husbandman's care to provide for it, spiritually improved
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Page</th>
<th>An Alphabetical Table for the seventh Volume.</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Winter, Various reflections upon it 132</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Worm, a meditation on one caught by a Robin Red-breast 208</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

VOLUME VII.

A

- Adam, how all men fell in him, explained and improved 493
- Afflictions, are sometimes very heavy 400
- How far we may complain under them 448
- The great evil of murmuring under them 449

Assembly's-Catechism, the several things in it explained and applied 458, &c.

Assurance of salvation, on what grounds a sincere Christian builds it 197

Bibles, what a blessing it is to enjoy them 424

Bradford, a remarkable expression of his before his martyrdom 297

C

- Andle, what is meant by the phrase of God's lighting it 299
- Conversion, the nature of the change wrought by it 328
- It is a real change in the whole man 331
- How it prepares for choice services and sufferings 333
- The evidencing of it a necessary preparative for sufferings, 336. Vid. Evidence.

Covenant, (of grace) the comfort it yields under trouble 258

Covenant

- Several excellent properties of it explained 398
- Those who are interested in it may be exposed to great afflictions 400
- It is able to remove all the grounds of a believer's trouble 406
- It disarms afflictions of their sting, and turns them into a blessing 408
- It makes calamities work for the Christian's salvation 410
- It secures God's presence to believers in their distress 412
- It secures the believer's happiness from all hazards 415
- It assures God's people that their afflictions are the strokes of love 417
- It is everlasting, and yields everlasting comfort 420
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Topic</th>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Covenant (of grace)</td>
<td>422</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Their condition deplorable who have no title to it</td>
<td>425</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Believers should study it much</td>
<td>426</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>How our interest in it must be known</td>
<td>429</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>An explication and improvement of it</td>
<td>430</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Courage, the necessity of it to prepare for sufferings</td>
<td>348</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Vid. Fortitude.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Creation, the nature of it considered and improved</td>
<td>483</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>That of man more particularly explained and improved</td>
<td>485</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Death, considerations to raise a Christian above the fear of it</td>
<td>87</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A supposed mistake about means to prevent it should not cause excessive grief</td>
<td>286</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>How that of good men is not, and how it is to be lamented</td>
<td>437, &amp;c.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Deceivers, (of themselves) the danger of being such</td>
<td>118</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>There are too many such among professors</td>
<td>119</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Four causes of men's being such</td>
<td>113</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Cautions in reference to the abounding of such</td>
<td>127</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Warnings to professors to take heed of being such</td>
<td>128</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Directions to those who are satisfied they are not so</td>
<td>130</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Decrees of God, the properties of them explained and improved</td>
<td>481</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Dependance on Christ, necessary to fit us for sufferings</td>
<td>372</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Domestic-ills, the best men are liable to them</td>
<td>396</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>How the covenant of grace relieves under them</td>
<td>397</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Vid. Covenant.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Doubtful seasons, how we should keep our hearts in them</td>
<td>74</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Vid. Heart.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Duties of religion, how sincerity is discovered by the performance of them</td>
<td>176</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Election to eternal life, several questions and answers for explaining it</td>
<td>497</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>End of man, questions and answers concerning his chief and inferior end</td>
<td>458</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Estate, trouble for want of heirs to enjoy it, considered</td>
<td>290</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Eternal, questions and answers about God's being to</td>
<td>467</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Evidence of conversion, six things shewing the nature of it</td>
<td>336</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The necessity of it to prepare us for sufferings</td>
<td>337</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Several rules for attaining it, and preventing mistakes about it.</td>
<td>339</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
An Alphabetical Table for the Seventh Volume.

| Examination of ourselves, several motives to it | 207 |
| Examination of ourselves, rules to prevent Christians from being over severe in it | 211 |
| Rules to prevent hypocrites from deceiving themselves in it | 215 |
| Several useful advices in relation to it | 217 |

Faith, the necessity of strengthening it, to prepare for sufferings | 342 |
How it strengthens the believer for difficulties | 344 |
Several means whereby it is strengthened | 345 |
God governs his people by it | 423 |
Questions and answers concerning this and obedience | 404 |
Fall of man, confirmed, illustrated, and improved | 489 |
Family, a declining one lamented as a great affliction | 400 |
Fortitude, the necessity of it to prepare for sufferings | 348 |
The nature of it opened in several particulars | 350 |
Ten rules for attaining and increasing of it | 351 |

Gerfin, a remarkable observation of his | 296 |
God, his nature and attributes explained and improved | 463–480 |
He is present with his people in their afflictions two ways | 412 |
Gold, true grace fitly compared to it for its excellency | 131 |

Good men, how their death should not be lamented | 437 |
Several reasons why their death should be lamented | 438 |
A reproof for not lamenting their death, or not doing it aright | 441 |
Useful advices to those who are mourning for the death of such | 446 |

Goodness of God, the properties and evidences of it explained | 474 |
Grace, Wherein it excels the most excellent gifts | 131 |
The preciousness of that which is true, set forth in several particulars | 133 |
Useful inferences concerning the preciousness of it | 136 |
How the trial of it is compared to that of gold | 137 |
A discourse of its trial, is attended with various difficulties | 140 |
Divers ways enumerated, by which the sincerity of it is tried | 141 |
Prosperity is a great trial of the truth of it | 143 |
What probation adversity makes of it | 149 |
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Page</th>
<th>An Alphabetical Table, for the Seventh Volume</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>329</td>
<td>Grace, How indwelling discovers the soundness or unsoundness of it</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>158</td>
<td>How it is tried by the performance of religious duties</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>178</td>
<td>How the sincerity of it is tried by sufferings for religion</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>185</td>
<td>Why God exposes his people to so many trials of it</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>186</td>
<td>That which is inherent, is not preserved by its own strength</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>198</td>
<td>Want of trying it, is the ruin of many professors</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>199</td>
<td>The necessity of it in the heart to prepare it for sufferings</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>322</td>
<td>Wherein the nature of that which is saving consists</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>328</td>
<td>How it prepares for doing and suffering</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>333</td>
<td>Clear evidences of it are necessary to prepare for sufferings</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>335</td>
<td>Rules prescribed for attaining the evidences of it</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>339</td>
<td>Heart, a general account of the keeping of it</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>11</td>
<td>Six things included in the keeping of it</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>12</td>
<td>What kind of work keeping it is</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>14</td>
<td>How keeping it conduces to the honour of God</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>25</td>
<td>How it may be kept humble in prosperity</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>29</td>
<td>How it may be kept from desponding in adversity</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>34</td>
<td>Means of settling it in the time of Sion's troubles</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>41</td>
<td>How it may be preserved from distracting fears in public dangers</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>48, 50</td>
<td>Helps to its trusting God in a time of want</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>48</td>
<td>How it may be kept from vain thoughts in religious duties</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>55</td>
<td>Eight remedies against its revengeful motions under injuries</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>61</td>
<td>How it may be kept meek and patient under great provocations</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>67</td>
<td>Means of securing it under strong temptations</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>71</td>
<td>How it may be kept from desponding under desolation and doubts</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>75</td>
<td>Means of keeping it steadfast in sufferings for religion</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>83</td>
<td>How it may be reconciled to death in a time of sickness</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>86</td>
<td>The keeping of it hindered by fruitless controversies and earthly thoughts</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>92</td>
<td>Ten motives to engage our diligence in keeping it</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>96, 98</td>
<td>A sixfold means for keeping it rightly</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>103</td>
<td>Encouragements to those who diligently keep it</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>107</td>
<td>How much the keeping and searching of it excels all other studies</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>109</td>
<td>Vol. VIII.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Topic</td>
<td>Page</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-------</td>
<td>------</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Holiness of God, the nature of it explained and improved</td>
<td>472</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Hypocrisy, the vanity of thinking to hide it</td>
<td>184</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Six things thought, without ground, necessary signs of it</td>
<td>192</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Queries for discovering of it</td>
<td>214</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Six false tokens of being clear from it</td>
<td>215</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Seven directions to preserve the soul from it</td>
<td>217</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Hypocrites, how far they may be like sincere Christians</td>
<td>17</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>All their pains in religion are lost labour</td>
<td>39</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Incarnation of Christ explained and improved</td>
<td>503</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Indwelling sin, how it discovers the soundness or un-soundness of our hearts</td>
<td>158</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>How far a hypocrite may be restrained from it</td>
<td>159</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>How God's children are kept from closing with it</td>
<td>161</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>How differently the regenerate and unregenerate hate it</td>
<td>162</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>How differently bad and good men are troubled for it</td>
<td>165</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Difference between sinners and saints, in reference to the dominion of it</td>
<td>169</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>How differently God's children and others oppose it</td>
<td>173</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Infinite, questions and answers about God's being so</td>
<td>465</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Josiah, (king of Judah) his excellent character</td>
<td>434</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The lamentation made for him expounded</td>
<td>436</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Justice of God, the properties and evidences of it explained</td>
<td>473</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Keeping the heart, several things included in it</td>
<td>8</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Several properties of this work</td>
<td>12</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>How it conduces to the honour of God, and the sincerity of our religion</td>
<td>16</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>It puts a beauty on our profession, and yields comfort to our souls</td>
<td>18</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The improvement of our graces depends upon it</td>
<td>22</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>It is necessary to the stability of our souls</td>
<td>23</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Special seasons which call for our utmost diligence</td>
<td>24</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Vid. Heart.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Topic</th>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Amentations, why to be made at the funerals of good men</td>
<td>438</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Laodicea, its woful diseases, and remedies for curing them</td>
<td>115</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Loveliness of relations, no sufficient ground of excessive sorrow for their death</td>
<td>282</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mind of man cannot bear afflictions without being supported</td>
<td>402</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
An Alphabetical Table for the Seventh Volume.

Mortification, to earthly interest, necessary to prepare for sufferings
Several things wherein it is chiefly to be exercised Mother, the mournful state of one mentioned in the gospel
Christ's compassionate counsel to a mourning one
Mourning, (for dead relations) ought to be moderated
How far it should be allowed of
When it is excessive and sinful
What comfort may be given unregenerate sinners under it
Twenty considerations for comforting God's children under it
Several pleas for excess in it answered
Seven rules prescribed for moderating of it
Mourners, a discourse called a token for them
For the death of godly friends, comforted by the covenant of grace
Comforts by the hope of the resurrection
Solaced by the present happy state of their piously departed friends
Quieted by God's ability to make up their losses
Comforted by considering that God has better things to bestow
Their grief allayed by considering the good which may be got by losses, and how much more others, as good as ourselves, have lost
Comforted by their relation to God, and the nearness of eternal joy
Four considerations to support them
Seasonable advices to such Action, what sins are tokens of its approaching misery

One, God's being so, explained and improved
Only son, Advices to parents lamenting the death of one
The death of such a one, no sufficient ground of excessive sorrow
Original sin, the nature of it explained, with improvements
Some account of man's misery flowing from it

Paul, (the apostle) how he was ready to suffer
Power of God, the nature of it explained, with inferences
Prayer, how it may be answered, though the mercies prayed for be withheld, or taken away
Prayer. How the due performance of it prepares for sufferings 368
Means of improving in it 370
Preparation for sufferings gives rest in them 312
It is an evidence of sincerity 313
Prevents the scandal of the cross 314
Tends to awaken the drowsy world 315
It is highly commended by the Spirit of God 317
Conduces to stability in a day of trial 319
It evidences love to Jesus Christ, and submission to the divine will ibid.
Is very pleasing to God, and alleviates a fall under them 320
The necessity of a real conversion in order to it, shown in six particulars 323
It is woefully wanting among professors 377
Several motives persuading to it 382
Divers encouragements to those who strive for it 388
Presence of God, instances of three kinds of it 412
Providences, confirmations, explications, and improvements of it 486

R
Redemption, that wrought by our Saviour, explained and improved 500
Relations, doubting about their state when dead considered 288
Trouble for over-pitying, or undervaluing them, considered 289
Rest in the day of evil, is either of deliverance, or of contentation 312
Resurrection, how the hope of it supports those who mourn the death of godly friends 262
Saints shall probably know one another after it 265

S
Scandals of professors, the sight of them matter of grief 1
The unreasonableness of stumbling at them 2
Discourse of keeping the heart designed to prevent them 3
Scripture, the divine authority of it confirmed and improved 460
Self-deceit, the danger of it, 119. Vid. Deceivers.
Sincerity, some of the most assuring marks of it 210
Care in keeping the heart, a good evidence of it 17
Sincerity, the touchstone of it discovered and applied 113
How much it concerns us to try and discover it 205
Six motives to a diligent trial of it 208
Rules for the discovery of it 211, &c.
Seven counsels for maintaining and increasing it 217
Sorrow, for the death of relations, when it is sinful 236
Vid. Mourning.
Sorrow. Excess of that which is worldly, gives the advantage to Satan
When exorbitant it is dishonourable to God
Excess of it when God hides his face considered Rules for moderating it on the death of relations

Vid. Godly sorrow.

Spirit, God's being so explained with useful inferences
Suddenness of relations dying, no sufficient ground of excessive sorrow Sufferings for religion, how sincerity is tried by them
How sincerity establishes the soul under them
How St. Paul was ready for them
God suffers the most grievous sometimes to befall his best servants
They redound to God's glory, and the good of his people
Seven tokens of their approach
Why God usually gives warning of them before-hand
Ten excellencies of being prepared for them

Vid. Preparation.

T

Tempests, represents worldly troubles
Temptation, arguments by which the devil backs it answered Temptations, the usual method wherein they prevail
Acquaintance with them necessary to prepare for sufferings
Several kinds of them
The policy which Satan discovers in them
The chief danger of them lies in our own corruptions
Rules to prevent being overcome by them, in a suffering hour

Trinity of persons in the God-head, confirmed and improved Troubles, how they are represented by storms at sea
Truth of God, the nature and properties of it explained and improved

Trial of grace, various ways by which it is done
Useful inferences concerning it
Christians should be diligent in doing it

U

Unchangeableness of God, the nature of it, with improvements

Upton, (John, Esq.) a funeral sermon on his death
Some account of his excellent character
An Alphabetical Table for the eighth Volume.

Wisdom of God, the nature of it shewn, with improvements

Youthfulness of dead relations, no sufficient ground of excessive sorrow for them

VOLUME VIII.

A

Adoption, the nature and properties of it opened and improved

Appetite, signs of our spiritual one being right

Application, (of Christ), explained and improved

Assurance, of God's love, several questions and answers for explaining and improving it

Of Christ's love, most desirable to believers

Directions for obtaining and securing it

Vid. Love of Christ.

B

Aptism, questions and answers concerning the nature of it

The several kinds of subjects on whom it is to be administered

Of infants, vindicated against Mr. Philip Cary

Blessedness, the perfection of it explained and improved

Bread, what is meant by it in the Lord's prayer

Our praying for daily bread explained and improved

C

Cary, (Mr. Philip) Mr Flavel's defence of infant-baptism against him

His three positions concerning the covenant of Sinai, &c. considered Christ, his offices explained and improved, 1. Vid. Offices.

His humiliation explained and improved

How a sinner's espousals to him, is represented by the coronation of a king

Why he rejoices in sinners yielding to his government

Motives to a submission to his government

Condition, the nature of an evangelical one

Faith is that of the gospel-covenant, 195. Vid. Covenant.

Contentment, a preface persuading to hearken to it

Conversion, the possibility of it in the vilest sinners

That of profane sinners highly probable
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Alphabetical Table for the eighth Volume.</th>
<th>Pag.</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Conversion, how it is frequently and fatally mistaken</td>
<td>412</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The nature of that which is real</td>
<td>414</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The hazards which attend it, and the absolute necessity of it</td>
<td>415</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>All might do more than they do towards it</td>
<td>417</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Temptations and discouragements in the way of it</td>
<td>418</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Several weighty considerations persuading to it</td>
<td>419</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Coronation, a sermon on the occasion of that of king William</td>
<td>424</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>How a soul's espousal to Christ is represented by it</td>
<td>428</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Why that of Christ is joyful to him</td>
<td>434</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Several useful inferences concerning that of Christ</td>
<td>435, &amp;c.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Corruption, (sinful) work in the best Christians</td>
<td>248</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Why it works most in religious duties</td>
<td>249</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Reasons why its working in duties is very grievous to good men</td>
<td>250</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Instructions resulting from the working of it in holy duties</td>
<td>252</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rules to prevent its totally spoiling our religious services</td>
<td>254</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Comforts to those who lament it</td>
<td>255</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Covenant, (of grace) the conditionality of it, explained and confirmed</td>
<td>193, &amp;c.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Covenant, (of works) the nature of it explained, with improvements</td>
<td>173, &amp;c.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>That of Sinai not the same with it</td>
<td>176</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>How it differed from that of circumcision</td>
<td>184</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Covetousness, the nature and mischief of it</td>
<td>81</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Crucified, Christ may be said to be so three ways</td>
<td>277</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Death, how believers are perfected by it | 31

Delight, that of Christ in our redemption, confirmed, explained, and improved | 294

Drunkenness, how it is condemned by natural reason and conscience | 371

Duty of man to God, wherein it consists, 41. Vid. Obedience.

Duties of religion, what seriousness is required in them | 232

Signs of drawing near to God in them | 240

How corruptions work in the saints performance of them | 246

Four rules to prevent their being spoiled by corruptions | 254

Encouragements to them, notwithstanding the workings of corruptions | 255

Duties and sins of professors, a double scheme of them 471, &c.

Effectual calling, questions and answers for explaining and improving it | 14

What are the concomitants of it | 16
An Alphabetical Table for the Eighth Volume.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Enjoyment of God, the fulness of it explained and improved</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Enmity to godliness, condemned by natural reason and conscience</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Exaltation of Christ explained and improved</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Faith, several instructive queries and replies concerning that which is saving</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The least measure of that which is saving highly valuable</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The weakness of it costs believers many tears and sorrows</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Faithfulness of God, the nature and properties of it</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Forgiveness, the petition for it in the Lord's prayer, explained and improved</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Glorification of believers, at death, confirmed and improved</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>God, the full enjoyment of him explained and improved</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Godly-sorrow, how the contemplation of Christ's sufferings produces it</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The truth of it discovered by several rules</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Good-name, our duty in reference to that of others, or our own</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Grace, the growth and increase of it explained and improved</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Humiliation of Christ, explained and improved</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Joy in the Holy Ghost, the nature and properties of it, with useful inferences</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Justification, the doctrine of it explained and improved</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ing, how Christ is so, explained and improved</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Kingdom of God, what meant by praying it may come</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Law of God, our disability perfectly to keep it in this life</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Neglect of God, Christ so called</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Why to be beheld with admiration</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The great usefulness of beholding him by faith</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Title</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>----------------------------------------------------------------------</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Law of God, useful inferences from our inability to yield perfect obedience to it</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Lord's prayer, whether to be used as a form or not</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The preface to it explained and improved</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The first petition therein opened, with improvements</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Its second petition considered</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>An exposition and application of the third petition</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The fourth petition of it opened and improved</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>An explication and application of the fifth petition in it</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The sixth petition of it expounded and improved</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>An exposition of its conclusion, with improvements</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Lord's supper, questions and answers concerning the nature and ends of it</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The elements, actions, and subjects of it shewn</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The qualifications and duties of those who receive it</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A discourse concerning that seriousness which is required in it</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A meditation on God's nearness to his people in it</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>How Christ is to be beheld in it</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>What we may behold of Christ therein</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Lord's supper, the advantages of beholding Christ in it by faith</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Love of Christ, what renders the assurance of it most desirable</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The difficulty of obtaining the assurance of it</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Directions for obtaining an assurance thereof</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>How it is said to pass knowledge</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Wherein it appears to be wonderful</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Love, (to God and man) the properties of it, with improvements</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Eat and drink, how Christ's flesh and blood is for to believers</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The transcendent excellency of that which Christ gives</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Profitable inferences concerning that our Saviour gives</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Motives to feed upon that which flows from Christ</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Members of the church, several of their usual sins and duties enumerated</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Moral-law, the nature and obligation of it considered and improved</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Name of God, the sanctifying of it explained and improved</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Obedience to God, the nature and rules of it explained and improved</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
An Alphabetical Table for the eighth Volume.

Offices of Christ explained and improved
Vid. the words King, Priest, and Prophet.

Omniscience of God, vid Knowledge.

Ordinances of the gospel, questions and answers concerning the nature and saving efficacy of them

P

After, an evangelical one described by our Saviour
What is included in his ministerial faithfulness
The nature and eminent use of ministerial prudence to him
The glorious reward which a good one may expect Several improvements which ministers should make of Christ's description of him

Peace, of conscience, this privilege explained and improved

Perfection of believers at death, explained and improved

Perseverance of faints, the grounds of its security explained, with improvements

Prayer, questions and answers concerning the nature and properties of it
The Lord's prayer our peculiar directory for performing it, 130. Vid. Lord's prayer.
To reason with God in it, is not only lawful, but our duty

Priest, how Christ executes the office of one explained and improved

Prophet, how Christ is one shewn with improvements

Prudence, wherein ministers should exercise it with respect to themselves
Of ministers, in reference to their assistants and opposers

Qualifications, what are necessary for those who come to the Lord's table

Reason, arguments persuading to hearken to it
It convinces sinners they must change reformation or ruin
Appeals to it for promoting reformation
The wickedness of warring against its dictates
Its censures of profane swearing and blasphemy
It severely condemns drunkenness
The determination of it against uncleanness
Its condemnation of enmity against godliness

Reformation of manners, necessary to prevent ruin
The possibility and advantage of it Appeals to reason for promoting it
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Topic</th>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Repentance, the nature and necessity of that which is</td>
<td>98</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>saving</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The spring, the effect, and measure of the sorrow of</td>
<td>99</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>it</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rest, that of believers, in death, explained and</td>
<td>34</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>improved</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Resurrection, the doctrine of it confirmed, explained,</td>
<td>35</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>and improved</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>How Christ will acknowledge and acquit believers after</td>
<td>36</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>it</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sabbath, reasons of God’s requiring a weekly one</td>
<td>60</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>How it ought to be kept</td>
<td>62</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sacraments, what the word primarily signifies</td>
<td>109</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Questions and answers concerning the efficacy of the</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>gospel ones</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The nature of them opened and applied</td>
<td>111</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The number of them determined</td>
<td>114</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sacramental-meditations, &amp;c. 120. Vid. Lord’s supper.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sanctification, the nature of it explained</td>
<td>21</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Saving-faith, the preciousness of the least degree of</td>
<td>94</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>it</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Characters of its being true, though weak</td>
<td>96</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>It is exceeding comfortable to have it, though in the</td>
<td>285</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>lowest measure</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Scripture, rules fit to be observed in the interpretation of</td>
<td>203</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>it</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Seal, upon the heart and arm, what it means</td>
<td>312</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sealing of the Spirit, the nature of it, and how it is</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>performed</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Why none have it till they believe</td>
<td>257</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>How all believers have it, and have it not</td>
<td>258</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>How great a privilege it is</td>
<td>260</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The distinguishing effects of it</td>
<td>261</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Directions for getting, recovering, and securing it</td>
<td>264</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Severity of God, how exercised towards Christ</td>
<td>276</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Reasons of God’s exercising it upon our Saviour</td>
<td>279</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Inferences from Christ’s enduring of it</td>
<td>281</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sins, the inequality of them evinced and improved</td>
<td>87</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The exceeding evil and danger of them considered and</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>improved</td>
<td>89</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>How we may escape God’s wrath and curse due for them</td>
<td>91</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Some usually found in church-members</td>
<td>471</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Son of God, why Christ is called God’s own Son</td>
<td>274</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>How God spared him not</td>
<td>277</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Reasons of God’s severity towards him</td>
<td>279</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Several useful lessons from God’s not sparing him</td>
<td>281</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>How the divine severity to him encourages the hope of</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Christians</td>
<td>283</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
An Alphabetical Table for the eighth Volume.

Swearing, it is condemned by natural reason and conscience

Tears, whence they may be wanting where there is much trouble

Temptation, the petition against it in the Lord's prayer explained

Ten commandments, the sum of them explained and improved

The preface to them opened, with inferences from it

The first of them explained and applied

The second expounded, with useful inferences

The third opened and improved

The fourth explained, with improvements

The fifth opened and applied

The sixth expounded and improved

The seventh explained and applied

The eighth explained and applied

The ninth opened, with improvements of it

The tenth explained and improved

The imposibility of perfectly keeping them in this life

Thankfulness for supplies in necessities

Transubstantiation, the popish doctrine concerning it refuted

Unbelief, Christians have good reason to weep for the remains of it

Signs of the remainder of it in good people

Comfort for Christians under the lamented remains of it

Uncleanness, the great evil and danger of it

Union, with Christ, explication and improvement of it

Vocation, the concomitants of it, 10. Vid. Effectual calling.

Will of God, what is meant by it in the Lord's prayer

How we should do it on earth, as it is done in heaven

For redeeming sinners was most pleasing to Christ

Word of God, how reading and hearing it conduceth to salvation

The manner of reading and hearing it aright

Worship of God, reasons for a composed serious spirit in it

God's peculiar presence in it, explained and improved

The best Christians find the workings of sinful corruptions therein

FINIS.